Commonwealth Boycott Urged Of South Africa

Must Fight Apartheid To Hold Trust Is Plea

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Calls for sanctions against South Africa were heard today as Asian African and West Indian leaders spoke on the world political situation at the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers.

Attacks on Southern Rhodesia's racial policies also were made notably by Ghana's Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah — but conference sources said the debate remained decorous and friendly at all times.

Prime Minister Albert Margai of Sierra Leone said it is essential for senior Commonwealth members to take a firmer attitude against South Africa's apartheid in order to retain the confidence of the emerging African countries.

He criticized Britain for opposing sanctions.

Conference briefing officers declined to give specific information on what the various speakers said, but a spokesman for Margai said Commonwealth problems such as demands by Malaysia, Cyprus and Kashmir show the necessity for "some form of conciliation machinery within the Commonwealth."

Canadian Prime Minister Pearson was scheduled to speak later today.

In his second day, the 18-country conference seemed away to a smooth start after the tentative agenda was re-arranged to meet the wishes of African countries anxious to reach early questions.

The meeting decided quickly and, without acrimony at its opening session, postponed such issues as Southern Rhodesia and British Guiana would take up on the first day on the agenda, rather than last.

Under this agreement, the agenda now includes:

—A review of the world political situation.

—Progress of British territories towards independence and membership of the Commonwealth, a topic embracing, for instance, Southern Rhodesia and economic and co-operation between the peoples of the Commonwealth; and international affairs.

MAY GET PAST FIRST

Some sources said the world debate might occupy both of today's sessions, but chances of distinct possibility the second item would be reached, launched by speeches on Southern Rhodesia's white minority rule.

Britain's decision to close the key critic of British policy in Southern Rhodesia, had no opportunity to discuss it Wednesday.

Gay Convention Prepares To Hand Goldwater Reins, Scranton Works On Curb

Pennsylvania Governor Wants Platform Opposing Extremism

By HAROLD MORRISON

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — Goldwater, the arch-conservative from Arizona, appears to be riding the wings of victory while William Scranton, the moderate from Pennsylvania, pursues his quixotic dissent.

This is a gay convention where Republican delegates, pouring in by the hundreds, rub with tourists and residents as they ride the anticipated trolley cars up the steep inclines of one of the main thoroughfares.

The sea air sweeps clean through the governors' streets where throngs fill the bars and restaurants with laughter and chatter. Even informally-dressed teen-agers mix politics with their Beatle talk.

One of them, bearing a placard advocating Beatle drummer Ringo Starr for president, added a qualified endorsement.

"Goldwater '64
First water '65
Bread and water '66"

Goldwater placards, girls and buttons are in full evidence. Some posters are printed in Chinese and some in French.

OPPOSE MONDALE

The convention doesn't open formally until Monday. Voting for party platform and candidates won't take places until Wednesday. Yet there is an instant acceptance of the arrangement and acceptance.

Scranton, the Pennsylvania governor who made a late starter in the nominations race, made his grand entrance here Wednesday night. He received a tumultuous crowd of about 500 or more at the airport and several thousand at the downtown hotel where the two floors sandwich the two assigned to Goldwater, the Arizona senator.

But Scranton's pleas for support have not caught fire. His address admit he still is unable to start a party bandwagon on the issue of civil rights. Delegates would be willing to climb aboard on the chance of a Scranton victory.

Newspaper surveys and corridor exchanges indicate this will be a Goldwater convention. The convention, ushering in a new era of get-tough republicanism which, when translated means Goldwater, would warn the Communists there will be no more nonsense, even if this means war.

Sensing victory, Goldwater forces have become cautious and worried. They fear some Democrats may stage some predictable demonstrations on the convention floor or in the galleries that could embarrass Goldwater's prospects.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Governor William Scranton of Pennsylvania indicated today that he would appeal for planks in the Republican party platform opposed to "extremism" of any type, particularly in the civil rights field.

Seemingly unable to start a rank-and-file revolt against the leading contender for the Republican presidential nomination, the former Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Scranton carried his fight to the nominating convention platform committee. He was invited to appear before the committee today.

But the 105 - member group contains a majority of Goldwater supporters and there was no indication that the committee will produce any platform statement that Goldwater could "get except on" that would open the way for any successful challenge on the convention floor.

Scranton arrived in San Francisco Wednesday after crisscrossing the country in an effort to spark popular support for his own campaign to win the nomination. He flew here from Detroit where he had conferred with Johnson in the Nov. 3 general election.

In the meantime the Goldwater supporters plowed confidently toward their goal of a first-ballot victory next Wednesday.

MANAGER CONFIDENT

Senator Carl V. Curtis of Nebraska, the Mormon senator's convention floor manager, said that "we have got more than enough" delegate votes for the nomination "but we want more."

Senator John G. Tower of Texas, another Goldwater strategist, said in a separate interview: "We've got more than 700 and we're greeting more." A total of 655 convention votes is needed for the nomination.

The opponents of the Goldwater movement in the states had produced most of their top-rank figures — including Governors George Romney of Michigan and Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and former ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge — here. Lodge, who is not seeming to have made a perceptible dent in the delegate strength amassed by the Arizona senator.

The long perseality who is credited with any ability to change the result—former president Dwight Eisenhower—isn't due until the weekend. But in the face of neutrality in the presidential contest it appeared to have been established beyond alteration.

Pickets Gather At Gardens

By BOB MacKENZIE

TORONTO (CP) — The Lions were roaring in full voice Wednesday, but the quiet appearance of Alabama Governor George Wallace attracted the major share of the spotlight.

More than 30,000 Lions club members and their families tied up downtown traffic for four hours around noon when they staged their parade and an estimated 15,000 were on hand for the official opening of the international convention at Maple Leaf Gardens in the evening.

But the arrival of the Alabama segregationist sparked a growing controversy over his speech today to Lions members.

There were fewer than 100 persons in front of the Royal York Hotel when Mr. Wallace drove up with his police escort and jogged quickly into the hotel. Suddenly a few minutes later and cries of "We're with ya, George."

By the time he had reached his hotel room, more than 600 pickets had formed up in single file around Maple Leaf Gardens to greet arriving Lions. They were orderly and co - operated with police to allow pedestrian traffic to move freely as they carried signs denouncing Wallace's racist policy, with some groups quietly singing and chanting "We shall overcome."

EXPECT MORE

Some 1,000 pickets are expected today to greet Mr. Wallace today. But he was apparently unfazed by it at the prospect.

He refused to meet the press Wednesday, but his press secretary, Bill Jones, said: "The governor does not believe in a segregated right of the people, and has no objection to peaceful picketing — which he feels should be allowed another basic right, freedom of speech."

The convention opening ran smoothly Wednesday night, with a session of community singing and an impressive presentation of flags of the 125 nations where Lions clubs exist. The Red Ensign of Canada led the parade of flag, but only O Canada was

School Principal Acquitted

GUELPH (CP) — Donald Tutt, a 53-year-old high school principal charged with three counts of forging Grade 13 examination papers for the benefit of his son, was acquitted of charges Wednesday by a county court jury after an hour and 45 minutes of deliberation.

Tutt, a teacher for 30 years, had pleaded not guilty to the charges which arose after Jon Gregg Murray, 19, appealed to the department of education after receiving a failing mark in an English literature exam written last June. The case was heard by Judge W. S. Lane.

An investigation indicated the name on Murray's paper had been switched to that of Bruce Tutt, 19. It was also discovered that corrections had been made on the younger Tutt's French composition and French authors papers in handwriting different from his own.

Both Murray and Bruce Tutt were students at Fergus and District High School where the senior Tutt is principal, at the time the exams were written. They now are students at the University of Western Ontario.

During the trial, which opened Monday, two handwriting experts from the attorney-general's department testified they thought the handwriting on the exam corrections was that of the older Tutt.

TTES DIFFERENCES

In his address to the jury, defence counsel Arthur Martin said testimony of the handwriting experts—the only evidence against his client—was only opinion evidence, and there had been certain differences in the two opinions, he said.

Judge Lane said in his charge to the jury: "This charge has some peculiar significance in that it is not only an ordinary criminal case, but a charge involving a profession from which we expect justice."

When the verdict was announced Tutt's wife, Helen, demonstrated his her lip to fight back the tears and then bowed into a smile. Her son Bruce, a freshman exam paper, was also under close scrutiny during the trial, had tears in his eyes.

Fishing Bill Passed

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — A contentious government bill on Canada's territorial and fishing limits, which has been tossing in parliamentary waves since April 30, is expected to receive final passage in the Commons today.

The House completed its clause-by-clause study of the measure Wednesday and proceeds today with the third reading, usually cleaned up with little or no debate.

Spokesmen for the four opposition parties reiterated Wednesday that they will vote for the bill, but described it as an attractive shell with no substance inside. They said the bill in itself will do nothing to help Canadian fishermen fare better in competition with the big, modern foreign trawlers that ply the East and West coasts.

The second item on today's agenda is a complex measure enacting new fiscal arrangements with the ten provinces at two federal-provincial conference next winter.

CAN EXPAND ZONE

The fishing bill empowers the cabinet to expand Canada's territorial sea limits by drawing new limits with a straight baseline from headland to headland. This system could lose such bodies of water as the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Queen Charlotte Sound to all foreign fishermen. The exact location of the baseline is being discussed with the United States and six European countries.

The bill also empowers the cabinet to proclaim a nine-mile exclusive fishing zone beyond the three-mile territorial limit

Doctor Tells of Argument Over Procedure in Operation

TORONTO (CP) — The chief resident in surgery at Toronto East General Hospital testified Wednesday that an operation on Patricia Morgan was stopped for 10 minutes while Dr. and Dr. Kenneth Brown argued over procedure.

Testifying at Dr. Brown's trial on a charge of failing to report Miss Morgan's death, Dr. A. T. Varga said he requested Dr. Brown to identify parts of the mesentery. Wednesday and previously today with the third reading, usually cleaned up with little or no debate.

Spokesmen for the four opposition parties reiterated Wednesday that they will vote for the bill, but described it as an attractive shell with no substance inside. They said the bill in itself will do nothing to help Canadian fishermen fare better in competition with the big, modern foreign trawlers that ply the East and West coasts.

The second item on today's agenda is a complex measure enacting new fiscal arrangements worked out with the provinces at two federal-provincial conference next winter.

CAN EXPAND ZONE

The fishing bill empowers the cabinet to expand Canada's territorial sea limits by drawing new limits with a straight baseline from headland to headland. (Continued on Page 12)

Dr. Brown is one of six men who have been "charged" with failing to report Miss Morgan's death last Nov. 4 to a coroner after an autopsy revealed a surgical clamp, tangled in her intestines, as the cause of death.

Five doctors and the administrator of the hospital faced the charges. One doctor was convicted earlier this week and fined $100. Another was acquitted.

Dr. Varga, a Crown witness against Dr. Brown, also described interruptions during the cancer operation due to a difference of medical opinion.

When John Hoolihan, special Crown prosecutor, asked Dr. Varga why he requested Dr. Brown to identify the anatomy of the patient, the witness replied: "To be truthful I wanted to know if he knew the anatomy. I had to ask him twice. Finally he stood back and showed the abdominal anatomy to the patient."

Dr. Varga said that he and Dr. Brown, who wears a hearing aid, argued about the location of certain organs in the abdominal cavity.

Dr. Varga said that when Dr. Brown, the Morgan family physician, began cutting toward the spleen, he warned him to stop.

"I stopped Dr. Brown . . . I tapped him on the arm or touched his hand and told him he couldn't cut there . . . there would be a lot of bleeding," Dr. Varga said.

"But Dr. Brown just kept cutting and cut off a capsule from the spleen," Dr. Varga said, adding that the spleen must be removed if it is damaged. He also said Dr. Brown did not clamp before he used his scalpel at another juncture in the operation.

In the course of the operation, when Miss Morgan's blood pressure failed to register, Dr. Brown said he would revise his original surgical intention and perform only a "quick-and-small bowel, the chief resident said.

He told him the patient was too weak for this . . . the operation had been going on for about two hours by now. I told a nurse to call Dr. Flewes," he said.

He said when Dr. Burns Flewes, the hospital's chief surgeon, arrived he told him the patient was in shock and about to go under.

Dr. Flewes ordered the damaged spleen removed and then halted surgery. The woman's blood level returned and Dr. Flewes left, Dr. Varga said.

Kelly clamps, the type found on Miss Morgan's abdomen, were used by both him and Dr. Brown, Dr. Varga said. He testified Dr. Brown started to close the incision and after he was about two-thirds down he handed the needle driver to him to finish closing.

When Mr. Hoolihan asked him whether any search for Kelly clamps or any other instruments was made before Miss Morgan's abdomen was closed, the witness said he could not remember. He said the surgeon in charge of the operation, meaning Dr. Brown, must make certain no instruments or other foreign objects are left inside a patient.

BILL SIGNED

WASHINGTON (AP)—An international park on Campobello Island, once the summer home of the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt, will be established under a bill signed Wednesday by President Johnson. The bill actually provides for the creation, jointly with Canada, of a commission empowered to accept from the Hammer family of New York and California the summer home and 10½ acres occupied by the Roosevelt family. The Canadian Island is near the U.S. border.

British Govt. Moves to Stop U.S. Control Over Shipping

LONDON (Reuters) — The British government Wednesday tabled shipowners to ignore United States demands to see its contracts on freight or passage.

Transport Minister Ernest Marples said British shipowners after the 1956-58 date planned for the Concorde.

He said the aircraft, now the white hope of the flagging British aircraft industry, is likely to become another white elephant like the advance models of the ill-fated Comet.

Further, if the orders for the VC-10 are cut back, observers believe British plane makers never will recover their once proud position in world airplanes.

laws to international shipping. The Federal Maritime Commission in Washington has instructed shipping lines using American ports to disclose details of rates and shipping space.

Marples said the bill "shows our willingness as a government to stand up to any country which wishes to interfere with the jurisdiction of the British government, whatever complexion it may be, in this matter."

He said the British government has become increasingly concerned at the attempts made by the maritime commission also to apply to shipping of any flag -the same sort of regulations they apply under their domestic law to U.S. shipping."

Explosions Touch Off Demands For More Protection for Workers

McCOMB, Miss. (AP)—Explosions which injured two civil rights workers in McComb have touched off demands for protection of youths involved in civil rights work in Mississippi. About 500 youths from other states are involved.

Forty-one parents of youths from northern California decided to ask President Johnson, Governor Edmund G. Brown of California and Mississippi governmen to assure protection for the young civil rights workers in Mississippi.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation sent an explosives expert from Washington to help with the investigation. There have been two other similar explosions but no arrests.

An avowed opponent of the newly-passed Civil Rights Act was shot in the arm in Columbia, Tenn., Wednesday night.

Flo F. Fleming, a candidate for Democratic nomination in the Sixth District, reported two Negroes in a passing car fired two shots at him as he drove home from a speaking engagement. He was not believed badly injured.

In Chattanooga, Tenn., however, a Negro educationist-Claude C. Bass—was named co-ordinator of general education for the Chattanooga school system. It is believed to be the first time a Negro has attained such a position in a southern school system.

A similar bright note came in Danville, Va., where directors of the city's Memorial Hospital ordered the facility integrated. The first step taken was approval of 10 Negro doctors for staff privileges.

In San Francisco, Negro leaders said more than 50,000 are expected to parade Sunday in opposition to the possible nomination of Senator Barry Goldwater for president.

Governor William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, also a presidential candidate, accused Goldwater of counting on racial tension to boost his prospects in the U.S. South.

Scranton said Goldwater or his supporters can hope to gain by racial unrest.

This May Be Last Round-up For Britain's Plane-Makers

LONDON (CP) — Britain's civil aviation industry is limping along on two hopes and a prayer.

The two hopes are the Vickers VC-10 - a long - range passenger aircraft that is Britain's answer to advanced models of the Boeing 707 and the French 1,500 - mile - an - hour Concorde jetliner.

The prayer is the British government, under heavy pressure from the publicly - owned British Overseas Airlines Corporation, won't spend $840,000,000 more for 30 super VC-10s already placed by BOAC.

Without the Concorde, still make good any operating loss.

But Rolls-Royce had a second shock for the MPs. Britain's share in the development costs of the Concorde, it said, already had risen to £240,000,000 from £80,000,000. Unless the Government pays the difference, for which there are 43 provisional orders, is likely to cost £5,000,000 an aircraft.

The question mark concerning the Concorde is whether the U.S. will have a larger, faster supersonic aircraft in production relatively soon after the 1968-69 date planned for the Concorde.

If so, the aircraft, now the white hope of the flagging British aircraft industry, is likely to become another white elephant like the advance models of the ill-fated Comet.

Further, if the orders for the VC-10 are cut back, observers believe British plane makers never will recover their once proud position in world airplanes.

House of Commons he will make a statement on the aircraft industry shortly. Correspondents expect he will force BOAC to buy the VC-10s and promise that the government will make good any operating loss.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Two more days of warm, sunny weather are forecast for Northern and central Ontario. In the south, gradual clearing along the northern boundary of cloud shield will continue through the day today even though there is a possibility of some isolated thundershowers this afternoon. However, on Friday sunny weather is forecast for the entire province.

Outdoor Exhibition of Art Sponsored by Recreation Centre

An outdoor exhibition of paintings is being shown every Wednesday afternoon and evening under the shagbox of the Recreational Centre at the home of Phillips Faulkner, Bridge Street East.

Arts and crafts will be included in the showing, and it is open to any exhibitor who wishes to enter his or her work.

A nominal fee will be charged exhibitors to defray the cost to the Recreational Committee of putting up wire for a display structure.

Artists wishing to reserve space can get in touch with Mrs. Faulkner. This will be an opportunity for local artists to show their pictures, copper tooling, leather crafts, etc.

The public is invited to come any Wednesday (weather permitting) for this outdoor exhibition.

College Hill United Church Holds Picnic

Over 200 people attended the College Hill United church picnic held recently at Col. Vanderwater Park.

Games and races were enjoyed with prizes going to the winners. Adults and children alike took part in the competition.

After the games a bountiful picnic supper was enjoyed by all.

The picnic came to a close with a quiet time and a vesper service of worship and song led by Mr. Vesey which brought a wonderful time to a close.

Youth Loses Right to Drive For Two Months

A 19-year-old youth charged with dangerous driving after evading police pursuit, today lost his driver's license for two months and was fined $20.

The penalty for Gordon Fowler, of Campbellford, was lightened after his lawyer pleaded for leniency from Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

R. J. Arnott asked for a three-month suspension and the fine for the youth, a dollar-an-hour man at a Bowmanville nursery.

Opp constable Richard Lewis said the hunt for Fowler started at Oak Lake last Thursday when a car nearly rode down a group of teen-aged youths. After giving a pursuing cruiser the slip the driver chase started again at Stirling. Before it ended at Fowler's home, five more OPP officers were hunting him and he had evaded a roadblock.

Three Charged With Theft of Paint at Station

Three civilian workmen have been charged in connection with theft of paint at Trenton RCAF station.

Charged with possession of stolen goods this morning before Magistrate T. Y. Wills were Earl Archie Holland, and Edward James Hills, both 60 and Austin Sydney Bowess, 42, all of Trenton.

Police said value of the paint stolen is under $100.

The three accused, represented by Louis Marazzaz appeared briefly before the magistrate this morning and were remanded two weeks.

Hastings Orange Lodges to Walk At Marmora

The village of Marmora will be the focal point for Orange Lodges in Hastings county for the annual 12th of July Walk on Saturday.

Approximately 50 lodges are expected to "walk" at Marmora including the 43 lodges in Hastings as well as a few from nearby neighboring communities outside the county.

The Marmora celebration sponsored by the Centre Hastings County Lodge will be the only "walk" in Hastings this year, but big celebrations are planned for Prescott and Peterboury. Some of the Prince Edward county lodges are reported going to Prescott.

JAMES JOSEPH KERRY

IVANHOE — It was with regret that old friends here learned of the sudden and untimely death of Joseph James Kerry, Toronto, in his 46th year.

He was born in Huntingdon township, son of the late Michael Kerry and Minnie Rowan. He attended West Hastings public school, and spent his early life on his father's farm.

He was predeceased by a brother, Stewart, RCAF pilot, who was killed in England May 13, 1943.

He served with the RCAF as Air Gunner, 1941-46, in European countries during World War II, spending some an Irish bride, Phyllis Byrnes. He operated the Ivanhoe Garage from 1947-51. He had a genial personality, was well known and well liked in this district. He was a good neighbor and a loyal friend.

At the time of his death he had been employed by the Automatic Transmission Garage, North Yonge St.

He was a member of St. Margaret's Roman Catholic Church, Toronto.

Mass said at the Lobrico Funeral Home, Yonge St., and the funeral was to St. Margaret's Church, Toronto, with Requiem High Mass, on Friday, July 3rd.

The bearers were: Paul Thompson, John Lukas, Austin Riley and George Gibson, of Toronto; Ambrose Lalonde, of Midland and Dorian Stewart, of Madoc.

MRS. DAISY MILDRED TWEEDY

The funeral of Mrs. Daisy Mildred Tweedy was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Tuesday afternoon. Rev. Paul Packman assisted by Rev. E. F. Smith conducted the service in the chapel and the committal rites at Victoria Cemetery.

The bearers were Harry McPherson, Norman Christie, William Anderson, William Latchford, Elden Boyd and Harvey Putman.

GEORGE JINKS
(Consecon)

The funeral of George Jinks of Main Street in Consecon was held Tuesday afternoon from the Weaver Funeral Home in Trenton. The service was conducted by Mr. M. Jessop of Consecon United Church. Interment was in Carrying Place Cemetery.

George Jinks, in failing health for the past five years, died Saturday at the age of his 65th year. He was a retired stationary engineer with the RCAF in Trenton and a member of Consecon United Church.

He was the son of the late Edgar Jinks and Mary Wait. Besides his mother, he is survived by his wife, the former Lily Brown and three children, Mrs. Clifford (June) Squiers of Cobourg, Ronald and Brian of Consecon. There are six grandchildren.

Also surviving are three brothers, Charles of Carrying Place, Percy of Arthur of Consecon; two sisters, Mrs. Ethel Istead of Bloomfield and Mrs. Maisie Wilson of Picton.

Bearers were Lorne Alyea, Roy Tripp, Charles Clarke, Doug Williamson, Leo and Pat Saucier.

SOVIET ARMS FOR IRAQ

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—An Iraqi military delegation visited the Soviet Union recently "to buy arms for strengthening our armed forces," Iraqi Guidance Minister Abdel Karim Farhan said in a broadcast Wednesday. Farhan, at a press conference broadcast by Baghdad Radio, did not give details of the proposed arms deal.

Cannot Reach Agreement on Labrador Power

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Lesage told the Quebec legislature Wednesday it is "impossible at present" to reach any agreement with British Newfoundland Corporation (Brinco) on the development of Hamilton Falls in Labrador.

He refused to give specific reasons for the breakdown of talks, but dropped several hints that Brinco was asking too high a price for the electricity from the falls.

He said the development would be a good thing for both Quebec and Labrador "provided that all measures are taken to make the most of the possibilities offered by Hamilton Falls for the production of low cost power."

Quebec would take no further interest in the development of the falls until Hamilton Falls Power Corporation, a Brinco subsidiary, returned to the negotiations, came up with new and more acceptable proposals.

In Toronto, Brinco Chairman Robert Winters said power was offered to Hydro-Quebec at a price which he could be obtained elsewhere.

In St. John's, Nfld., W. J. Browne, Progressive Conservative member of the Newfoundland legislature for St. John's East Extern, said the negotiations was "what we expected" Mr. Lesage was demanding far beyond what Brinco would agree to give.

Reaction to Insect Bite Not Unusual

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. R. B. Conam, Ontario's supervising coroner, said in an interview Wednesday he does not have a strong allergy to wasp venom that could prove fatal and do not know if are living under a cloud.

"Thousands of people are bitten by wasps every summer," he said, commenting on the death of Ray Mundy, a 35-year-old Bowmanville, Ont., man who died after being stung while visiting a cottage near Peterborough Sunday.

Dr. Colnam said Mr. Mundy's reaction to the insect bite was not unusual in the records of fatal insect stings.

"I recall one case where a man collapsed five minutes after he was bitten," said Dr. Colnam. "If medical attention had not been given immediately, he would have died in minutes."

An autopsy performed on Mr. Mundy at Peterborough Monday showed the man had died of a heart attack. He was not known to have any allergies or previous reactions to insect stings.

C. D. Miller, an Ottawa entomologist who works in the research branch of the agriculture department there, said a potent new type of black wasp mentioned in connection with the death of Mr. Mundy was unlikely.

Six Candidates For Leadership Heard at Guelph

GUELPH (CP) — Six candidates for the Ontario Liberal leadership addressed a meeting of the Wellington South Liberal Association Wednesday night.

Eddie Sargent, legislature member for Grey North, said if elected he would form a special cabinet post to deal with senior citizens' problems, such as housing and employment.

Charles Templeton, who recently won the Liberal nomination for byelection in Ontario-Rosedale, said if the party was to win the next election, it must be done with "imagination and imagination" in order to put the government on the defensive. The Liberals must present a better alternative and demonstrate the weakness of the present Queen's Park government, he said.

Joseph E. Gould, member of the legislature for Brazondale, said the Liberals need a practical leader, one who can lead now without having to serve an apprenticeship. He said the party will win only when it gains the confidence of business, finance and labor.

PAUL LEAVES COMMONS

Joseph Greene, Liberal member for Renfrew South, said he would leave his federal seat to take the Ontario Liberal leadership because he realizes how much the job needs to be done and he relishes the challenge it affords. He said if elected he would use provincial powers to build a unified Canada.

Robert Nixon, legislature member for Brant, said the Liberal party must broaden its appeal to accommodate those "dissident persons" who have turned to splinter parties. These people must be drawn to the Liberal party, he said.

Andrew Thompson, legislature member for Dovercourt, said the Liberals have lost the last seven elections because they were not properly organized.

They have tried to sell the idea that the party could ride to power on the efforts of one man—the lead—"and any one can see who that is" can win Ontario is not telling the truth," he said.

About 350 people attended the meeting.

FORTIFIED CUBAN COAST

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Forty-two refugees have arrived from Cuba this week in five small boats despite increased fortification of Cuban coasts. Fishermen arriving from Havana province Wednesday said a stretch of about 100 miles of the north coast is being fortified with concrete, wire, trenches, cannon, machineguns and tanks.

Bowling Notes

Mrs. Dorothy Gumlett of Peterborough Bowling Club donated a trophy for women's trebles and a Belleville rink of Mrs. Irene Trudeau, Mrs. Thelma Pitcaithon with Mrs. Grace Clapp as skip, journeyed to the Lindsay City on Wednesday and won the cup and accompanying prizes. They defeated Mrs. Melbourne of Peterborough in the first game by winning in an extra end, took on Mrs. Nancy Harris also of Peterborough, winning by a large score and winning the third game from Mrs. Charles Erskine of Cobourg.

Another rink also from Belleville, Mrs. Edna Redman, Mrs. Josie Hunter with Mrs. Eisie Humphreys did not get into the prize money. The women deported the greens as very keen with excellent draws and the day of bowling was thoroughly enjoyed. There were 32 rinks entered.

William Fuller and Mrs. Thelma Pitcaithon journeyed to Cobourg last Wednesday and won three games in the mixed doubles tournament held in that town. Mrs. Josie Hunter and Mrs. Betty Vince won the tournament staged at Stirling recently. The tournament at Brighton on Wednesday for mixed doubles was called off when there were not a sufficient entry to stage the tournament. Only eight rinks were entered and three of them was from the Belleville Club.

On Saturday a men's doubles tournament will be held at Stirling and on Wednesday next the bowlers will journey to Campbellford for a mixed doubles tournament. Both of these tourneys have received a good entry.

RECOMMEND AID

HALIFAX (CP)—The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Halifax proposed Wednesday that federal financial aid be given to persons wishing to build homes big enough to accommodate elderly relatives. The proposal was made in a brief submitted by the special committee on the aged to Nova Scotia, set up by the provincial welfare department.

Company Files Damage Suit Against Engineer

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Thiokol Corporation has filed a $1,500,000 damage suit against a chemical engineer, claiming he was part of a conspiracy with Sidney Martin Fox, 5 former employee, to steal composite fuel secrets, it became known Wednesday.

Filed with the State Supreme Court was a deposition by Fox in which he said he had "misappropriated" reports and cultures from the Laderia plant at Pearl River, N.Y., in 1959 and 1960 and later turned them over to Maurice Rosenblatt.

The suit is directed against Rosenblatt, who has challenged the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, saying his home and business were in Italy.

Fox said in his statement that he had turned over to Rosenblatt secret amithiole - producing substance and the production of two broad - spectrum antibiotics, tetracycline and demethylchlortetracycline.

He said Rosenblatt agreed to split the proceeds from the sale of the materials. Fox said he met Le-Pelila, an Italian pharmaceutical manufacturer. According to Fox, initial payments of $106,000 were made.

In July, 1962, Fox was sent to prison for contempt of court for failed to comply with a Supreme Court order to turn over material belonging to Laderia. He was released last February.

Accused Sent For Trial on Murder Count

TORONTO (CP)—Glen Armstrong, 34, of Toronto, was committed for trial Wednesday on a charge of manslaughter arising after his daughter testified.

Armstrong was charged with the strangulation death on May 26 of his wife, Myrtle, 27. His daughter, April, 11, told Magistrate Robert Taylor earlier that her mother went on a bicycle ride the morning she died despite her husband's protests.

April recollected her father saying: "If she can go out,so can I."

Mrs. Armstrong came home about 5 p.m., she told police, and her father telephoned home later.

"He sounded as if he had been drinking," the Armstrong child said.

Shortly after he came home, April said she heard a couple of bangs on the floor in her parents' bedroom.

She said that when her father made a phone call to his mother, she went into her parents' bedroom and found her mother lying on the floor with a belt around her neck.

"My father came back and grabbed me and told me to stay out of the bedroom."

A autopsy showed that Mrs. Armstrong died of "asphyxia due to choking, or strangulation.

Bodies of Three New Jersey Men Found in Wreck

BAGOTVILLE, Que. (CP) — The bodies of three New Jersey men were found today where their plane had crashed Saturday in rugged, hilly country.

A helicopter landed at the scene, 65 miles northwest of Quebec City, and confirmed that none of the three had survived the crash.

Two para - rescue men had dropped into the area Wednesday night shortly after the wreckage of the plane was spotted. A spokesman at the RCAF base in this community 130 miles north of the provincial capital said radio contact has not been made with them since they landed.

Quebec Provincial Police were trying to reach the scene. There are no roads in the immediate area of the crash.

PILOTS PLANE

The plane was piloted by Dr. Charles Taylor, 47, a Butler, N.J., school superintendent.

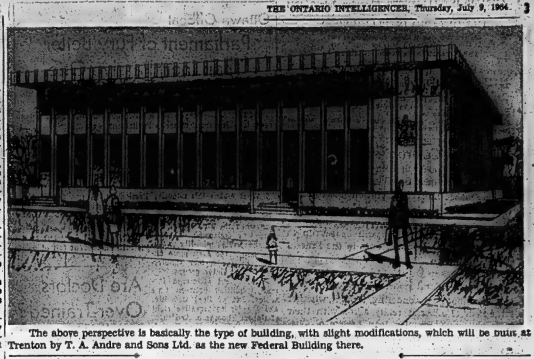
With him were Floyd Struble, 38, of West Milford, a county clerk, and a Butler painting contractor, Hollis Card, 55.

The three left Caldwell, N.J., on a flight to Canada June 27.

When Mrs. Struble failed to hear from her husband Monday, she called the manager of the hotel where the men stayed but Robert Hart was told they had left. The Air Traffic Control Centre at Montreal notified RCAF at Trenton, Ont., of the plane's disappearance.

LIVING COSTS HIT NEW HIGH — Canada's cost of living bolted to a record high level during June, triggered by rising food prices. The June level was 135.3 on the consumer price index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100. The index had held steady at 135 in April and May. The June level compared with a 132.8 standing at June, 1963. (CP Newsmap)

Local Wars Could Start Big One - - K



MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev accused the United States Wednesday of "waging a murderous war of aggression in South Viet Nam" and warned that local wars may "even touch off a world conflagration."

In a wide - ranging speech, Khrushchev asserted a grave situation is developing in Laos "where interference by aggressive imperialist powers may kindle a war fraught with dangerous consequences."

Once more he rallied U.S. reconnaissance flights over Communist Cuba an adventurist policy and added that serious consequences may lie ahead if the flights are not halted.

Twice he warned that the Soviet Union is prepared to use its arms to protect its friends and allies.

The premier spoke to graduates of the Soviet Military Academy. His speech was reported by the official Soviet news agency TASS.

The above perspective is basically the type of building, with slight modifications, which will be built at Trenton by T. A. Andre and Sons Ltd. as the new Federal Building there.

Hamilton Youth Much Improved After Accident

TRENTON — The condition of 17 - year - old Frederick Ross Chard, of Hamilton, injured in an accident on a Murray Township sideroad, north of the Murray Canal, early Tuesday, said by hospital authorities today to be "good." Mr. Chard was thrown from a car driven by Maurice Lefaver of R.R. 1, Trenton. He was X-rayed yesterday and the hospital spokesman said today that surgery is not indicated at the moment. Mr. Chard suffered internal injuries.

CAN GET NEW SCHOOL

The approval of Trenton's five - year budget by the Ontario Municipal Board this week clears the way for the building of a new high school to North Trenton School to the extent that the board has asked for copies of the Ontario Department of Education's approval of the project.

The board's approval also means that the town is now free to sell debentures to cover $100,000 on the water works program planned by the Trenton Public Utilities Commission this year.

Gets Promotion

TRENTON — Flying Officer Douglas Dave was promoted to the rank of Flight Lieutenant as of July 1.

Flight Lieutenant Dave, an Air Force Security Officer, was born in Toronto, Ontario. He is the son of Mrs. E. Dawe of Colborne, Ont. He joined the RCAF in 1950.

He was commissioned in 1961 and was promoted to the rank of Flying Officer. The same year he was transferred to Air Transport Command Headquarters as Command Police Officer, a position he now holds.

F/L Dawe is married to the former Mary Perna of St. Giles, Lincoln, England. The Dawes have four children and reside in Brighton, Ont.

Trenton Cruiser Wins Coveted Cup Wednesday

TRENTON—A Trenton-based cruiser, "Shiboh," skippered by Robert Laidley, won the coveted International Power Squadron VanValkenburg Trophy here yesterday. Crew members were Terry Eden, Joe Bourgeois, and Tony Leicester.

"Shiboh," named for the owner's wife, Shirley, and himself, also won Monday's Corby Trophy event and Sunday's Little Corby Cup in the Quinte District rendezvous and placed second in Monday's International Labatt's Trophy event.

In second place for the VanValkenburg Trophy yesterday was "Lorac, III," skippered by Pickelman, of Watertown, N.Y., and third was "Tabby," skippered by Jay Alvira.

The B.N.R. Trophy event, restricted to lady associate members of the Canadian and U.S. power squadrons, was won by "Fairwind," skippered by Bea Weston of Syracuse. Second was "Heather Bell," skippered by Jane Reid of the Bay of Quinte Squadron, and third, "Jacqueline II," with Mrs. Wanless, also of Bay of Quinte as skipper.

The Rochester Cup, for American boats only, was won by "Sidonia," skippered by Ed. Fisher of the Red Jacket Squadron, Syracuse; second, "Marilyn II," with Bill of Oak Orchard, N.Y., and third, "Porpoise," with Charles Deacon, Rochester.

"Shiboh" won the VanValkenburg competition with 111 points, one point ahead of "Lorac."

On Tuesday, winner of the Standard Cup for navigation competition, was Ed. Fisher in the "Sidonia," and the Sixth Outboard Boat Trophy was taken by a crew headed by G. Lyman in the "Wanderer," from Oak Orchard.

All trophies were presented last night at a banquet in the South Station recreation hall. Special guests at the banquet were Wm. Booth, the chief commander of Canadian power squadron units, and his wife, Vera.

Competitions were arranged by the Belleville Power Squadron members, under the direction of the commander, Donald Hickson, who is also the commander of Quinte District units.

Trenton Federal Building Contract Let to Andre Ltd. Which Had Low Bid of 7

OTTAWA — Hon. Jean-Paul Deschateiets, Minister of Public Works, today announced the award of a $412,000 contract to T. A. Andre and Sons Limited of Kingston, Ont., for the construction of a Federal Building at Trenton.

The firm submitted the lowest bid of seven in response to advertising for public tenders, which closed on May 20, 1964. The highest bid was $454,379. The work is scheduled for completion in 12 months.

The building of modern architectural style, two storeys high, will be located on the north west corner of Front and Middle Streets. The structure will have two public entrances consisting of steel framework with precast concrete columns and brick faced. It will be about 80 feet by 160 feet and will have two public entrances from Front Street with a service entrance on the west side.

GROUND FLOOR LOW

The ground floor of the building has been kept as low as possible so as to reduce the number of entrance steps. The departure has made it necessary to locate the boilers and engineering equipment room on the second floor to the rear of the building.

The interior of the public vestibule, lobbies and stairs will consist of terrazzo floors with contrasting borders and painted plaster walls. Most of the ceilings will be of acoustic panels. Heating will be by a forced flow hot water system from oil fired boilers.

A feature of the projecting roof edge will be flush lighting fixtures along the street side which will give a flood lighting effect. The site will be landscaped.

The first floor is devoted to the Post Office Department facilities. The offices on the second floor level will include the local offices of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, and the Departments of Agriculture, Transport and National Revenue. A board room, storage rooms and a staff lunch room equipped with light kitchen facilities will also be located on this floor.

Plans and specifications were prepared for the Department of Public Works by Harold Hicks and Associates, Consulting Architect of London, Ont.

Young Quebec Painters Run Afoul of Law

By JEAN GUY LAPIERRE

QUEBEC (CP) — Young Quebec painters who like to practise their art outdoors during the summer have found they are running afoul of the law.

Every year during the tourist season, a dozen or more could be found in the narrow little Rue du Tresor, which opens onto Place d'Armes opposite the Chateau Frontenac Hotel.

The "street" is so narrow for even the horse-drawn calèches, and nobody seems to care that it was being used as an art gallery—at least until last week, when six painters were hauled into court to answer complaints laid by a number of private art galleries.

They were told they were violating a 1930 bylaw which forbids the exercise of a trade or an art on the street or in a public square. Since then, public opinion has rallied to their defence.

Two well-known lawyers, Noel Dorion and Raymond (Buddy) Maher, offered to represent them in court. Mr. Dorion wrote Police Chief Roger Lamire that the young painters of Rue du Tresor "are peaceful, polite, talented and are spending their holidays in this way to help further their studies."

MERCHANTS WANT THEM

Some 80 merchants and restaurant owners in the surrounding district got up a petition to municipal authorities, saying that the young painters are "a first-quality tourist attraction and give the district character."

Radio disc jockeys found room in their programs to broadcast the slogan: "Don't disturb the artists."

Aldermen David Burns and Gilles Lamontagne suggested an amendment to the 1930 bylaw allowing artists to use Rue du Tresor between May and October.

When the six artists—Yvette Boulanger, Marc Beaule, Terry Mosher, Jean-Jacques Desrochers, Harry Merlley and Jacques Albert — appeared in municipal court Wednesday, prosecutor Pierre Valles announced he was not ready to proceed with the case. Chief Judge Emile Moreau gave the painters, who pleaded not guilty, an appear June 16 and said they would not be tried on any similar charges brought against them in the meantime.

FINS FOR PROTECTION

NEW YORK (AP) — Many New York women are carrying hat-pins as protection against attackers. One saleswoman in a notion department said: "We sell about 100 a week. They're used for courage, only occasionally for hats, and about a dozen women a week tell me they use them for self-defence."

Business Briefs

OIL SHIPMENTS UP

Receipts of crude oil, liquified petroleum gases and petroleum products transported through Canadian pipelines in April amounted to 35,087,457 barrels, up 4.9 per cent from the 33,430,543 barrels during the corresponding month last year. January-April receipts totalled 135,901,866 barrels, an increase of 5.1 per cent over the corresponding period in 1963.

SUPPLY MORE GAS

Gas utilities supplied 92,547,005,000 cubic feet of natural gas in March, an increase of 14.2 per cent over the corresponding period last year. Canadian customers received 31,704,279,000 cubic feet, up 8.5 per cent from March, 1963, while exports went up 6.5 per cent to 34,837,621,000 cubic feet.

SOAP SHIPMENTS EASE

Factory shipments of soaps and synthetic detergents declined in value 1.9 per cent to 37,900,300 in May from $8,052,500 during May, 1963. Value decreases were registered in all soaps, except soap powders, and increases for all synthetic detergents except solid detergents.

ISSUE BONDS

Premier Bennett of Vancouver Wednesday announced a $50,000,000 British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority partly bond issue. He told a meeting of the B.C. Investment Dealers' Association the four-year bonds will pay five per cent and there will be a limit of $10,000 worth per customer.

MOVE LESS CEMENT

Producer shipments of cement in May amounted to 686,555 tons, a decrease of 5.3 per cent from last year's 735,854 tons. January-May shipments totalled 2,217,744 tons and were 14.9 per cent larger than during the corresponding period in 1963.

Must We "Confront" Each Other?

Quebec Liberals will henceforth fight their political battles under two flags.

The Quebec Liberal Federation has voted to sever its ties with the Liberal Federation of Canada.

A separate organization will be set up to guide the Liberal party's fortunes in the Federal field.

The new set-up has the blessings of both the provincial and federal leadership.

One cannot help wondering, though, whether all the federal Liberals really agree with their former colleague, Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec, in his evaluation of "the very essence of Canadian federalism." "This," he says, "is the constant confrontation of the two levels of government."

Mr. Lesage can make out quite a case for this contention. This has, indeed, become the essence of the system by which Canada has been governed in recent years.

But is this the ideal?

One remembers an earlier day when the split between Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Ontario Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn was looked at askance. Both were Liberals.

In those days of Mackenzie King's long tenure in power, with weak opposition, the theory evolved that the provincial governments were really the effective opposition in Canada, keeping the power of the federal government within decent bounds.

But this theory was founded on the fact that Canadians, while they returned Liberals to Ottawa, chose other parties to form provincial governments, Social Credit in Alberta and later in British Columbia, the Union Nationale in Quebec, the CCF in the post-war years in Saskatchewan and Conservatives elsewhere. It was still expected in those days that a Liberal provincial government would have something in common, in political philosophy, with a federal Liberal government.

Premier Lesage now says that "it has become clear that the Canadian reality demands . . . . that political parties working on the federal level be distinct from provincial parties and vice versa."

He may well be right—but if so there are some who will view this as a pity.

Once grant the accuracy of his statement and it appears difficult to avoid the conclusion that every provincial government is expected to be concerned only with the welfare of its own province, and that the political man in Ontario, for example, has nine instead of one enemies, political men in the other nine provinces, with whom he makes common cause only on those rare occasions when the interests of all ten happen to coincide.

Would it not be pleasant, for a change, if the federal and provincial governments, instead of "confronting" each other, faced towards the same objective and bent their backs to pull in the same direction?

Let Him Speak

Governor George Wallace of Alabama will address the Lions International in Toronto this week. Protests and demonstrations are expected.

A committee representing 18 Toronto organizations and groups of private citizens has decided to protest the presence of the fiery southern segregationist. Undoubtedly, he will be met with vilifications, epithets and just plain boorishness.

We do not support Governor Wallace's actions but in a free country he should be allowed the right to express his views. Freedom of speech means nothing if it applies only to the popular view.

Another matter to be considered before being so self-righteous is our own position as regards to segregation. Are we really as unprejudiced as we claim to be? Does the Negro, the Italian, or even our own Canadian Indian have equal opportunity? If you think he does, ask him. His answer will surprise you.

The fact that the Lions International, a service club dedicated to brotherhood, has invited the Governor to speak is a question of another sort that can only be answered by the Lions themselves.

It takes stubbornness but not courage to reject the entreaties of the weak.—Senator William Fulbright, on U.S.-Panama relations.

Take it from one who's seen both kinds down the last 24 years, it's better by far to have hard Parliament packed with wildly fighting partisans than a soft Parliament full of docile we-mes.

Parliament of Fury Better Than Inert Passive One

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Person

OTTAWA — Do you think that this punch-drunk, accident-prone, troublesome-and-noisy Parliament is sick?

Well, it is.

Four MPs have died in the last couple of months, and in at least two cases, worry and overwork were contributing factors. A half dozen are ill, two of those Cabinet Ministers. And you don't have to be a medical specialist to see the unmistakable stamp of grey-faced fatigue on a good many others.

What's the matter with this minority Parliament, as was the previous one, so overstrungly irascible, so fantastically frustrated?

Of course, as in the closing year when the Diefenbaker regime was collapsing, there is the uncertain minority situation. Now and then even more unstable by the further splintering of the splinter groups.

Social Credit, disjointed personally, splitting between the radical left of Real Cousette, and the Conservative right of Robert Thompson. And then, having divided, the Social Creditists, the other in the Commons, like the New Democrats, further sub - divide. No body, least of all the three splinter group leaders, knows how the ranks are going to divide each time the Government and the Official Opposition come to a showdown in the Commons.

Then, too, there is that deep - Arctic antipathy between Prime Minister Pearson and Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

OLD WOUND

To say they detest each other is to understate the case. Despite, perhaps, the more accurate word.

Mr. Pearson's eyes, Diefenbaker is an intolerable ruffian, a political hoodlum.

To Diefenbaker's estimation, Pearson is an unspeakable fop, a diplomatic slug.

Then, added to these recent uproarious weeks, the heat and humidity — temperatures soaring to the 90s — have been cruelly wringing wet as in a steam laundry — have been a factor, in at least building up fatigue.

Finally, though, it could be something that a freshman MP, making a wide-eyed first clear look at the place, has put his finger on.

Bruce Mackasey, Liberal MP for Verdun, have little more than two years' seniority on the other day to tell the House this:

"One of the advantages of being a new Member is that I do not have the vast store of insults and injuries, piled up in three years, five years, 10 or even 20 years, at my disposal.

"I want to tell you, and frankly, that what is happening here from most is the elephantine memories of so many Members who can't forget old wounds."

And the veteran Members do have what is called in baseball a bobby they will take to the political grave still raw and unhealed.

And memories of Diefenbaker and Pickersgill go back 24 years and more when they first entered the Cabinet he was the "Mr. Fix It" in the offices of Prime Minister King and St. Laurent, the blood between them has been bad.

OLD ISSUES

From the very start, back to the days of Mackenzie King's day, there has been a glimmer of understanding between Diefenbaker and Pearson.

Old sores and ancient injuries still rankle between veterans Stanley Knowles and Tommy Douglas of the Democrats and the Liberal Frontbench.

Of all the old hands around this unhappy House, perhaps only Diefenbaker and Paul Martin have any respect for each other. The real old pros of Parliament, those survivors of two decades of political war sometimes even show a sort of wry mutual affection.

For the rest, the Liberals still remember how they were destroyed by a vengeful House of Commons just eight years ago, and the Conservatives can't forget how they were ordered only 16 months ago by an equally rambunctious Parliament.

But then, if it weren't these old veterans and their ancient feuds and the last nine years of factional fights, if fighting, Parliament might return to being the submissive rubber stamp position it was before the House of Commons became the focus of the years of the St. Laurent administration and discovered it packed the power to pull down Governments.

This Parliament may be sick with fury, but at least it's always interesting and sometimes does good and constructive work.

But it is no sicker than these old Parliaments that were fatally ill, as events proved, with inertia.

Are Doctors Over-Trained?

By ALLAN KLASS, MD, in the Winnipeg Tribune

What is meant by the phrase "adequate medical care?" This is the unanswered question behind the recent study by the Manitoba College of Physicians and Surgeons into the question of the number of doctors in this province. The report based upon an intensive statistical study by Dr. Glen Wilson of Flin Flon, indicates that the currently acceptable figure of one doctor to 879 individuals will rise to 1,000 and that a serious numerical shortage of doctors will be apparent by 1975.

But do we really need so many doctors? Here the answer becomes cloudy if not actually muddy. "Demand" for a doctor does not necessarily nor always mean the same as "need" for a medical service. Doctors are more and more used by the general public as human "tranquilizers" to comfort, to calm, to listen, to sympathize and in particular to reassure that some one or other dread disease is not present.

How long does this assurance last? Often only until the next focus of anxiety—perhaps serious illness or death in family or friend; economic insecurity or distress, domestic or marital situation, even a campaign by a heart fund or a cancer society with the laudable aim for early detection of disease.

The creative preventive service of the very best, it creates standards of practice as high or higher than in any country in the world.

It also creates a perpetually increasing work load for the doctor.

With great majority of these patients not really sick, but ill or the ailing in the 19th century meaning of these words, but the anxious, the worried, the health-conscious of the 20th century desiring confirmation of a illness and assurance of freedom from disease.

While the ratio of one doctor to 879 has remained fixed over the past 20 years the practitioner has become increasingly harried. If this ratio should be maintained, the burden on the individual doctor would be such it impossible for him to carry out these important preventive services; the problem is obviously the re-assuring examination of the worried. This, if it should come, would represent a serious impairment in the current concept of "adequate medical care."

The medical profession, specifically the College of Physicians and Surgeons, is obliged by government statute to maintain high standards of medical practice.

Its direct control extends only over its own members. Are the standards demanded by the professional society for prospective members of the profession unrealistic and increasingly high? Is the course too long, too arduous? Are we in fact over-training our doctors and thus artificially limiting or reducing the numbers entering the practice of medicine? Can we accept doctors trained in half the time?

To anyone in the profession three questions verge on the bizarre. Surely the public will not tolerate the half-trained doctor; surely where life itself may be at stake, a compromise with the highest standards cannot be accepted. With the rapid development of medicine, knowledge and specialized techniques, doctor training will become longer and more difficult, not abbreviated and cursory.

The solution lies not in "instant" doctors factory-produced. The solution still must be grounded on a rigid maintenance of the highest standards. A really intensive search will undoubtedly discover many more of the best of our young people willing to enter the profession of medicine. We are not provide the physical facilities

July 8th, 1934

Co-operation of Front Street merchants in collecting refuse scattered over the street or at the curb in the mornings, has resulted in a considerable improvement in the tidyness of the main thoroughfare, according to city officials. It had been formerly the practice of many merchants to sweep their stores in the morning with the refuse being brushed across sidewalks to the curbside. This took place after the city street sweeper had made its rounds during the night with the result that Front Street presented a dirty and untidy appearance during the day.

The city council has had to concern itself with a good many different kinds of livestock in the past. Now, however, it is confronted with the somewhat insoluable problem of the honey bee. Probably as the result of the late shortage, an increasing number of people have taken to raising bees. Their pets are beginning to cause trouble for the neighbors. Anyone with a flower garden or a lawn full of clover, liable to be a victim invasion. Clashes between citizens and bees — with the bee the invariable winner — are becoming more numerous. As a result, complaints are being made to the council and that body is being urged to do something.

Attempts to break open a $30-safe, that had been in and moved from the premises of the Belleville Lumber Co., Front Street, were frustrated by police shortly after three o'clock this morning, even the business safe of the firm was found at the rear of the premises.

CIA Secret Government

San Francisco Chronicle

In the extensive repertory of the Central Intelligence Agency, we are accustomed to find false-whiskered deceit, outright lying, stormy secretiveness and free-wheeling subversion.

But the CIA has outdone itself in the Congo by setting out to deceive, entrap, embarrass and annoy the State Department.

The State Department repeatedly explicitly denied a report that American citizens were flying American T-36 aircraft in raids on rebel-held strongholds in the Eastern Congo. The next day the department had to reverse itself, saying it was "now informed" differently.

The CIA not believe the State Department was lying the first time; nor we believe it was being hoodwinked. Somebody was deliberately, by the cloak and dagger branch.

The New York Times reported that the State Department spokesman was bravely trying to disguise his embarrassment and annoyance.

Now, in the CIA what is well called "the invisible government"; because of this, no one in the American people exactly what is happening in it their name and by whom. But from every indication it is clear that American "civilians" who were hired by the CIA for the flights.

Their air strikes have been in violation of UN Security Council resolutions, which, incidentally, the United States voted, and we are relieved, to the least, that the State Department has seen to getting the American fliers called off.

Cannot even this authority, beginning with Lyndon B. Johnson, do anything to control and curb these anonymous, irresponsachable, pipe-smoking technicolor plotters of the CIA?

To Your Good Health

Rheumatics Can Be Helped By the Use of New Drugs

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: In reading about pace-makers, synthetic valves and heart operations, I am wondering whether such surgery could be applied to hearts damaged by rheumatic fever. Or is rheumatic fever damage more serious and not helped by operations? I am thinking particularly of a person who had rheumatic fever at 10, is now 40, and, according to the doctor, has had more attacks in between. — Mrs. K. C. S.

Much of the heart surgery being performed today is to alleviate the damage from rheumatic fever. A great amount is done for other reasons, too, particularly for defects which have been present from birth.

Rheumatic fever (caused by a streptococcus germ) has the habit of inflaming the heart valves. They heal, but scar tissue remains and, particularly if there are further attacks, even light ones, more scar tissue builds up and prevents the valves from opening and closing properly.

The mitral valve is most likely to be affected but others can be damaged, too.

Each case has to be judged individually. Is the damage serious enough to warrant surgery, is it rather slight? What is the physical condition of the patient otherwise? And so on.

I think you'll understand the whole matter better if you will read my booklet, "How To Take Care of Your Heart." It will give you a basic knowledge of how the heart works, and what can go wrong with it, what you can do to protect it. For a copy of this booklet, send 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope to me in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 136, Dundee, Ill.

Rheumatic fever has caused an enormous number of defective hearts. Due to the last decade or so have we really made progress in preventing it. . . .

You can't see the first attack coming — but once's person has had it, you know that he is susceptible and is likely to have it again.

What can we do? Give antibiotics, such as penicillin, to prevent the streptococcus from getting started again. One good method is to use a form of penicillin which absorbs very slowly, so that one shot a month will provide continuous protection.

As a result of this, as well as improved treatment of the attacks more awareness of the danger, and refined diagnostic methods, fewer rheumatic hearts are developing.

The pity is that, now that so much is known, too many people still do not avail themselves of this protection.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a friend who was found to have a very low sugar in her blood. She is on a starch-reduced diet-sheet for this. Is that correct? People with too much sugar are on the same kind of diet. — W. F.

Yes, the diet is correct even though it may sound odd at first. Eating sugars and starches, in such cases, speeds up the rate at which the blood sugar is used up, so another period of low blood sugar soon occurs. Eating more protein, which is used up, so another period of low blood sugar soon occurs. Eating more protein, which is more slowly converted, prevents this, and keeps the blood sugar level fairly stable over a longer time.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is encephalitis. Is there a cure for it? Is it fatal? — A. B.

Man Is Fond Yet Careless Of His Life

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Genuine thinking requires two persons within you — the one who questions and the one who answers; and if these are not sufficiently separated, then what passes for thinking is merely a kind of mental soliloquy which one always wins by cheating.

. . . Watching the motorists shoot past on the superexpway, I was reminded of La Bruyere's remark that "There is nothing of which men are so fond, and yet so careless, as life."

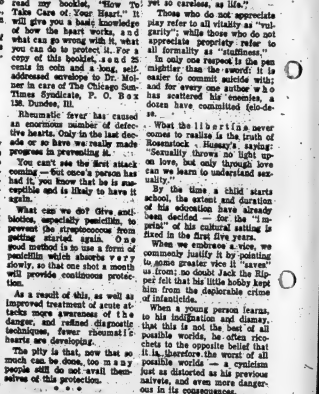
Those who do not appreciate play refer to all vitality as "vulgarity"; while those who do not appreciate propriety refer to all formality as "pettiness."

In only one respect is the pen mightier than the sword: it is easier to write a letter to the editor in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 136, Dundee, Ill.

. . . What the libertine never learns is the meaning of the truth of Rosenstock - Hussey's saying: "Sexuality throws no light upon love, but rather darkens it, and can we learn to understand sexuality."

. . . By the time a child starts school, the extent and duration of his education have already been decided — for the "inertial" of his cultural setting is fixed in the first five years.

. . . When we speak of failure, we commonly justify it by pointing to some person who has "saved" us from; no doubt Jack the Ripper felt that his little hobby kept him from the deplorable crime of infanticide.



. . . When a young person learns to fall intelligently, he learns that this is not the best of all possible worlds, he often rises to the level of tragedy. And yet it is, therefore the worst of all possible worlds — a cynicism just as distasteful as the previous naivete, and even more dangerous in its consequences.

. . . We enjoy hearing gossip, but we have little respect for those who tell it; our contempt for the purveyor is matched by the respect his wares with a clear conscience.

. . . Anyone who has ever been involved in litigation, at either end, will appreciate Ambrose Bierce's terse definition of a "lawsuit" as: "A machine which you go into a pig and come out of as a sausage."

. . . When a reader writes in to disagree with me, he often sums us as "gross overstatement" he may very well be right; but it rarely occurs to him to consider whether or not his own position represents a "gross understatement."

. . . A man can tolerate a woman who doesn't laugh; what is really intolerable is finding a woman who laughs at what he considers the wrong times.

Canadian Bill Likely to Pass House Quickly

LONDON (CP) — A Canadian parliamentary bill that would authorize a new pension plan was introduced in the British House of Commons Wednesday.

Because the plan involves both federal and provincial governments in Canada, an amendment to the British North America Act is required. Such an amendment can only be passed by the British Parliament.

The bill was introduced by Duncan Sandys, Commonwealth and colonial secretary. It is expected the bill will pass without delay.

A similar bill to amend the [illegible] was last required in 1949 when Canada decided a retiring age for judges.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—Selected industrials made good gains, but the market as a whole was listless and fractionally lower in light trading today.

Speculative trading was on the slim side although Windfall turned over more than 200,000 shares in climbing 16 cents to $1.37. Marchant added 26 cents to $2.54 while Canadian Dyno was off 13 cents to $1.27.

Favorite in the main list was Trans-Canada Pipe Lines which gained 1¼ to 43¼, a 1904 high. Massey-Ferguson chalked up a ¼ gain to 31¼.

Base metals had Noranda down ⅛ to 67⅝ and Lake Dufault up ¼ to 11¾.

Investors sent industrials and speculative mining issues lower as trading slowed on Wednesday.

Windfall was again the speculative standout, trading 707,997 shares and slumping 25 cents to $1.26. Marchant lost 26 cents to $2.34 and most other issues were of a few cents. Included in the list of losers were Belleterre, down five cents to 48 cents, Goldfields, down three cents to 20 cents, and Genex down a cent to 46 cents.

Industrials were lower on index but a handful of selected favorites gave the group a solid appearance. Trans-Canada Pipe Lines and Steinberg A each gained 1¼ to 41¾ and 32¾, respectively, both 1964 highs. Dominion Stores was ahead ⅜ to 22¼ and sold at a new high of 22¾ at one point. Canadochem Chemical tacked on 1 to 39 while Distillers Seagram and Canada Iron were up ½ each to 61⅛ and 39½, respectively.

Aluminum had a loss of 1 to 31¼. Toronto - Dominion Bank dipped ¾ to 54¼ and CPR and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ¼ each to 46¾ and 65⅛.

Golds were strong and quiet. Standout in the list was Dickenson, which gained 20 cents to $5.20.

Pacific Petroleum tacked on ¼ to 14 in leading oils ahead. However, Home A and BA lost ¼ each, both to 20½. Husky was down ⅛ to 9⅝.

Senior base metals were higher across a solid front. Noranda and Falconbridge advanced ¼ each to 67⅛ and 74. Denison ⅜ to 15 and Cominco ⅛ to 39½.

The index, industrials were down .34 to 168.39 and the exchange index .17 to 167.35. Golds were up .96 to 182.89, base metals .32 to 85.59 and western oils .15 to 80.75. Volume for the day was 4,244,000 shares compared with 5,471,000 shares traded Tuesday.

Negotiations On 'Green Line' Begin Friday

NICOSIA (AP) — Negotiations between the United Nations and the Turkish - Cypriot side on the withdrawal of Turkish forces from the "green line" that divides Nicosia, to create a United Nations - patrolled zone in the centre of the capital, will begin Friday, it was announced officially Wednesday.

Negotiations originally were scheduled to begin Wednesday but Brig. Alfred James Tedlie, Canadian UN commander for the Nicosia zone, was tied up with briefing a new UN peace force commander and will not be free till Friday.

On Tuesday the UN announced that Archbishop Makarios, the Greek-Cypriot president, had agreed unilaterally to pull back Greek forces 100 yards and give the UN forces the right to search and arrest inside the proposed free zone.

Meanwhile, the outgoing commander of the UN peace forces on Cyprus said Wednesday there has been no military method used to halt UN observation of movements on the troubled island.

"Our patrols have been halted at various places or delayed in their tasks but I think that has been action of local people," said India's Lt.-Gen. Prem Singh Gyani.

Gyani was commenting on a charge by External Affairs Minister Paul Martin of Canada that UN patrols have been prevented from observing the landing of men or materiel from Greece on Cyprus. He was speaking at a press conference after handing over command of the UN force to Gen. Kodendera Subayya Thimayya, also of India, who arrived here Monday.

RCMP Denies Wire-Tapping In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the Bell Telephone Company said Wednesday the company would not prosecute police for listening in on telephone calls.

Fred Burgess of the Bell's legal department said if an individual was caught wiretapping, legal action would be taken, but if the police were involved the company would protest to the body governing the force.

He was commenting on a newspaper report that the RCMP had installed wiretapping equipment in a downtown building to monitor a private telephone.

The report by Toronto Star columnist Ron Haggart said the RCMP used a green truck, similar to those used by the Bell company, to install the wiretapping device.

J. R. Lemieux, deputy commissioner of the RCMP, Wednesday denied that members of the force had attached a recording machine to telephone lines or lines in Toronto. He said the RCMP in Toronto do not have a green truck, and he denied members of the force have ever posed as telephone company repairmen or employees.

Frank Glover, owner of the company whose telephones were alleged to have been tapped, said a telephone repairman told him June 24 that somebody had attached a recording device to his phone line.

A. G. Dodd, on whose premises the equipment was installed, said the man who installed the recording device said he was a telephone company employee.

Mr. Dodd said the next day a man who identified himself as Johnstone of the RCMP came to him and said he was investigating an exciise case. Johnstone, who has since been identified as a corporal in the RCMP, said he could tell Mr. Dodd no more about the matter but assured him he was not under investigation.

Deputy Commissioner Lemieux said the firm operated by Mr. Glover was unknown to the RCMP and the force was not interested in the man or his premises. He said the RCMP did not find itself bound to discuss the extise case or matters arising out of normal police investigations.

He refused to comment on whether the force has, or uses, wiretapping equipment.

Silky Bantams May Be Used To Hatch Eggs

DENVER (AP) — One of the smallest members of the chicken family may get the job of hatching eggs for the largest flying bird — the whooping crane.

Details of the project were outlined Tuesday by Ed Wallin, chief of the migratory bird population in the research centre here of the bureau of sports fisheries and wildlife.

Start of the project depends on a wet spring next year in the breeding area for the whooping crane, the Wood Buffalo National Park in the Northwest Territories.

Wallin says the whooping crane lays any eggs, they will be picked up by helicopter, placed in an incubator and flown to the Monte Vista National Wildlife Refuge in southern Colorado. There they will be placed under Japanese silky bantam hens.

Wallin says the silky bantams are very faithful and stay close to the eggs.

In addition to helping in the hatch, scientists are hopeful that by careful lifting of the eggs from the nests in Canada, the whoopers will be induced to lay more eggs there.

There are 34 known whoopers left in the world, including the six in Audubon Park in New Orleans. Seven hatchlings were counted last fall at the winter Aransas refuge in southern Texas.

PLAN EXPANSION

TORONTO (CP) — Spencer Caldwell, president of the CTV network, Seven Wednesday that private television network will expand into Newfoundland in September. The network is already achieved by linking up with CJON-TV in St. John's. The Newfoundland outlet is joining CTV because the CBC, with which it has been affiliated now is building its own station at St. John's and a number of rebroadcasting stations on the island.

General Taylor Wants Harder Work From Men

SAIGON (AP) — Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, the new U.S. ambassador, told Americans in South Viet Nam Wednesday to buckle down to win the war against the Communist Viet Cong.

He ordered harder work and longer hours of all U.S. civilian and military personnel in the Southeast Asian country.

He issued orders in a letter circulated to all U.S. servicemen and civilian officials in Viet Nam. U.S. military personnel had already been told by Lt.-Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces here, that a 60-hour week is expected of them.

Wildlife Experts Decide Upon Direct Intervention In Raising Whooping Cranes

By BOB TRIMBEE

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian and United States wildlife officials have given up on saving the whooping crane and opted upon direct intervention to stop the whooping crane from skidding into extinction.

The wildlife departments in both countries have agreed to launch a captive breeding program in Wood Buffalo Park, 600 miles north of Edmonton, and raise the stately birds in captivity.

Nature can't be blamed for the decline of North America's tallest bird. Civilization forced it to retreat into remote regions and wanton slaughter reduced the wildlife population to 33 from a peak of several thousand fifty years ago.

Through the captive rearing program it is hoped to raise up to 1,000 of the spectacular white cranes, which boast a wing span of seven feet and stand almost 5½ feet tall.

OPPOSED BY SOME

"It is a new idea," said Ron Mackay, operations supervisor for the western region of the Canadian Wildlife Service. "Nor is it one that has received unanimous support of all wildlife biologists handling men in government service.

"But to be realistic, it's the only hope we have. We've tried to let the birds increase on their own without much success. Anything we now are doing would only contribute to the eventual extinction of the species.

Not so, says Roland C. Clement, staff biologist with the National Audubon Society.

He acknowledged the precarious situation of the whoopers but said he thought it would be possible to increase the natural crane population if a single nesting area could be protected and limited to those birds now in nest.

INCREASE FOOD

Mr. Clement said rather than gamble with the wild whooper population, the wildlife officials should concentrate on new ways to increase its food supply which is the factor that limits the carrying capacity of the winter home of the birds at Aransas.

"We know so little about their distribution and habits, it would be a pity to risk losing them in captivity in the expectation of stealing eggs without jeopardizing the species. It would be a climb back to safe numbers.

"It's time we recognized that it is pure romanticism to take pride in our fragmentary knowledge of nature, to say that a species is rare and that we are doomed to extinction. We simply don't know what the future holds for the whooper.

Wood Buffalo Park, a vast preserve roughly the size of 6,000,000 acres on the Alberta-Northwest Territories border, is the only nesting ground known for the whoopers. The birds' winter home is the 47,321-acre Aransas National Wildlife Refuge at Austwell, Tex., and a number of nearby islands.

Each April the whoppers leave Aransas for Wood Buffalo Park, a journey of 2,500 miles. They return in late October or early November.

Efforts to lure the birds increase their numbers in the past have had questionable success. In 28 years since man tried to help by remote control the birds' nesting habits, only preserves and providing protection through game laws—the wild population has little more than doubled.

The new step taken by the governments will see an egg or the product of three nests taken from Wood Buffalo Park each year. The eggs will be flown to a propagation centre in the United States where they will be hatched and the young birds reared with special facilities.

The long-distance plan will be launched only if eggs or young birds make the northward flight to Wood Buffalo forecasts indicate a wet spring and summer. In such years the wildlife population has suffered its worst relapses.

RELEASE BIRDS

After eight or 10 captive breeding pairs are obtained from the eggs the wildlife service hopes to increase the captive population to about 25 pairs and from their production obtain 200 birds for release to the wild.

Fred Bard, director of the Museum of Natural History at Regina and a leading figure in Canada to help protect the species, has long been an advocate of a captive-rearing program.

"Even 500 birds are better than no birds at all," he said. "Eggs should be gathered every year until we have sufficient breeding stocks. Work with other cranes has shown the feasibility of the program. We should not approach the task timidly."

When the eggs hatch, the young birds will be reared with special facilities. (CP Photo)

McRuer Heads Commission On Law Reform

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart announced today that former Ontario chief justice James Chalmer McRuer will head Ontario's law reform commission.

Mr. McRuer, Leal of the Osgoode Hall law school and another legal expert, as yet unnamed, will serve with Mr. McRuer, Mr. Wishart said.

Among other things, I assume it (the commission) to study "all aspects of desertion, bail and abortion. It's a tremendously important commission," he said in a statement.

He said the commission would be the provincial counterpart of the federal commission.

"I think it is our duty to recommend reform we think necessary in federal law as well," he said.

The attorney - general added that laws regarding hate literature could fall under this category.

Mr. McRuer, who retired as chief justice July 1, will chair the law reform commission while conducting the government's royal commission on civil liberties.

Mr. Wishart said the two commissions overlap in some areas.

He said he expects the law reform commission to be a continuing body.

DUNDAS ST. W. (HWY No. 2) Formerly known as the TRENT ROAD BELLEVILLE ACRES OF FREE LIGHTED PARKING

Mr. and Mrs. George Richard Alec Chapman sign the register after their marriage in Eastminster United Church, Belleville. The bride was formerly Vivian Claudia Williams, daughter of Mrs. J. R. Williams of Bellbrville, and the late Mr. Williams. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. George Chapman of London, England, and the late Mrs. Chapman.

CHAPMAN — WILLIAMS

An unusual wedding trip was planned by Mr. and Mrs. George Chapman following the ceremony at Eastminster United Church when the young couple left for Camden, Maine and from there to a week's sailing trip aboard a windjammer.

Rev. A. McDowell was the officiating minister on June 27th when Vivian Claudia Williams, daughter of Mrs. J. R. Williams, Cherry Gardens, Belleville and the late Mr. J. R. Williams became the bride of Mr. George Richard Alec Chapman of Toronto, son of Mr. George Chapman, of London, England, and the late Mrs. Chapman.

Tall standards of white and yellow gladioli decorated the altar of the church.

Mrs. H. Rennie presided at the organ for the wedding music and also accompanied the soloist Miss Shirley Fisher in two appropriate selections.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Don Williams of Stirling and entered the church in a bridal gown of organza, sheer and transparent, with garlands of Guipure lace daisies on the skirt and neckline. The skirt appeal was heightened by the use of the modified shape, leading to the inverted pleat at the waist and the entire effect softened with a cascading sweep of train illusion. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses mingled with Shasta daisies. Her shoulder-length bouffant veil was of tulle illusion.

Miss George Wilson of Brampton, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and the bridesmaid was Miss Marjorie McFarlane of Toronto. They wore sheath dresses of mint green with matching overskirts. The junior bridesmaid, Miss Elaine Williams, niece of the bride, was dressed in a yellow silk organza dress. All the bride's attendants carried cascade bouquets of white daisies and white 'mums.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Fred Pamplin of Toronto, and the ushers were Mr. George Wilson of Brampton and Mr. Douglas Campbell of Toronto.

A reception was held in the church hall where the bride's table was decorated with yellow and white roses and a three-tiered wedding cake.

The guests were received by the bride's mother who wore a pure silk dress of mint green with matching accessories, and a corsage of white gardenias.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, London, Brampton, Stirling, Espanola and Santa Monica, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Chapman will reside in Toronto.

Before her marriage the bride was honored at showers given by Mrs. Hector Edwards and Miss Marjory McFarlane, both friends, where the nurses at Lyndhurst Lodge, where the bride is a nurse, entertained at a supper and with Shasta daisies. Her

WEDDINGS

HOOD — PERSHICK

At the recent wedding in Christ Church, Belleville of Marion Elizabeth Pershick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pershick to Mr. Wilfred Thomas Hood of Kingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hood of Montreal, Rev. J. Smith was the officiating clergyman. White 'mums and snapdragons decorated the altar, and white satin bows marked the guest pews. Traditional wedding music was played by the church organist, Mr. John Wilbers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father wore a floor-length gown of nylon organza over tulle with semi-bustle back, bodice of Chantilly lace with square neckline and lily point sleeves. She wore a shoulder length bouffant veil with a tiara of crystal and aurora borealis, and carried a cascade bouquet of red sweetheart roses with ivy.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Hilda Dean, Toronto, aunt of the bride, who wore an ermel floral dress with matching jacket and white accessories. Her flowers were tinted baby white 'mums with pale pink rosebuds in the centre.

The bridesmaids were Miss Anita Hood of Montreal, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Joanne Brooks of Belleville who were dressed alike in street-length pink taffeta gowns with tiers of ruffles at the sides. Their hats were white bows with veils and they wore white accessories.

Mr. Thomas Thorne, Kingston, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Ronald Langbeer, Belleville, and Mr. Charles Dean, Toronto.

A reception was held at Hotel Quinte in the Prince Edward suite, where the bride's table was appointed with a three-tiered square wedding cake, surrounded by tulle. Silver candelabra with white candles, and the bouquets of the bridal party completed the picture.

The guests were received by the bride's mother who wore a floral dress with matching jacket, pastel pink and mauve, beige accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a pale blue linen dress and matching jacket, white accessories and corsage of pale pink 'mums.

The bride chose a white linen suit with Chanel jacket and embroidered bodice for travelling to New York State. Her accessories were white and her corsage was pink tinted baby 'mums.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Cornwall, Kingston and Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Hood will reside at 18 Garrett Street, Kingston.

Ann Landers

Should Inform Bosses To Employ Second Girl

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am caught in the cross-fire between two lovely but temperamental bosses. I am very fond of them both but when they have an argument — which is about three times a week — I wind up in the middle.

Just this morning Mr. A. dictated a letter to be sent over for Mr. B's signature. They had not spoken to each other for a couple of days and the tension in the office was terrific.

When I presented the letter to Mr. B. for his signature he exploded and ordered out 11 statements he could not "go along with." I had to serve as referee for two high powered dynamos. It took five re-writes and three hours before both men were satisfied with the letter.

This job is a two-girl operation and I am the two girls. Any suggestions? — SINGED.

DEAR SINGED — Yes. Tell the bosses they have two weeks to employ a second girl. They can draw lots to see which one gets you. If they are not agreeable, inform them that they will need TWO girls because you are leaving.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We have raised three fine daughters, all now happily married. Our youngest, Valerie, is 17 and giving us nothing but heartache.

Valerie has gone with at least a dozen fine, wholesome young men with good family backgrounds. They are the leading athletes and scholars in her school, but she says they are dull and boring. Valerie has now settled for a greasy-kid-stuff-and-gone-for-nothing smart aleck who dropped out of school in March and spends most his time leaning against the post office with his thumbs hooked in his pockets. Last night she said she thought maybe she would marry him.

We can think of 12 good reasons why Valerie shouldn't even go out with, much less consider marriage. Shall we forbid her in our home while she lives in this house, or let her see him and make a mess of her life? — DON'T KNOW WHICH WAY TO TURN.

DEAR DON'T KNOW — Valerie might make a mess of her life no matter what you do. She is obviously filled with rebellion and determined to do whatever displeases you most.

If you forbid her to see the boy she would probably meet him on the sly and wind up running off because you "forced her into it."

My advice is to stop knocking the boy. The less you attack, the less she will be compelled to defend him. And try to show extra friendliness — to both Valerie and the smart-aleck, if it kills you. You may see a change in her attitude. You have nothing to lose and everything to gain.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was touched by the letter from the kids who had forgotten their mother's Mom was silent for awhile then she opened up and let the whole family know how hurt she was.

Will you please educate folks to the idea that there are other gifts besides the ones which can be bought in a store? To my way of thinking, the greatest gift of all is the gift of service. For example: The children could write down on a piece of paper their pledge to do the dinner dishes for one week. Each child would have his assignment so the work would be delegated. Dad might even agree to bring Mom her breakfast in bed one Sunday.

The gift of service, well thought out, and agreed to in advance. can bring the greatest pleasure of all, and it is endless. I hope you will pass this along — MRS. BCB.

DEAR MRS. BCB — Many thanks for your message — (by Western Union yet). I am passing it along, for millions to see, and adding my own endorsement.

Parents are people too. they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their problems and to promote harmony at home, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

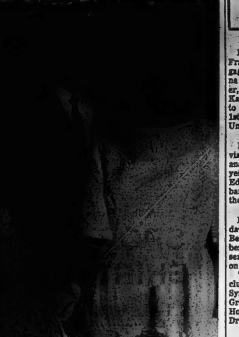
FALL DRESS FORECAST

Some of the new fabrics are exciting enough to create a real stir. No one can see a swatch of the "silk-like" knits and not be possessive about them. They are the answer to the busy woman's prayer. The fabric has been wear - tested and the results show that these knits are crease-resistant, comfortable to wear and guaranteed to go through the dry cleaning process and emerge the same size and shape.

The colors of some of these knits are still basic, but the dyers are hard at work on the brown family, a range of greens and some more subtle reds. At the moment, bright red, navy and black are standard.

It seems to me that some of these knits, especially when they are woven in pattern, could be made up into pretty, soft cocktail dresses. Unfortunately, so far, most styles are confined to sleeveless shift sheaths or the usual three-piece suits — useful garments, but hardly fashion news for a new season.



TWO NEW STYLES

Two new styles do have some fashion news. One starts off as a basic slender dress with a high round neckline and three-quarter sleeves. Toning leather buttons decorate the shoulder line. By buttoning on a pleated panel, which extends from the shoulders right to the hemline and which is caught at the waistline by a matching leather belt, the dress takes on a different new look. The fabric used in this style was a muted wool woven in tones of green, blue and gold. It is also available in shades of red and red. This style is especially becoming for the women who wear a size 16 or over.

A tall girl's style was seen in the same collection. It was a black and gold, three-piece suit dress — but a three - piece outfit with a difference. The jacket was wrist length, collarless with three-quarter sleeves. The shirt was also wrist length, a walking pleat at the back. The blouse was in gold silk, with wrist length bishop sleeves showing below the sleeves of the jacket. The long Tom Jones tie at the neckline tucked into the waistband.

NAME WINNER

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) Miss Mary Ann Puff of Detroit, Mich., was named Wednesday the official winner of the 18th annual Miss Puff Beauty Pageant, the transcontinental air race for women. Mrs. Noah and her co-pilot, Mrs. Mary Alkins of Wichita, Kan., scored a plus 47.97 knots, the difference between her handicap and actual speeds. Mrs. Judy G. Wagner of Palos Verdes Estates, Calif., flying solo, was second, with a plus 30.13.

Mr. and Mrs. William Martin Hawley are pictured cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in the Standard Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Ida Elizabeth Holden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Holden, West Huntingdon. The bridegroom is the son of Rev. Roscoe Hawley and Mrs. Hawley of Crookston.

HAWLEY — HOLDEN

Tall standards of gladioli interspersed with pink and blue chrysanthemums decorated the altar of the Standard Church in Belleville at a recent wedding, when Ida Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Holden of West Huntingdon was and William Martin Hawley, son of Rev. and Mrs. Roscoe Hawley of Crookston exchanged marriage vows.

The bridegroom's father officiated at the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Earle Conley of North Gower. Miss Judith Thompson of Picton rendered the organ music and accompanied the soloist Mr. Dugal Scrapse of Ottawa.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor-length gown of white crepe chiffon over taffeta featuring a jewel neckline with elbow-length sleeves and full skirt taken in at the waist in deep folds and double pleats. Her double folds formed a panel at the front of her skirt. A braided crown of chiffon over taffeta caught up her shoulder-length veil. A white Bible prayer book was blue iris, clematis, stephanotis and ivy with stephanotis on white streamers and was completed by orchids. Attending the bride was her sister Mrs. Earle Smith of Bloomfield as matron of honor who wore a copen blue honan silk street-length dress with petal-effect collar and trim and elbow-length sleeves. A matching picture hat and white accessories were complemented by the semi-cascade of white flowers'mums and ivy which she carried. Similarly gowned to the matron of honor and also carrying semi-cascades of white 'mums were nieces of the bride Miss Sharon Elizabeth Reid of Ivanhoe as bridesmaid and Miss Linda Beth Smith of Bloomfield as junior bridesmaid.

Youngest niece of the bride, little Heather Holden of Catarqui as flower girl wore blue sown pink honan silk patterned identically to the gowns worn by the other attendants. She carried a tiny basket of white button 'mums and ivy with white satin streamers. Her headdress was a small circlet of pale pink feathered carnations.

Some 80 guests were entertained at a reception at Tyne Motor Hotel where the bride's mother received wearing peacock blue honan silk with navy accessories and a corsage of pale pink feathered carnations. Assisting the bride's mother in the receiving line was the mother of the bridegroom wearing powder blue silk shantung with black accessories and a corsage of deep pink carnations.

For travelling to Niagara Falls, various points along the southern shores of Lake Erie, Detroit and Windsor the bride chose a blue figured silk dress with white accessories and a corsage of white feathered carnations.

Out-of-town guests were present from Shawville, Quebec; Ottawa; Seeley's Bay; Canaqoque; North Gower; Toronto; Niagara Falls and Kingston.

On the following Monday, June 22nd, the chapter met at the home of Joy Wonnacott for a farewell get together for Joan James who is moving to Toronto. President Trudy Thorton presented Joan with a coffee spoon and a corsage to wear in her new home. She will be missed by many friends. The spring meeting in the fall will be held at the home of Joan James in her new home in Port Credit.

100 Mental Patients to Enjoy Camp

NIAGARA - ON - THE - LAKE, Ont. (CP)—A summer camp to give more than 100 mental patients a 10-day holiday on the shore of Lake Ontario was officially opened here Wednesday.

Health Minister Matthew Dymond and Donald Ford, president of the Metropolitan Toronto branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association opened the camp, which will be used by patients of the Ontario Hospital at Toronto.

Glen Mullin, director of Niagara Lodge, where the camp is being held, says the camp is one more attempt to knock down the wall which separates patients from their families and the outside world.

The camp will serve patients who have spent many years at the hospital and have become seriously withdrawn or socially isolated. It is designed for benefit and enjoyment rather than a new kind of treatment.

Author Will Lecture at University

LONDON (CP) — Toronto-born author and scholar Phyllis Grosskurth has been appointed to John Addington Symonds well received by critics here, will be the theme of her lecture at Ottawa's Carleton University this fall.

Mrs. Grosskurth, 40-year-old mother of three, came to Britain four years ago and began work on her book about the Victorian writer and critic. She had access to private letters and in January her own autobiography, unpublished because Symonds' widow did not wish her husband's frank account to reach the public. The biography is available in Canada.

The son of a prominent surgeon, Symonds soon became a practising homosexual. He wrote many works of criticism and also produced some fine translations.

The Sunday Times says of Mrs. Grosskurth's book: "Although (her) critical judgment seems to be sound, her book is valuable chiefly as the portrait of a temperament."

John Gielgud, writing in The Telegraph says the author "is so intelligent a biographer, so sensible a partisan, and so unshockable, informed and perceptive about Symonds' sexual problems that I found myself drawn into her book with increasing interest and admiration."

Mrs. Grosskurth's husband is Cmdr. Robert Grosskurth of the Royal Canadian Navy.

Mrs. M. Batten Appointed Federal Judge

By RON MacDONALD

HUMBOLDT, Sask. (CP) — Many Batten, trained to be a clear-cut tussle of politics and the law, believes she may be in for a lengthy stay as a judge of Saskatchewan's district court.

"I'd much rather be an advocate than make the decision," she said in an interview at her Humboldt home following her appointment as a judge March 26 by Prime Minister Pearson.

"When you're a lawyer or a politician you pick a side and fight for it with everything you've got. But when you're a judge you have to weigh all sides and make a decision.

"You feel as if you've died a little bit when you're appointed to the bench. But I think it is a great honor."

The appointment, coupled with her retirement from active politics, also means she has more time with her lawyer husband, M. C. B. Batten, and her children, Dick, 19, Justine, 11, Patricia, 10, and Alexia, 9.

SECOND LADY JUDGE

Mrs. Batten, is the first woman in the West and the second in Canada to receive a federally appointed judgeship. Helen Kinnear was appointed Haldimand County Court judge in Ontario in 1943 and retired in 1962.

Born Mary Podchuk in Sifton, Man., she studied in Saskatchewan after moving here with her parents as a child. As a graduate of the University of Saskatchewan law school, she articled with the Prince Albert firm of Diefenbaker and Cuelenaere.

Perhaps working with a prominent Conservative — later the prime minister of Canada — and a staunch Liberal, who is now Saskatchewan Natural Resources Minister John Cuelenaere, sparked her interest in politics.

Before entering politics actively, however, a wartime stint in a munitions plant, marriage a brief time practising law in Regina before joining her husband's firm in Humboldt, and starting her family conspired to keep her from seeking legislative office.

ON PRAISE

In the provincial election of 1956 she ran and was elected Liberal member for Humboldt. She was re-elected in 1960 and retired from politics before the April 22 election.

In the legislature, she won praise from both sides of the House as "one of the most able members" as Deputy Premier A. H. McDonald put it.

On the bench, Mrs. Batten hopes she will be regarded as a judge first, a woman second.

People think women trained in law are best for social welfare or family court "but I don't really care for this distinction at all," she says. "Their minds may not be suited for that sort of thing."

Short Skirts May Be on Way Out

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're a fashion-watcher, a smoother, a hemline tugger, or a shirt hitcher, you can expect to break these nervous habits this fall with the help of the new collection being previewed by fashion writers here this week.

Two more fashion houses, Branell and Hattie Carnegie, added Wednesday to the already mounting evidence that the knee-length type of skirt is out, at least in higher - priced clothes.

On the way out are short skirts that cause you to fidget, tight ones that ride up and crease embarrassingly when you sit down, slide dangerously above your knees when you cross your legs and thwart graceful stair climbing.

Built into both suits and dresses shown Wednesday are walking and sitting comfort long missing in ladies' wear except in clothes for the college crowd.

A favorite created for Hattie Carnegie is the apron - front wrap with a deep centre pleat for real kicks.

The possibility of a row of pleats broadening your beam is solved by happily smoothed stitched pleats most of the way down the skirt that cling before letting them burst loose for knee action.

Hattie Carnegie's whole collection concentrates on hiding the disguising excess waistpockets. It features slim princess bodices (modest for these times) and pencil - slim coat dresses.

Originals, a coat couture house, also promises both a skinny look and walking room rain or shine, day or night.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

MAIL CALL

QUESTION: In planning my daughter's wedding reception, we let her fiance's mother know how many guests could be invited, on the bridegroom's side. I got the invitation list back this morning, and she's included 12 more names than the 50 allotted her. I can't prune our list any more to accommodate these additions, so now I have a bit of a problem.

Would it seem inconsiderate to ask her to edit her list down to the number we mentioned? My daughter says the list actually consists mostly of relatives and the few outsiders on it are close friends of the family. What would you suggest I do about this? — Mrs. R. C. A., Detroit, Mich.

ANSWER: The list for the groom's side should have been held to the allotted number. However, his mother may have included names of relatives who cannot possibly attend — they may live too far away. Possibly she wanted to pay them the courtesy of receiving an invitation anyway. If it's impossible to accommodate any more, then it would be wise — and permissible — to go over the list with his mother and see who are "definites" and who are "position marks." All relatives should be included on both the invitation lists, of course. The "musts" are settled, it should be possible to cut the remaining list down to everyone's satisfaction.

QUESTION: My parents were divorced when I was five years old. My mother remarried two years later and my step-father has raised me as his own. I've seen my father occasionally, but we have no close relationship.

When I get married later this summer, my step-father will give me away and invitations will be issued in the name of my mother and step-father. My father, however, is coming to the wedding, but will not have an official part in it. Several of my mother's relatives think he should be asked to sit in the first pew with my mother and that my step-father should sit in the second pew after giving me away. I'm sure they must be mistaken, since I don't think such an arrangement would be in good taste. Correctly, where should he sit? — S. C., Indianapolis, Ind.

ANSWER: Your father sits in the third or fourth pew. After giving you away, your step-father joins your mother in the first pew. He also sits with her at the parent's table, if there is one, at the reception and officiates in every way as host. Your father sits at one of the other tables. He is simply a guest, and should not be given any additional prominence in the day's events.

Congregations Bid Farewell To Minister

MINTO — Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Creaser (Phyllis Twiddy), who have been in charge of the Wyevale and Waverley charges for the past seven years, have been transferred to Barrie.

On Sunday evening approximately 100 families met in the hall to honor and bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Creaser, and presented them with a swivel chair. Their two sons were also remembered by the Wyevale U.C.W. gave them an electric fry pan; Waverley U.C.W. presented them with a fruit bowl; the men's club gave a picnic cooler and the Anglican congregation at Waverley presented them with a star quilt. They also received many personal gifts, which sincerely expressed the highest esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Creaser were held by their congregations and friends of their communities. On Thursday night a reception was held in their honor at their new home in Barrie. Mr. Creaser was in charge of the Trenton circuit about 15 years ago.

Clothes Shown At New York In 1920 Era

NEW YORK (AP)—Vestiges of Jimmy Walker, Jean Harlow, the Lemon Drop Kid, speakeasy girls, and racetrack touts during the late 1920's and early 1930's will be worn by American women next season.

One by one, reminders of that era appeared on the runway Wednesday as Teal Traina previewed his collection for reporters here for the New York country group's semi-annual fashion press week.

Elliot Ness' trench coat was there in gleaming white silk twill with white exaggerated lapels and with a fur lining.

Those long - gammed speakeasy girls, puffing on long cigarette holders, flounced onto the scene in tiers of black net with cock feather bonnets, or audaciously short black French lace tunics.

Those were hip swivellers in long tortoised, bias-cut costumes with a bias-cut tunic skirt fluttering over a straight under one. The swivaller, as Traina has named this swinging silhouette, showed up especially smartly, even with the bodice cut to the waistline.

Rust-cheated brunettes, not at all Harlow or Carole Lombard types, nevertheless undulated in the kind of black bias gowns in which these celluloid queens did so well, with decolletage as low in front as in back.

MERCY BAY MISSION CIRCLE

The June meeting of Mercy Bay Mission Circle of Emmanuel Baptist Church was in the form of a supper held at Maple Inn, Bloomfield with 15 ladies present.

After everyone enjoyed a delicious dinner with all the trimmings and a pleasant hour of fellowship they returned to Belleville for a meeting at the home of Mrs. George Brunett. Mrs. Elaine Kerr gave a report on the reading course and Mrs. John MacGregor took charge of the devotional portion. A quintette of the ladies sang a number, followed by a vocal selection by Mrs. Paul Weigand.

Mrs. MacGregor chose as her theme for this portion, "Keepers of the Home," and had a short talk and in part, "If your children are to be blossoms in your home garden, then manners is going to have to pay the prices — someone is going to have to be started out of sight but the loving gardner has not forgotten where you are and when you come to present them." Some and daughters are grown to manhood and womanhood in the strength of His might and in the beauty of His righteousness. When you catch His smile of approval and hear Him say "Well done," that will be a great reward."

Poems in keeping with the theme were read by Mrs. MacGregor and Mrs. Eric Quirk.

A white cross work period followed and refreshments were served.

Shillington Clan Enjoys Get-Together

FRANKFORD — Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rowe on Sunday, July 5th, at a Shillington family reunion, were: Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Murton, Mr. and Mrs. William Shillington, Raymond and Ruth, Mrs. F. T. Shillington and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Gorr and family of Harrowsmith; Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Shillington and Charles, Mr. and Mrs. J. Manley of Niagara Falls, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur McColl and family of Woodcot; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Emmons of Elgin; Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Shillington, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Murton, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Simonett and family, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Watson and family of Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Shillington and family of Windsor; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Shillington and family of Bath; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Shillington and family of Peterborough.

Over 30 members of the family attended church service in Frankford Union Church at 11 a.m. at which time flowers were placed on the altar in memory of deceased members.

Special choir music was provided by Bonnie and Hastings Rowe, assisted by Mrs. K. Austin at the piano.

Following the service 96 relatives enjoyed dinner on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. R. Rowe.

River Valley W. I. Enjoys Annual Picnic

RAWDON — On Sunday, July 5 River Valley Women's Institute held their annual picnic at the Col. Rorke Memorial Water Conservation Park Area with 12 Institute members and their families in attendance with a total of 50 people.

All enjoyed a pot-luck picnic dinner and later in the afternoon thirst quenching watermelons were cut and served. The children enjoyed a candy scramble and each was the recipient of a colored balloon. There were 27 children in attendance.

The three-legged race for girls was won by Connie Tucker and Shirley Anne McDonell and for boys Brent Carr and John McDonell. Young and old engaged in a copper and milk bottle contest and egg race. The winners received chocolate bars and the other contestants had pencils.

Mrs. Vernon Harry, president conducted a brief business period when a letter of thankyou's were discussed. It was decided to change the date of the October meeting to Saturday evening, October 3 to accommodate the guest speaker, Mrs. Gordon Peters who will be attending the Odd Fellows 25th annual Ukulele Rhythm Pilgrimage for youth in July and will bring a special message to the Institutes.

River Valley W.I. has donated $6. again this year for prizes at the Stirling Fair. Their petition will be for a cotton sprigon made by an Institute member or a 4-H Club member and entered in the ladies' division for the Fair early in September.

Cheese Cake Popular Choice

Some of the new colored slides that were the feature of the evening turned out upside down and backwards and two of Eleanor's and Bruce's friends watched them almost standing on their heads but the slides came around out right side up and beautiful.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Pork Rosemary; Pickled Watermelon Rind; Buttered Rosebud Beets; Creamed New Spinach; Rosy Stewed Rhubarb; Crackers and Old Cheddar Cheese; Tea.

SUNDAY (Guests)

Roast Stuffed Turkey; Cranberry Sauce; Creamed Baby Carrots; New Green Beans; Endive, Radish and Mild Onion Ring Salad with Italian French Dressing; Eleanor's Cheese Cake (see Thursday); Coffee.

ELEANOR'S CHEESE CAKE:

½ cup soft butter, one 8-oz. package zwieback, 2 tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, two 8-oz. packages white cream cheese (room temperature), 1 cup 18% cream, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, yolks and whites separated, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ½ teaspoon almond extract, 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind.

Put zwieback through food grinder to make as fine crumbs as possible. Add the 2 tablespoons sugar and cinnamon and work butter into them by hand until blended. Butter well a 9" spring form pan (or if you must use a right round or square pan, line bottom with buttered paper). Turn in buttered crumbs and with your finger tips, spread and pat them to evenly coat inside of pan. In large bowl cream the cheese, adding cream gradually until you have a smooth mixture. (Eleanor beat this with her portable electric beater but warns you to work slowly or lumps of cheese will get in your face.) Mix together the 1 cup sugar, flour and salt and add to cheese mixture, stirring. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Transfer beater to another bowl containing yolks and beat until thick and lemon-colored — about 5 minutes. Add yolks to cheese mixture along with lemon rind and flavorings. Turn beaten whites in and fold, all until incorporated. There will be some puffs of egg white showing. Turn into prepared pan, bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour. Turn off heat and allow cheesecake to remain in oven for ½ more hour. Cool thoroughly in pan. Carefully loosen spring form and remove. Run sharp knife under cake and cautiously transfer it to serving plate. (Eleanor served hers on a pedestal cake plate.)

Make Glazed Cherry Topping: Use 2-oz. can pitted Montmorency cherries, 2 tablespoons arrowroot flour (or cornstarch), ¼ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind, ¼ teaspoon red food coloring (about). Drain cherries from can, measure and reserve juice. You should have ¾ cup. Measure out ¼ cup and mix with arrowroot flour (or cornstarch) to smooth paste. Add sugar and lemon rind to remaining cherry juice, add arrowroot paste and cook, stirring, over direct low heat until thick. Cook about 8 minutes longer over very low heat, stirring almost constantly. Fold red food coloring and cherries in carefully to avoid mashing. Cool. When cheese cake is cold, spoon cold cherry topping over top. Chill thoroughly before serving. Serves 12 to 14.

When making our your shopping list, remember that 1 pound of cooked or canned fish yields 2 cups of flaked, cooked meat, advise the home economists of the Department of Fisheries of Canada.

Motel Operator's Guests Have Body Odor Problem

DEAR DORIS — I have been operating a motel and restaurant for five years and have solved most problems myself. This one stumps me.

I have a very nice couple who visit my establishment frequently. They are well-mannered and polite; however they reek with B.O. so strongly that the help objects to making up their room and serving them, and I personally become nauseated when they are in the store. I am embarrassed at their presence when there are other customers present.

How do you handle this one? — STUMPED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR STUMPED—

"Oh wad some power the secret tell us,
To smell ourselves as others smell us!"

(Sorry, Bobbie Burns! I couldn't resist it.)

First impulses include:

1. Arranging for a telepathic Distant Early Warning signal five minutes before they arrive, thus making it possible to turn on the No Vacancy lights.

2. Putting a Measles sign in the window.

3. Supplying nose-clothespins to chambermaids.

4. Offering a bonus for commandos who volunteer to brave the blasts.

No good? Then give them a lumpy bed. Even considerate folk are sometimes unaware of the atmosphere they create. Daily bathing and frequent changes of clothing are the only way to be sure.

Let's hope that if anyone who is reading this column has the slightest suspicion that people - withdraw from them because of body odor, they will make the early acquaintance of soap and water.

DEAR DORIS — I am 14 and have been going around with a boy 15. Then all of a sudden he didn't phone me for over a month. I thought he was giving me the "brush-off", so I started going out with another boy, whom I like very much.

Then last week the first boy came to the canteen and gave me a long sob story about not being able to phone me or come to see me (I know this is a lie.) I felt like a heel because he thinks I'm still going around with him.

I don't like him for a boy friend any more but he still likes me! — DESPERATE.

DEAR DESPERATE — A month's neglect constitutes grounds for separation. Tell him so.

• • •

(Don't just muddle along, Doris, a trained social worker, can give you a new slant on your problem. Write to her.)

Women's Institutes

UNIONDALE W.I.

SIX SIDNEY — The July meeting of Uniondale Hastings West Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. George Burkitt and Mrs. Robert Burkitt, 4th Concession of Sidney with 29 members, three visitors and five 4-H Club Girls present.

Mrs. Percy MacMillan, the guest speaker gave an outline of the northern Institute in the Arctic; and said that "Canada is going far north." She displayed a paper with several of the new places marked, one being Tuktoyaktuc which was organized last fall in the Northwest Territories by Miss Eadie.

A short course will soon be outlined for the members and the new home economist will be Janet Munroe, replacing Elizabeth Spouse. Thank-you notes were read from R. Lalzeman, S. MacDonald and Miss E. Spouse. Mrs. M. Sine outlined the study in the Home and Country. The Fair committee was appointed as follows: Mrs. F. Phillips, Mrs. G. Harrington, Mrs. E. Sine and Mrs. G. Sine with a business meeting to be held in the near future.

The program consisted of short readings and a piano duet.

The 4-H Club Girls modelled their pyjamas which took the form of a pyjama parade with accompanying commentary.

Refreshments were served by the July committee and a social time was enjoyed.

STANLEY PARK

Belleville's Stanley Park yesterday held its opening parade. The children, masqueraded in pirate, princess, and clown costumes, slowly marched down Lee Avenue, across Melrose Crescent and up to Stanley. The line then proceeded down to Southwood Crescent. They trooped up and along Farley to Northwood and back to the park. As the parade was progressing it was observed by proud mothers attracted by the loud noisemakers the children had collected. It was indeed a success!

The Experts Say

A Hotel Is Not a Home But Housekeeping Similar

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—Multiply the average housekeeper's work by a couple of hundred and you get some idea of the responsibilities shouldered by Ilse Gropler.

As housekeeper of Toronto's Lord Simcoe Hotel, she oversees maintenance of 600 bedrooms plus assorted dining rooms, halls and lobbies.

And despite the disparity in size between a hotel and an average home, the approach is surprisingly similar.

Mrs. Gropler is buyer of linens and towels and staff uniforms and supervisor of the lost-and-found department, a fair approximation of what a housewife does for a smaller scale.

Her budget is important and she must find ways to keep things in good repair, use them until they can be used no longer, keep them clean and bold work to a minimum.

The first step, she says, is to buy as much of everything as space and money will allow. And make sure it's the best quality you can afford. Good things wear better, and a number of changes of towels and sheets makes it possible to rotate them and give the fabrics a rest. As a result they wear longer. About five changes is a good rule of thumb.

COVER BLANKETS

You can cut the amount of dirt a blanket absorbs by keeping a sheet over it as well as a bed spread. An occasional thorough shaking will help too to cut down cleaning bills. A torn or burned blanket can be darned in summer have them cleaned and store them wrapped.

If there is a sticky stain—coffee, soft drink or blood, —is the time to tackle it. Sponge ice on while it is fresh will help lift it. Mrs. Gropler says she has no idea why it works but it does. Then ordinary laundering should finish the job. However, if you're scrubbing stained linen to a laundry tell the launderer about the stain and what caused it. As for the rug, carpet cleaner should finish off the stain after the ice treatment.

As a work saver, Mrs. Gropler suggests nylon glass curtains they can be laundered in cold water and hung carefully to dry, requiring no ironing.

One life-lengthener she depends on is dye. Stained and faded bedspreads and curtains will last another couple of years if they can be dyed.

Asked about ink stains, Mrs. Gropler just shook her head. She says there is little that can be done about them.

The sewing room at the hotel helps her keep waste to a minimum. Two matching spreads can be pieced together to make one good one. Old table cloths can be cut down to make good napkins. Old sheets become aprons or pillowcases, old pillowcases and towels become dusters.

MISSION CIRCLE

The June meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was held at the home of Mrs. J. H. Farms, Dufferin Ave., and was preceded by a delightful pot-luck supper which was held in the garden and greatly enjoyed by everyone present.

After the repast the meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. A. Wells. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. C. Campbell, who chose as her devotional topic "Handling Disappointments." "We may all expect disappointments. They come to the best of Christians. But we should be encouraged in the fact that we can have an inner resource of power that will help us to handle them in a Christ-like manner.

"We can learn much from the example which Jesus set in handling His disappointments, because His life too had its share. He was disappointed in His townspeople in Nazareth; those whom He knew best tried to take His life. His disciples finally let Him down and Judas became his betrayer. The multitudes who had welcomed Him as King at last crucified Him; and the Father Himself turned His face during the darkest hour on Calvary."

Mrs. Gordon Woodcock gave a most efficient report on the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec, held recently at McMaster University, Hamilton.

Mrs. J. Madill, White Cross convener, reported that the W. C. collection of $25.55 and W. C. hospital supplies for India had been sent away also a beautiful baby layette for "New Canadians" sent to the director, Miss Gaverluk, Toronto.

The president reminded the ladies that the week of July 19th would be their time to visit at the County Home.

Grand Martha Honored at O.E.S. Meet

WELLINGTON — The regular meeting of Lakeside Chapter 81 O.E.S. was held in the chapter room recently.

The Worthy Matron, Sister Dorothy Brimley and the Worthy Patron, Bro. Gordon Parks, presided and welcomed many visitors from the district.

As well as being the regular meeting, the occasion was also a meeting to honor Sister Margaret MacLown of Port Hope, Grand Martha of the Grand Chapter of Ontario, and the Marthas of the District of which there were ten present out of a possible 17. The officers of Lakeside presented a ceremony honoring the "Martha" and gave each a corsage and gift.

Sister McKeever reviewed the story of the Star Point that she represented. Sister Alice Pope presented a gift to the Grand Martha on behalf of Lakeside Chapter.

Sister Isabel Devern approached the East and presented Sister Ida McFaul with a life membership. Sister McFaul has been a faithful member and the secretary for 33 years. Sister Annette Boyd of Greencastle, Indiana, presented her with a bouquet in honor of occasion.

Sister Norma Norton a recent bride was presented with a gift a from the members. Sister Ruth Boyle made the presentation.

Chapter closed with best wishes from the East for a pleasant summer, for all. Refreshments were served including strawberries and ice cream, treat of the Worthy Matron and the Worthy Patron.

Add new flavor and vitality to your meals by introducing many types of Ontario produced cheese. Adding ¾ cup grated sharp - flavored cheddar cheese to 2 cups hot mashed potatoes perks up their flavor, point out home economists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph. Freshly cooked green vegetables have added zest when sprinkled with cheese.

Alternate layers of slightly crushed sweetened strawberries and rich vanilla ice cream in parfait glasses for a colorful refreshing dessert suggest food specialists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph. Garnish with mint sprigs and a fresh whole strawberry.

"YOU DON'T PAY EXTRA FOR QUALITY, BECAUSE QUALITY PAYS FOR ITSELF"

Fifty Years of Church Work

Mrs. A. T. Brown of Bonnaw, a charter member of St. Mark's Anglican Church Women's Auxiliary, has prepared the following history of the work of this group over the past 50 years.

Mission work has been in the minds of Canadians, first in French Canada when the Jesuits came, to build churches and teach the inhabitants. They suffered and died for the faith. Then our English and Protestant people followed along in much the same way, building churches and establishing missions. Our old and wealthy mother church in England furnished both men and money for that purpose. I believe that sent today our mother country still helps in some areas.

The word mission has a different meaning for us today, in the old days we expected to give and sacrifice. Now many of those countries have many of the things we have, such as electricity, mechanical devices, etc., so it is that we find ourselves receiving as well as giving and working with as well as for them. The world seems smaller because of the airplanes and cars. Telegraphy and education have also made a great difference. We do have to think of the increased density of the world population and the complex problems it produces.

There are just two of the original or charter members left, but several over 70 years, who while not charter members are still most interested and active even to the present day.

Unfortunately our rural parishes are seldom large enough to have two groups of women workers — Guild and W.A., so in our case we decided on being a W.A., because of its broader vision and greater need and we have always been able to help with the parish's expenses as well.

EARLY HISTORY

The early history of this church dated back about a century before 1914. At first services were held in what we term the 12th line, school house and later were centred around a little brick church about three-quarters of a mile from our present site. We were a strong, faithful little group made up of descendants from the pioneer English, Irish and Scotch settlers. There were the Webbs, McCombs, and McKeowns, the Browns, Burkitts, Barbers, Bashmans and Bakers, the Neals, Sprys, Heaths, Lowrys, also the McIntyre, Edwards, Stiles, Frosts, Haseletts and Rissells, Vances, Mumbys and many others. These families took a young land building and establishing their homes and raising families, displayed courage, tenacity and integrity with a deep and strong conviction of what their lives should be and what was necessary to maintain their standards, not only in their own lives but to the betterment of the community as a whole.

Perhaps there was not too much opportunity for education nor time for it, too far to walk and scarcity of teachers, but the desire for God in their lives was strong, therefore a church was a real necessity.

SERVICES IN SCHOOL

The services were held in the 12th line school house with Canon Harris, a dearly loved and respected pastor and father of our Anglican flock being in charge. His name is still revered in this and the Marmora district by many of the older people. He spent 44 years of his life in this locality. Those were the horse and buggy days. It is not hard to understand how difficult their ministry was and we must have shared in it. I think clergy such as Dr. Nicmo, Dr. Blagrave and Rev. Towle should also have mention here.

It was 1904, until Rev. and Mrs. G. E. H. Hall were resident here that our W.A. was organized in 1914 in the Rawdon rectory, now adjacent to our present church. Mrs. Hall was our first president, Mrs. J. F. Baker, secretary and Mrs. John Brown, treasurer. We were a self supporting parish with a resident clergyman up till the time of Mr. Caldwell, when we were linked up with Marmora parish. To us who dearly loved our church this was a real heartache, we had a strong Sunday School, an active W.A. and a girls' auxiliary and a Y.P.A. We paid our appointments and met our obligations. It was during Mr. Hall's ministry and due to a bequest of $5,000 left to us by Mrs. Simpson Cook that the idea of a new church was formed.

LOVED AND REVERED

World War I broke out during the ministry of Rev. Morton. He had been with us four years, then he enlisted and for awhile we had supply ministers. It was not too long however before Mr. Morton returned and was with us for four years more. Those were some of the good times and I believe the Mortons to be numbered among our most loved and revered.

Our church and W.A. weathered the world rocking period of two wars and a serious depression. This hit the rural districts hard, money was scarce and many people who never before had had a mortgage on their property found it necessary to mortgage their land in order to have the necessities of life. A number of our young people due to enlisting and war work had to to leave their homes and go to large centres thus sapping the life and vitality of our parish.

However the Anglo-Saxon spirit of fortitude and determination came to the front and I do think due to a fine succession of clergymen, Mr. Morton, Mr. Levason and Mr. Davies, the latter of Christ Church, Trenton. The cross on our altar was purchased during Mr. Davies' time by our adult Bible class in S.S.

Our women deserve a big share of credit over that period of time. These women had their homes and families, their war and community work and they did it not neglecting God's work to spread His gospel to all the corners of the earth.

This bequest of $5,000 had been tucked away in the coffers of the Synod and over the years really accumulated. In Canon Swayne's time our dream came true and today, on the site of the old horse stable and barn surroundings stands our pretty little church of which we are so proud.

ORGANIZED CHOIR

We were fortunate to have with us Canon and Mrs. Swayne while our new church was being built. They gave us unsparingly of their experience and Mrs. Swayne, watching the progress of the building step by step. They did not stop there but organized and trained a vested choir, the vestment and processional cross donated by the Hon. J. R. Cook. He was a member of St. Thomas' Church, Belleville and the first vested choir appeared in public was to sing at Mr. Cook's funeral.

In closing I feel it is only fair to mention Mr. Brownlie's 13 years or more of service in our midst, also Mr. Fleming's five years. Mrs. Brownlie and Mrs. Fleming were also active workers in our W.A. and choir. Mr. Stewart is doing his best to make really down to earth Christians of us and I do hope he succeeds.

Do you see now why we have much need to be thankful? Regardless of difficulties we have held our own and think have gone ahead. It is a bit too bad our young people are not responding too well, but we do have a good Sunday School and many earnest faithful workers.

Should Teach Boys as Well As Girls

WINNIPEG (CP) — Boys as well as girls should be taught in essential fields of family knowledge, the biennial convention of the Canadian Home Economics Association was told Tuesday.

Elizabeth Closz, co-director of the University of Minnesota's plan for the continuing education of women, told the convention the whole pattern of home economics teaching may be changed.

She listed child development, nutrition and family financing as subjects that should be taught to all children in adolescence.

Mrs. Closz told the conference "the old image of home economics as an exclusively feminine concern is disappearing."

But, she said, although women may study exactly the same subjects as their brothers and husbands, they will probably do so on a different timetable and in different ways because "it seems obvious that women will continue to produce babies and raise them."

Mrs. Closz stressed the need for greater continuing adult education since "perhaps within the next 50 years, and certainly within the next 100, work will become a privilege reserved for the highly intelligent while the majority of people will spend their time in economically unproductive ways."

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Psychologists are fond of telling the story of the old man who had just finished re-laying the sidewalk in front of his house. Along came some young pranksters and in their own tantalizing way, threatened to walk on and thus ruin the freshly-poured cement. The old man raised and waved, and somewhat quietly chased them away. A little later when he realized how loudly he had shouted, he explained his action to a parent of one of the children, said he'd "like kids in the abstract but not in the concrete!"

PSYCHOLOGISTS

The reason that psychologists tell this story is reveal in its punch-line. There are a lot of people who like a lot of people only in the abstract, but never in the concrete.

A long time ago, Aristotle pointed out why anger is different than hate. We are usually angry at individuals, but never at whole groups or classes of people. And contrariwise: we rarely hate individuals, while we generally reserve for abstract classes or categories — whole nations, entire religions or nations, and the like. Anger is often followed by repentance: we are sorry for its outbursts. But hatred is deep-seated, and it will often grasp us in its powerful clutches and urge us to destroy the object of our disgust.

ANGER AND HATE

Why differentiate anger from hate, then, is that the former is an emotion, while the latter is a sentiment. We can get over our emotional fits much more easily than we are able to discard a deep-seated sentiment. What is more: we often enjoy our sentiments so much that it is unusual for us to "love to hate." And we are helped in our efforts by the fantasies of generalization. Ironically it is not unusual for some people who hate whole groups in the abstract to be fair and decent toward individuals who are part of the hated group. We can even dislike people in the abstract — but love them in the concrete! How do we reason out such incongruities? It is simple. All we need tell ourselves is that Gentiles or Protestants or Negroes are evil as a group — but that this Catholic or Jew or Protestant or Negro — is different! We rationalize our false generalizations by conceding that the individuals we know are really exceptions to our rule.

FLOATING HATRED

Too many people possess what may be called "free-floating hatred" a vague and unattached package of dislike. And whenever they come across the alike, they quickly unload their dislike package of dislike. Now it has a definite place to land, a mooring to which they can safely tie their hatred to. Let's call it.

If, instead of hating people as a group, we would get angry with them as individuals — when they err as individuals — then, there's a chance for us, yet. That is, there is a lesson to teach: He was angry when he thought that he was threatened. But he didn't hate a nybody. Not even in the concrete!

Drunk Driving Charge Brings 30-Day Term

PICTON (Staff) — Wednesday morning in Magistrate's Court Stanley Wright and Reginald Wilkinson both pleaded guilty to charges of being intoxicated in a public place. Each was sentenced to ten days in county jail by Magistrate Willis. David Bill pleading guilty to the same charge received a seven-day sentence.

Charged with assaulting Albert Marsele, Gerald Van Horne was remanded a second time to July 22 due to Marsele's absence.

Donald Lobb, 22, was sentenced by Magistrate Willis to the maximum 30-day penalty for driving while intoxicated. Lobb who pleaded guilty to the charge was apprehended by police after his 1952 Oldsmobile was completely demolished in a one-car accident in Bloomfield. Police pursued Lobb through Picton to Bloomfield at speeds of 60 to 85 m.p.h. He drove erratically, veering to the left hand side of the road on several occasions. His car struck a hydro pole on the Bloomfield highway, then went off the road and over Department of Highways sign, striking a second pole. Lobb was accompanied at the time by Clifford Mills, Union St., and Carl Byers, 21 Broad St., Picton. Byers stated that he had grabbed the wheel of the car on several occasions in order to keep it on the road. At the time of the accident Lobb's licence was under suspension from a previous offence. He pleaded guilty to driving while under suspension. His licence was further remanded for one year.

A charge of minor consuming was laid against one of the passengers in Lobb's vehicle.

Clifford A. Palmer was sentenced upon recommendation of Crown Attorney Lance Nethery to a common jail sentence of one month after conviction on a charge of making a false statement with intent to mislead. Palmer had entered a plea of guilty. In a previous courthouse appearance Palmer had stated that he could not remember who gave him the use of a car in Toronto which had been stolen from Sharpe Motors, Picton, in 1962. Later he admitted that Russell Frost gave him the use of the car which Frost told him was "hot."

Robert Cary, charged with common assault, failed to make a court appearance.

NO INJURIES

Cars driven by Clifford Channel, Wellington, and Eugene Alfred Alling, Palm Court, Ont., collided in Hillier at 2:40 p.m. Tuesday causing $350 damage. No injuries resulted from the accident. Constable Angus Grant investigated.

At 6:30 on Tuesday cars driven by Jas. Spencer, 41 Hill St., and Shirley Moeller, 12 Scholdt Court, Picton, collided three miles south of Bloomfield on West Lake Road. No one was injured. O.P.P. Constable Chard investigated.

Pea Acreage In County Being Sprayed

PICTON (Staff) — Aerial spraying of pea acreage in the county began last week. Fields on the farms of Bill Rutherford and Clifford Wilkes, both of R.R. 1, Bloomfield, were sprayed for aphids by Bill Sandham of Port Hope.

"Most farmers don't even know if they have an aphid infestation in their peas," says Bill, who claims that once peas are sown they are usually forgotten.

Aphids cut down on pea yields by damaging plant foliage.

MANY EXPECTED

Expected at this weekend's "Fly-in" sponsored by Prince Edward Flying Club, are over 60 aircraft from as far as Montreal Saturday, July 11, visiting pilots and their passengers will be transported to Stalmack's Cove where they will camp overnight. Sunday morning, July 12th, an air rally will be held starting from Picton Airport. Cross country navigation, spot landing and bomb dropping will comprise the rally. Separate competitions will be held for local members and guests. The Hon. J. McFarland Navigation Trophy will be presented to winners among local entrants.

FOUR COMMISSIONED

Four new boys were commissioned as servers by Canon Wright at the 11 a.m. service Sunday last at the Church of St. Mary Magdalene. The youths are: Alexander Jacklyn, Christopher Seeley, Carl Stephens and Christopher Todd. These boys have completed their period of instruction and received their Reds, or scarlet cassocks at the hand of Canon Wright, assisted by Donald Drew, Senior Acolyte.

Canon Wright announced at the service that Grant Alford, an Acolyte for some years, has been accepted for training by the Church Army Training College in Toronto and will enter college at the end of September. Capt. Ronald Walker, another boy from the parish, completed his two-year theological course this spring and was commissioned for full time evangelism at St. James Cathedral in Toronto. He is now serving as Fort Chaplain in Hamilton.

Twelve of the teen-age boys of the Servers and Acolytes Guild took part in the commissioning service assisting the Senior Acolytes. The Picton Branch of the Dioscesan Servers Guild is the largest active Guild in the Dioscese of Ontario with boys having an 80 per cent record for regular attendance.

day and the only mention of the self-governing colony was by Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya.

Even then it was merely a passing reference as Kenyatta stressed the urgency of the problem. Kenyatta, in a speech termed by observers as urged a united Commonwealth front against South Africa's apartheid policies.

The speech of Britain's Sir Alec Douglas Home, with its theme of combining the twin policies of strength and conciliation, turned out to be a prelude to a powerful 45-minute exposition by Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia on the dangers and challenges posed by Indonesian "confrontation."

SUPPORT MALAYSIA

The Malaysian prime minister, who travelled to visit Ottawa after this meeting, left the impression he is seeking aid from Commonwealth sister countries. The speech drew immediate statements of support from prime ministers Robert Menzies of Australia and Keith Holyoake of New Zealand.

The Commonwealth leaders also approved the admission of Basutoland to the protectorate of Nyasaland and Rhodesia, it became independent Monday.

Fishing

External Affairs Minister Martin said passage of the enabling bill will strengthen the hand of Canadian negotiators. He hoped the diplomatic talks would be concluded before the end of the calendar would then act quickly to implement the new limits.

He added that as soon as the legislation receives royal assent, temporary Lizzie Bishop Inlet will be established in the traditional manner, following the sinuosities of the coastline.

WOULD RAN RUSSIA

Countries with historic fishing rights off Canada's coasts would be permitted inside this 12-mile limit, but fishermen from other countries such as Russia would be barred.

Once negotiations were completed with the seven countries that have historic rights, a straight baseline 12-mile zone would be proclaimed. The seven countries are the U.S., Britain, France, Norway, Denmark, Spain and Portugal.

Opposition spokesmen pressed the government to phase out fishing limits as they are established by custom—and take a firm attitude in the negotiations on the 12-mile zone.

The 12-mile bill has now been debated intermittently for six days in the Commons and it was debated for four days in the Senate earlier. The measure was introduced in the Senate April 30 and passed there May 14.

Northern Ireland Meets Economic Threats Headon

By ROD CURRIE

BELFAST (CP)—The aim of Northern Ireland, ever since its creation in 1921, has been to get its economy off the three-legged stool and on to a broader base.

For generations, Ulster's prosperity—or lack of it—has fluctuated with the fortunes of agriculture, linen and shipbuilding, the three main industries and all highly susceptible to outside influences.

It pioneered in Britain the idea of building industrial estates and renting or selling factories cheaply, offering capital grants and various other subsidies, all in an effort to attract new industry; to diversify.

Although it has made giant strides it has not kept pace with the problems presented by the highest birth rate in Britain and the continuing loss of jobs in the big industries through automation and lack of contracts to feed the shipbuilding and aircraft industries.

"It has been a case of running very hard to stay in the same place," said an official of the commerce department.

UNEMPLOYMENT HIGH

Up to the end of 1963 the government had spent £52,000,000—$146,000,000 in grants for capital expenditure on plants, machinery and buildings and £30,000,000 on building facilities for rent. This provided 46,000 new jobs, with close to 10,000 more in the pipeline, but still the country's unemployment rate hovers above the seven-per-cent mark compared with a national British average of about two per cent.

What is it then about Northern Ireland that has attracted 173 new industries from Europe — mainly Germany — North America and other parts of the United Kingdom since the Second World War?

Mainly it is the availability of an almost unlimited work force, much of it skilled or semi-skilled. Also, rents on the government-built factories run as low as nineopence a square foot compared with about six shillings in other "development" areas of Britain.

One difficulty is that Northern Ireland's schemes for attracting industry have been copied by other so-called "black areas" of unemployment in Britain and these have the advantage of being on the mainland.

"IT IS BARRIER

"The trouble is that damned bit of water," said the commerce department man with an impatient wave of the hand towards the Irish Sea. "You can see Scotland from here on a clear day, it's not that close, but still the sea and the prospect of transporting goods back and forth over it is a barrier. Actually it's a psychological one more than an actual one but it's a barrier just the same."

Despite the high unemployment, Northern Ireland generally has little of the sooty drabness of other development areas in northeast England and parts of Scotland and Wales, with their rows of decrepit houses and old, empty factories.

Belfast itself has been called a cleanest industrial city in Britain. This and the enthusiasm with which Ulster is building factories and homes, planning a massive £9,000,000 expansion at Queen's University and pressing on with an imaginative scheme for a "new city" inland from Belfast, gives on the surface at least, an air of confidence of faith in the future.

And it's a fact that despite its troubles Ulster offers many public facilities and services that are superior to those in the rest of Britain and enjoys a standard of living above that of the Republic of Ireland.

MORE FOR HIGHWAYS

For instance, the government spends about £18 a person on the hospital service, double the average in the rest of the United Kingdom, and its bill for highway construction is 50 per cent greater per capita than that in England and Wales. And although the population is about half that of the republic, Ulster spends about £4,000,000 more a year on university education, builds more government-subsidized houses, gives retirement pensions at 65 instead of 70, as in the republic, and offers considerably higher unemployment and sickness benefits.

But although Ulster has come a long way from the pre-war days when one-third of the population was out of work, the competition for new industries throughout Britain and the republic is becoming increasingly difficult.

Still it has one ace card: its cheap labor force, a trait not common in other parts of Britain. Applications for factory space are ruled in about 14 days, compared with up to six months by the British Board of Trade's advisory committee.

In the words of one English executive relocated in Ulster, "The one thing you won't get in Northern Ireland is ulcers."

Tomorrow: Irish never tire of religious bickering.

FLYING THE WEAVER'S TRADE — A young woman works on a loom weaving world-famous Irish linen in a Belfast mill. Linen is one of Northern Ireland's three main industries. The government is providing incentives to attract new industries and up to the end of 1963 had provided 46,000 new jobs. But employment hovers around the seven-per-cent mark, compared with the national British average of about two per cent. (CP Photo)

Our Architectural Heritage

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

On the south side of Dundas Street East, between George and Ann Streets are two small stone houses, identical in plan but displaying, on close scrutiny, surprising differences in construction. Both are typical vernacular Upper Canadian houses of the 1830's, usually occupied by craftsmen and merchants who conducted their business on the premises.

In the 1830's, Dundas Street East became a commercially important thoroughfare. After the construction of a bridge over the river Trent in 1834 the Kingston Toronto stage coach was routed along the present No. 2 Highway. A small settlement, of which the two stone cottages are survivors, grew up on Taylor's Hill. Dr. Burns' Animal Hostial began life as Road Commissioner John Way Maybee's general store, along with two other men, to the upkeep of the road between Napanee and Belleville. This fact, along with the discovery of the remains of a blacksmith's shop at the rear, is the basis of the local belief that the house was once a stage coach stop. The Maybee house and its main store placed close to the street to attract the trade of people using the highway, including the stage travellers on their way to Toronto. With the coming of the railroad in 1856, Maybee's business declined, until at the time of his death he was on the verge of bankruptcy.

The Maybee house appears to be the first of the two cottages to be built. It is a symmetrical, one and one-half storey, gable-roofed cottage, which owes its charm to the good aesthetic sense of its builder. The stone corner quoins prove that he was not a skilled mason, but he adapted to achieve pleasing proportions by graduating the size of the cut-stone blocks from large at the base to small at the top. The trim of the house is in the Greek Revival style, considered very up-to-date in 1830. The cornice board is wide, flat, and relieved with only a line or two of moulding. Proper Greek Revival cornices had grills in them to light the upper storey, but the inhabitants of the modest period Maybee house were forced to grope their way through the gloom of an upper hall dimly lit by a tiny window. The house is less well proportioned, and the quoins, large and of equal size all the way up, are overpowering on so small a building.

Both houses have small kitchen wings at the rear. Although stoves were used by wealthier people in 1830, John Maybee and his neighbor had to be content with the older and cheaper fireplaces for cooking and heating. When stoves became popularly priced in the fifties, Maybee overstocked his store with them and died heavily in debt to a local dealer.

After Maybee's death in 1867, his house was rented by a variety of small merchants and artisans. One of the tenants was the district lamp-lighter, whose house became a rendezvous in the evening for the children of the neighborhood. They gathered there to follow him as he went on his rounds, lighting the gas jets that illuminated the streets on Taylor's Hill.

Priority Task for Integrated Defence Staff Is Package Decision on Planes, Ships

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Top priority task for the integrated defence staff is a package of decisions on new army weapons and equipment, Defence Minister Hellyer said Wednesday.

After that, the staff is expected to make recommendations to Defence Minister Hellyer by this fall on a new tactical plane for the RCAF and a new warship for the navy.

Mr. Hellyer purposely postponed action on new weapons and equipment for the armed forces until the combined staff was established so that the individual services couldn't push through any pet projects at the last minute. Creation of a combined defence staff was approved by the Commons Tuesday and is expected to be endorsed quickly by the Senate.

The army has new armored troop carriers and cargo helicopters on order but it also wants a new armored reconnaissance vehicle, a new tank, a new fire - ton truck, better anti-tank weapons, more modern communications equipment, more surveillance gear, more self-propelled artillery and an anti-aircraft weapon.

HAVE PRIORITY

These aren't glamorous items like a new aircraft or ship but Mr. Hellyer has given them No. 1 priority.

Meanwhile, Americas and British plans to manufacturers have been moving in Ottawa to make their presentations to the Canadian defence production departments.

They are being more circumspect than in 1959 when the government was picking a new plane for the RCAF air division in Europe. The U.S. plane makers discovered that loud, public lobbies such as conducted sometimes by Diefenbaker only boomeranged here.

The plane currently favored appears to be the American McDonnell Phantom jet and the RCAF hopes its hand that also is the plane it would get by importing one for Air Force Day here last month.

The RCAF originally suggested that it acquire 200 Phantoms to be built by Canadair Limited, Montreal. This request has since been scaled down to 150. But if it can get enough contracts to set up an assembly line in Canada for this number.

The Phantom purchase may be to have Canadair build 100 Phantom airframes and Orenda Engines Limited, Toronto, produce the British Spey engine for the aircraft and would be at least $200,000,000.

Informants said no decision on the Phantom will be made before defence staff is firmly established and operating smoothly.

Mr. Hellyer has ordered a study of warships, including submarines, and their costs to find a possible new ship for the RCN which could be built in Canadian shipyards.

This study is scheduled to reach him Aug. 1 but a decision is expected to require some months. Mr. Hellyer looked at new types of warships being built in the British when he was in England last month.

PROMOTES INDIVIDUALITY — Jerome Fischer, 29-year-old science teacher at Viscount Alexander School in Winnipeg, has some unorthodox ways of stimulating interest among his Grade 6 students. Computer Issue Keeps Litigants Far Apart

TORONTO (CP) — Another round in negotiations that have dragged on for 22 months was scheduled today between representatives of Toronto's three daily newspapers and their printers, attempting to solve the ticklish problem of computers.

The computer issue remained the only stumbling block to settlement between the papers and the International Typographical Union (CLC). There was no indication the parties were close to accord despite marathon negotiating sessions and three tentative agreements on the issue that have been rejected by the union's international executive in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The two parties met early Wednesday and again in the evening in a session that didn't wind up until 1 a.m. today. They scheduled further talks at 2 p.m. today.

The negotiations continued past the midnight deadline when the newspapers —The Star, The Telegram and The Globe and Mail — informed unionized work rules that the ITU had said could be interpreted technically as a lockout. The union had indicated it would call its 700-odd members off the job if the work rules were put into force.

There was no statement from either party after the talks and the union took no immediate action on the new working conditions, which included wage increases, agreed to by both parties in earlier negotiations.

MAKES CONCESSION

As a last-minute concession to Labor Minister Rowntree of Ontario, who stepped into the picture Wednesday and urged moderation by both parties, the newspapers decided to withhold introduction of a tentative agreement on computers pending further negotiations.

The papers had said they would put into force a settlement dealing with computers reached by the parties during hearings by an Ontario government conciliation board last April. This agreement, rejected by the international executive, would give the ITU jurisdiction over composing room matter being prepared for computers but not the machines themselves. The union has demanded complete control of computers when they perform composing room work.

The newspapers contend it is impossible to separate the computer operation from jobs done for other departments in the newspaper.

Two other tentative agreements on computers were also rejected by the international.

The basic use of computers, in their application to composing room operations, is to justify lines of type produced on perforated tape fed into linotype machines. The tape is punched by ITU members. Justifying type is the process of making the lines fit the column exactly.

DEFINES LOCKOUT

The ITU says a lockout technically exists if its papers introduce changes in a contract without them being approved by the union membership and written into a new agreement. Earlier, while negotiations were in progress, the newspapers put into effect other benefits agreed on, such as longer vacations, improved health benefits and a shorter work week.

Wednesday's critical talks were broken off a) soon. Mr. Rowntree then asked the parties to meet with him separately. He told the disputants the province's economy would suffer if there was a shutdown of the three papers, which have a total circulation of about 800,000 in the Metropolitan Toronto area of more than 1,700,000 population and other areas. Shortly afterwards, the two parties resumed talks.

The labor minister asked the negotiators to meet with department of labor officials next Tuesday if they have not reached a settlement by then.

Meanwhile, the newspapers say they will continue to publish if the ITU walks out.

Tshombe Cabinet Is Accepted

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—President Joseph Kasavubu has accepted the cabinet list presented to him by Premier-designate Moise Tshombe, it was learned today.

Kasavubu told a reporter after a meeting Wednesday night with the former Katanga secessionist leader that he would issue a presidential decree today naming the new government.

Tshombe said the cabinet would have a maximum of 18 men, but there would be some "technicians" to run the finance and justice ministries. The former president of Katanga province has said he will assume four top cabinet posts — premier, foreign affairs, information and economic coordination.

Tshombe was asked to form a government Monday—11 days after his return from a year of self-exile in Europe.

Crime Bosses Let Policemen Run Racket

CHICAGO (AP)—Crime syndicate bosses unwittingly let policemen, posing as gangsters, run a numbers racket operation in Chicago for several months.

Authorities said late Tuesday it was the first known penetration of the inner workings of syndicate crime.

O. W. Wilson, superintendent of police, said the operation was abandoned three weeks ago because it had accomplished its purpose: to learn the identity of higher ups in the syndicate and their connection with the policy racket."

The undercover operation, which was run under the name of Nu-Way Red Top on the south and west sides, was set up by an agent of Charles Siragusa, executive director of the Illinois crime commission. The agent approached the crime syndicate contacts, representing himself as a New York hoodlum. When the completed arrangements, two Chicago detectives moved in to assist him.

Youth Column

Students Sometimes Argue With Teacher Over Work

WINNIPEG (CP)—If there's one thing a student can count on in Jerome Fischer's science class, it's a chance to express an opinion.

"I let them talk whenever they want, however they want, even if it may sound rude to an outsider, because I want them to express their own thoughts on a subject, not just tell me what they think I want to hear."

Mr. Fischer, 29, says he hates to see children taught through stereotyped, regimented curricula—learning facts but not understanding the reasons.

He applies these principles to his Grade 6 science class at Viscount Alexander School.

"Sometimes I even make them argue with me to get them started. And if they need to be brought under control, a suggestion toward the group, never the individual, bring's them back into line immediately."

During the first week of the school year, the class decides on a project, sets up work committees and begins working. The 1962-63 class found its chief interest in the study of reptiles —lizards, snakes, chameleons and an iguana.

Out of last term's class became avid fish enthusiasts. Through their own efforts the students got a 61 - litre aquarium, raised fish and sold them through supermarkets to raise funds for purchase of equipment, grew fish food, dissected fish that died, made life-cycle history drawings of observations in these fields.

LEARNED ABOUT OSMOSIS

With one topic leading to another, they researched and explained to themselves the principles of osmosis, a Grade 10 subject.

One girl became an enthusiastic rock collector and was permitted to go along on a field trip with a university geology group.

By June the classroom was overflowing with fish, snakes, frogs, rocks, preserved birds, birds' nests, moths and butterflies.

"Familiarity with all these creatures, viewed and handled each day, made the children retain the knowledge they learned because they understand it themselves," he says.

Mr. Fischer carries his unorthodox approach into art classes, where he favors, as a vibrant fist - finish water - base paint which allows mistakes to be painted over easily. And by blowing paint from the end of a straw a child is given the feeling of free-flowing lines and the exciting use of color.

A native of Stratford, Ont., Mr. Fischer attended teachers' college there, spent two years in the navy and later enrolled at the University of British Columbia under a navy-sponsored scheme. He worked for an insurance company, travelled to Europe and operated a drive-in restaurant before settling into teaching.

He intends to maintain a fresh approach to the profession. "I've got a lot of living still to do," he says. "And I don't ever want to become inflexible in outlook."

Plan New Stamp

OTTAWA (CP)—A new five-cent postage stamp commemorating the 100th anniversary of the 1864 pre - Confederation Charlottetown conference will be issued July 29, Postmaster-General J. R. Nicholson announced today.

The new stamp will be printed in black and white by a "feel engraving process.

It portrays the new Fathers of Confederation Memorial at Charlottetown, a development marking the centenary of the historic meeting.

Robarts Denies Giving Early Election Date

TORONTO (C) — Premier Roberts denied Wednesday that he told four advertising agencies the date of the last provincial election a month before the date was made public.

The date of the Sept. 25 election was announced in August.

E. A. Westendorp, then vice-president of James A. Lovick advertising agency, said last May 22 that the premier had told representatives of his and three other agencies the date a month before the announcement.

Mr. Roberts told a press conference Wednesday that he did not disclose the election date a month in advance "because I didn't know it myself."

"There may have been intelligent guesses there was a lot of speculation," he added. "But the specific date was not revealed."

In reply to questions, Mr. Roberts said he believes the Lovick agency still does work for the government, but not as far as he knew for the Conservative party of Ontario.

Drug That Can Cure Cancer Is Probably Already Known But Not Yet Controllable

Through surgery, radiation and drugs, cancer victims are being given new hope for added life. The following second of two articles outlines some of the drugs now in use to combat cancer and what may come from the laboratories in the not too distant future.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The drug that can cure cancer is probably already known.

It is one among about 1,000,000 known organic chemicals whose formulas have been worked out over the years. Chemistry cookbooks tell how to make them again.

But the situation is like having a million keys to a door, and worse yet, no clear conception of what the lock looks like.

Laborious trial-and-error testing of thousands of chemicals against animal cancers has turned up a few dozen keys that which do or may act against human cancers. They kill or poison cancer cells, but unhappily not without some similar effects upon healthy cells, or they have other drawbacks.

Now scientists are on the trail of new methods toward finding the effective key or keys. The lock, they believe, involves a "wayward gene" directing cells to divide in a disorganized way.

A curative drug might act in any of several ways.

MIGHT BLOCK POISON

It might block the wayward gene from action, like a football guard taking out a would-be tackler.

Or it might unscramble the scrambled message carried in the DNA or deoxyribonucleic gene. Genes are composed of DNA or deoxyribonucleic acid formed into long strands or strings.

Or a curative drug might interfere with RNA, another nucleic acid which acts as a messenger carrying the DNA code from the DNA molecule in factories in the cell which all the proteins and enzymes and stuff of life of a cell are made.

It might act to put the correct message back into the cell machinery in place of the cancer message.

Or, as Dr. Aaron Bunich of Sloan-Kettering Institute remarks, the trouble in cancer might be that the genes or segments of DNA in a chromosome are rearranged. If DNA plays out its instructions in sequence, like a phonograph record, then the tape recorder might be switched to reverse, or the chemical agent might be found to put the messages back into correct order.

CHEMICALS MAY BE FOUND

As the elaborate mechanisms of cell behavior become clearer, then specific chemicals might be found, or tailored, to right the wrong steps taken in a cancer cell. It would well be a chemical first formulated many years ago, with its capability still unknown.

A few drugs winning some benefits against cancers are known to act in this fashion. An antibiotic, actinomycin D, apparently combines with a specific part of the DNA thus interfering with transcription of the genetic message, Dr. Bunich explains. But it probably acts against all DNA, not just that of cancer cells.

And a newer class of drugs, the hydroxyl amines, invades cells to chop the DNA strands just at certain places.

Dr. Bendich thinks they act at punctuation points, the periods and commas at segments of genes or bits of DNA in the whole strand making up a chromosome. Perhaps the shape of the chromosome, caused by these drugs, can be seen under the microscope.

The separate messages carried by each gene are not lost. But the sequence is rearranged. This can be fatal to a cell, or it may be in the cancer quality. Feed - back controls that take part in sequential action of separate genes may be lost or upset.

DRUG NEEDED

This is the mechanism the drug is needed that would sighten out the tape recorder sequence of the cancer cell.

Such a drug, in the laboratory, part of the drama of human intellect against cancer.

It is waged also in the hospital and clinic with growing optimism. Now through research and clinical knowledge, "cancer is becoming a manageable disease," says Chicago's Dr. Charles Huggins.

"Only in a few instances now should we say that cancer is a hopeless disease," says Dr. James T. Grace Jr. of Roswell Park in Buffalo. "There is always practically something that can be done to add to comfort. We can add life to a person's time, not just time to his life."

THREE WEAPONS USED

The weapons are three—surgery, radiation and drugs now in increasing number.

Dr. Sidney Farber of Children's Hospital in Boston, a famous pioneer in chemotherapy of the treatment of cancer, declares: "I don't believe we have yet begun to see the great returns we are going to see from chemotherapy."

He has battled particularly against acute leukemia in children, witnessing, as others have, remissions of some months of healthy life, and perhaps a rare and occasional cure.

Drugs have produced apparent cures in choriocarcinoma, a rare disease of the uterus in women, and Wilms' tumor of the kidneys in children.

Based on growing clinical experience, drugs are being used with increasing benefit in tandem, or simultaneously, taking aim at the wayward gene and its effects, sometimes with ingenious techniques of administration.

COMBINED WITH SURGERY

They are combined with surgery and radiation aimed at removing or destroying the malignant growth and its spread to other tissues in the body. Both surgery and radiation are being applied more effectively now.

"Hormone therapy not yet been exploited to the full," Dr. Farber feels. "Radiologists are continually developing intelligent, aggressive and carefully controlled use of radiation."

And surgery is coming into play "more extensively and with refinements," says Dr. Grace. Surgeons are producing improved surgical methods, such as in nutrition and control of infections. Operations inconceivable a decade ago now can save life, and frequently remove all the cancerous tissue.

Combinations of drugs, surgery and radiation are producing improved results in cancers of the brain, the bladder, and other organs.

"Clinical reports show that cancer cures are increasing," like a trend, says Dr. W. Scott, president of the American Cancer Society. Cure means no sign of the disease five years after diagnosis and first treatment.

More than 1,300,000 Americans now alive can be regarded as cured, under this definition.

Some experts believe cancer should be considered not as a surely fatal disease so much as a chronic ailment that can be kept under control, much as diabetes is.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

WEDNESDAY, July 8, 1964

External Affairs Minister Martin said he discussed Canada's plan for a world peace force with the Soviet ambassador a month ago.

Justice Minister Favreau agreed to consider holding a Commons debate on the abolition of capital punishment.

Mr. Martin called for all-party support of the 12-mile fishing limit bill to strengthen negotiations with other nations.

Angus MacLean (PC — Queens) said the negotiations should have been completed before the bill was introduced.

Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni) said Canadian fishing interests were sacrificed to let the U.S. continue fishing within the new limit.

A. R. Patterson (SC—Fraser Valley) and Antoine Rattenger (Creditiste — Charlevoix) urged a phasing-out period for Bulgarian fishing rights.

The Commons meets at 2 p.m. today to debate third reading of the 12-mile fishing limit bill. The Senate stands adjourned to July 20.

The Vegetable Cleaner's Return

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Thirty years ago a 12-year-old boy knocked timidly at the back door of the Chateau Laurier and got a job as a vegetable cleaner.

Today, at 42, Angelo Cassagrande is back—as chef de cuisine of the capital's biggest hotel. He's also president of the Canadian Federation of Chefs de Cuisine.

In the years between, Chef Cassagrande worked at four other hotels, the Nova Scotian in Halifax, Jasper Park Lodge, Hotel Vancouver and the MacDonald Hotel in Edmonton. In 1956 he was the CNR's travelling chef.

Chateau vegetable cleaners of today find Angelo Cassagrande an imposing figure. Always dressed in an immaculate chef's uniform and apron, he towers six feet 10 inches when he dons the traditional, stiffly starched chef's hat.

But unlike earlier days when kitchen staff had to wait for the chefs to speak to them first before they could even ask a question, he moves with little formality among his 45 chief cooks and 75 auxiliary workers.

"Every one of them feels his job is the most important and it's true that the success of meals prepared in a large kitchen like this depends on everybody doing his part."

TAKEN FOR BROTHER

Standing amid rows of stoves heating gallons of pea soup for the lunch hour, stacks of freshly baked lemon pies and trays of bread warm from the ovens, he recalled his first day in the Chateau's big kitchen.

"My older brother was already working in the kitchen. It was during the Depression and although I was only 12 I wanted to get a job to help my family. My brother told me to come down to the Chateau and try, so one morning I arrived at the back door to see the chef.

"He took one look at me and said in a gruff voice, 'Why aren't you at work?' I looked so much like my brother that he had mistaken me for him. I was so frightened I didn't know what to say so I just went over and put an apron on and started peeling vegetables."

The chef didn't find out about his mistake until the next day. He decided to keep Angelo on, however.

"Times were so bad then, in the 1930s, that we felt we were fortunate to work in a place where we got three good meals a day. Also we were learning a trade."

2,000 MEALS DAILY

Chef Cassagrande now supervises preparation of more than 2,000 meals a day. Along with planning menus and supervising the cooking, he must administer a large staff and order thousands of dollars worth of food a week.

On the day he was interviewed the Chateau's refrigerators held more than $130,000 worth of food.

Although the kitchen often receives requests for exotic food from visiting diplomats, it is members of Parliament who are hardest to please, he says. "Many of them eat here every day."

"Americans, contrary to popular opinion, are the easiest people to feed."

Canadians are much more discerning about food than they used to be. "If they don't like the food, they complain about it."

Chef Cassagrande favors arctic char, buffalo meat and Canadian swordfish as national dishes but says the truly Canadian dish has not yet been agreed upon, even by chefs.

He himself has no favorite food. "A steak or a good piece of beef I can always appreciate, but usually when I'm at work I eat whatever happens to be available in the kitchen."

This is also a good way of checking on what his customers are getting. "Nothing goes out of here that I haven't sampled at least once or several times."

Who does the cooking at home? "My wife, of course. We haven't bought a loaf of bread since we were married. She likes to bake and enjoys cooking of all kinds."

But Mrs. Cassagrande has to remember that her household isn't as big as it used to be. She has five children but only three are in Ottawa. Toni, 18, and Peter, 20, attend university in Edmonton.

BACK AS THE BOSS — Angelo Cassagrande is again working at the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa . . . this time as chef de cuisine. He started there thirty years ago as a 12-year-old vegetable cleaner. Chef Cassagrande supervises preparation of more than 2,000 meals a day as well as administering a large staff and ordering thousands of dollars worth of food each week. (CP Photo)

Marmora

MARMORA — The Marmora Public Home and School Association entertained Grade VIII with a graduation banquet, in St. Andrew's United Church Christian and Education Building.

On arrival the graduating class was presented with a beautiful corsage of yellow and white roses for the girls and a white boutonniere for the boys.

The tables were beautifully decorated with flowers and red and white candles.

The chairman of the Public School board, Mr. Vaughn Glover presided. The cutting of the graduation cake was performed by Miss Dallas Stark.

Mr. V. Glover addressed the graduating class and congratulated them on their achievement and hoped they would continue their high aims in the future.

The toast to the graduating class was proposed by Mr. Stewart Hardy, chairman of the Marmora Township Public School board. Mr. Gary Blakely ably responded for the graduation class.

There was a five minute intermission at which time the parents of the graduating class, arrived for the program. They were welcomed at the door by Mrs. Murray Walker.

GUEST SPEAKER

Miss L. West, principal of Madoc High School, was the guest speaker. Miss West encouraged the students to form good work habits at the very beginning of high school. A student's attitude was important, "a chip on the shoulder" was often the reason for failure.

Parents and children should work together as a team. School is a full time job and it should be the parents' responsibility to see that the child has free time to do homework. At the Grade IX level students would have one and a half hours home work nightly. As the students progressed, so would the home work until at the Grade XIII level the time allotted for homework should be 3 or 4 hours nightly.

Miss West stated that good reading is very important, and a good motto to have up in your room is the word "think". Her final aim is to develop an all round good student.

Miss West advised the students to ask the question "Why?" all the time, and you will never be bored and you will always be learning.

Mrs. Allan Wells, president of the Home and School Association, thanked Miss West for her wise and encouraging remarks to the students.

VALEDICTORY ADDRESS

The valedictory address was given by Kari Lowery.

Principal Mr. Ken Gillies, and the School Board chairmen, Mr. V. Glover and Mr. S. Hardy, presented the graduating class with their Grade VIII diplomas.

Mr. Gillies told the parents that the names of the boy and girl with the highest standing would be added to an Award Plaque in the Central School. Miss Dallas Stark obtained the highest standing and Mr. Gary Blakely second.

Mrs. Granville McMeljohn, regent of the local I.O.D.E. chapter, presented Kari Lowery with the I.O.D.E. award for the best essay on, "The Fathers of Confederation," and Richard Deering also was given an award having received an honorable mention on his essay. The awards were books on the colorful Canadian history by the Canadian author John F. Hayes. Mr. Hayes won the Governor General's award for writing the best Canadian history books for juveniles. The books were: The Buckskin Colonists; Treason at York; Rebels Ride at Night.

Grades 3 and4, 5 and 6 and their teachers, Mrs. Empey, Mrs. Mantle, Mrs. Chard and Mrs. Spry, also a number of parents, took the train trip from Belleville station to Anson Station. They turned at the turntable at Anson Station for the return trip to Belleville. About 131 Marmora students took the tour. They reviewed the train exhibits on their return.

List of the Graduating Class Grade VIII, 1964, Marmora Public School:

There will be about six hundred pounds of muscle on the boat here Friday night at Memorial Arena when the two auto-boaters clash in their ball-dazing act.

One is the guy who rates high in the popularity poll hereabouts and he won't lack for pewter support.

He is Yukon Eric, the Alaskan lumberjack, who battles in his pinkies and has a bear-leg that would make a veteran grimly look like an amateur.

The Yuke, whose longest speech was "Thank You," after being introduced at a sports banquet, is one of the best-liked matmen in wrestledom. The long locks he sports is not because he wants to imitate a television rock-'n-roller, but to cover up the scars of an incident that cost him an ear.

I think it was Killer Kovriskit who took Eric's aural appendage from him when he staged one of his famous knee-drop attacks. The Killer's patella tore the Yuke's ear away.

Opposing the popular Alaskan is the Mighty Jumbo, an elongated collection of bone, muscle, and grizzle, as the name indicates. La Jumbo is big, rough and tough and the Yuke will have to go all out to make the big husky say "uncle."

In the semi-final, a pair of "Biggies" whose rating in the popularity contest hereabouts is-seven below zero, faces a duo of clean-cut hombres who are the darlings of the powders.

The two "bigs" are Big Ike Eakins and Big Bob Stanlee, the six-foot-nine antenna blonde from Hollywood who tangle with the handsome Italian, Ilio Di Paolo, and his partner, Billy "Red" Lyons.

There'll be skullduggery in this one men sonic, so look out for fireworks when this foursome goes into muscle contortion.

Popular Timothy Geohagen, the lovable Irishman, is back again after a week's absence and he will mix matters with Duke Noble, an ex-partner of the Broadway baskoff, Sweet Daddy Siki. My shillings go on the popular guy from Killarney.

WEATH THIS?

I thought the curling fraternity had tacked away their brushes and stones for the summer but apparently there is reluctance on the part of some to give up the rearin' game.

It says here that up Minden way they are holding a Highlander Mixed Bonspiel with a capacity for forty-eight rinks.

They call it the "Bonspiel of Bonspiels" and the ice is guaranteed or the curlers got their entry fees back. There are three prizes daily for the spiel which gets under way Sunday, July 26, and runs through Friday, July 31st. Grand prizes include the Hiram Walker, Cariboo and the Bank of Montreal trophies.

Potential curlers should contact J. E. Eastwood, bonspiel chairman, Minden, Ontario.

THE LAST STRAW

I hear by the grapevine that Chick Appel, the sports editing Methuselah of the Stratford Beacon Herald, is thinking of starting a topless trend for sports editors.

The old gaffer was seen gazing admiringly at topless bikinis in the window of a prominent Stratford shop the other day, taking in the sights from close-up, faraway, and other angles.

Tsk, Tsk, Chick, at your age. But if you insist, please do not start the trend yourself. With your 21-24-21 statistics they might mistake you for a model from a pencil factory.

Ont. Pros Tee Off Today

TORONTO (CP) — Prize money totalling $4,000 and the thought of winning the title of Ontario golf champion will be on the minds of 104 golfers who tee off in threes today in the first round of the 36-hole Ontario Professional Championship.

But at the end, Friday, there will be only one king and seven other low scorers who will also qualify to be on Ontario's team in the Ontario-Quebec Championship by a single stroke.

The match tournament at Montreal Aug. 22.

In the next two days the par-72 Bayview Country Club layout will be assaulted by 104 entrants, including seasoned pros Moe Norman, last year's tournament winner, Al Balding, Alvin Thompson and George Knudson, all of Toronto.

Frenchman, Irishman Lead British Open ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

St. Andrews Gales Blast Favorites

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (CP) — An Irishman and a Frenchman led the field into today's second round of the British Open golf championship after battling heavy winds Wednesday in the one-under-par 72s over the 6,926-yard St. Andrews course.

Christy O'Connor of Ireland and Jean Garaialde, 39-year-old French champion, were followed at 72 by British Ryder Cup star Harry Weetman and Australia's Bruce Devlin.

A stroke behind with 73s were Tony Lema of Oakland, Calif., and Tony Faulkner, the last Briton—in 1951—to win the 72-hole open.

The winds, with gusts up to 80 miles an hour, that swept the ancient course Wednesday destroyed many of the 120 competitors, including Jack Nicklaus, the favorite, who fought to get a 76.

Faulkner had the hard luck to have his ball bounce in the turf on the 17th, apparently when a fan stepped on it. He wanted a retake putting the ball out of the ground but had a two-over-par 6 for the hole.

NAGLE HAS 77

Kel Nagle of Australia, the winner in 1960, shot a 77. Gary Player of South Africa, winner in 1959, finished with a 78 after three-putting six of the first 11 holes. Peter Thomson of Australia, who has won the title four times, had a 79.

And 70 also was the score of the defending champion, left-hander Bob Charles of New Zealand. Charles complained he couldn't keep his balance in the wind while putting.

Lema, having seen the course only once and that was the day before, spick his favored wedge to help him in the second and goodbye to it. He decided the seaside wind was too devastating to try a flying wedge shot aimed at the pin.

Instead, I took a seven iron and ran the ball to the hole," said Lema.

This was a lesson it took Bobby Jones something like five years to learn before he earned the respect of the St. Andrews golf course.

Lema, 7-to-1 shot in the betting, astonished the knowledgeable fonts by the way he conquered really difficult conditions to drop only one shot to par. Great players were taking anything up to 80 or more blows in the late of a gale that showed how impolite "the old lady"—the oldest course in the world — can be when she chooses.

Nicklaus knew as little about the old course as Lema and so it was as well with some of the other Americans, eight all told, challenging for the 104-year-old title. Doug Ford, of Yonkers, N.Y., said for instance "the only way to play this course is with a yidde or maybe a seeing eye dog."

Australian Takes Second Round Lead

By TOM REEDY

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—Bruce Devlin, the highly successful Australian, matched par-72 for the second straight day for a total of 146 that gave him the early lead after two rounds of the British open golf championship today.

Devlin finished brilliantly by sinking a 30-foot putt for birdie on the 17th hole. He was out in 37 and came home in the 35 reverse of his showing Wednesday.

Two strokes off the pace was Max Faulkner, the last Britisher to win the British Open when he turned the trick in 1951.

Faulkner, one of the few players to still wear knickers, batted north sea gales in fashionable, his second straight one-over-par 73 for a total of 146 over the Old Course, a rugged 6,926 yard layout.

Move Into Top Spot

Trenton Defeats Trudeaus

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

TRENTON — A disputed umpire's decision opened the door in the bottom of the sixth inning and Pat Maracle and his mates took it from there as Trenton Commercial Printers outscored Trudeau Motors 5-2 here last night.

The win moved Trenton back into solo possession of the B. and D. softball loop's first place, but only for a day. The winner of tonight's Tweed - Ellis Juniors game at the CNRA Park will share the spot with the Printers. Game time is 8:45.

Trudeaus led 2-0 with two out and two on when the break came in the sixth. Drake appeared to be out by a step at first but base umpire Thorpe Miller ruled him safe, filling the bases. Trudeaus argued long and loud but to no avail. D. Cole slammed a two-run single and Wannamaker a two-run double for a 4-2 score.

In the seventh, Trenton faced Bobby Green, replacing Doug Ellis, and Bongrand and Kennedy combed him for singles. Maracle followed with the game winning hit, a scoring one, and Kennedy also scored when the ball was bobbled.

Maracle fired fine relief ball after taking over from Howie Cole with the score 2-2 in the second inning. He gave up only a fifth-inning infield hit to Faulkner, who scored later on an error. He struck out ten, eight of the final nine after the score had been tied. He walked three. Cole had given up three hits and three walks and got poor support afield.

Bob Green was the loser, although he fanned the side over the seventh-frame eruption. Ellis had allowed eight of Trenton's 12 hits, fanning three and walking three. Errors also cost him dearly.

Two hits and as many errors plated Trenton's first two runs after an error, a walk and a wild pitch had put Trudeaus' Thread 1-0. McGuire's infield hit, a walk, Ellis' two-run single, Locke's hit, errors and Wright's ground out chased Cole and made it 5-2.

Gord Simmons and Roger Drake picked up three hits apiece, Don Cole had a double and single and Leroy Wannamaker drove in three runs with a double and long fly for Trenton. Al Bongrand, Will Kennedy and Pat Maracle had the other hits.

Doug Ellis, Rick Locke, Billy McGuire and Bert Faulkner accounted for the losers' base hits.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Dolly Dale B and Rocky Herbert soared the honors in the $2,250 Western Ontario Futurity at the Western Fair Raceway Wednesday.

Dolly Dale B, a six-year-old mare, captured the first division, in the eighth race, pacing the mile in two minutes and the night, 2:05 1-5 over a good track.

Three-year-old Rocky Herbert took the second division in the ninth in 2:05 2-5. Dolly B, second choice in the betting, was fanned $6.30 and her $1,125 share of the purse took her bankroll for the season to $3,295.

Odds-on favorite of the crowd at 5-331, Rocky Herbert paid $3.30. His winnings this year now total $6,542.

Jim Tosses 1-Hitter; Gets 3 Hits

The Night of the Hunter

Barriage Landscapers moved into sole possession of first place in the Commercial softball league last night, downing Lightfoot Construction 10-6, while Point Anne Cementmen and big Jim Hunter whitewashed City Hotel 5-0.

Barriages climbed over City and Lightfoots with the victory.

Meanwhile, at Point Anne, Hunter stopped City Hotel on a spartling one-hitter as he came with one of pitching a no-hitter. The only City Hotel safety was a two-out single by Harold Redquest in the last inning. Hunter struck out three, walked one and got excellent support.

Dave Feeney was combed for 12 hits in defeat, whitting three and walking three. A four-run rally in the third made it decisive.

Hunter also paced his own attack, crashing three hits. Anne singles. Powell and E. Maher and G. Maher got two apiece. Bob Gordon, Ken Cook and Rosebush a single each.

The game was played in 58 minutes, interrupted in the fourth inning when City's E. Donovan was knocked out of the game. He was replaced by Redquest, who later ruined Hunter's no-hitter.

Barriages broke a 2-2 tie with five runs in the third while earning their key triumph and winning pitcher Gerry Genereaux accounted for four of them with a grand-slam home run. Gary Wood added a solid homer in the fifth and the team's infield turned in a strong performance.

Genereaux spaced 10 hits over the distance for the victory, fanning one and walking a pair.

George Young lost, while tagged for 13 of the Landscapers' 16 hits. Harry Powers took over in the fifth. They whipped one and walked five.

G. Wood and G. Genereaux each clouted a homer and single while Don Wood hit a double and single. Tim Cook, Joe Harvey and Rod Turner also got two hits each, Gord Duff and Don Sophia one.

Bill Dickey, Doug Rose and Jack Caddick earned two singles each, while Boston import, scored three Red touchdowns with all - star George Dixon and rookie offenseres end Hugh Rohrschneider getting the others. Wes Willis Lambert, the rookie fullback who graduated only this year from McGill University, connected on three of five convert attempts, ran an interception and made several long runs on punt returns.

For the Whites, who had the halfback Norman Thomas, a University of British Columbia recruit, came up with their only touchdown late in the game. It was converted by Bret Stirling and Otto Berretta. The other White point came on Harold Conley's rouge.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes' new talent, on which coach Jim Trimble banked heavily to make his team an Eastern Football Conference contender this season, stole the thunder from the veterans Wednesday night in the team's annual intra-squad benefit game before 10,105 fans.

Rookie quarterback George Mark, being groomed for the top signal-calling position, gave the most scintillating performance, completing 16 of 18 passes for 164 yards in the air. He figured in all five touchdowns scored by Ma Red team and scored himself on a field goal attempt that went for a single point.

The performances by the spindly-legged youngster from Northern Illinois University gave Alouettes hope they may have found a replacement for Sam Etcheverry, their great quarterback of the past two years ago.

The Reds beat the Whites 34-8.

Newcomer Nat Craddock, a chunky but speedy Boston import, scored three Red touchdowns with all - star George Dixon and rookie offenseres end Hugh Rohrschneider getting the others. Wes Willis Lambert, the rookie fullback who graduated only this year from McGill University, connected on three of five convert attempts, ran an interception and made several long runs on punt returns.

For the Whites, who had the halfback Norman Thomas, a University of British Columbia recruit, came up with their only touchdown late in the game. It was converted by Bret Stirling and Otto Berretta. The other White point came on Harold Conley's rouge.

Cal. Crew Tops In 8's Trials

NEW YORK (CP-AP) — A California heavyweight, eight-oared crew had the fastest time as the United States Olympic rowing trials began Wednesday on a Long Island Sound lagoon with hardly a ripple to disturb the oarsmen and scullers.

The 2,000 - metre (one - mile, 550-yard) course raced in the Olympics was laid out against a tree - shaded background. A quartering wind of 12 - 15 miles an hour off the port side slowed the crews in the slack water.

Four initial heats were held in the eight-oars and four in the single scull Wednesday. The winners advanced to the semi-finals Friday. Today, the losers got a second chance to qualify for the penultimate round in the repechage where a French term roughly meaning another chance.

The University of California Golden Bears took aim on their fourth try in Olympic competition and did everything expected of them by winning by 1¼ lengths from the College Boat Club of Philadelphia.

California's time of six minutes, 22.6 seconds was the fastest of the four heat winners. An equally - strong Harvard crew, Yale and the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia also advanced to the semi-finals.

Calls Charges Absurd

'The Lip' Gives Evidence

MIDDLEBURY, Vt. (AP) — Leo Durocher, charged with alienating the affections of a middle - aged Middlebury woman, testified Wednesday that he knew her only as the mother of the girl he loved.

He called the allegations in the $150,000 suit brought by local bricklayer Rene A. Morin "absurd, asinine and ridiculous."

The fiery 58-year-old Los Angeles Dodgers baseball coach and pocket Addison county court session he gave expensive gifts to Morin's 26-year-old actress daughter, Marcia, including a Thunderbird car and a $1,700 diamond bracelet.

Morin's lawyer contended Durocher turned Mrs. Anna Morin, 51, away from her husband.

Durocher conceded he corresponded with Mrs. Morin and sent her gifts at Christmas and other occasions. But he said the gifts always were addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Morin.

Durocher said he has known Carolyn Morin for more than three years and "I love her very much."

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

John Walsh scored a perfect 25 at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club's regular Wednesday shoot yesterday evening, nudging out Bob Yorne, Earl Marvin and Bill Naylor, who turned in rounds of 24.

Other good scores were: Cy Gardner 23, Jim Short 23, John Hutchinson 22, Rob Hutchinson 23, Dick Thomson 22, Doug Johnston 22, Harry Farnell 23 and Ken Naylor 22.

F. Martin To Coach Kitchener

KITCHENER (CP) — New York Rangers of the National Hockey League Wednesday announced the signing of Floyd (Butch) Martin to coach Kitchener Rangers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League.

Martin, a native of Floradale, Ont., will succeed Steve Brklacich.

For five years he was with Kitchener and Waterloo Dutchmen, appearing in the 1956 Olympic Games at Cortina, Italy and again at Squaw Valley, Calif., in 1960.

When the Dutchmen suspended operations, Martin played for Galt Terriers, Canada's Allan Cup champions in 1961.

He moved to Johnstown Jets of the U.S. Eastern League in 1961-62 and was named playercoach in 1962-63.

Last year the Jets won the league pennant under Martin with the youngest team in the league.

Mays Tags Homer 24 In Giants' Win

Split With Cubs

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

At their current pace, Chicago Cubs will win only 74 games but may wind up with three 30-game winners.

Bob Buhl became the third member of the Cubs' staff to reach the 10-victory plateau at the halfway mark of the season when he shut out San Francisco 3-0 on four hits Wednesday before the Giants took the second game of the doubleheader 7-3.

Bringing his record to 10-4 with his third shutout, Buhl joined teammates Larry Jackson, 11-5, and Dick Ellsworth, 10-8, as possible 30-game winners and gave the Cubs a shot at duplicating a feat that hasn't been accomplished in the National League in 41 years.

Not since the 1923 Cincinnati Reds has a NL team had a trio of 20-game winners. Adolfo Luque won 27, Pete Donohue 21 and Eppa Rixey 20 on that club. The last American League club to do it was Cleveland with Bob Lemon, Early Wynn and Herb Score, each winning 20 in 1956.

BOTH FINISHED SECOND

Significantly, neither the Reds nor the Indians won pennants. Both finished second.

The Cubs, however, currently are tied for seventh place—with good reason. While Buhl, Jackson and Ellsworth have accounted for 31 victories, the remainder of the staff has put together only six.

Ernie Broglio, the heralded trade acquisition from St. Louis Cardinals who was supposed to step in as the No. 4 man, hasn't won as a Cub. He lost his fourth straight as Willie Mays improved his 24th homer for the Giants in the nightcap, called after seven innings because of darkness at the lightless Wrigley Field.

The triumph — ending the Giants' longest losing streak of the season at four games—kept second-place San Francisco 1½ games back of the front-running Philadelphia Phillies, who were rained out of a scheduled game with St. Louis.

In the only other game scheduled in either league, home runs by Manny Mota and Willie Stargell triggered Pittsburgh to a 3-1 victory over Cincinnati.

Buhl, 10-4, got the only run he needed in the opener when Joe Amalfitano doubled in the first off Bob Hendley, moved up on a sacrifice and scored on a single by Ron Santo. Billy Williams, who previously had stroked a single and double, wrapped up the scoring in the seventh with his 20th homer.

BASE RUNNING SLOPPY

Buhl also benefited from shoddy San Francisco base running. He picked Willie McCovey off second base in the second inning and picked Chuck Hiller off first in the third. Joe Morgan, after doubling to open the fifth, was nailed trying to make third on Del Crandall's routine grounder.

The Giants stormed back in the nightcap, tagging Broglio, 3-9, for five runs and six hits in the first two innings. Mays' homer, with two on in the second, gave him a league-leading 58 runs batted in and proved more than enough support for Ron Herbel, 7-4.

Mota started the scoring for the Pirates with a two-run homer off Jim Maloney in the first and Stargell put it out of reach with a three-run shot in the sixth. Bob Veale, 8-6, and Al McBean held the Reds to four hits.

All clubs will be in action tonight following the All-Star game break.

Latchford Tosses Two-Hitter

Joyces Defeat Brockville 8-2

By Peter Carver

Bill Latchford's fine hurling and a sixth-inning six-run explosion featured Joyce's best Eastern Senior Baseball effort of the season here last night.

They set down the Brockville Beavers with an 8-5 defeat to register their eighth victory in ten starts and strengthen their hold on first place.

Latchford got off to a shaky start but settled down to throw a masterful two-hitter. He spun third strikes past 15 Beavers and issued only three walks. His mates backed him with an airtight defence, committing only one bobble.

John McKibbon's shoestring catch of a foul, Cliff McGrimmon's fine work at short and Pat Asselstine's efforts featured the defence.

But except for the fateful sixth the Beavers matched Joyces play for play.

Both teams scored a single run in the opening inning, with Joyces going ahead in the fourth when Pete Weston uncorked the first of his two trips and rode home on Bob Moon's sacrifice fly. Brockville tied it in their half of the sixth when Keith Miller drew a walk, stole second and scored on Art Pearce's base hit.

The Joyce dam finally broke in the bottom of the sixth. Back-to-back triples by Hunter and Weston and Asselstine's single drove in two runs. Brockville choked afield as Bradley got on by error. McGrimmon kept it going with a two-run triple and he came home when the second baseman muffed McRibbon's routine ground out. Consecutive singles by Latchford and Sollis filled the bacts with none out.

The Brockville management rushed starter Bob Spicer in favor of Bob Wilson.

Moon sacrificed McKibbon in with a drive to centre field. Wilson then walked Hunter but curved the next two batters in for submission to end the inning.

From that point on it was the first five innings all over again, with fine pitching and a solid defensive chore by both teams, spoiling any chance of further scoring.

Latchford was the winning pitcher, picking up his fourth victory of the campaign and Spicer took the loss.

Bob Wilson did a fine job in relief. In four innings he set Joyces down on two hits and calmed seven strikeouts. Spicer allowed 10 Belleville hits and was credited with all eight runs.

Moe Hunter had a three-for-four night at the plate for Joyces. He connected for a single, double and a triple and also drew a walk. Pete Weston crashed a pair of triples. Cliff McGrimmon was good for a triple and a single and Larry Sollis, Asselstine and Latchford each cracked singles.

Don Snider with a double and Art Pearce with a single were the only Beavers able to solve Latchford's slants.

Prior to the game Frankford Peerees handed Moe Hunter's BMBA boys a 10-3 shellacking. Brockville 100 001 000—2 5 2

Leafs Edge Wings 2-1, Chiefs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jacksonville Suns scored three times in the sixth inning Wednesday night and went on to edge Atlanta Crackers 6-4 to maintain their three - game International League lead on Syracuse Chiefs. The Chiefs kept pace with a 6-2 victory over Buffalo Bisons.

In the other games, Toronto Maple Leafs used Jim McKnight's 12th home run of the season to edge Rochester Red Wings 2-1 and Richmond Virginians swept a twin bill from Columbus Jets, 10-1 and 16-6.

The Suns took advantage of an Atlanta pitching lapse in the sixth inning as Dwight Siebler, Dino Williams and Chuck Nelson gave up five straight walks, enabling Jacksonville after pitcher Dick Lemay to pick up his sixth victory.

Syracuse built up an early lead and withstood a three-run Bison rally in the eighth. Bill Stoneman drove in two runs and a single for the Chiefs to drive in three runs.

At Rochester, Frank Funk picked up his first victory of the season, in relief of Ron Nischwitz, when McKnight came through with an eighth-inning single. Toronto had tied the score in the sixth on a walk, a wild pitch and Bobby Del Greco's single.

The Jets had more than 7,000 fans on hand as they were swamped twice by Richmond. Mel Stottlemyre won his sixth straight in the opener, boosting his record to 9-3. The nightcap was a nightmare for the Jets, and their fans, as Richmond used 10 hits and four errors to build up an 11-0 lead after three innings.

TICKETS ARE COSTLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Gordon Pearson, 45, of Ottawa set a record in magistrate's court Monday when he paid $200 in fines for 33 parking tickets. Pearson told the court the tickets, which were gathered over eight months, were not paid because he was short of cash.

Name Three To Sports Hall of Fame

TORONTO (CP)—Three oldtimers—two from Western Canada and the other from Quebec —were named Wednesday to Canada's Sports Hall of Fame, raising the hall's membership to 112.

They are 40-year-old golfer Stan Leonard of Vancouver, Al Ritchie of Regina—known as synonymous with the Saskatchewan Roughriders football club, and the late Edouard Faubert of Montreal, a great marathon runner at the turn of the century.

The selection committee, made up of sports writers and sportscasters from each province, was asked to name three choices and votes were computed on a 3-2-1 basis. Point totals were not announced.

HELP FOR THE LONG IRONS

Most golfers have trouble with long iron shots. Even many good players will "choke up" on a 4-wood rather than shorten the swing for a 2-iron.

I think that much of the problem with long irons is mental. Golfers fear the 2- 3-iron so they subconsciously have trouble. Assuming the problem is largely mental, let's try using the mind to speed finally your long iron from "no" to attractive the problem.

I suggest you think of your long irons as being no different than the wood club — say the 4-wood — that you hit best. Then, whenever you swing a 2- or 3-iron, imagine that you are swinging a 4-wood. Consciously try to feel the rhythm, ball striking and actual swing of the 4-wood. Strange the ball off the ground, as you would with the wood. Actually there is so little difference between the fairway wood and long iron swings that you will be giving your shots a good stroke — and your will be doing it in a positive frame of mind.

Champion 'Muhammed Ali'

Against Forced Integration

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammed Ali, better known as Cassius Clay, world heavyweight boxing champion, told a television audience Wednesday night that he's against "forced integration."

When it brings about the death of people, especially my people, and people being beat with clubs and pushed and ducked in water or machines and people come up disappearing and blowed up in churches, then I don't like that," he said in a television interview.

Clay, an avowed follower of Elijah Muhammed and a member of the black nationalist Muslim movement, said he had no immediate plans for changing his residence to Africa unless all of $2,000,000 Negroes in the U.S. could leave with him. Clay has called Africa "home."

Clay said he'd like to fight Sonny Liston within four months, and prophesied that the fight would be the "biggest fight of all fights." He said that he'd have followers from Africa and the Middle East at ringside and that the entire Asiatic-African world would be watching.

Emerson Will Be Available

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Wimbledon champion Roy Emerson has given assurance he will be available to play for Australia against Canada in Davis Cup competition July 17-19. It was learned today.

The president of the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia, Norman Strange, said he had received the assurances from Emerson this morning in a radio-telephone call to the Aussie tennis star in Rasslad, Sweden.

He predicted a unanimous vote would be forthcoming Friday from all Australian states officially to lift the ban on all star of Australia's tennis "rebels."

Senior Golf Championship

Hevenor Seeks 2nd Title

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — George Hevenor of Toronto, whose consistency and exuberance in golf belie his 59 years, carries a four-stroke lead today into the second round of the 54-hole tournament that will decide the senior golf championship of Canada.

Hevenor fired a two-over-par 74 over the Summerlea course Wednesday in a bid for his second title in the three years the Royal Canadian Golf Association has staged the tournament.

Another Torontonian, Robert George McLear of the Thornhill club, held second place alone with 78. He was one stroke better than the defending champion, Bill Martin of Brantford, and Romeo Trudeau of Montreal.

Hevenor fired his first round "hockey," particularly his shot at the 12th hole where he was stymied by a tree. He tried to play around it. Instead, his ball swished through the branches to the green and Hevenor promptly ran down a five-foot birdie putt.

Martin, winner last year at Quebec when the tournament was match play, went six over par with a 42 on the front nine but was back in 37. Trudeau put together 41-38.

Real veteran of the tournament is 80-year-old Wallace R. Rodd of Moncton, N.B., a left-hander. His putting gave him all sorts of trouble and he wound up with 114.

Tied at 86 were C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London, Ont., winner 30 years ago of the U.S. amateur title, and Graham Rowland of Toronto.

Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, played erratically and took an 88. Campbell celebrates his 50th birthday today.

Four age classes are competing and there are individual prizes for three low scores in each class. Class A is 55-59 years, inclusive; B, 60-64; C, 65-69; D, 70 and over.

Hevenor led the A group in the first round and Martin headed the B class. Two were tied at 84 for low in C class—Ben Merwin of Sudbury, and A. J. Vigneux, Sr., of Toronto.

D class veterans were led by Norman Walker of Toronto who shot 44-45—89.

Only Ontario and Quebec figure in the team competition since New Brunswick and Manitoba, the only other provinces represented, have only two players each. Low four scores from any provincial association decide the team title. Ontario took a 12-stroke lead in the first round with a best aggregate of 311 to Quebec's 323.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Tarport Scotty won by a nose over Mighty Stein to win the feature eighth race Wednesday at Greenwood Raceway.

Harold McKinley rallied Armbro Biago to gain a third place.

Tarport Scotty, entering the winner's circle for the third time in 12 starts this year increased his earnings by $650 to $4,664.06. 1963, the four-year-old gelding rang up six wins in 17 races, earning $6,612.

Tipper Baron, owned by Edmond Filion, won the sixth race and Glendale Joe from the Glendale Farm of New Liskeard, Ont., came in second to provide a quiniella of $19.90.

Dean Yates was the opening driver, and combined with Percunild in the second for a $15.80 daily double.

Minor Baseball Results

The Lions Club Tykes stretched their winning streak to seven games last night, with a big helping hand from the opposing pitcher, downing the CNR Firemen 14-3.

The winners collected only two hits, while the losers were getting four, but 20 walks accounted for the spread in the score.

Ron McTaggart pitched the victory, striking out 16 batters. Danny Lapenette was the loser, whiffing 11.

The Lions Club hits were singles by Garry Edwards and Wayne Grey.

D. Lupenette hit a home-run and single for the CNR. S. MacDonald hitting a double and Peter Ackerman a single.

WILL BRING STARS

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russians are going to Los Angeles with a tested and talented group of men and women for the sixth United States-Russia dual track and field meet July 25-26. The team, announced by the Soviet Track and Field Federation Wednesday, will include 42 men and 18 women.

Lions' Mr. Fouts Talked Out Of Turn?

OTTAWA (CP) — Football defensive end Dick Fouts should be told that Canadian citizenship isn't granted simply to improve his bargaining position with British Columbia Lions, the Commons was told Wednesday.

F. R. Rynard (PC — Simcoe East) asked that Citizenship Minister Tremblay draw this to the attention of Fouts who was quoted in a Courtenay, B.C. report as saying he will apply for Canadian citizenship if the Vancouver football club makes it financially worthwhile.

Fouts, a native of Salt Lake City, Utah, becomes eligible to apply for Canadian citizenship July 14. By Fouts becoming a Canadian, Lions would be eligible to use another American football import.

Hubert Badanai, parliamentary secretary for citizenship, said he would draw Dr. Rynard's remarks to the attention of Mr. Tremblay, absent from the Commons at the time.

CANADIAN SALES

Canada sold goods to Italy worth nearly $77,000,000 in 1963 — a gain of about three per cent over the previous year.

Parsons Tie Trenton RCAF

Belleville Parsons gave the league-leading Trenton RCAF a surprise last night by holding the flyers to a 3-3 draw in a Kingston and District Soccer League fixture.

Two early goals by D. Galloway and Alan Brewer gave the RCAF that margin at half-time.

Parsons staged a strong comeback effort and Bob Rutherford headed the ball into the net to cut the lead to 3-2.

The equalizer came from Angus McLeod whose hard shot from the winger beat the Trenton goalkeeper.

Parsons were backed by some excellent goalkeeping by Bob Vangrees.

The game was played in Trenton.

ESTIMATES OFF

Australia's new opera house at Sydney will cost $39,000,000 —$18,000,000 more than the last official estimate in 1962. Work began on it in 1959.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Ten years ago a press conference was held aboard a run-down steamer far out in Lake Ontario to announce that Florence Chadwick had been offered $7,500 to swim the lake from Youngstown, N.Y., to Toronto. The idea was that the Californian would have the icy lake waters to herself.

Things didn't work out that way.

First, a few uninvited starters were at Youngstown in the early morning of Sept. 9, 1954, to prove that they could conquer the 32-mile stretch. Then, Miss Chadwick gave up about the 20-mile mark and a little-known Toronto schoolgirl, her white cap bobbing in the waves, kept going.

Marilyn Bell, just 16, hit the Toronto lakefront to a tumultuous welcome from thousands of persons lined along the shore. She parlayed the venture into almost $100,000, international acclaim and investitgh- a craze that swept the world for four years.

ONE DROWNED

Marathon swimming was the thing to do. All sorts of people in North America and Europe, grandmothers, grandfathers, teenagers, plunged into large bodies of water for swims to nowhere. The great majority were hauled out, their brief fling for glorious glory abated.

No large body of water in Canada, the United States and Europe was safe. One man, Clint Snowden of Orillia, Ont., was drowned while trying to cross Lake Ontario.

And Marilyn Bell, now Mrs. Joseph Di Lascio from Camden, N.J., was the heroine of all long-distance swimmers.

When she quit, the craze gradually died down until there were only one or more marathons in existence. But now, the instigator of this boom has popped up again.

The Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, which offered Miss Chadwick the $7,500 to beat Lake Ontario by the first time, has scheduled another crossing on Friday, Aug. 21.

This time, there's $17,500 (in Canadian currency, the CNE emphasizes) in prizes. And the sponsoring officials are expectantly optimistic.

Only four persons have been able to beat Lake Ontario, but the CNE has issued a prize list for the first seven finishers, ranging from $7,000 to $600. Additionally, the first woman swimmer to finish will get a $1,500 bonus and the second female a $500 bonus.

If things go according to the script, there'll be more action in accompanying boats than in the lake.

Waterfront viewers rarely saw Miss Bell on her conquering swims of the lake, Juan Carlos Calmell and the Jean de Fuca Strait.

Newspaper men whisked her to hideaways for the exclusive story of how she conquered this and that body of water. And while she was swimming, launches of rival newspapers cut in on each other to prevent pictures being taken.

At times, reporters used the old equalizers—bare fists—to get arguments.

All of this could happen again in August. -

Pitching — Bob Bubl, Cubs, blanked San Francisco Giants on four hits to win his 10th game in 14 decisions as Chicago won first game of doubleheader 5-0.

Batting—Willie Mays, Giants, hit his 240th homer with two aboard as San Francisco shopped four game losing streak by defeating Cubs 7-2 in second game.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Greek Salt, a handsome two-year-old colt, won his fourth straight race, the $9,300 Clarendon Stakes, Wednesday at Woodbine Raceway and tagged himself as the best juvenile racing in Canada today.

He was also tagged by his owner, Conn Smythe, as the "best bred horse in Canada." Greek Salt went to the post shortly after leaving the gate and stayed on top throughout the 5½-furlong dash to defeat Lykke Til and Grand Galop.

Sent to the post as the odds-on choice, Greek Salt came home in 1:05 1-5, just four-fifths of a second off the track record, and returned $4.80, $3.10 and $2.20.

Grand Galop, owned by J. Louis Levesque, of Montreal, ran away from the first crop of Victoria Park, one of Canada's finest thoroughbreds, might have been closer. He came out of the starting gate poorly and had to be rushed back into contention.

Playampa won the opener, to combine with Our Princess in the second for a $13.00 daily double.

Sport Briefs

SUGAR RAY WINS

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP)—Former middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson of New York scored a technical knockout over Clarence Riley of Detroit in 2:40 of the sixth round Wednesday night. The old boxing master, who weighed 161, had little difficulty with the young, inexperienced Riley, 168. Robinson scored knockdowns in the fourth and fifth rounds.

REJECT BIDS

VIENNA (AP) — The International Lawn Tennis Federation again turned down Wednesday proposals to open amateur tennis tournaments to professional players. Two British proposals, backed by France and other countries, for admission of professionals to amateur events in general and to the 1965 and 1966 Wimbledon tournaments on an experimental basis, were defeated by a majority of the federation's annual congress led by the United States and Australia.

WILL STUDY CHARGE

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec legislature voted 69 to 1 Wednesday to investigate a charge of influence - peddling against Attorney-General Rene Hamel. The legislature's committee on privileges and elections will hear testimony July 21, 23, 28 and 30. The accusation was made in the legislature June 30 by Yves Gabias (IN — Trois-Rivieres). He said Mr. Hamel accepted $7,500 from Amedee Bellemare, a Shawinigan contractor, in exchange for a $4,200 highway contract from the government.

Shannonville Slips Past Latta 3-2

Shannonville, trailing 3-0 at one point, scored a single marker in the sixth and final inning to shade Latta 3-2 in Bonnerth Hastings Baseball action last night.

Latta registered single runs in the first and third frames with Shannonville bagging a pair in the fourth to even it up.

Bill Hill sweated the route for Shannonville, touched for four hits. He struck out seven and issued one free ticket to first.

Howard Meeks pitched no-hit ball while starting for Latta but Shannonville collected all seven hits off Lorne Cronk right after he took over in the third. Cronkright fanned three and walked two while Meeks had a one and three mark.

D. Batterson strained a brace of singles for Shannonville and M. Brazi got a double.

Other safeties went to W. Green, B. Hill, G. Hill and D. Marsole.

Gene Yorks clouted a home run and single for Latta, Doug Rollins and Gary Ray adding doubles.

Shannonville	000 201	3-7-0
Latta	101 000	3-4-1

Batteries: B. Hill and V. Green; C. Green; M. Meeks, L. Cronkright (3) and D. Rollins.

Minor - Softball Results

A pair of very tight games featured play in the Belleville Softball Association's Junior (West Hill) division last night.

Cardinals nipped the Steelers 8-7 and Cubs shaded the Vikings 9-7. In a third game, Cowboys rode roughshod over the Lions by a 26-3 score.

In the Squirt's East Hill division, Braves downed the Eagles 13-6 and Yankees clipped the Bombers 19-4.

In a third scheduled tilt, Packers were forced to default to the Dodgers 9-0, due to a shortage of players.

LONDON (Reuters)—A high court judge ruled in a will dispute Wednesday that a £6,500 ($19,500) gift to be used to seek evidence that Francis Bacon wrote the plays attributed to William Shakespeare was worthless. The gift to the Francis Bacon Society from Evelyn Hoskins, a member who died here in 1961, was being tested for its validity at the request of the will's trustees.

'Brunettes Are Sexier' Claims One-Shot Blonde

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Do blondes have more fun, more sex appeal more boy friends, more oomph?

"No! No! No!" says actress Sandra Warner, a ravishing brunette who recently had to turn blonde for a role.

"My experience as a blonde was a complete disaster. It even ruined my health. I wouldn't go through the experience again for a million dollars.

Well, maybe a million."

Sandra was cast as a movie queen.

"The studio insisted that I ...m 'blonde. I argued: 'Would Liz Taylor qualify as a movie queen?' But it was no use. Producers think all movie queens are blonde.

"It took three days to make me a blonde. Right then, I figured, blondes don't have time enough to have fun. And how many men can you find in a beauty shop? Blondes spend half their lives in beauty shops.

"As a blonde, my whole personality changed. I may have looked flashier but I sure didn't feel it.

"Maybe it's different for natural blondes—if any exist—but the whole bleaching process is turning against nature.

"As a brunette, I consider myself a warmer woman. As a blonde, I was cold, reserved—entirely different from my real personality.

"Brunettes are sexier—even though blondes may look it.

"I know I had less sex appeal as a blonde because I didn't feel sexy—not like I do as a brunette.

"I can see why Liz is the No. 1 star. She never would have made it as a blonde."

Stirling

STIRLING — O.P.P. Wesley Johnson, Mrs. Johnson and son Robbie spent their holidays with his father, Mr. Harold Johnson and Mrs. Johnson visited several relatives in the area.

Mr. Fred McDowell, mail courier for R.R. 3 is spending two weeks in the Belleville General Hospital undergoing treatment.

Wallaceburg Man Beaten And Robbed

SARNIA (CP) — Police are seeking three men, believed armed and dangerous, after 30-year-old Cornelius Spiering, about 30, of Wallaceburg, was held captive for more than six hours Wednesday, robbed of $600 and badly beaten.

Early today Mr. Spiering was in Sarnia General Hospital with undetermined injuries.

The incident began about 2 p.m. Wednesday when Mr. Spiering stopped his car to aid a motorist who appeared to be having trouble on Highway 78, between Wallaceburg and Dresden.

Police say a man with a gun ordered Mr. Spiering to drive him a short distance where they picked up a second man. Both beat and kicked him and at about 9 p.m., they met another car, some five miles south of Sarnia.

His assailants were talking with the third man at the roadside, when Mr. Spiering managed to escape from his car and reach a nearby house to summon police.

Diamond Ring Stolen in Broad Daylight

TOKYO (AP) — Diamond thieves in Tokyo, London, Paris and Shannon, Ireland, are richer with $670,400 worth of gems this week.

A $35,000 diamond ring disappeared from the showcase of a jewelry store in Tokyo in broad daylight Wednesday. A store operator posing as a diamond agent got away with $382,400 worth of uncut diamonds from Shannon Airport, working, so police said, that the law was not known for two days.

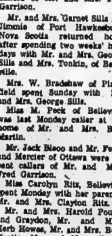
Shannon officials said Wednesday the loss of the diamonds became known Tuesday night when a representative of the Shannon Free Company of Shannon certified to pick up a shipment. The diamonds had arrived Friday from Amsterdam, and were given to what dressed man with a foreign accent who said he was from the London company.

London extension made off with $240,000 in diamonds in two burglaries and two robberies Monday. And armed men held up a safe at Piccadilly Circus Wednesday, making a $200,000 haul.

In Paris, three masked men burst into the lobby of the Ritz Hotel just before Tuesday midnight, bound and gagged three guests and escaped with diamonds and emeralds valued at $84,000.

Musical Ride Pays Visit To Maritimes

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP's famed musical ride was on display on its first visit to the Maritime provinces.



The ride is a great tourist attraction outside Canada and has beneficial results at home, says Inspector F. G. Hall, 39, the 25-year-old native of Ottawa who has been its commanding officer since 1960.

Says the inspector, who was in the ride himself after he joined the force: "Many of the people who have considered a trip to Canada and after seeing the ride, want to come here for sure.

"When we perform in Canada, it makes for good public relations. It helps us to get co-operation from the people."

He emphasizes that the ride costs Canadian taxpayers nothing. The troupe's expenses—about $1,000 a day for transportation, food and shelter for the men and their horses—are met by the organization which sponsors the show.

Old Revolutionary Spark Disappearing in Russia, Pleasing to Western People

The old revolutionary spark seemed to be disappearing in Russia, the newspaper journalism is less fanatic. Preston Grover, AP bureau chief in Moscow for five years, tells why in the third of a four-part series.

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet revolution gives much evidence of running down.

That is a development perhaps as pleasing to some Soviet people as to the people in the West.

This doesn't mean that the Soviet Union has stopped growing. It is growing fast. But it does mean that especially among the young, the zeal of the founding fathers for the pure faith is no longer what it was.

Premier Khrushchev himself gave dramatic evidence of that when he told a group of Hungarian factory workers that people expected, and should get, more than just enthusiastic party talk. They also wanted more goulash. "Goulash communism" as a catch phrase now is heard here privately.

A few of the people who had struggled through the hard years before and after the revolution c. 1917 still are in government, but many of those now in authority never saw Lenin. He died in 1924.

HEARS STRANGE WORDS

Occasionally, on an anniversary, a white bearded elder, who fought behind the barricades, will be brought up on the stand in Red Square, or will be given a seat among the leaders. There he sits quietly while leaders talk of things he never dreamed of.

When Premier Khrushchev set out to destroy the image of Stalin, it was a "purge" to clean up the party history. But it shook the faith of many.

The days of the old "hard-cadres fighters" have given way to another generation, and still the younger generation is waiting to take over.

The glow has gone even from some of the heroes of those days when Communist doctrine called for weakening family ties as the influences of the party and government would be felt more. That, too, has changed. The family no longer is a thing to be despised, but to be encouraged and respected.

The state and party still make themselves felt as the basis of life in the Soviet Union. In children's pioneer organizations, in the Young Communist League, the young of the land still are indoctrinated with Communist precepts. But you don't hear much about the "barricade days" heroes.

On a more serious level, there is increasing cynicism about the constant new drives of communism. In 1961, Khrushchev outlined at the party congress the project for bringing full fledged communism to the country in 20 years, in 1961.

The party editorialists poised with enthusiasm, but the project brought audible moans from many Russians.

"I'll be an old man then, still poor, like my father," said a Russian satirist man, with a wife and one child.

All this doesn't justify any conclusion that communism itself is dead.

It is a safe bet that if the Russian people were asked to vote for or against communism, they would vote overwhelmingly for it. It wouldn't be 90 45 per cent, the way it is in the elections, but would be a monster vote. It now is their way of life.

But they already are beginning to vote, by a show of hands, for a change in the direction. They want more bacon, more clothes, a better life, a chance to travel abroad. They are tired of revolutionary belt tightening.

"I'm a busy man. I'll give you five minutes to state your proposition."

Moise Tshombe Virtually Takes Control of the Congo

By ORIS HICKEW Canadian Press Staff Writer

Moise Tshombe has virtually taken over control of the Congo with one fast cleverly timed swoop just as the United Nations wound up its police duty in the jungles of the former Belgian colony.

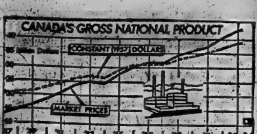
The man who threatened to destroy the newly-independent country by trying to establish a separate government in mineral-rich Katanga province ironically was welcomed back to lead The Congo after the UN had thwarted his aims and he was forced into self - imposed exile.

Tshombe wasted little time during his exile and cunningly changed his strategy. When the UN was ripe he ingratiated confidently from Spain with the reported task of pacifying the pro-rebellious elements in The Congo.

A few days after Tshombe returned Premier Cyrille Adoula conveniently resigned and The Congo's president, Joseph Kasavubu, asked the former secessionist to meet with political leaders with the view of forming a transitional government.

Tshombe delved eagerly into the task and soon announced that he was ready to select a cabinet—with himself as premier, foreign minister, information minister and head of economic co-ordination.

A man capable of adjusting himself to the inevitable situation, Tshombe has made some observers wonder whether his overwhelm to Congolese unity is truly genuine.



When it was expedient and he was backed by -algian interests, he chose to lead Katanga province into independence to keep its wealth from aiding the development of the remainder of the country—much poorer in its resources than Katanga.

The pursuit of this ambition involved him indirectly in the deposition and eventual murder of Patrice Lumumba, Independent Congo's first premier.

Now Tshombe has returned triumphant and has promised to bring together the various rebellious elements, including Antoine Gizenga, the imprisoned leftist leader who had supported Lumumba.

The UN pulled out of The Congo after the Congo force ran out of funds. Meanwhile the Congolese National Army gradually has been unsuccessful in suppressing rebellions in Kwilu, Kivu and North Katanga provinces.

Tshombe has continued to be a powerful force in The Congo. If now is hoped that he will come up with a government that will appease and unify the diverse political elements that once again threaten the country.

CONTINUES CLIMB — Canada's Gross National Product — the total value of goods and services produced — continued a steady rate of increase during the first quarter of 1964. The position for the first three months indicated a GNP for the year of $45,500,000,000, compared with the annual rate of $44,333,000,000 achieved in the last quarter of 1963. Higher levels of fixed investment and of consumer and government spending were big factors in the increase. (CP Newsmap)

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — Among those from Tweed High School who left from Tweed High School for Cadet Camp at Camp Ipperwash, last Friday were Richard Ward of Thomasburg.

Th regular morning service for Thomasburg United Church took place on Sunday, June 28, in the I.O.O.F. Hall, when Mr. Dyson conducted his final service. During the summer months services will be held in the I.O.O.F. Hall as the school is closed for the holidays.

Mr. Dyson and daughter, Mrs. Ted Boldte were Sunday evening guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Prindle and on Monday they left for Shilo, Man.

The community was shocked on Monday forenoon when a car accident claimed the life of Mr. Wesley Elliott, a resident of this district for some years.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Porter of Toronto are spending sometime at the Porter house here.

4-H TOUR

On Monday five bus loads of 4-H club members from south and central Hastings toured north Hastings and visited several points of interest.

Those from Thomasburg were Elaine Carleton, Roger Carleton, David Coulson, Christopher Howell, Beth Schwager, Philip Agnew, Carl Finke, Linda Finke, Leonard Spencer and Gail Thompson.

Let Army Pick Weapons--Goldwater

He Would Leave Use Of A-Bombs Up To Generals

Would Order Victory In South Viet Nam War

By HAROLD MORRISON

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — Barry Goldwater has acknowledged saying that if ever he becomes president he would order a "win" policy in South Viet Nam and instruct his military chiefs of staff to get the job done.

The implication of his remarks, first made in an interview for the German news magazine Der Spiegel and repeated at a press conference here Thursday, is that Goldwater would allow his military chiefs to decide whether nuclear weapons would be needed to win the South Vietnam war.

Goldwater, whose arrival at this convention city Thursday was cheered lustily by more than 1,000 placard-bearing supporters, breezily told an estimated 500 reporters jammed into a hotel ball that he would be the Republican presidential nomination next Wednesday on the first ballot.

But he is still hunting for nominating delegates, he added, and hopes to pick up another 20 or 30 vote pledges within the next few days. A successful candidate must get at least 666 of the 1,331 delegate votes. Unofficial estimates place Goldwater pledges at more than 700.

Desperately searching for some way to stop the Goldwater bandwagon, Pennsylvania Governor William Scranton plunged into two press conferences Thursday to echo reported new excerpts from Der Spiegel interview and to accuse Goldwater of toying with the

Sell Good Equipment For Scrap

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament's financial watchdog, Auditor-General A. M. Henderson, has uncovered multi-million-dollar losses on the sale of surplus military equipment.

He reported Thursday to the Commons public accounts committee that the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation collected $715,106 on sales of surplus army, navy and air force equipment originally valued at $28,-856,581.

President Louis Richard of the government's disposal corporation said much of the equipment had to be sold for scrap—even though it was brand new.

He said equipment made or designed for military use often had little or no commercial value.

It had to be sold to the highest bidder from the scrap market, although the corporation tried sometimes to get a higher price because it felt the surplus equipment was worth more.

REPORTS ON SURPLUS

Mr. Henderson said that since 1957, the armed forces had declared an average of $26,500,000 worth of equipment surplus each year.

He suggested that government departments that turn

5,000 U.S. University Professors Urge Neutralization of Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 5,000 university professors called on President Johnson to end the Viet Nam war, told the Senate the United States should stop "setting itself up as the policeman of the world" and urged the Republican and Democratic parties—to work for a neutralized North and South Viet Nam.

In a statement circulated by the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy, they said that neutralizing both parts of the divided country would end its terror and suffering as well as the continuing loss of American and Vietnamese lives.

The proposal differed from other calls for neutralization, particularly that by Cambodia, in that it specifically included Communist North Viet Nam.

Thursday, the state department rebuffed a suggestion by UN Secretary General U Thant that a 14-nation Geneva conference be reconvened in an effort to settle the war in South Viet Nam, with UN peace-keeping forces to supervise the implementation of any peace plan developed by the conference.

Meanwhile, Senator Wayne Morse, Oregon Democrat who is a persistent critic of U.S. involvement in the South Vietnam war—and on both the Republican and Democratic parties—to work for a neutralized North and South Viet Nam.

PC Head Calls For Parley

By RONALD LESEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker in a major Commons address Thursday called for a national conference of political leaders to reshape Confederation.

He envisaged a behind-closed-doors meeting similar to the Charlottetown and Quebec conferences held 100 years ago by the fathers of Confederation.

The Progressive Conservative leader predicted the minority Liberal government will call an election soon and outlined what sounded like an election platform for his party.

His proposal called for wide-ranging conference, attended by representatives of the federal and provincial governments as well as spokesmen for all opposition parties at both levels.

The conference would deal with all important problems besetting Canada today — federal-provincial relations, constitutional amendment, national symbols, bilingualism, the split between growth of cities and sore spots in the economy.

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke for two hours as a government measure enacting the tax concessions to the provinces agreed to at federal - provincial conferences last November and this Easter. The debate resumes Monday.

CONSIDER ESTIMATES

Today the Commons considers supplementary spending estimates relating to a $275,000,-000 transaction with the United States for financing the Columbia River power and flood control project. A second item provides for special pensions for servicemen injured in action before normal retirement age.

Mr. Diefenbaker proposed creation of a federal department of urban affairs, increased assistance to eastern farmers and tax relief for young married couples who buy a home.

He said urban problems—slums, transit, express highways, social welfare, parks and recreation—have become national concerns. They were too serious to be handled by the municipalities and provinces alone. The national conference could study a realignment of federal, provincial and municipal responsibilities under the constitution.

More and more revenues are passed to the provinces, without responsibilities being passed on, the more serious become the situation for the federal government, he said.

MENTIONS OTHER TASKS

The conference could tackle these other problems:

—Recommend a national flag and other symbols of national sovereignty.

—Examine the whole position of bilingualism and biculturalism.

—Look into the entire field of federal - provincial relations and taxsharing between the two levels.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he sees Canada as one nation where the English and French languages

WALLACE PICKETS WAIT AT GARDENS — Pickets protesting the appearance of Alabama's segregationist Governor George Wallace at the international Lions convention in Toronto parade in front of Maple Leaf Gardens Thursday. Lions Told Civil Rights Legislation Will Fail

TORONTO (CP) — Alabama Governor George Wallace told an estimated 12,000 Lions international members Thursday the newly - enacted United States civil rights legislation would collapse in a few years because of the federal government's inability to enforce it.

In a 15-minute address which he prefaced with a statement that he did not intend to discuss politics, Governor Wallace accused the federal government of being undemocratic. He said it rode roughshod over the rights of individuals in an unconstitutional and tyrannical manner.

"I've never advocated defiance of any law," he said. "... but it is not my responsibility to enforce federal law. I have enough to do without trying to enforce the most unpopular piece of legislation in the United States."

During his visit here, which lasted less then 24 hours, the segregationist governor was closely guarded by police, while picketers demonstrated against his policies and newspaper men besieged him. He left early Thursday evening by private plane.

Outside Maple Leaf Gardens, where he made his speech, between 300 and 500 demonstrators from various groups carried placards denouncing the governor and segregationist views.

The Canadian protest groups formed The Emergency Committee of Five which included the anti-apartheid committee, the fair service association, the peace institute and representatives from the Toronto and District Labor Council.

When Governor Wallace took the stand to speak, he was applauded for 30 seconds, while a group of Alabama delegates near the platform stood to cheer. But amid delegates, including Lions on the platform

39 Perish In Crash In Tenn.

NEWPORT, Tenn. (AP) — A smoking, low-flying United Air Lines plane crashed and burned in the foothills of the Great Smoky Mountains late Thursday, killing the 39 persons aboard. It was United's first fatal crash since Nov. 21, 1952.

Witnesses said they saw the Viscount turbo - prop explode and objects fall from it before it crashed eight miles northeast of here near the North Carolina line.

United asked the Federal Bureau of Investigation to make an inquiry.

The flight originated in Philadelphia and was bound for Huntsville, Ala. The plane had stopped in Washington and was due in Knoxville, 40 miles to the south, six minutes after it crashed in a heavily - wooded

Machines Broken As Printers Quit Over Work Rules

Cannot Reach Accord As to Use of Computers

TORONTO (CP) — All three Toronto daily newspapers published today despite a walkout of 680 printers.

The two afternoon papers, The Star and The Telegram, brought their first editions out on time during the morning and planned their normal number of three for the day. The morning Globe and Mail printed two of its customary six editions.

Members of the International Typographical Union (CLC) walked off the papers—which have a combined circulation of 900,000—Thursday in what they described as a lockout but which the newspapers called a strike.

While picketing printers paraded before the three buildings, executives helped man the composing rooms to get out slimmed-down versions of the big dailies in the face of the city's first major printers' work stoppage.

MACHINES DAMAGED

Difficulties were enhanced by damage to typesetting machines at the newspapers, all three reported.

Some line type machines, which cast lead into type, had been altered in a degree that left them unusable without considerable work. Sticky substances had been poured into some working parts, clogging them. Others had wires pulled out or else reversed to alter the timing.

Union officials were not available for comment on the publishers' reports of machine damage.

Members of most other unions engaged in newspaper production and distribution crossed the ITU picket lines, though members of the Mailers' Union and Local 580 RTND did not report for work and the Teamsters' Union announced it would not deliver newsprint to the papers.

Surgeon Tells Of Dispute

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Burns Plewes, chief of surgery at Toronto East General Hospital, said Thursday that Patricia Morgan might have rescued a comatose boy's small life if it had not been for a surgical clamp left in her abdominal cavity.

Dr. Plewes was testifying at the trial of the 30-year-old Miss Morgan on six charges of failing to report the death of the 32-year-old woman to the coroner.

The trial may end today when Dr. Plewes, a Crown witness, is expected to be cross-examined by defence counsel Barry C. Pepper.

Dr. Plewes earlier this week was acquitted of the same six charges. Dr. Allan Nobbs was convicted of one of the charges and fined $100 and costs or 15 days in jail. Two other doctors and the hospital administrator also face the charges, the first trial held in Ontario under the Coroner's Act.

Dr. Plewes told Thursday of his medical dispute with Dr. Brown during the four - hour operation on Miss Morgan Oct. 18. Miss Morgan died Nov. 4.

STOPS ERATION

He said that after being called by an intern he stopped the operation on Miss Morgan because the patient had been weakened.

He said that if the clamp had not been left in the woman's body a feeding tube could probably have been removed from Miss Morgan's digestive tract and she could have been operated on again in about six weeks.

Dr. Brown had intended to remove part of the patient's stomach to eliminate a blockage of the lower exit which had

Martin Tells House Turkish Troops Have Invaded Cyprus

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin indicated today in the Commons that Turkish as well as Greek troops have been landed in Cyprus.

He said in reply to a series of questions by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker that Canada has expressed its deep concern about the presence in Cyprus of troops from countries most closely involved in the situation.

He added that he had called in Ambassador Taha Carim of Turkey as well as Greek Ambassador John D. Kalergis and made unmistakably clear to them Canadian concern over foreign incursions.

A week ago, Mr. Martin revealed only to the landing of Greek troops and arms on Cyprus and earlier this week he said he had called in the Greek ambassador.

His statement today was believed the first indication that Turkish troops might have been put ashore on the island.

Mr. Diefenbaker again asked for confirmation that 4,000 Greek troops have infiltrated into Cyprus.

Mr. Martin repeated that he has no confirmation of that figure.

Why the secrecy, demanded Mr. Diefenbaker. Mr. Martin should explain the policy.

The minister said the government has its own sources of information but only what would be gained by a public discussion of the number of troops landed.

He said he had asked Greece and Turkey to continue every moderating influence they can in the situation.

Mr. Diefenbaker said there are 1,100 Canadian troops in Cyprus and that the incursions were very serious.

Mr. Martin said he wanted to reassure Mr. Diefenbaker that Canada's position has been made perfectly clear to Greece and Turkey.

Mr. Martin Thursday said Canada suspended indefinitely all arms shipments to Greece and Turkey when the Cyprus crisis arose.

Pearson Wants South Africa Kept in UN

Plain Talk on Racial Issues Heard at Meeting of PM's

LONDON (CP) — More plain talk on racial matters was scheduled for today when the 13th Commonwealth prime ministers conference bore down on the question of Southern Rhodesia.

Concerted action against South Africa over its apartheid policies also was urged by several speakers Thursday, the older Commonwealth countries being accused of inaction.

But one newspaper, The Daily Mail, credits Canada's Lester Pearson with lifting the "most impressive advice" when he advised against seeking to have South Africa kicked out of United Nations bodies.

It was better to have South Africa within the UN agencies where its representatives could hear the volume of criticism building up against apartheid.

Pearson's advice carried weight because he stressed that the basis for the new Commonwealth must be full racial equality without any discrimination of any kind.

A black-white clash of a kind came when Prime Minister Albert Margai of Sierra Leone said sanctions alone can change South Africa and added:

"I am beginning to think the argument brought out by Australia were obstructive and seemed to serve as a delaying factor in view of the heavy investment of certain powers in South Africa."

Australia's Sir Robert Menzies, who was not in the conference chamber at the time, later issued a statement that it was easier to decide on sanctions than to implement them. They would not help South African liberal forces.

Australia has repeatedly expressed horror of apartheid but 90 per cent of all South African goods imported by Australia are produced by non - white labor who would not be helped if sanctions caused unemployment.

The conference convened Wednesday in an uncertain atmosphere. Amid delegates, the Commonwealth may be coming to an end.

But some observers now are taking a more optimistic outlook, nothing that Ghana's Kwame Nkrumah and many other leaders of the younger countries are calling for new institutions such as a Commonwealth secretariat and conciliation machinery to settle family disputes, such as the one between India and Pakistan over Kashmir.

Meanwhile in Salisbury, Premier Ian Smith of Southern Rhodesia moved to take the heat out of the racial crisis by saying the question of independence is "not a burning issue with any government at the moment."

There had been reports Smith's ultra - right regime would declare independence unilaterally to perpetuate the white supremacy by which 3,000,000 blacks are ruled by 250,000 whites.

Smith outlined his hopes for a new peace-keeping force for the United Nations and indicated Commonwealth and colleagues to send delegates to a forthcoming conference in Ottawa to discuss the formation of such a body.

The Canadian premier took what was described as "a sympathetic and practical" attitude to an appeal Wednesday from Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia for Commonwealth help in his young country's guerrilla struggle against Indonesian aggression.

London Taxi Feud Ends

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP)—The war is over. Taxis and cabs have disarmed.

Sound like science fiction? Not quite.

When fleets of "minicabs" first appeared in London about three years ago, regular taxis tried to force them off the streets—sometimes literally.

Minicab drivers couldn't learn their cars for fear the tires would be punctured or the windows smashed. Some drivers were beaten.

The annoyance of taxi drivers was understandable. Minicabs offered cheap fares and were getting lots of business. Taxi drivers claimed minicabs operated illegally but failed to make the charge stick.

There's a difference here between "taxies" and "cabs". Taxis are large, limbering, black automobiles specially licensed to "cruise" the streets or, in legal terminology, "ply for hire." The cabs are regular cars—small and cheap to run. You can't hail them. They must be hired by a specific journey.

Taxis held sway for years. Then cheap, fireproof creatures are designed to take a smack from a double-decker bus without collapsing. Figuratively they'll "turn on a sixpence." They last for 10 years. But they cost $1,711 ($5,313).

TESTS REQUIRED

To get a licence, drivers must pass a battery of police tests that may take a year or more to prepare for. They must know even the most obscure clubs and streets in the taxis that fill London.

So when a firm put regular cars on the roads, with drivers that could skip the Scotland Yard exam—a time taxi drivers were miffed.

Besides resorting to fisticuffs, taxi drivers followed minicabs and reported them when they caught them plying for hire. One taxi driver even made his pretty wife try to lure minicabs into breaking the law. He was arrested but the judge, after sentencing the minicab driver thus caught, warned the wife to stay off the streets.

Minicabs started operations by charging one shilling (15 cents) a mile for a journey of any length. This has climbed to 1s 6d (23 cents). And you can cram as much baggage and extra passengers in as you like.

Taxi fares start at two shillings and climb swiftly depending on time and distance. After a trip of a few miles the taxi fare becomes "a matter of agreement" between driver and passenger. In practice this means that the driver will claim you should pay for his return trip. The passenger has to be incredibly low to avoid double fare. Taxis also charge extra for baggage and for more than one passenger.

COULD SAVE MONEY.

Londoners found that if they didn't mind making a phone call and waiting a few minutes for a radio-dispatched minicab to arrive they could save money on long trips.

Then came the violence. It persisted for about a year and often gruesomely described. Taxi drivers found they couldn't stop the little cars from taking part of the trade.

Now minicab and taxi drivers seem content to coexist. The minicab grab the long hauls which the taxis didn't really want anyway, the "big black sticks" stick to the busy stations of the city and make money in short trips.

Servicing difficulties on the small cars forced the largest minicab firm to shrink its fleet to 100 from 300. The other half dozen minicab firms have even fewer. The 6,500 taxis still survive.

There is one ominous addenda to the truce. Two fares recently rose by about 25 per cent. A spokesman for a minicab firm said he hoped the rates. "I hope there won't be more trouble," he said.

Paper Report Not Accepted By Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Citizenship Minister Rene Tremblay said Thursday he does not intend to single out defensive end Dick Fouts of the British Columbia Lions for discrimination on the basis of a newspaper report.

Mr. Tremblay was referring to the Communist Courier, a B.C., report stating that Fouts would apply for Canadian citizenship in the Vancouver football Club makes it financially worthwhile.

But R. Rynard (PC — Simcoe East) said in the House Wednesday that Fouts should be told that it is a big privilege granted simply to improve his bargaining position with the Lions.

A native of Salt Lake City, Utah, Fouts becomes eligible to apply for citizenship July 16. By Fouts becoming a Canadian, Lions would be eligible to use another American football import.

READ REPORT

Mr. Tremblay said he has read the Courier report. But "I do not feel that it would be appropriate for me to single out this particular applicant for citizenship for admonition only on the basis of the newspaper report, which may be a over-simplification or an abbreviation of the comment in this relationship constitute a lockout.

Although Ontario government labor officials were anxious to get the disputing parties back to the bargaining table, there was little optimism when they would meet again.

Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree said he asked representatives of the union and papers to meet with his officials next week. But separate negotiators say they will be there when there has been no official word from the union.

Also, the newspapers say a negotiating session has been scheduled for 10 a.m. Monday but the union has not indicated whether it will be there.

There was no optimism of a quick settlement of the strike, which is now in its fifth week, despite the fact that negotiators tentatively settled all issues but one—installation over the typesetting computers — during 23 arduous months of bargaining.

'YEARS LONG DISPUTE

Wilfred Kelly, Toronto lawyer and official spokesman for the newspapers, said the dispute could be settled "in time, but "I fear it might go on for a good long time."

There was a possibility that if the publishers found it too tough to put out papers on their own they might abandon their forces to publish during the strike.

William Rankin, assistant to the vice-president at The Globe and Mail, said if more difficulties are encountered there might be some sort of amalgamation.

All other unions at the papers stayed on the job and honored their agreements.

However, assistance support on the ITU came from the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. A truck delivering newsprint to The Globe and Mail was turned back by pickets Thursday night.

I M. (Casey) Dodds said: "No one wants any of our teamsters will cross it (the picket line) or they'll be in trouble."

The Teamsters' Canadian director said the ITU has refused to co-operate with the Teamsters on several occasions but "in spite of the double-cross we'll recognize them because of our respect for the rank and ane at The Star under terms of their contract. Telegram Guildsmen have a contract allowing them to respect another union's lines without jeopardizing their jobs, but the paper said all men due on duty appeared to have reported.

The Newspaper Guild represents about three hundred newspapers' 4,300 employees, in the editorial, circulation, advertising and business offices. The Engravers' Union—which only last week asked its international office for permission to take a strike vote in a dispute of its own with the papers announced it would work under its contract. So did the pressmen and the stereotypers, who rolled flongs from which the papers on the presses.

During the night, The Globe and Mail ran off with editions of 26 pages compared with 48 last Friday. The first edition was about 2½ hours late, and the final edition completed at 3:30 a.m. Saturday. The paper had less than one-third its usual amount of classified figures in the want-ads market, and was well laced with typographical errors.

FEWER PAGES

The Star and Telegram published 32 pages apiece, compared with 46 for The Star and 48 for The Telegram a week ago. Many executives at both papers worked through the night, handling the makeup type in the composing rooms.

The afternoon papers' front pages looked fairly normal typographically. Both used red markers behind their front, and the Tely had multi-color ads inside. The Star reproduced Thursday's front-page Tely flag—Toronto's racetrack by photo — appearing rather than type.

On the front page, The Telegram ran four pictures of picket lines while The Star ran two. Individual stories in the Globe and Morse rated the only other Page One picture, on the basis of a special warning of war in Southeast Asia.

The printers, who make up about one-fifth of the total staff of 4,300 walked off the job Thursday when the newspapers introduced a new work rules agreed to during earlier negotiations The union says it may work under the force but without approval by the ITU membership constitute a lockout.

Wilfred Kelly, Toronto lawyer and official spokesman for the newspapers, said the dispute could be settled "in time, but "I fear it might go on for a good long time."

There was a possibility that if the publishers found it too tough to put out papers on their own they might abandon their forces to publish during the strike.

William Rankin, assistant to the vice-president at The Globe and Mail, said if more difficulties are encountered there might be some sort of amalgamation.

All other unions at the papers stayed on the job and honored their agreements.

However, assistance support on the ITU came from the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. A truck delivering newsprint to The Globe and Mail was turned back by pickets Thursday night.

I M. (Casey) Dodds said: "No one wants any of our teamsters will cross it (the picket line) or they'll be in trouble."

The Teamsters' Canadian director said the ITU has refused to co-operate with the Teamsters on several occasions but "in spite of the double-cross we'll recognize them because of our respect for the rank and file."

Editorial employees of The Sault Ste. Marie and Star were told by their union, the Toronto local of the American Newspaper Guild, that "no Guild member must go in to work when faced with a picket line.

The union editorial employees who have a different contract, were told ". . . an individual decision must be made about not crossing a picket line without fear of losing his job" but "this decision must be taken by you and not as a result of a meeting."

For the time being, the strike overshadowed negotiations at a point "in dispute — computers — ever since the parties started negotiations on a two-year contract that expired Dec. 31, 1963.

The new work rules embrace wage increases, shorter hours and vacations, but the chief one that triggered the strike involved the handling for the first time by publications of tailor-set tape, used by many newspapers to operate line-setting machines called linotypes.

The tape contained Toronto Stock Exchange quotations provided by The Canadian Press. When the members refused to handle the tape, they were charged by the General Electric walkout followed within minutes.

The computer problem involves a union demand for control of the machine while it performs the printers' work.

The newspapers say it is not practical to have an ITU man on hand to handle the tape at the time because it will handle work for other departments at the same time.

On three separate occasions negotiations for the union and papers reached tentative agreement on computers but the ITU membership rejected it at a point the ITU international executive at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Free use of the tape was given by The Globe and Mail for today's edition.

EXPRESS REGRET

Officials of all three papers expressed regret at the turn of events and said they hoped for speedy settlement.

John Bassett, publisher of The Telegram, said "repudiation" by the ITU international executive of an agreement reached with the Toronto local on use of computers was "a tremendous disappointment."

James L. Cooper, vice-president and editor-in-chief of The Globe and Mail, asked: "How can there be bargaining in good faith if time after time U.S. headquarters rejects what the union negotiators accept . . ."

J. S. Atkinson, president and publisher of The Star, said use of computers "could not be accepted in negotiations by the local bargaining committee and approved by the union's international headquarters.

"Quite honestly, George, I'm beginning to regret the day you slew it".

Democrats Scent Victory As U. S. Conventions Near

By HAROLD HOBERSON

WASHINGTON (CP)—As the first of the big U.S. political conventions draws near, Democrats sense a big victory in fall voting for president and congress.

Moderate Republicans sadly tend to agree with them. Not in years have Republican party fences so divided and demoralized.

Many analysts are already blaming former president Dwight D. Eisenhower, chief victory power till the end, for what amounts to be its greatest election defeat in recent times.

His refusal to fight extremists in his party and his reluctance to come out strongly for a moderate presidential candidate for the November elections have given the Republican far right wing cause for jubilation.

Despite the last minute try of Governor William Scranton of Pennsylvania, Mr. Eisenhower's failure to indicate Barry Goldwater, Arizona senator and right-wing extremist, as unacceptable has given the ultra-conservatives the presidential nomination on a silver platter. The Republican convention opening in San Francisco July 13.

DICTATES POLICY

As the Republican candidate, Goldwater would be in a strong position to dictate Republican policy in the 1964 election campaign. Democrats, especially from such big northern states as New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and Illinois, would undoubtedly try to restrain him, there are reasons to believe, but would have much success.

One is that Goldwater owes something to those supporters who bid for the nomination. They include members of the extremist John Birch Society. Another leader once accused Eisenhower of being a tool of the Communists.

And helping finance Goldwater's campaign are what have been a number of Texas oil millionaires, including some said to have had a hand in distributing literature viciously attacking John F. Kennedy in the 1960 campaign.

Goldwater's own apparent distaste for compromise is also cited as an indication that he'll pay little head to those trying to get him to moderate party policy.

His statements suggest he favors an unyielding stand against the Communist menace, he suspects the U.S. allies and the United Nations, that he wants to drive Fidel Castro out of Cuba by force, that the U.S. should send troops to Southeast Asia even if it raises the threat of world war, and that U.S. foreign aid should be sharply cut.

CUT WELFARE

At home he would curtail welfare programs, cut agricultural welfare payments and make the national old-age pension voluntary. Republicans are even though, experts say, his would bankrupt it. He would give the individual states more power to deal with the Negro and other minority problems and would encourage private enterprise by selling government utilities and industries.

Critics in both the Democratic and Republican parties regard Goldwater's proposals as those of the extreme. Strategists for President Johnson, who will be given his party's nomination at the Democratic national convention starting in Atlantic City, N.J., on August 24, are preparing stickers for automobile bumpers warning that Goldwater's policies will cause havoc abroad and hardship at home.

Democrats are almost gleeful when they think of their chances in November, particularly since they feel domestic issues will have the greatest impact on the electorate.

But the party is not quite as confident when they consider the nation's foreign involvements. Castro still is there, unlasted in Cuba despite talk of invasion and the loss of new American efforts to unseat him. And the way the war in South Viet Nam is going hardly helps the U.S. reason for optimism.

CCF to Hammer Out Platform At Convention

By RON MacDONALD

REGINA (CP) — The CCF party, in opposition after 20 years of uninterrupted rule in Saskatchewan, meets in annual convention next week to take stock of its April 23 defeat by the Liberals and to hammer out a platform in keeping with the new role.

Born in the economic debris of drought and depression in 1932, the CCF won power in 1944 as a crusading political regime. It governed a long list of social legislation, most famous of which has been compulsory medical care insurance scheme implemented in 1962.

In the prosperous and diversified economy of Saskatchewan in 1964, the party lacked a crusade in the pre-election. The Liberals won 23 seats, the CCF 25 and the Progressive Conservatives 1 in the 59-member legislature.

Commenting in an interview of the party's new role, Allan Blakeney, health minister in the former CCF government, said: "Our responsibilities and priorities are a little puzzled to know how they should be after the basic social reforms.

"We are coming to this in a different way than the British Democratic Party in Canada still has gobs of basic social reforms to accomplish."

(In 1961, when the CCF became the New Democratic Party in Canada, the Saskatchewan section of the party continued to be known as CCF in Saskatchewan and adopted the name New Democratic Party. Most candidates still call themselves as CCF in the election.)

The party's premier Woodrow Lloyd said he believes the big fight can be something of a blessing.

"In opposition we have a chance to sit back and reflect a little more," he said in an interview. "We're not so occupied with the plumbing of government."

Out of that reflection, Mr. Lloyd hopes to build a party platform that will meet the problems of individuals in a complex society.

Meet the 'Horse Doc'

HIGHGATE, Ont. (CP)—Call John A. MacPherson a horse doctor and he won't mind. Raising children and cattle, and ministering to their ills, have been a part of the pattern of his busy life for decades.

Dr. MacPherson, 70, has been a practising veterinarian for so long—he has just celebrated a half-century in medicine—that he has come over the image of the old time GP for thousands in Kent County.

He announced his retirement recently—by selling his herd of 50 Herefords and renting out his 200-acre Township pastures. By retirement, though, he meant that one career would be ending.

Recently, also in preparation for retirement, he resigned from municipal council after 12 years as a councillor, reeve and County Warden. Dr. MacPherson, a former reeve of Kent County since 1923, was named president of the county association in May. He is still active in more than 12 professional and civic organizations.

A Silver Medal graduate from Western Ontario university in 1914, he began his career in the area around Chatham, which he still serves. One of his three sons is practice with him here.

Dr. MacPherson recalls his early days as a GP when he took over his practice and, at the same time, inherited Model T Ford. He had to buy a cutter and a buggy when he finally decided to get a patient quickly. Operations on farmhouse kitchen tables were normal in his early years of practice.

Born to farming folks at North Knowlton, Que., Dr. MacPherson says he never found combining pitchforks and the stethoscope detrimental to either of his interests.

"Most of my patients were farmers in the old days," he says.

First Day Camp At Oak Lake Is Concluded

The first Day Camp of the 1964 season ended on Friday evening.

The Ontario Department of Lands and Forests held the final camp on Friday. Films on wildlife were shown and greatly enjoyed.

On Thursday evening, the campers entertained the public. The threatening thunderstorm held around the Oak Hills but very fortunately — without its watery power till the campers' program was all but completed.

A Penny Carnival and "White Elephant" stand were organized by the campers to precede the campers' program. Marilyn Burt and Elizabeth Knight (counsellors-in-training) report that their "White Elephant" stand realised $13.21. The Penny Carnival sideshows produced the creditable total of $60.00 pennies. Thus $21.61 is being donated to the YMCA World Services Project. This very worthwhile and workmanlike effort put out by eight counsellors and seventy children in one week-end is the splendid concerted awareness of the needs of our underprivileged peoples in under-developed countries. The entire evening was planned, directed and completely organized by the campers. Mr. Jim Manitides noted too, that a few vacancies still exist for the second camp week, August 3rd to 7th day next. Registrations for this camp may be made at the YMCA office.

Mrs. Kay Summers (nee Holmes) was noticed in the assembled fireside crowd. Mrs. Summers recently returned from an extended stay in Australia, was a YMCA staff member who operated the girl's day camp in 1960.

No Shipments After Crisis in Cyprus Arose

Sound Your A
Today It's Creeping Up

CHICAGO (AP) — A shock wave is running through the world of music fundamentals. The musical note A, as steady as the rock of Gibraltar for nearly 50 years, is beginning to creep up again.

If you strike note A above middle C on a properly tuned piano, the piano strings will vibrate 440 times a second.

If you tap an A note tuning fork the prongs will vibrate 440 times a second.

But some modern symphony orchestra conductors and musicians have been cranking up the A to 444 vibrations, in an attempt to get extra brilliance into the orchestration. Correspondingly, they have sharpened slightly the pitch of all other notes.

This has run head-on into opposition from piano tuners and some musical instrument makers in Canada and the United States.

They say retuning a piano to conform with an A-444 puts an extra half-tone tension on the instrument's 230 strings and necessitates more frequent tuning.

The Piano Technicians Guild, which represents the piano tuners in Canada and the United States, has vowed a continuing fight to maintain A-440 as the standard of musical pitch.

They have an ally in Jack C. Deagan, who heads a Chicago firm that produces mallet percussion instruments and tuning devices. He told guild members at their annual meeting here Thursday:

"The individual musician who plays above A-440 for 'extra brilliance' is unfair to his fellow musicians."

Air Force Day Will Not Be Held This Year

Group Captain E. M. Butcher, Commanding Officer, RCAF Station Trenton, announced this morning that the Air Force Day scheduled for August 29th will not be held this year.

The decision, it was stated, was made necessary primarily because of the extensive construction planned for the Air Base area this summer.

Construction is currently underway on the main runway, and No. 2 Highway. Construction will soon begin on sidewalks and roads on the base.

Group Captain Butcher expressed regret over the decision but said he felt assured the new additions and repairs would afford an opportunity for a finer Air Force Day in the future.

Martin Ready To Accept Red Proposals

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin said Thursday night Canada's proposal for a fall peacekeeping conference "fits the heart" of the Soviet Union's recent proposals for international peacekeeping operations.

He told the Commons external affairs committee he's prepared to accept the Russian proposal as a possible big step forward in international peacekeeping. But he cautioned that it must be looked at against past Soviet refusal to support a single UN peacekeeping operation and it must be examined for possible motives "not in our interest."

Russia's traditional attitude was one of deep suspicion of UN peacekeeping operations as developed in the Western objectives. The Soviets had refused to pay their share of UN peacekeeping costs and were in default to the UN for large sums.

As a result, there was a possibility that at the next UN General Assembly Russia could lose her vote under Article 19 of the UN charter. The Soviet peacekeeping proposals might be a move to forestall such action on the ground it would be wrong to deprive the Russians of their UN vote at a time when peacekeeping negotiations were under way.

EXPECTS TALKS

'Mr. Martin said he would be surprised if UN Secretary-General U Thant does not discuss the question of Soviet defaults and the Russian peacekeeping proposal during his forthcoming visit to Moscow.

He said France faces a similar situation and there had been discussions recently to avoid a confrontation on the whole subject of defaulted payments at the UN.

Regarding the Canadian peacekeeping conference this fall, Mr. Martin said the aim is to review past experience of UN peacekeeping operations and to discuss the special military problems which were encountered in these operations.

"The proposal is intended as a modest, first step in seeing what might be done in a practical way to improve the present standby arrangements," he said, referring to designation of certain forces for UN duty by a number of UN members.

Queen Scout Bruce Downing of St. Thomas' 1st Belleville Scouts, will represent this city at the All-American Scout Jamboree being held at Valley Forge, Penn. later this month.

Bruce will leave the city Monday for Toronto, where he will attend a two-day pre-camp Jamboree, then will go on to Washington and Valley Forge where the Jamboree will be staged from July 17th to 24th.

The Belleville boy will make the trip with Scout David Hinton who will represent Trenton at the jamboree.

Bruce received his Queen Scout badge in April of this year.

Editorial Employees Must Work

TORONTO (CP) — Editorial employees of the Star and The Globe and Mail have been told by their union that under the Ontario Labor Relations Act, and their contract with their employers, they must "go in to work when faced with a picket line."

Telegram editorial employees, who have a different contract, were told ". . . an individual may refuse to cross the picket line without fear of losing his job" but "this decision must be taken by himself, and not as a result of a meeting."

Guidance for the editorial staffs was contained in notices distributed by the Toronto local of the American Newspaper Guild (CLC) on the basis of legal advice from the local's counsel, David Lewis.

The notices were issued before a walkout Thursday by composing room staffs of the three papers. The printers are members of the International Typographical Union (CLC). Picket lines were set up at all papers.

The notice to Star and Globe and Mail staff, while pointing out employees' obligations, also said "you should refuse to do any work which is different from the work you normally perform, except if it appears to be work normally done by those on strike."

Three Convicts Flee Farm At Smithfield

TRENTON — Three prisoners escaped during the night from the Dominion Experimental Farm at Smithfield.

The three, William Wilson of Toronto, Ken McCoppes of Fort William and James Fisher of Hamilton were prisoners from Kingston Penitentiary working on the Farm.

Wilson was serving two years for breaking and entering and was due for release in November. McCoopes was to be freed in December. He was sentenced to a two-year-term for possession of stolen property. Fisher, on a break and enter charge, was serving a two-year sentence. He would have been free in October.

Brighton OPP investigating the escape say the trio now have a six or seven hour head start.

A car missing this morning from the Subway Service Station of Eldon Weese on Highway 33 was believed stolen by the trio some time during the night.

OPP officers at Brighton request anyone seeing a 1955 Buick coach, metallic green in color and bearing the license No C15846 to contact the nearest office of the OPP.

The escapes being investigated by Constables Guy and Tenner of the Brighton OPP.

Accept Resignation

TRENTON — At a meeting of St. Peter's Credit Union Ltd. last night, the resignation of Rev. Bernard O'Neil from the board of directors was accepted regretfully, and his successor in the parish, Rev. Arthur Appleton was elected to replace him on the executive. Father O'Neil is leaving Trenton to take up new duties in Gananoque.

At a previous meeting, the credit union members presented Father O'Neil with a fishing rod.

Last night's meeting was conducted by the president, Richard Deschenes, who expressed regret at Father O'Neil's leaving Trenton, while welcoming Father Appleton.

William Dillon Drowns in Trent River

TRENTON — An autopsy on the body of William Dillon, 64, of 141 McGill St., who drowned in the Trent River early today has been ordered by Coroner Dr. Brock Nugent.

About 2.00 o'clock this morning Mr. Dillon was seen to get up from a park bench and after a few steps stumbled into the river.

Three Chinese boys, Eddie Lee and James and Larry Wong, working at the kitchen of the Lotus Cafe saw the man stumble into the river and ran to the dock to throw him a life preserver. But the man had disappeared beneath the water and failed to re-surface.

The youths then ran 10 blocks to the police station to give the alarm.

Police later recovered the body.

Mr. Dillon was employed by the Domtar Newsprint Ltd. as janitor for some years and was recently retired.

He is survived by his wife, four sons and four daughters.

Speaker Urges Kiwanians to Buy Ont. Goods

TRENTON — "When you go out to buy an article . . . look around . . . and if quality and price are comparable, buy Ontario . . . or at least Canadian."

The 35 members of the Trenton Kiwanis club who traded the hotness of Trenton streets for the air-conditioned dining room at the Gilbert Hotel yesterday, heard from Mr. John Franks, a representative of the Trade and Industry Branch of the Ontario Economics and Development Department that Ontario has the highest per capita rate of import of any country or state in the world . . . $235 . . . compared for instance with the United States per capita figure of $35 and the United Kingdom figure of $75.

Mr. Franks said that the department's aim to slice $100 off the Ontario per capita figure would receive an appreciable impetus if every man in the room decided to put the phrase, "Buy Ontario," into action.

The department's program of Progress Forums that paid off in 1963, he said, and showed signs of paying off even more in 1964. This was due to a number of factors, he said, but mostly to the spirit of cooperation between the department, industry and labor . . . and sought after and "consolidated" co-operation of the consumer.

Ontario now contributes 40 per cent of the Canadian gross national product and industry is expanding. More jobs are available, and there is a comparatively small rate of unemployment in the province. World markets for Ontario manufactured goods are being sought constantly . . . and being found. New industries are opening up . . . new uses are being found for inactive sections of older industries. Ontario's economy is sound.

"My department isn't taking all the credit," said Mr. Franks, "but we're aboard the bandwagon."

John Franks, with the Trade and Industry Branch of the Ontario Department of Economics and Development, is thanked by Dieter Rolf, president of the Trenton Kiwanis Club, following an address to the club by Mr. Franks last night.

Worth Examining

The Russians are now urging establishment of a permanent United Nations military force.

This seems like a surprising about-face.

Closer inspection may reveal that it is not so inconsistent a move as one would think at first glance.

Russia has refused to pay her share of the costs of past UN forces. As a result, she is in some danger of losing her right to vote in the United Nations Assembly, although there may be room for argument as to whether the costs of these UN expeditions can be legitimately considered as UN assessments which must be paid to retain voting rights.

By her new proposal, Russia provides herself with an "out," which can be used in various ways, depending upon how her proposal is received by other nations.

If it is rejected, Russia could seek to shift the blame for non-support of the UN to other shoulders.

If it is accepted in its present form, it would provide Russia with a veto power over the use of UN forces, since she proposes that the permanent force should be under control of the Security Council, rather than the General Assembly.

It is possible, though, that the Russians might be persuaded to yield on this point.

"The stipulation that the great powers, that is the permanent members of the Security Council possessing veto powers, should not be allowed to contribute to the UN force appears wise. It is being interpreted as an effort to get the U.S. forces, under the UN banner, out of Korea, but it seems questionable whether this should still be considered a situation demanding UN intervention. If the U.S. is determined to keep forces there, perhaps it would be better if it were forced to do so on its own responsibility. The Korean force was an exception to the general rule. In most of the UN interventions, the big powers did not contribute men. . . Another exception is Cyprus, but the British were on hand there before the UN moved in and it is not at all certain that the situation might not be easier if it were possible to replace these British troops with others with whom the Greek Cypriotes had no old scores to settle.

Any Russian proposal needs to be closely examined before the West accepts it. At the same time, we should not automatically write off all proposals as propaganda moves, with built-in traps.

A permanent UN military force is the obvious next step in the slow progress towards the eventual organization of an international police force, capable of enforcing international law.

It is just possible that Russia recognizes this and is willing to assist in its organization, first seeking the terms most advantageous to it but willing to accept reasonable compromises.

A permanent peace force, without direct big power participation, but with big power support, under the control of the General Assembly, would appear to be an acceptable arrangement.

A Fair Offer

The New York Times says that Fidel Castro has offered to cease giving material support to Latin America revolutionaries if the U.S. and its allies will cease giving material support to Cuban rebels.

On the face of it, this seems fair enough.

But the offer is not likely to be accepted. Too many people would regard it as a betrayal.

Castro might be able to afford being plastered with this tag. The U.S. will probably feel that it could not.

Yet, in the final analysis, such an agreement would offer much to both sides.

It would enable the U.S. to disentangle itself from some rather questionable companions, the rag-tag of Batista's Cuban regime who have fastened themselves like leeches on those among the Cuban refugees who really want a free and democratic Cuba.

It would provide Castro with an opportunity to seek to improve economic conditions inside Cuba, without keeping the island on a war footing.

And this, of course, would put Castro to the hardest test. If he failed, he would have no scapegoat to conveniently carry the blame.

Go not for every grief to the physician; nor for every quarrel to the lawyer, nor for every thirst to the pot.—George Herbert.

Nobody Wants Parked Cars

— By JOHN ALLAN MAY in the Christian Science Monitor.

As sometimer happens on the television, there are days when a words of the world just don't synchronize. It happened the other morning when we awoke to the sound of Niagara pouring over the house. Staring out of the bathroom window shortly after it a fish-eyed, dazed, amorous and out of focus, I switched on the radio to halfhear the weather report.

"A mainly dry day is forecast everywhere," declared the announcer blandly, "Some light rain. . ."

"In the country of the blind," muttered I to myself, "the cannibal man is princes."

So for once in a way I drove my car to the station. "Here," said my friend behind the ticket window, softly, beckoning me to stick my head as nearly as possible through the small hole in the glass, "you'd better get a car park season ticket today."

"But I very seldom bring my car, as you well know," I protested. "I prefer the walk. I'll just have the usual day tick-et."

"It'll pay you to get a season," he insisted. "If you get a one-year ticket you'll see it will pay you even if you only use the park three times a fortnight afterward. You see tomorrow all parking fees are going to be doubled."

"Whatever for?" I asked.

"Well," he said, by way of explanation. But a lady behind me nudged me with a bag and a long queue had formed behind me. I hurried away with my getting the official word, or indeed my ticket.

Until that moment, however, I had always understood that official policy was to encourage motorists to leave their cars in the country and proceed to town by train. I could see even more clearly how wrong I was in the lunchtime newspaper.

"As fuel rises, commuters and resident businessmen who leave their cars all day on free parks in central London will be plan goes ahead," a big article declared. This is a plan, I gathered, of the Greater London Council of Trade and Industry. It had discovered that a parked car does not bring a penny to industry if its driver immediately goes off by train to some other part of London.

But although a car, on the contrary, does bring trade and industry to a town when it is parked so long as the driver spends money there, Minister-designate Ernest Marples and the 101 traffic authorities of Greater London certainly have viewed all that place to be London. It is the official view that London is a place chiefly for commuters to the city. He gets something that sounds stimulating and chic: Indeed, he is to be further than holding your hand."

"You don't mean the musical element has much to do with it then?" I ventured.

"Oh, I will," he said. "The stroke of genius was the hairdo. This is why young girls and boys alike adjoy them. Both sexes can identify with them, and neither feels threatened. In young people's hairdos are racy, but wholesome. strange but familiar, just as they are British in style (in which makes them exotic) but American in singing true to both worlds (except.)"

"A lot of older adolescents seem to like them, too," I said.

"What does it mean when a 17 or 18-year-old succumbs to Beatlemania?"

"Ah, that," he nodded. "Now we are in another country. Beyond the ken of parents and the moderate attraction to what the Beatles represent is not so healthy or so normal. It can mean any number of things — things best discussed in the clinic, and not in the office."

He stroked his beard fondly, signifying that one more question would be his last. "Is a man without a fee. I held his h a n d briefly and left.

This, in a nutshell, is the briefest brief ever presented in the long, tedious history of public hearings:

"Black Diamond Cheese Ltd. requests that all quantitative restrictions on world cheese trading be removed."

And that, the members of the Canadian Tariff and Trade Committee discovered, was Black Diamond's brief in its entirety.

There was no lengthy supporting evidence. The company knows from experience that it can sell competitively in markets protected by tariffs and there are no limits on the quantities that can be imported by foreign buyers.

There were no ifs and buts about protection of the domestic market. Black Diamond plainly feels that Ottawa's negotiators at the current GATT sessions should be prepared to reciprocate for entry of cheese into this country.

Strictly Personal
Beatles Famous Because They Are Bisexual

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

My 7-year-old daughter is mad about the Beatles. She has a Beatle hat, a Beatle badge and Beatle magazine, and Lord knows what other Beatle material she has smuggled into her room, bought by hoarding up her pitiful weekly allowance.

I read the other day that the Beatles are now a $100 million worldwide industry, and more than 300 commodities listed under their label, and their biggest appeal is to the 7-13 age group.

How can we account for this success? I asked a psychiatrist recently, because I was puzzled. His answer at first startled me, but upon reflection I am not so sure he was far from wrong.

"Their great appeal," he said, "is that they are frankly bisexual in appearance. Look at the hairdo. Are they boys or girls? They seem a little of both, eh? And in operating in this universal they give the impression of being asexual — that is, they pose no threat to any adolescent. They are exciting — and absolutely safe."

"Is this what the children are looking for?" I asked.

"Certainly," he replied. "Sex attracts them, but it frightens them at the same time. A phenomenon like the Beatles enables them to gratify their illicit needs together. And consider something else.

"Consider," he went on, "that the Beatles are not only absolutely s.fe. . . they are absolutely clean. There is nothing really offensive in their songs. Indeed, the leitmotif in 'Let It Be' Hold Your Hand' is the appeal to the child. He gets something that sounds stimulating and chic; indeed, he is to be further than holding your hand."

"You don't mean the musical element has much to do with it then?" I ventured.

"Oh, I will," he said. "The stroke of genius was the hairdo. This is why young girls and boys alike adjoy them. Both sexes can identify with them, and neither feels threatened. GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO
July 19th, 1944

While local fishermen vainly strive to entice unsuspecting denizens of the deep to their bait, a United States visitor to this country, one A. Collins by name, has successfully landed a 30-pound salmon trout. He and a local guide, were on Devil Lake on the Hastings chain near Kingston when the husky prize was hooked and hauled into the boat.

Veterans of the South African War were signally honored by the organization at the regular monthly meeting of the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada, Belleville Branch No. 201, when four of the "ancient" soldiers were presented with life membership in the association. Those honored were George Smith, Charles Lake, Fred Croft and George Tilley.

Having served formerly with the Royal Navy and now with the R.C.N.V.R., Lieut. Commander Richard W. Hart, son of Mr. Richard Hart of this city, has received mention in dispatches in the King's birthday honor's list. Commander Hart's station he has always displayed "great energy, zeal and devotion to duty. He is now in command of H.M.C.S Dundas.

Two other district servicemen also received recognition in the King's birthday honor's list: Station Master WO John Silver, of Trenton Air Station, was awarded the Order of the British Empire in the military division. He has been stationed at Trenton since the beginning of the war. The other district man to receive recognition was Flying Officer R. K. Roulston of Madoc who was mentioned in dispatches.

30 YEARS AGO

Dr. J. Albert Faulkner, recently elected Liberal member for West Hastings in the Ontario Legislature, has been appointed by the Hon. Mitchell Hepburn to the cabinet with the portfolio of Minister of Health. Announcement of the appointment was received here today.

M. G. H. Byrne has returned home after spending several days in Toronto.

Miss Marie Huffman of Grove Street is this weekend with friends in Kingston.

Mr. S. H. Herity of Detroit, Mich., was in the city today en route to Moira where he will spend a week with his father, Mr. Anthony Herity.

Mrs. J. D. Collip and Miss Rita E. Collip, Charles Street, are spending several weeks with the Rev. J. H. Pogson and Mrs. Pogson at their summer home at Bayfield, Lake Huron.

Miss Carrie Canning has returned home after a pleasant visit which she spent in Buffalo and Fort Erie.

40 YEARS AGO

Mrs. W. J. Bruce of Octavia Street is visiting in Lindsay.

Mr. Harry Post has returned home from Grove Lake where he spent his vacation.

Mr. Lionel (Gunner) Arnott, an old Belleville boy, has returned to his home in Preston after visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Albert Blackburn and Mr. Joseph Blackburn have returned home from Boston, where they visited Mrs. and Mr. Arthur Blackburn. They made the trip by automobile.

The estimates for this year were received at a meeting of the city council and the tax rate was set at 16½ mills for general purposes; 9½ mills for public schools; 3½ mills for high schools; 5½ mills for separate school. The council will not meet again until September 16th.

Mr. A. Kirk of Hungerford township was in town today.

Mr. J. A. Moore of Queensboro was a visitor in town today.

The Belleville Fair will be held this year on September 7, 8 and 9.

Mr. Wellington Ashley of Lindsay is visiting his father, Mr. Ashley Ashley, Front Street.

Mr. William Mackintosh of Madoc, public school inspector for Centre Hastings, was in town today.

From our file copy at this time in 1864: The youngest member of the new Ontario Legislature, will be Mr. W. McLaren, Conservative, M.P.P. for East Hastings. He is a very bright young man."

Discouraging Necessity

— Vancouver Sun —

What a long, discouraging way we've come since Mother Goose.

Ones it was the good mother, or the Old Lady Who Lived in a Shoe, or Jack and Jill, whose cheery counsels to school children blocked with crayon. But during the last somnolent week of the school year, West Vancouver's grades one to six were put to work coloring a picture that was no fairy tale.

Clutching her books, a little girl sauntered home from school. A man holding a bag of candy awaits behind a tree. Color the picture, says the accompanying instruction, and memorize the rules.

The rules?

Turn down gifts from strangers. Refuse rides offered by strangers. Avoid dark and lonely streets.

The coloring picture to teach children about modern was an FBI idea. The West Vancouver policemen's union got the idea. The community's weekly newspaper printed 4,000 picture outlines and the school board issued them as a school assignment.

This is a drastic, backbone-chilling picture.

Coupled with parental warnings, it turns a child's carefree walk into a thing of potential terror.

It should just about complete the isolation of the child, not only from bogeymen, but from the well - intentioned parents who wouldn't harm 'a hair on a child's head.

Is this tarrying child-protection too far?

Alas, no, and we're all the sorrier for it.

As in Vancouver, molesting in West Vancouver is increasing in ratio to growth of population. Not a startling fact, simply a bleak one. Parents' zest of perversion stirred up by past months by coordinated efforts of Shore police investigations. But the totally frightening technique to avert tragedy.

The law does not and perhaps cannot ensure protection. Talk of a specialized institution for the detention and rehabilitation of sexual psychopaths remain just that — talk.

So we must tell our children that they're on their own. And if famed to achieve their vigilance, protected they will be.

It is a sad commentary on our times.

To Your Good Health
Many Specific Factors Surrounding Bronchitis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Each year I am troubled with bronchitis which seems to develop even in summer months. The severe coughing is weakening and makes it difficult for me to get enough sleep.

I am 40 and suffer at least two attacks a year, summer and winter. I have had antibiotics prescribed and have tried various cough prescriptions but they afford little relief. Can you give me any information as to what can be done for this? — B. C. R.

Bronchitis can be a disorder of some importance — as you know.

I can deal with your case only in generalities, because there are many specific facts which may have to be determined.

The seasonal aspect suggests that allergy could be involved. Dust or pollens in summer, in winter, molds from the heating system, basement, animal danders, etc.

A second possibility, and this certainly should be investigated is the chance that some deeper disorder, as emphysema or chronic bronchiectasis, may be present. People with these ailments are particularly susceptible to "colds" or bronchitis.

Third, your resistance to infection may be low. At your age folks sometimes have developed quirks of appetite, and may not be getting certain foods they need for full vigor. Sometimes a vitamin supplement helps — not that vitamins are a treatment for bronchitis or for bronchitis or colds, but if you are lacking in some of them, a supplement may enhance your resistance.

Simple treatments with antibiotics and cough mixtures is the usual way of providing such relief as is possible during an attack, but the fundamental thing is to prevent rather than merely alleviate.

I suggest careful medical examination of bronchitis isn't always a simple thing and doesn't always come from the same causes.

Use of influenza vaccine might very well be considered, since cold and flu viruses, as well as germs of other types can set off attacks of bronchitis. (And what about smoking? Do You?) . . .

Dear Dr. Molner: Please ex-plain diverticula and diet. Will raw juices and salads aggravate the trouble? — E. J.

Juices are tolerated well; salads are likely to include a lot of vegetable fibres or roughage, and this may be irritating. So go easy on salads until you learn how much you can take without trouble. (Dr. Molner's booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulitis Throw You," is available to any reader who sends in 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sunday Tribune, Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.)

Dear Dr. Molner: My doctor told me I should have a mole removed from my neck. Aside from the fact that it doesn't look good, why should it be removed? — J. V.

Usually because it is so located as to be chafed or irritated by a collar, jewelry, etc., or, more rarely, because it is showing some sign of changing. Surgery, either as a diagnostic procedure, is the usual method of removal.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am due to start my menstrual period two days after we are to leave for a trip to Washington. Is there any way this can be allowed down or speeded up? If so, is it really safe. — E. B.

Stopping the period is not a wise thing to do and I do not recommend it.

You may be thinking of the so-called "birth control pills." These do not work by stopping the menstrual periods, but rather by altering ovulation, which is another matter.

Emergency Patient Given No Treatment

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

Re: Emergency — Belleville General Hospital

From what I can understand from conversations with different people who have experienced the same situation as myself, the following has happened many times at the Emergency at the Belleville General Hospital. My wife had an accident in the home on Wednesday of this week and was rushed by ambulance to emergency around 3.45 p.m. After waiting for attention for approximately six hours, I again called the ambulance for her return home in order that I could get help from a doctor to diagnose her condition. It has always been my belief that a hospital is an institution in which patients or injured persons are given medical or surgical care and an emergency is an unforeseen combination of circumstances which calls for immediate attention.

There seems to be a tendency in Belleville that one doctor will not attend another doctor's patient regardless of the immediate necessity of doing so. In my own case, requests were made of different doctors who walked in the emergency but to no avail. Under these circumstances emergency at the Belleville General Hospital ceases to function as such.

The Hippocratic oath is an oath embodying a code of medical ethics, generally taken by recipients of the M.D. degree. Or is this oath now obsolete?

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—Speculative stocks burst ahead in heavy volume on the stock market today.

Volume at 11 a.m. was 2,430,000 shares compared with 1,600,000 shares traded at the same time Thursday. The first hour's trading was the heaviest first hour since April 23 during the first mad boom for Timmins area stocks.

Windfall led the stocks, turnover more than 400,000 shares and climbing 75 cents to $9.30

PCE Exploration gained 12 cents to 67 cents and National Exploration 6½ cents to 31½ cents, both traded more than 400,000 shares.

BOOM RESULTS

The boom was triggered Monday when Windfall said it had good results from its first drill hole on the company's property in Prosser Township near Timmins—close to the Texas Gulf Sulphur Co.s huge base metals discovery. However, since then the company has said only that it encountered mineralization in the hole, but has not issued assay results.

Bay Street is full of rumors on the dock, none has been confirmed or denied. Other stocks moving are close to Windfall's property.

DOUBLES PRICE

Another sharp advance was recorded by Consolidated Golden Arrow which more than doubled in price from Thursday night's close of 28 cents to 64 cents. Bellerere gained six cents to 81 cents and Goldfields four cents to 87 cents.

Meanwhile, Industrials moved to no index record although the gain was slight and trading in the group uninteresting.

Junior base metals had Falconbridge down ¼ to 73¾. Others were trendless.

Windfall Thursday led a brief comeback by speculative mining stocks.

It had rocketed $1.33 to $9.30 and sold as high as $9.60 before turnover of 2,142,435 shares. The activity was spurred by rumors as to the grade of the ore in the first drill hole on the company's property in Prosser Township near the big Texas Gulf discovery. No find in the Timmins area.

Windfall shot ahead a handful of other Timmins-area mining issues tagged along. PCE Exploration rose 12 cents to 55 cents, Glenn seven cents to 34 cents, National Exploration 6½ cents to 25 cents and Belleterre and Goldfields three cents each to 81 cents and 53 cents respectively.

Meanwhile industrials set a fast pace as selected favorites were in demand. Distillers Seagram rose ¾ to a 1966 high of 39¼ amid continued reports of a three-for-one stock split. Walker Gooderham picked up ¾ to 37¼ and added at a 1966 high of 37¼.

Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Northern Ontario Natural Gas advanced ¼ each to 48¾ and 23½. Toronto-Dominion Bank ¼ to 64¾ and Massey-Ferguson ¼ to 31¼.

Senior base metals were quiet and trendless in golds. Dickenson led losers, dropping 25 cents to $4.85.

On index, industrials were up 35 to 158.64 western oils .36 to 100.11 and golds on exchange index .30 to a new high of 148.11.

Golds were down .54 to 131.85 and base metals .07 to 85.02. Volume for the session was 8,339,000 shares compared with 4,244,000 shares traded Wednesday.

Two New Forest Fires Caused By Lightning

All indications point to a busy weekend for the Department of Lands and Forests at Trenton.

According to latest reports, the fire danger rating continues high. Conditions are very dry and at present 12 fires are under control.

It was hoped that yesterday's rain would do some good but the accompanying lightning spread even more havoc with the fire situation. Lightning is held directly responsible for two new fires started yesterday in the Tweed district. One of the new outbreaks is near Actinolite.

Once again officials ask all using the woods this weekend to exercise extreme caution, paying attention to all the rule rules of forest fire safety.

VICTORIA (CP)—Harry Osborne, 71, wrote his Anglish examination at Victoria High School, where he also polished up his grammar. Mr. Osborne, a chief engineer at a lumber firm, plans on a writing career when he retires.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was active and prices were higher on slaughter steers, heifers and yearlings at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Cow prices were steady and bull prices were unchanged. Replacement cattle were steady on a moderate demand.

Veal calf prices were strong. Hog prices were barely steady and lamb prices were mostly steady.

Cattle receipts were estimated at about 9,500 head, sharply higher than last week and some 700 head more than the same week in 1965. Western cattle receipts were 131 head less than last week at 38 head and included some slaughter steers and heifers. Western stock calf receipts were negligible. There were no shipments to Eastern Canadian slaughterers nor exports off the market to the United states.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers and heifers $24.50-25.50 with fancy single and odd headlots to 26.50; good 23-24; medium 19-22; common 15-18; choice cows 23-25 with odd tops to 26; good 21-23; good cows 18-19.50 with sales to 17; medium 16-16; canners and cutters 11-13; good heavy bologna bulls 19.50-19.50; common and medium 16-18.

Replacement cattle: Good stockers 23-25; common and medium stockers 18-21.

Calves: Choice vealers 27-29 with odd singles to 31; good 24-26; medium 21-23; common 19-21; boners 14-18.

Hogs: Grade A 27.35-28.15; heavy sows 24.85-26.15 with bulk sows gaining a $2 premium; stags 16.25 on a dressed weight basis.

Sheep and lambs: Lambs 34-37.50 per hundredweight with good lambs closing at 36-37; sheep 4-12 according to quality.

SAW PLANE SMOKING

"I heard a screeching noise, looked up and saw the plane smoking and coming in toward a hill," said Constable Frank Turner, 52. Mrs. Charles Hawk said she saw the four-engine plane explode and fall into the hollow near her home.

The plane burst into the side of a hill known as Trenham Hollow. Bodies, personal effects and wreckage were strewn over a half-square-mile area. One engine rolled 150 feet to the bottom of the hill. A wing section was the largest piece of wreckage.

Floodlights were used throughout the night to remove the bodies to an emergency morgue set up in Newport.

Teachers Taking Summer Course

Fifty-one Ontario high school teachers of science and mathematics are attending Summer School at Queen's University, assisted by bursaries of $300 each from the International Nickel Company of Canada Limited.

The following district teachers are among those who received the bursaries: R. F. Griffin of Belleville, N. W. Hutchison of Napanee, N. A. O'Neill of Colborne and G. B. Thompson of Brighton.

"This is another example of his failure to comprehend being president of the United States is not the same as being a benevolent chairman of the board, letting others decide when nuclear destruction shall be unleashed," Scranton said.

He demanded a look at water, bring a full transcript of the interview when the senator appears before the convention platform committee to give his views today. Goldwater said he didn't have a transcript, although his office previously had issued transcribed excerpts.

The senator also virtually wrote off Scragion as a potential running mate saying the governor had accused him of being ignorant, cowardly, back ward and immoral.

CLARIFIES STAND

Goldwater said he never advocated use of nuclear war weapons but would have to make such a decision. But he believed military men had a place "in our scheme of things" and that decisions affecting the use of small nuclear battlefield weapons should be left to men in the field.

When asked to clarify his position by saying whether he would leave use of such tactical weapons to battalion commanders or the supreme commander of the North Atlantic alliance, Goldwater hesitated and said he was referring to U.S. Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, NATO supreme commander. He said Lemnitzer should have "a little more leeway" on the nuclear issue.

When reporters pointed out that Scranton had demanded that the party openly reject the John Birch Society, a right-wing extremist group that supports Goldwater, the senator said he would go along with whatever the platform-drafting committee decides.

As for chances of winning against President Lyndon B. Johnson next November, Goldwater said that if the election was held today he couldn't win against the Democratic leader. But there were clouds hanging over the White House. By next fall the situation would be different.

Cheese Exchange

Colored cheese commanded a slight premium on the Belleville Cheese Exchange this week when 4,956 boxes of special, 13,133 large cheese and 15,316 square cheese, were offered.

The average price for white cheese was 36 cents, both regular and square, while regular colored cheese brought 36¾ cents and colored squares 36.3 cents. Square cheese are subject to a premium.

Only 9 Houses Still Unsold In Cardiff

CARDIFF — The house buying spree that started here on May 9 promises to generate more interest than the uranium rush did in the 1950's. A former bustling miner's townsite of 200 fully serviced homes, Cardiff is located in the Haliburton highlands eight miles west of Bancroft, Ont.

As a result of what has happened so far, a celebration called "Get Acquainted Day" is being planned for months ahead of schedule. It is for the people from all parts of Canada and the province is the superb example of a government agency and private business co-operating to establish Canada's first retirement community. The new owners moving in are mostly couples ranging in age from the late 20's to the early 70's.

Before the unique idea to revive the village was proposed to C.M.H.C., by Peterborough realtors Bowes and Cocks, authorities considered wrecking the dwellings and selling the recovered materials for salvage. Originally the period for the disposal of the 150 remaining houses was given to the Federal government's housing agency, was projected over 12 months. The price for the two-bedroom and three-bedroom bungalows was set at $4,250 and $4,500 respectively, about one-third of what it cost to build them in 1956.

Since the first public offering 161 units have been sold. And now there are only nine left; a steady stream of interested buyers continues to pose a problem for the survey salesmen and overworked team of renovators making the bungalows ready for occupancy.

When all transactions have been consummated C.M.H.C., will have recovered more than $600,000 that might otherwise have been written off after the demise of the mines and lowdale. The dale and program for the pending celebration will be announced in a few days.

BILK SALES

Welland Hears Candidates For Leadership

WELLAND (CP) — Eddie Sargent, one of six aspirants to the Ontario Liberal leadership, said Thursday the Progressive Conservative government is practising regional discrimination.

Speaking to a Welland Riding Liberal Association meeting, Mr. Sargent charged too much money is being spent in Toronto and the Golden Horseshoe area around the western end of Lake Ontario.

He said there was mismanagement and corruption in a government which gave industrialist M. P. Taylor $40,000 of your money and mine to raise race horses while half the farmers in the province are living on an annual income of less than $2,000."

Both Mr. Sargent and Andrew Thompson, another leadership contender, cut their speeches short to be on hand after the meeting.

Mr. Thompson said that if there had been eight more Liberal voters in each riding polled, his party would have won the September election.

Joseph Gould, a third contender, said the new party leader could not "be a puffed-up upstart but a man that could command the support of labor, finance and business." He said an administration with him at the helm, would begin a campaign to reverse the move to the cities by aiding small industries in rural communities.

Italy Pants Under Serious Economic Difficulties

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Like a sprinter who runs out of puff with the finishing post in sight, Italy is panting under its serious economic difficulties at a time of promising political experiment.

Seen from the outside, Italy's centre-left coalition appeared a hopeful, middle-of-the-road approach toward stable government in a land scarcely renowned for governmental discipline.

Basically, the idea was to lure the Socialists away from the post-war embrace of the Communist party—largest in Europe—into a working partnership with the Christian Democrats, led first by Amintore Fanfani and later by Aldo Moro.

To be a going concern, the alliance depended on dispensing just the right amount of economic largess—enough working-class concession to satisfy the Socialists without alienating the more conservative-minded elements among the Christian Democrats.

INFLATION MOVED IN

In normal times, this might have been achieved. Unhappily, the "opening to the left" materialized just as Italy's remarkable post-war economic boom exploded into inflation, perhaps the sharpest any European country has experienced since the war.

Increased consumption, placing immense pressure on imports, outrun production and sent prices skyward in a conjuncture in which millions live little above starvation level.

Some analysts say that Italy, like Canada, has been trying too hard to keep up with the economic Joneses next door.

In Italy's case, the "Joneses" are the more advanced neighboring countries of the European Common Market.

The economic setback, frustrating hopes of new political alignments, is dangerous for Italy. She sorely requires a mildly reforming government, and for that she needs a working consensus of the centre; but economic disarray merely strengthens the extremes of left and right, further compressing the room for manoeuvre of the middle parties.

CONTRACT SIGNED FOR NEW STEVENSON FORD SALES BUILDING

Mr. William Watson (centre) of the firm of Watson and Wiegand Architects, explains details as Mr. Roy Stevenson (left) President of Stevenson Ford Sales Ltd., and Mr. Hugh Murray (right) of Hugh Murray Ltd. sign the contract for Mr. Stevenson's new garage and showroom, to be erected at 321 North Front Street, Belleville.

Hugh Murray Ltd. will start construction immediately with completion date for the middle of September.

let's talk "cents" about entertaining!

Nearly everybody likes to entertain. And everybody wants to be considered a good host or hostess.

Problem is that a family income budgeted for mortgage, car payments, insurance and other fixed expenses won't stand big entertainment bills. It doesn't make economic sense.

So what to do —when you know that among your guests some prefer gin, others rye, vodka, rum, sherry or beer—and your budget won't stand both an assortment?

Here's the solution that will delight everyone—and keep your entertainment cost at a minimum—

Buy just one liquor: A special brand of extra light rum. Its name: TROPICANA. Made by Woods, who have been distilling fine rums for over 75 years... And what's special about TROPICANA?

It's so versatile, it's practically a one-brand bar! Besides being a superior light rum by itself, your guests will enjoy it in any rum drink imaginable.

It makes delightful versions of almost any drink you can name! Just try TROPICANA with three or four quite different mixes. You'll realize you're on to something good!

Tropi-cola, for instance! Lots of people have already discovered Tropi-cola. They will be delighted with your Tropicana and Ginger, Tropicana and Tonic, Tropicana and Bitter Lemon, or what will you have!

"A refreshing change" ..."a delightful idea"..."mighty satisfying"... With TROPICANA your reputation is established... and your budget saved!

Accessories Will Have 'Anything Goes' Look

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP) — Accessories will have that "anything goes" look that marks the fall fashion now being shown by the New York Couture Group.

In most categories there are one or two dominant trends.

The beret seems to be preferred among millinery styles but this fall's successors are quite removed from the jaunty basque beret popular during the Second World War. But they are imaginative and incinded in the preview is even a white snood-beret of simulated alligator.

Brimmed hats of every imaginable fill, sweep and width are included in the fall collections but as with the beret, the accent is on variety.

In shoes, the two-textured look predominates and women can expect such combinations as a toe of snakeskin or suede for the fall. The open look continues elsewhere. The boot craze of last fall has somewhat subsided. Every so often, especially in sportswear collections, boots appear. Evening boots seem to have been a passing fancy, except with at home and apres-ski costumes.

Costume jewelry continues its love affair with pins. They are large, amusing, deliberately flaw greed or bold. Bracelets are worn in varying widths for the wrist and upper arm and the 36-inch opera-length necklace is expected to take over from the 24-inch matinee. Plain and textured gold captivates to dominate.

Such are the accessory trends seen by some 200 fashion editors attending the fashion showings of the New York Collection Group. Included were Canadian editors from Toronto, Montreal, Hamilton, Brandon, Man., and Vancouver.

Girl May Have Trouble Getting Boy Friend Back

DEAR DORIS — How do you get a boy back? I broke up with him because first, I thought we were going too far (not that he tried anything really bad), and second, I wanted to see if I really liked him or not.

Now I have gone out with all kinds of boys — and I mean all kinds — but I still feel it is Denny I like. Whenever I see him I try to pretend I don't care. Don't tell me to talk to him because I already have and I've asked him to dance too. One of his best friends told me that he was so hurt when I broke off that he doesn't think he will ever go back with me.

STILL HOPING.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR STILL HOPING — Don't play it both ways; either you care or you don't. If he thinks you don't he'll stay hurt. There are times to explain yourself, and this is one of them.

If you do go back together, you'll need a new deal, won't you? Otherwise the same old "going too far" routine will rear its ugly head!

DEAR DORIS — I am thoroughly disgusted with life right now. As I am a widow of 51 I find the evenings long and empty. One just simply has to have a companion for any social life.

I feel that with some male talking to me and me in him would change my whole attitude towards life. Oh I do wearsome stuff like church clubs but that doesn't take up all my time.

I just want help in finding something in my life that is missing. — LEFT ALONE.

DEAR LEFT ALONE — As a rule, women outlive their men; and a second mate isn't always handy. So I suggest two things:

1. Make the next club you join a mixed one.

2. Learn the meaning of the word "sublimate". Having a male companion isn't the only way to get some worthwhile into life At 51 you have much to give. Start giving it.

DEAR DORIS — Just today I noticed the footnote on your column: "It is a sign of good faith to give your right name when you write in."

The tendency today is: If you help someone, make very sure you know who you are helping, else they don't get help. You see it at many so-called charity agencies. I am sure there is a difference between true charity and plain nosyness. — SUPPRIED AT YOU.

DEAR SURPRISED — You're not any more surprised than I am. Are you the sort of person who makes anonymous telephone calls?

When we engage in personal conversation, it is taken for granted that we introduce ourselves. Should we do anything less in writing a letter to someone who is giving professional time and thought to our intimate problems? If you can't trust me, there is no point in writing to me. And since you haven't given your own right name you obviously can't.

Confidential to "I WISH I WERE DEAD" — As your man's devoted slave, you have reaped scorn and neglect. You would have managed much better if you had been his demanding mistress instead. Assert yourself as a wife and don't spare the womanish wiles. Sow the thought in his mind that he could lose you if he doesn't change his ways. Then let's have another report.

Casual Look Has Had it Says Designer

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're not the one woman in 1,000 who can afford to buy from the trendsetting couturiers presenting a preview of next season's collections here this week, you might update your wardrobe by purloining some of their ideas.

Larry Aldrich, leader of the New York Couture Group presenting the program for more than 200 fashion writers, said Thursday that women really design the clothes by indicating what they are fed up with casual, stark, frilly or spare looks.

"I renovating your fall clothes, therefore, keep in mind that Aldrich says that you say you've had it. Even though you're only going to the supermarket, wear something that suggests the evening must be delivered because you're really, on your way to a cocktail party.

To achieve this, replace buttons on your pants' suits with rhinestone-studded ones. If the skirt's perfectly straight, better mix-match the jacket with one with pleats. Another method of renovation is by mixing colors.

Leave neckines high and rounded for daytimes, and cut them square and here in back.

Give your short evening dress to the kids, or a poorer relative. It's passe, emphasizes Aldrich. In its place is that swinging black hipstar dress.

Is your winter coat slim and fitted? Better take in a few seams, and maybe add a little braid at the pockets, collar and cuffs. Be certain your blouses have tie necklines and are preferably sleeveless under your suits. Otherwise, fill in the gap at the neck with solid-hued silk satin scarves.

Winter pleats wait before leaving on trips. Set pats in plastic bags, tie bags loose around skirts. Set out of

HADLEY — MORROW

St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling was the scene of a lovely summer wedding on Saturday, June 20, when Margaret Lorene Morrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn F. Morrow, Stirling R.R. 4 was united in marriage to Robert Wayne Hadley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton H. Hadley, Stirling R.R. 1. The Rev. F. F. Downing officiated before a background of pink and white peonies and orange blossom.

Miss Helen Morrow, sister of the bride presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist Miss Linda Anne Morrow who sang appropriate wedding selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Mr. Glenn Morrow, wore a floor-length bridal gown of white brocaded satin, fashioned in Empire style. The A-line skirt featured an inverted front pleat. Her finger-tip veil flowed from a crown of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of white roses mingled with stephanotis and trailing English ivy.

Miss Lois Morrow, sister of the bride as maid of honor and the bridesmaids Miss Joan Barton of Stirling and Mrs. Dale Green of Belleville were identically attired in pale yellow street-length dresses featuring the inverted pleat at front, similar to that worn by the bride's wedding band headdresses with short over the face veils.

The groomsmen was Mr. Ronald Hadley, brother of the bridegroom, while Mr. James Archdekin of Brampton and Mr. David Sager of Stirling were the ushers.

A reception for 90 guests was held in the church hall where the bride's mother was attractive and centred with a three-tier all-white wedding cake. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a navy blue crepe suit, navy hat, white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a sky blue lace shantung dress with set-in sleeves, navy blue accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to the West Coast, thence to Vancouver Island and by ferry to Seattle, Washington, the bride chose a white linen dress with the hemline accented with pink embroidery, pink accessories, and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

Guests were present from Brampton, Barrie, Toronto, Ottawa, Bancroft and Elmvale.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at miscellaneous showers given by Miss Linda Anne Morrow, sister of Mrs. Dale Green in Belleville; by the Misses Joan McArton and Marilyn Anderson of the McArton home in Stirling, and another at the home of Mrs. Jack Donahue, Stirling R.R. 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Hadley will reside on the Hadley farm at R. R. 1 Stirling.

Several Projects Suggested

VINELAND, Ont. (CP)—Promoting religious vocations among women was one of several projects suggested to the Ontario council of the Catholic Women's League of Canada Thursday at the closing session of their three-day annual convention here.

Most Rev. P. A. Marocco, Auxillary Bishop of Toronto, called for more teaching sisters to ensure that children would be taught to use their mental goods "to serve the higher aim of the human soul" not for sensual satisfaction.

He suggested the league women work with women's organizations of other religious seeking arrangements on principles of marriage, parental authority and child training, charging that confusion concerning marriage and family life is caused partly by the contradictory attitudes of the religious denominations.

Mrs. Burke McInerney of Otawa took office as recording secretary.

Officers re-elected are: President, Mrs. Ward Markle, Toronto; vice-presidents, Mrs. Eldon Keon, Pembroke; Mrs. Mary Dobbell, Toronto, and Mrs. L. J. Ellinghausen; Dom Sound; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Robert E. Doyle, Chatham, and treasurer, Mrs. I. L. Obergh, Port Arthur.

The 18th annual provincial convention will be held next near in Fort William.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

When a person is a guest in your home for the first time, do you take pains to make sure he feels welcome and wanted? For instance, do you:

1. Introduce him to your husband immediately?

2. Show him where to put his things and where to freshen up?

3. Make sure he meets everyone else or, if the party is large and this is impossible, introduce him to those nearby?

4. Guide him into a conversational group, at some point, he ends by standing on the sidelines?

5. Seat him next to someone with whom he has something in common when dinner is served?

6. Take time to spend a few minutes in conversation with him, yourself, during the course of the evening?

7. Make sure he's not neglected by others who know each other well?

8. Encourage him to take part in any after-dinner activity planned for the rest of the evening?

Give a few cue lines, so others may help draw him out if he's a reluctant conversationalist?

10. Let him know the house rules for rising and dining, if he's an overnight guest?

Going Away Party Given For Couple

A farewell party was held at the Anglican Church hall of Point Anne on Saturday night to honor Mr. and Mrs. T. W. (Ted) Purdy, and their children, Ralph, Jane and Carl, of Trenton.

Mrs. Reginald Elliott of Frankford, Mrs. L. Purdy of Belleville and Mrs. M. Perrow of Trenton, were the conveners for the party.

William Perrow, brother of Mrs. Purdy, acted as chairman for the evening, and presented the couple with a purse of money on behalf of the guests and wished them happiness in their future home.

About fifty friends and relatives were in attendance and spent the evening visiting and dancing to the music of an orchestra.

Speeches and readings were given and lunch closed a sociable evening.

Guests were present from: Niagara Falls, Newmarket, Oshawa, Port Hope, Kingston, Whitby, Belleville, Frankford and Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Purdy expect to leave Trenton shortly to take up residence in California.

Readers' Friday Column

by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

May I ask you a favor? Have you a recipe for a rice salad? I understand it is served cold and is scrumptious . . . I also need an inexpensive barbecue sauce of cornstarch, sugar, vinegar and whatever . . . Dorothy D.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menus

Salmon Mousse (see Wednesday); Potato Salad; Cheese-Stuffed Celery; Sesame Rolls; Homemade Lemon Sherbet; Spice Cake; Coffee.

ANSWER:

Delighted to hear from you Dorothy.

RICE SALAD NO. 1:

2 cups cooked rice, 1 cup cooked peas, 4 tablespoons chopped pimiento, 4 tablespoons green relish, 3 tablespoons cheese, grated, 1 teaspoon salt, mayonnaise (about ½ cup), 3 tablespoons celery minced.

Combine rice, peas, pimiento, relish, cheese, salt and celery and mayonnaise. Taste to see if it needs more salt or mayonnaise. Chill. Serve on crisp lettuce.

RICE SALAD NO. 2:

1 cup cooked rice, 1 stalk celery, salt, ½ head lettuce, 1 big apple, unpared, juice of 1 lemon, mayonnaise (about ½ cup), nuts or olives.

Shred the lettuce finely; chop celery to small pieces; core and cut the apple into small pieces; squeeze lemon juice over all to prevent discoloring. Fluff the rice with fork and combine with celery, lettuce and apple. Sprinkle with a dash of salt; toss lightly, adding mayonnaise until incorporated, using just enough to coat the ingredients. Sprinkle with chopped nuts or olives.

I have mailed to you a recipe for barbecue sauce which I think fills your requirements.

QUESTION:

Sometime in 1963 or 1954, you gave a recipe for a sandwich spread which was just delicious. If I remember right it included cucumbers, green peppers, celery and perhaps onions. Somehow I lost this recipe . . . Could you reprint it for me? . . . Mrs. A. B.

ANSWER:

Gladly

CANNED SANDWICH SPREAD (repeated from Aug. /63):

Grind enough unpared cucumbers to measure 6 cups. Grind also enough onions to measure 4 cups. Grind 3 red sweet peppers and 3 green peppers. Add ½ cup salt and let stand 2 hours. Add 2 cups water to 2 cups vinegar, pour over vegetables, bring to boil. Drain well. Mix together ½ cup soft butter, 3 cups sugar, 3 tablespoons flour, 4 beaten eggs, 2 teaspoon each mustard and celery seed, then stir in 1 pint vinegar. Stir this into the drained vegetables and boil, stirring, for 5 minutes. Add 1 cup thick cream, bring to boil and pour into sterile jars and seal. When this is opened a little ground meat or chopped nuts may be added before it is made into sandwiches.

Lack of Privacy in County Homes for Aged Said Tragic

OTTAWA (CP)—The board of evangelism and social service of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec said Thursday the lack of privacy in county homes for the aged in Ontario is a tragedy.

"Two, three or four residents are lodged in one room, bare of all furniture except beds, small chests and a few chairs," the board said in a brief to the Senate committee on aging.

"Even clothes are something hung in a common clothes closet in the corridor and the bathroom is down the hall. Much money is spent at these homes on gardens, impressive common rooms and other facilities, but it would be preferable to spend more on the things that preserve personal dignity." The board's brief said the average person is indifferent to the problems he will face in old age.

"It would seem that many people, especially men, have a psychological block when it comes to facing the fact that they themselves are aging and will some day need help."

Ann Landers

Advised to Take Hint And Turn the Guy Loose

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I went with Virgil for four years. We were both out of college when we met so you know we were not kids. Virgil told me he could not get married for awhile because the shock might kill his mother. I was pretty upset over this but when I met his mother I could see she was difficult and decided to co-operate.

Last Christmas I told Virgil either to give me an engagement ring or we were through. He reluctantly gave me a nice opal in a white gold mounting.

I'm sure it's not my imagination, Ann, but during the last several weeks Virgil has been trying to get the ring away from me. He keeps offering to have it cleaned, etc.

Last night while Virgil and I were watching TV I fell asleep. When I woke up my ring was gone. I turned the sofa inside out and upside down but I couldn't find it anywhere.

I know very well Virgil slipped that ring off my finger and I'd like to know what to do about it. — DIZZGUSTED.

DEAR DIZZ — Take the hint Kiddo, and turn the guy loose. Virgil doesn't want to be engaged to you, so face up to facts and don't let him waste any more of your time.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Am I wrong to be upset? The other afternoon our bridge club met and the eight of us yakked about all sorts of things — as usual it was an especially lively gab-session. None of us are expert bridge players and we do a lot more laughing and talking than we do card playing.

Just as we were leaving the hostess said, "Would you girls like to hear what you sound like?" She then led us to the tape recorder which she had hidden behind the sofa. The machine had recorded everything that had been said in those two hours.

She played the beginning of the tape back to us and I wanted to drop through the floor. On the way home three of the girls said they thought it was a dirty trick for her to record our conversation without our knowledge. I am furious. May we have your opinion? — A.B.D.

DEAR A.B.D. — It was indeed a dirty trick. If you decide not to return to the woman's house you would be perfectly justified.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Recently someone asked you how you spotted the phony letters. Well, even though you think you are smarter than everybody in the whole world put together I'd like you to know that you make plenty of mistakes.

I wrote to you about a very serious problem two months ago. It had to do with a neighbor's dog. I've been watching the paper every day since I wrote to you but my letter has not been printed. So you see you can't spot the phonies after all. — VANCOUVER.

DEAR VAN — I receive over 23,000 letters a month. An amazingly small percentage of these letters are phonies. I can print only 21 letters a week, so if a letter doesn't make the newspaper it doesn't mean I passed it up because I didn't believe it was on the level.

Anyone who wants a personal reply in the mail can get one by sending me a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Better than that I can't do, Bub.

Two Democrats Give Exhibition Of Wrestling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators Strom Thurmond (Dem., S.C.) and Ralph W. Yarborough (Dem. Tex.) set Capitol Hill agog Thursday by engaging in a no-holds-barred wrestling match on the floor of a senate office building corridor.

There have been physical clashes between members of congress many times before but nearly always in anger. Thursday's affair between two normally dignified senators, each 61 years old, was good-tempered and decided upon calmly and coolly.

The two men serve on the Senate commerce committee which was trying to get a quorum—nine of its 17 members—to act on President Johnson's nomination of former Florida governor Leroy Collins to be director of the new community relations service. Thurmond strongly opposes the nomination and blocked a quorum Wednesday by standing in the corridor outside the committee room while only eight senators showed up inside.

Another session was called for Thursday morning and the South Carolinian again took his post in the hall.

Yarborough, on his way into the committee room, made a grab for Thurmond's arm and said, "Come on, Strom, help up make a quorum."

THURMOND REFUSES

Thurmond good - naturedly took hold of Yarborough's arm and replied: "No, I'll keep you out."

The senators then agreed to wrestle for it. The understanding was that if Yarborough lost, he would stay outside. If Thurmond lost, he would attend the meeting.

The senators banded their coats to a Thurmond aide and started in. There was more pulling and yanking than actual wrestling but at one point the South Carolinian grabbed Yarborough's coat and dumped him on the floor.

When the match was broken up by Senator Warren G. Magnuson (Dem. Wash.), the committee chairman, Senator Thurmond had Yarborough on his back on the floor but the Texan still was struggling for a good hold.

Yarborough went into the committee room. This made a quorum and Thurmond entered, too. The group quickly confirmed the 58-to-1, with only the South Carolinian registering opposition.

developed after an earlier operation to remove a cancer growth. The operation was stopped before this was done.

Dr. B. H. Coggins, anesthetist at the operation, said at one time the patient lost so much blood that her blood pressure did not register on his instruments. Her blood replacement was by transfusion.

Another witness, Nathaniel Keon, father of the dead baby, said that Dr. Brown told him she was to "receive intravenous system) shock ... create intestinal obstruction." He made out a birth certificate for his daughter, a living certificate, he said, between Nov. 15 and Nov. 20, also mentioned cancer in the records.

In his testimony Thursday, Dr. Brown said Dr. Brown later agreed with him that Miss Morgan died because of the clamp.

Sunday School Lesson

When God Does Something

By DR. Clarence W. Cranford

A group of young people were discussing the deplorable conditions that exist among some of the destitute peoples of the world. One youth spoke up and said, "If things are as bad as that, I can't believe in God any more." When asked why, he replied, "If there is a God, why doesn't He do something about it?"

But how does God "do something about it"? When the children of Israel were suffering unjustly in Egypt, how did God do something about it? He raised up Moses to lead them to freedom. When He wanted to lead them into the Promised Land, he raised up Joshua to lead them. So it has been throughout history. When God has something He wants done, He raises up someone to do it.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for July 12 is "God's Concern for His People." Exodus 2 through 4.

In the year 1209 much of Europe was under the rule of King John. Men probably thought the battles of Trafalgar and Waterloo were the most important in all the events of the year. But history has revealed that the birth of certain babies was more important. For in that same year, William Gladstone was born to become one of the most important prime ministers. Alfred Lord Tennyson was born that year to become one of the world's greatest poets. And in a log cabin in Kentucky, Nancy Hanks Lincoln gave birth to a son whom she named Abraham.

Let us go back in the days of Israel's bondage in Egypt. As we read in our lesson, "The children of Israel groaned under their bondage, and cried out for help, and their cry under bondage came up unto God. God heard their groaning, and God remembered His covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob." (Exodus 2:23-24 RSV)

What happened was nothing short of providential. God's hand was born whose life was precisely served in spite of all Pharaoh's edicts to destroy all the children should die. This baby received the finest training his world could provide under the tutelage of Pharaoh's own daughter. The baby's name was Moses.

Though Egyptian trained, Moses' ties were with his own people. So strongly did he resent the persecution of his people, he murdered an Egyptian who was mistreating a Hebrew and had to flee the country. In Midian he became employed as a shepherd, married the daughter of a priest, and settled down to raise a family.

MOSES HEARS THE CALL

But God would not let him forget the situation in Egypt. "Then the Lord said, I have seen the affliction of my people who are in Egypt, and have heard their cry because of their taskmasters; I know their sufferings, and I have come down to deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians." (Exodus 3:7-10)

Like most people, Moses resisted such a delicate and dangerous assignment. Objections after objection tumbled through his mind such as "Who am I that I should go to Pharaoh, and bring the sons of Israel out of Egypt?" and "If I come to the people of Israel and say to them, 'The God of your fathers has sent me to you,' and they ask me, 'What is His name?' what shall I say to them?" or "Oh, my Lord, I am not eloquent, either heretofore or since Thou hast spoken to Thy servant; but I am slow of speech and of tongue."

But God answered all His objections by giving Moses the assurance, "But I will be with you." Moreover, God reminded Moses that his brother Aaron was eloquent. "Is there not Aaron, your brother, the Levite? I know that he can speak well. He shall speak for you to the people; and he shall be a mouth for you, and you shall be to him as God." (Exodus 4:14-16 RSV)

TWO TRUTHS CONFRONT US

Two marvelous truths rise out of this passage. First, God is a God who cares. He is not indifferent to human suffering. He suffers when they suffer. This concept of a God who is vitally concerned about the tears of men is one of the greatest messages of the Bible. In the midst of a world of pain and suffering, God is constantly calling us to share His concern, and in His name, to do something about it.

Second, when God called Moses, He asked, "What is that in your hand?" Moses answered, "A rod." That's all it was, a rod. But God used it because of Moses' dedicated life that rod became a symbol of God's watchcare over His people.

What is that in your hand, sister? In your hand, student? What is that in your hand, child? A note. What is that in your hand, Christian? A Bible. But in the hands of a dedicated life, the common things of life become instruments which to lead mankind out of its bondage to ignorance and sin.

have equal status, neither dominating the other. Quebec separatism and other strains on national unity stemmed largely from economic problems. The Liberal government had failed to cope with these problems, especially marginal farming in Eastern Canada.

New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas called Mr. Diefenbaker's conference proposal useful. It might end the constant haggling that threatens Confederation.

Gilles Gregoire, Creditiste financial critic, proposed the creation of new money by the Bank of Canada as the only solution to economic ills.

BELFAST (CP)—A Presbyterian minister, decrying the danger of mixed marriages, blames in part the practices of Roman Catholic and Protestant teen-agers playing ping-pong together in church halls.

Another minister criticises Prime Minister Capt. Terence O'Neill for visiting a Catholic school, says the Unionist leader "isn't even an Orangeman" and declares "it's time the Orange people called for his resignation."

In a local election, the main issue is whether a candidate did or did not agree with the lord mayor of Belfast in flying the city hall flag at half staff in mourning for the death of Pope John.

And on the front pages recently, the big story concerned controversy over an article in the Irish Times of Dublin quoting Ulster Unionist Nationalist MP in the Northern Ireland Parliament, as saying he was "not unduly troubled" about standing for the British national anthem or drinking the royal toast.

Eddie McAteer, who since then won the leadership of the opposition party that still strives for a reunited Ireland independent of the United Kingdom, said Stronge's views were "strictly his own."

"I trust they are not shared by many others describing themselves as Nationalists—I cannot understand why we must surrender any ground."

RENEGE BETRAYAL

And so it goes, the seemingly endless sniping and back-biting from both sides that help fill the newspapers and make the letters - to - the - editor columns lively and contentious, almost daily airing changes of bigotry and real or imagined insults.

It never 'ire of the old arguments," says a veteran Belfast correspondent for a British paper who, however, gives the impression that he personally is well and truly tired of the old arguments.

Still the bloodless bickering is a far cry from the painful old wars that set Unionist against Nationalist, Protestant against Catholic, the Orange against the Green. Memories of the fighting and persecution that led eventually to creation of the Republic of Ireland in 1921 and a land divided or, as the republicans say, "partitioned"—the 26 counties of the republic with a population of 2,818,341, about 90 per cent Catholic, and the six Ulster counties with 1,423,462 people, more than 65 per cent Protestant.

Nevertheless, there is a movement towards a happier coexistence abroad in the land, with politicians now less sensitive to the feelings of old-fashioned extremists on both sides, diminishing groups whose influence is gradually being diluted by a more modern-minded younger generation eager to get on with the job.

TALK OF COMMON MARKET

In this their greatest ally is the economic expediency seen in the Common Market, a theory that already is drawing toge.her in consultations such bodies as the Chambers of Commerce in both countries. There even is rather tentative talk of a sort of "Irish common market" with mutual cuts in tariff barriers, but so far each side has hinted that the initiative should come from the other.

In recent years business back and forth over the border has been increasing, helped recently by a cut in the republic's tariff on Irish goods, 90 per cent of which is produced in the north.

And of course there already is a wide basis of agreement within institutions established before the partition of the early 1920's—the banking system, churches, sport, many professions, bodies and trade unions. There remain, however, many newer fields in which the two could profitably co-operate, such as the fishing industry, the tourist trade and electrification.

To the outsider, there is much here that seems rather inconsistent. For instance, all schools, including those run by the Catholic church, receive government assistance in the form of payment of teachers' salaries and 65 per cent of approved building and equipment costs.

And many seemingly minor events take on a sort of larger-than-life aspect against the background of Irish political affairs. Recently Premier Sean Lemass of the republic approved the use of Ulster's official title, Northern Ireland.

This is a departure from the habit of his predecessors who insisted on the offensive "six counties."

Lions Told

and delegates from England and several northern states, sat with folded arms. Many Canadians also declined to applaud.

The governor said: "There is no state that has come to the forefront in the world more readily than the state of Alabama.

"We are interested in the welfare of all mankind. We are not racists. We are not going forward any man because of race, creed, color or religion.

"Anyone who despises another because of these grounds despises God's handiwork."

RAPS PRESS

He accused the liberal press of "crying bloody murder" when the state of Alabama tried to prevent the corrupting of individual rights, but remaining silent on questions just as vital which called for objective examination.

At a press conference the governor touched on several topics including his political leanings, the coming presidential election in the United States and education.

He said he would not speak for any of the presidential candidates, Republican or Democrat. "If I say something good about one of them, it's liable to destroy him," he said.

Meanwhile, the Lions plan to return to their regular business today and Saturday, when annual elections will end the four-day conference.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

We have received many letters of concern about "unreasonable" or "pointless" deed restrictions that governs the uses of property. The following letter shows the other side of this coin and demonstrates how such restrictions can come into being out of sincere concern, and personal principles.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am not "stuffy," although I have been accused of it often enough. I have, however, been opposed to alcohol all of my life and am a staunch supporter of the W.C.T.U.

A developer has expressed interest in purchasing our old family farm (rented out now) to develop a shopping centre. I would be very distressed, however, and feel ramiss in my responsibilities if my selling this ground contributed to a development that included stores, bars or even restaurants that sold alcoholic beverages. Is there any way I can sell my farm, and still prevent this? — Mrs. W.

Answer: Thank you for your letter and the enclosed pamphlets on temperance and the evils of alcohol. I read them with great interest and look forward to passing them on to some friends who need them much more (I hope) than I.

In regard to your real estate problem, your solution is simple: "If you make your wishes known, to your attorney he will place a restriction in the deed, prohibiting the sale of alcohol beverages.

I must warn you, however, that this deed restriction may lower the price you can get for your land, or perhaps even discourage the developer from buying it for a shopping centre. Regretfully, even in real estate, standing by ones' principles can prove to be expensive.

Mr. Meltzer: I have a really tricky problem and need a special kind of advice.

Several times a year my property, and the property around me, turns into a marsh. The ground does have a slope though, and I solved my problem by laying a drain pipe. The water runs onto the next property which is lower than mine. My neighbor raised cain, but I stood pat.

Now the fellow on the other side (higher), seeing how well I solved my problem, has laid three drain pipes and I am flooded. My question is what can I do to stop my higher ground neighbor that my lower ground neighbor can't use to stop me. — "In the Middle"

Answer: Since this is a 400th Shakespeare anniversary, a quote from "Macbeth" may be in order. "We do but teach bloody inventions, which, being taught, returns to plague the inventor," or on a less elevated literary plane. "What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander."

I regret to advise you that any governing ordinances in your township apply uniformly to you and your neighbors. Stop trying to find a tricky solution of your own.

A drainage problem such as yours requires common action — you and your neighbors working together with the township. Meet with your township engineer and have him suggest an overall solution to this mutual problem.

Mr. Meltzer: After many years of planning and saving we are ready to redo our house. My scheme included a white front and a dramatic black roof for contrast. We saw an article recently that said never to have a black roof because in the summer it absorbs so much heat that it turns the house into a bake oven. Is there some way we can avoid this and still have our black roof? — B. C. C.

Answer: That article you read should have been left in the oven a little longer itself, for it is only a half baked concept.

I admit that a black roof will absorb more heat. Its effect on the livability of your upstairs, however, is much less important than the type and thickness of the roof's insulation, the provision you make for air circulation, the size and placement of the louvres, and many other factors.

If your husband is not technically qualified to evaluate this, I suggest you consult an architect or a builder.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I thought I bought a house to live in but all I am ending up with is a pile of termite infested lumber.

We were in the house only three months when, during a heavy wind and rain storm, outside walls developed three large cracks.

The contractor we called in to make repairs told me that all the main framing members were eaten away by termites and it was not a matter of making repairs but essentially rebuilding the whole house.

Naturally I contacted the man we bought the house from to protest. He said he couldn't care less, and not to bother him again, that there was a "good old American custom" of "let the buyer beware," and that if we were smart we would just pitch it up, like he did, and try to stick some other unwary buyer.

I'm sorry but I'm not that kind of American. On the other hand, my salary can't afford this loss. Is there any way we can get back at the previous owner or are we really stuck? — E. & G.

Answer: This is essentially a legal question and an attorney's guidance is definitely called for.

As a real estate issue, however, I can give you some hope based on my own experience. That "good old American" custom of "let the buyer beware," is gradually being modified, by recent court decisions, to a doctrine which, in effect, states that material defects which are beyond the technical knowledge of a buyer after reasonable inspection must be disclosed by the seller.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Melrose

MELROSE — Mr. and Mrs. J. Osborne of London recently spent a few days with their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Osborn.

FAREWELL SERMON

The Melrose congregation heard their minister in his farewell sermon on Sunday evening, June 28th. Following the service, a social hour was spent in the church basement when a presentation of money was made to Rev. Mr. Sterne, Mrs. Steven and family. Appreciative thanks were expressed by the recipients. Refreshments were served and friendly "good -bye's" brought a memorable evening to a close.

The Hi-C group made a special presentation to Robin, a member of that society and the gift of some china to Mr. and Mrs. Steven during the same evening.

Mrs. Jack McLaren attended the recent shower and frozen tea, both held at Carrying Place, for her niece, Miss Joan Onderdonk.

Mrs. Roy Badgley, a former teacher at Bethany, participated in the Centenary celebrations, during last weekend.

Mrs. Lorne Wesse, Mrs. A. English and Mrs. William English attended a shower on Monday evening, at the home of Mrs. Willis Bezzenith, Ebenezer in honor of the Misses Sandra and Sylvia Allan.

The community children are taking advantage of the swimming classes at the Tops Motel, sponsored by the Melrose W.I. Miss Leslie Geneja has advanced to become an assistant instructress this year.

Mrs. Jack McLaren attended the funeral of her aunt at Havelock on Saturday afternoon.

over equipment, supplies, buildings or land to the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation for sale — should be rebuked" to make a public disclosure of the original cost and the final sale price in all such deals.

Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington South) said Mr. Henderson's report presented a "dismal picture."

Much of the equipment sold in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1963, was bought during the Second World War, such as spare parts for vehicles and planes. Mr. Henderson said that equipment originally bought for $13,500,000 was rated as new or unused when put up for sale.

Of the $28,900,000 total, the air force accounted for the biggest batch of surplus equipment, $18,800,000 worth, compared with $6,300,000 for the navy and $3,800,000 for the army.

Changes in operational requirements led to scrapping $2,300,000 worth of the military equipment.

Drive Starts to Save Steeple Ameliasburg United Church

PICTON (Staff) — Following a drive to raise funds in excess of $1,000, renovations to the steeple of Ameliasburg United Church are under way. Several weeks ago Mrs. Norris Whitney, R.R. 1, Consecon, was made treasurer of the "save the steeple" campaign launched to preserve an historic beacon of the community.

Sentiments prompting the drive may be understood when it is realized how few churches with steeples remain in the county. Most famous of those still in existence is perhaps that of Lake-on-the-Mountain Church. The steeple undevastated by trees is visible at a great distance. Cressy and Demorestville churches recently have had their toppling steeples restored. In Picton steeples are seen only on the Presbyterian church and the old church of St. Mary Magdalene.

The Ameliasburg steeple showed a tendency to lean and required cribbing among other repairs if it was to be preserved. It is nearly one hundred years old and its restoration almost a century later seems a fitting centennial project. Built in 1868, mason work for the church was done by James Spurr and Patrick McGuire. Water was drawn from the lake in barrels on a one-horse wagon by J. I. Coleman, then a boy of 17. Contractor was Elijah Sprague.

Prior to this time the Wesleyan Methodists held their services at the school house. The Coleman families, five at the time, were Presbyterians who attended church in Consecon. When the Wesleyan Methodists spoke of building a church there, James Coleman offered the land, donating it to them.

NAMES OF FAMILIES

Names of the families living there at the time the church was built include David Coleman, his son Isaiah, Robert Coleman, Charles Coleman, his daughter Margaret, whose wedding to William Henry Kinnear was the first in the church, James Coleman, his son John Irvine Coleman, Owen Roblin, his son Edward E. Sprague, John Sprague, James Richards, A. M. Delong, James Benson, J. E. Cunningham, David Gibson, John Pierson, Andrew Spencer, Jason S. Tice, C. Wannamaker, Abram Wood, Jacob Wood, Robert Howe, Amos Way, Sarah Way, W. H. Wood, Walter Choates, John Choates, George Wood, Thomas Wood.

A year after the church was built Mr. Pile came to the village and lent his support to the church until construction of the Anglican Church in the village.

Mr. Albert Lont, a newcomer to the village, also was active in the church. After installation of church's first organ, Miss Hulda Roblin became organist. In those early years Mrs. Mark Sprague also played for the services until she and her family moved to Belleville.

Response to the campaign to raise money for repairs to the old steeple will permit this landmark to stand as it has done for nearly one hundred years.

Over $600 of the necessary amount has been raised but further contributions are essential to the success of the project. All donations will be gratefully accepted by the treasurer of the drive, Mrs. Norris Whitney, R.R. 1, Consecon.

Employment Situation Favorable

PICTON (Staff) — Clifford McCalpin, manager of National Employment service, reports that at the present time the employment situation is favorable. Good laborers are in demand and a few able-bodied men are seeking work. Both the canning factories and the construction industry have provided employment. Camp Picton has supplied work for many collegiate students. The Canadian Guards were a self sufficient unit but summer training including the Cadets requires help for the kitchens, maintenance of buildings and grounds etc. This work will be available until the guards return from Gagetown on August 22nd. The students receive $1.40 and $1.30 an hour.

Farm help is not in demand due to mechanization and a smaller hay crop. With the beginning of the tomato season there will be a keen demand for pickers and peelers.

PROMPT ACTION

Prompt action on the part of Picton policeman, George Wright, prevented what might have become a fire with serious consequences. Just after midnight Tuesday Constable Wright, who was patrolling Main St. West observed light flickering from a shed at 5 Main Street near Harry's Lunch. The shed was attached to and between a two-storey frame house and a garage, investigating the source of the light, Constable Wright found a cardboard box afire in the shed. He kicked it away from a wall, then spotted a garden hose which he thought might be useful to extinguish the blaze. As the water line was broken he could get no water. He then called the fire department and alerted occupants of the house. The home is owned by H. J. McFarland by Mrs. A. Wade. Also living in the house are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Courtney and their five children.

Fire Chief Bell stated "When we arrived flames were coming out the shed window. We tore down a wall of the shed and had no trouble containing the fire and putting it out. Some holes were chopped in the side of the shed to get water up there."

Damage from the fire was slight; its origin is as yet unknown.

"I never know what to do with my hat in snack bars."

$100 DAMAGE

A collision on County Road 19 at 7.45 p.m. Wednesday resulted in over $100 damage to cars driven by Betty Jean Cronk, R.R. 2 Bloomfield and Milton Earl Wood, Ameliasburg.

Child Drowns At West Lake, Body Recovered

PICTON (Staff) — Caroline Judy Godfrey, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Godfrey, Newburg, Ont., drowned Wednesday afternoon, while swimming with a companion a short distance from the shore of Maple Rest Lodge, West Lake. At 2:50 p.m., the time of the drowning, Caroline was swimming approximately thirty feet from shore when she failed to surface after a dive.

O.P.P. Constables Charles Fletcher and E. Graves investigated the accident. Coroner Dr. C. R. Richmond was in attendance. Though the girl's body was recovered shortly after the accident and artificial respiration had been applied she was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. F. W. Murphy at 3:05 p.m.

Scouts, Cubs Enjoy Camp At South Bay

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Heights Scouts and Cubs are enjoying a seven-day summer camp at the new Prince Edward Scout Camp on South Bay. Camp will conclude on Sunday, July 14th. Mr. Horace Church of Picton and sponsors of the Picton Heights Troop, First Battalion of the Canadian Guards made this outing possible.

Last fall, Mr. Church once a farmer at South Bay, gave the district Scouts and Cubs something they had never before had — the use of land on which to hold a summer camp. The Guards made sure their Scouts and Cubs would enjoy this property by providing ten men from their unit presently at Gagetown to assist Scoutmaster Joseph Webb and Cubmaster Douglas Rye in conducting the camp.

Nineteen Scouts and twenty Cubs are attending this camp which gives them an opportunity to pass many tests in outdoorsmanship.

The most striking feature of the camp is the waterfrontage and the beach that allows for two swimming periods daily for both Cubs and Scouts.

Other Prince Edward district troop s plan similar summer outings at this new campsite.

Choice of Next Leader To Succeed Khrushchev Lies Among Five Men

One of the biggest political questions in the world today is who is going to succeed Nikita Khrushchev and when. Preston Grever, AP bureau chief in Moscow for five years, discusses the question in the last of a four-part series.

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—Who is going to succeed Premier Khrushchev, and when?

This is fascinating question No. 1 in the Soviet Union.

As of now the choice of the next leader of the Soviet Union almost certainly would be made by a group of five men Khrushchev has gathered around him —and almost certainly one of the five would be chosen.

Foremost among the five are President Leonid Brezhnev, 57, whose star continues slowly rising, and Nikolai Podgorny, 60, a man who grew up in the food industries. His star has been rising also, perhaps a little faster lately than Brezhnev's, but is not yet as high.

Other members of that corporation include the old Bolshevik, First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan, 68; party theoretician Michael Suslov, 62, and Alexei Kosygin, the first deputy chairman along with Mikoyan. Kosygin is an industrial and economic specialist.

NOT LIKELY CHOICES

Although they have senior titles, Mikoyan and Kosygin are not likely to get the job with the power. Mikoyan has become a perennial No. 2 man, welcome in any group because of his great party and governmental wisdom and the fact that he seems to have no desire to advance beyond No. 2. Kosygin is a business executive, without special party background.

Frol Kozlov, 56, used to be considered in that group as well, right at the top under Khrushchev. But in the last two years he has suffered two heart attacks and a stroke. His name still is included among members of the presidium, but Kozlov has Khrushchev ones designated as his successors evidently is out.

The man likely to succeed Khrushchev is Brezhnev, if the change comes now. He is technically chairman of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet, or parliament. That makes him president, or chief of state. Moreover, some months back he got an important job in the party secretariat. That was a big step toward leadership.

Khrushchev, now 70, still is very much the man at the top and though a couple of years back he told a Young Communist League gathering that he couldn't expect to go on forever, nobody expects him to opt out voluntarily. He still seems to have as much vigor as any of the men in the presidium. He seems to show fatigue more clearly and sometimes seems to be taking more care of himself.

CLIQUE READY TO MOVE?

Some observers "abroad believe that the United States are ready to chuck him out for as spectacular a series of failures as the world has seen since Stalin.

They point to:

1. Unsteady farm production.
2. The fight with Communist China.
3. He precipitated the affair of the rockets in Cuba that forced him into a spectacular retreat.
4. He has backed away from his 1958 threat to force a Berlin settlement.

On his credit side, he has reduced tension between the Soviet Union and the United States since 1960, despite the Cuba interlude, and he has removed a lot of police terror from Soviet society.

Here, on the spot, it is strongly doubted by top Western diplomats that Khrushchev's associates are ganging up to oust him.

New Surge in Store for Stocks

By GORDON GRANT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets have taken a rising turn in venturing into the second half of 1964 and also should be prepared and able to accept losses.

SANITY RETURNS

With the realization that many companies with prospects for the Timmins area had no guarantee of success, speculators moved to the sidelines. Sanity returned to the market. Volumes dwindled as people waited for news. They're still waiting.

But while penny mining stocks attracted the most public notice, one analyst emphasized it was basically an industrial market and that was where the real money was to be made.

Since the beginning of the year industrial stocks have been moving ahead and even in the wild trading days they were not completely overlooked.

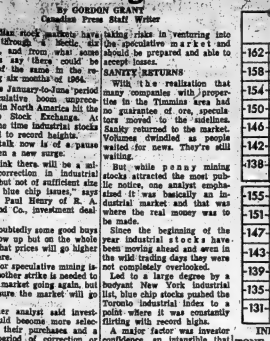
Led to a large degree by a buoyant New York industrial list, blue chip stocks pushed the Toronto industrial index to a point where it was constantly flirting with record highs.

A major factor was investor confidence, an intangible that often ignores pessimistic opinions from market analysts. And despite cautious utterances by many analysts, investors have shown amazing confidence in the future.

During the six months up to June 30 all industrial indexes made up in Toronto and Montreal.

At Toronto industrials rose 156.66 points, golds 2.21 to 132.02, base metals 3.08 to 94.02, Western oils 16.99 to 99.37. The Toronto index was up 17.70 to 146.25.

Volume was 729,705,658 shares compared with 447,239,929 in the first six months of 1963. Dollar value was $1,548,097,435 compared with $1,210,033,371.



In Montreal the industrial index was up 21.3 to 152.5, utilities 14.3 to 137.2, banks 4 to 125.8, composite 17.9 to 147.9 and papers 20.4 to 97.2.

Volume was 172,750,700 shares compared with 85,102,561. Dollar value was $364,603,625 against $483,043,502.

MORE HELP ASKED

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's elderly people need more help from all levels of government, a voluntary welfare organization told the special Senate committee on aging Tuesday.

In a 38-page brief to the committee, the social planning council of Metropolitan Toronto recommended increased government financial and technical assistance in at least 10 different fields related to the care of the aged.

INDUSTRIALS PROVIDE STRONG UNDERTONE — Almost hidden at times behind the hectic trading in speculative mining issues, industrials have been moving steadily higher on the Toronto and Montreal stock exchanges. Graph shows that after a slight breathing spell in February industrial issues climbed sharply, spurred by generally good corporate reports and a bright economic climate. A brief technical correction occurred in June, then the index headed higher again. (CP Newsmap)

Parliamentary Notebook

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The works department has announced it will spend $142,000 this summer to repair and renovate the MacKenzie Tower on Parliament Hill's West Block.

About 100 years ago the man for whom the tower was named offered to build the East and West Blocks on Parliament Hill for just about twice that amount—$60,000. For $60,000 he was prepared to build the old centre block as well, but he said the contracts because his bids were too high.

Alexander Mackenzie, Canada's second prime minister, was known as the stonemason premier. He was also known as an old cold the canniest Scot ever to bite a taxpayer's shilling, a dour man who introduced daily prayers in the Commons proceedings and a no-nonsense works minister who brought rigorous new standards of government contracts

Tenders were called for the building of the original Parliament buildings in Ottawa in 1859, when Mackenzie was a young Reformer member representing near Sarnia, Ont., and just beginning to take an interest in politics.

He became the country's first Liberal prime minister in 1873 and during the first Conservative administration headed by John A. Macdonald he said was beaten over the Pacific scandal—the involvement of the port in Manitoba of financiers of the first transcontinental railway.

Canadian historian Donald Creighton has described Mackenzie's "peculiarly bleak Scottish virtues" as well suited to debate and his angular puritan rectitude in administration."

SYSTEM STILL USED

In his first year as prime minister, Mackenzie's government introduced the system of Hansard still used to record House of Commons debates.

For the few years previous to that, the stenographic record was taken by shorthand writers are hired by the government in power—resulting in a daily report that was full of omissions the speeches of government supporters and to give only a sparse account of Opposition criticism. Ever since, Hansard has had a record of accuracy and political impartiality.

Two years later, as the result of a committee recommendation in 1877, Mackenzie's government introduced the prayer by the Speaker of the House Commons each day before the House starts its sitting.

Now on the Mackenzie Tower started about this time. As his own minister of public works, Mackenzie reported at length on the northern wing then being added to the West Block, and on seeing tower being built on the western front of the building.

It contains the main entrance lobby and a grand staircase of stone, with a large executive office over it. A spiral stairway in one of the turrets gave his office a private entrance. The room now is used by Works Minister Deschatelets and is a lofty, airy, oak-panelled chamber.

The repairs being undertaken include a new copper roof, repointing the stonework and repairing some of the broken windows in the upper storeys. A sprinkler system will be installed to safeguard the historic old structure.

Moise Tshombe Is Now Congo's Fourth Premier

CP from AP-Reuters

LEOPOLDVILLE — Moise Tshombe, 44, was sworn in today as the fourth premier of the Congo since Premier Joseph Kasavubu.

Tshombe's government will have a tenure of between five and nine months. During that time, under the terms of the new Congolese constitution now before the voters in a nation-wide referendum, new elections must be held.

The former Katanga secessionist leader and eight of the 21 members from that province took the oath-in a brief ceremony at Kasavubu's residence overlooking the Congo River.

The 11 - man cabinet, the smallest in Congolese history, also showed a large diffusion of party interests.

In the cabinet lineup he submitted to Kasavubu Thursday Tshombe kept in addition to the premiership took three portfolios — foreign minister, information minister and minister of economic co - ordination and planning.

He chose the strongman of his secessionist regime in Katanga, Godefroid Munongo, as interior minister. Munongo directed police and troops who fought the United Nations so bitterly in Tshombe's campaign to make his copper-rich province a separate nation.

Another key figure in the Tshombe cabinet is Albert Kanjoli, former mulopwe (god-emperor) of South Kasai, rich in industrial diamonds. A former teacher in an agricultural college, Kalonji was named agriculture minister.

In the cabinet, Kalonji had tried to lead his area out of the Congo and went into exile after Adoula crushed his secession.

Followers of the late Patrice Lumumba were allotted the public works, communications and postal and telecommunications ministries.

Goal of the Many Cancer Fighters Development of Means to Prevent Disease

One of the goals of many cancer fighters is the development of means of preventing — not just curing —cancers in human beings. The following, last of three articles, explains what is happening in the U.S. in this field.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—One day you may take a daily pill to prevent major cancers.

And take shots to a vaccine to prevent leukemia, as you do against polio.

When? Optimistically within five to 10 years.

The immediate fact is these are serious goals envisioned now by top cancer researchers. Others are pursuing treatment as objective — strengthening the body's natural defenses against cancer.

And meanwhile there is a good deal a person can do by and for himself to escape the lethal disease.

Discovery is out. Industry spreads the motto on the wall of the University of Chicago laboratory of Dr. Charles Huggins, renowned, researcher who pioneered the role of hormones in treating some cancers.

PILLS DISCOVERED

He and associates have discovered pills that prevent breast cancer in rats.

The rats always get breast cancer three weeks after eating a few milligrams of a cancer-causing chemical, nicknamed DMBA. But if they take the pill a day after eating the DMBA, they are completely protected.

The protector pills are naphthacene and azonaphthalene, in pinpoint amounts, just a few micrograms. Dr. Huggins thinks they work, in part, by coating the DNA of living cells, acting as a kind of shield against the arrow of DMBA.

DNA is shorthand for deoxyribonucleic acid. The genes that control the destiny of cells are believed to be composed of DNA molecules, arranged in precise sequences or code form.

"In 10 years we may have our own cancer protectors, to take in daily pills, to make us immune to cancer caused by hydrocarbons," says the whitehaired, soft-spoken scientist.

PEOPLE SUSCEPTIBLE

DMBA is a hydrocarbon, and humans are exposed to it and to many similar chemicals in tobacco smoke, in fats in some foods, in insecticides. Many specialists believe that it is a key score on DNA, the genetic material, give rise to the wayward genes or cancer.

"In the experimental animal, we have proved that with chemicals we can produce cancer," says Dr. Huggins, for whom the delight of research is "creating a beautiful idea, a simple and then solving it." His happiness comes from the laboratory, and he shuns the competitive work.

"We have many good ideas come from the head of a man sitting at a desk," he declares. "They should come from the hands, from doing, from observing."

A cigarette smoker, he says "known that smoking does cause lung cancer," but takes his own chances. For he also believes small amounts of cancer-causing chemicals in smoke can act as protectors—able to set up a defence mechanism against any particularly susceptible, or gets an overwhelming dose.

Thus he says, one could explain why most smokers don't get lung cancer, and why those in very large and growing numbers do.

MUCH WORK AHEAD

A step has been taken in the DMBA experiments, he feels, toward a principle of protection. But there are years of work ahead to find powerful yet safe chemical protecting agents to shield human cells against chemically-induced cancers.

The vaccine against leukemia, and perhaps other types of cancers, may well come earlier.

"I am confident that cancer viruses of human leukemia will be isolated soon—if it has not already been done," says Dr. Hames T. Grace, Jr., of Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo, N.Y.

"It might turn out to be a very common virus—harbored by most people, but with only a few becoming victims of it," he said. "A vaccine could then be prepared against it."

Such a vaccine could create protective antibodies to prevent the leukemia virus from acting to change some DNA into a cancer-causing gene.

MAY BE COMPLEX

The problem might turn out to be more complicated than that—if, for example, the causative virus was already in an intimate part of the genetic machinery, just sleeping there so to speak until some event stirred it into action.

Even then, there are possibilities antibodies might be induced or created to keep that bit of the DNA we gene from ever acting up, and causing leukemia or other cancers.

If some does cause leukemia, there is absolutely no evidence that it is contagious, ers are pursuing treatment on to other persons, says Dr. Sidney Farber of Children's Hospital in Boston. Only a very, very percentage of people ever develop leukemia. Leukemia or other forms of cancer are not known to be catching, but all present evidence.

Most people never get obvious cancer, of any kind. The purple really is why a rather small percentage is victimized.

Part, at least, of the answer could lie in natural body defences.

EVERYONE GETS CANCER?

It has been suggested that almost everyone starts getting cancer once or several times during his lifetime. But natural defenses keep most of them from the few cancer cells before they become irreversibly independent and just keep growing and growing.

Natural defences could explain why only a few of persons with proven cancer undergo spontaneous cures. Medical authorities have gathered an international list of about 130 such cases of "spontaneous cure."

Something aborigine goes amiss once a cancer takes hold.

One idea is that the patient's defensive or immune mechanism becomes deficient in some way.

Another is that the cancer itself produces some chemical agent which depresses the immune reaction, or helps it to resist the "foreign" anti undesirable.

LOOKING FOR AGENT

At Roswell Park, Drs John and Ruth Graham, husband and wife team, have begun to narrow down what that kind of cancer-produced sabotaging agent might be. They hope to isolate it.

If they can, then they might find an antidote to the agent. To restore the person's own normal defenses against his own cancer.

And, as a byproduct, the supersensitive cells of cancer (or tissue) might itself be used to help make transplanted or borrowed organs, such as a kidney or liver or gland, take or survive in a person who needs to have one of his vital organ.

Thus on many fronts goes the struggle against cancer, by literally thousands of men and women hunting for and only then finding clues to the great puzzle.

Americans Like to Sweeten Job of Political King-Making With a Touch of Laughter

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Flip the pages of history and you will find the American system of picking a presidential candidate variously described as crude, vulgar, grotesque, hilarious and gaudy. Americans like a sweeten the solemn job of political king - making with a touch of laughter.

Yet because the circus atmosphere of the political convention, with its bands, buffoonery and noisy demonstrations, and rites of tradition-bound procedure, accepted by the multitudes without the need for acted law or the threat of police enforcement.

In four days of wheeling and dealing, wrangling and speech-making, the destinies of the Republican party and perhaps the new image will be borne by thousands of dancing placards while the fate of a nation and perhaps of the world hangs in the balance.

Marking 106 years of political life, the 28th national Republican convention opens Monday in the $11,000,000 glass exhibition hall known as the Cow Palace, an 18,000-seat structure.

Through television, millions will watch the 1,331 voting delegates and 1,308 alternates pick the man and the platform to do battle against President Lyndon B. Johnson next Nov. 3.

Opening day will be devoted to selection of various working committees and to whipping up party enthusiasm through the stage-setting keynote speech of Senator Mark Hatfield, 38, of Oregon.

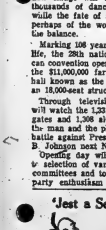
The proposed platform planks will be presented Tuesday and probably accepted without a fight. Yet here may come the first spark of controversy, the possibility of a party revolt. If the platform is shaped to suit the ideas of Senator Barry Goldwater, the moderates led by Pennsylvania Governor William Scranton will be unhappy.

The convention reaches a high point Wednesday as the floor chairman, Senator Thruston Morton of Kentucky, calls on the states for presidential nominations.

Fifty states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands all will figure in the battle. The successful candidate must get the minimum 655 of the 1,331 votes to win. Votes are cast based on the size of the state; the number of its congressmen and the size of the Republican vote in that state in the last election.

Favorite sons have been pledged to one candidate or another—to Goldwater or to New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller, to former ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and others through the state delegations. Before the primaries, held earlier this year.

At the end of the first round of balloting, Morton will call on the states to say whether they want to change their vote. This will be the climactic moment of the bandwagon, the scoring by some states in the first roll-call voting is swinging towards some specific candidate and they betten climb aboard. After consulting with his delegation, the state vote is being switched in favor of the leading candidate.



BILL PASSED

OTTAWA (CP—Legislation to extend Canada's coastal fishing limits to 12 miles from three was given final approval Thursday in the Commons. It went through its third reading without debate. It already has been approved by the Senate and the final stage will be royal assent.

COPPER STRIKE BOOSTS VOLUME — Unprecedented trading in speculative mining issues following news of a major base metal strike in the Timmins area in late spring made the share trading total for the first six months of the year one of the biggest on record on the Toronto Stock Exchange. With the penny mining stocks getting most of the action, more than 739,000,000 shares were traded — approaching the yearly totals for 1962 and 1963 and keeping pace with the record year of 1955, when more than 1,500,000,000 shares were traded during the uranium boom. Fairs Will Discuss New Grant System

OTTAWA (CP) — A meeting with representatives of Class A and Class B fairs is scheduled later this year to discuss a new formula for grants, prizes and other federal aid, Agriculture Minister Hays said Thursday in the House of Commons.

Mr. Hays said he already has talked to representatives and will meet them again shortly after the Canadian National Exhibition, Ont.

He was replying to Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) about re-establishing the federal grants for Class A and Class B fairs cut off in 1962 during the austerity program then.

Mr. Hays said a pilot project is under way to have livestock exhibits emphasize utilitarian values in the prizes.

After the western fairs, he and other matters would be discussed.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

Down Boston way where they used to speak of the Lodges, Cabots and the Almighty in the same breath, baseball-minded moppets and oldsters, too, mention the name of the "Monster" in some sort of homage awe.

The "Monster" is Dick Radatz, a hulking six-foot-six 258-pound relief pitcher of the Red Sox. Boston schoolboys rate him fourth behind the Kennedys, the Tea Party and Paul Revere in their selection of topics for historical essays.

The movies and television have screened chimpanzees and other animals in baseball roles, but Radatz comes closer to an octopus in action when he is on the mound pitching "Serve" for the Bosox.

His arsenals his huge frame into a twisting mass of arms and legs in the windup. Then an arm shoots sideways out of the whirling mass and the ball blasts plateward like a bullet.

Professional baseball players always ready for a gag, practical joke or a bizarre nickname were stumped when they tried to select a non-de-baseball for the big guy. They tried "Horse, Elephant, Jumbo, Moose," but none seemed to fit.

Then one day when the Red Sox held a slim lead going into the seventh inning, Manager Johnny Pesky gave orders for Radatz to warm up. A coach picked up the dugout telephone, called the bullpen and said "Assembly the Monster." Radatz has been the "Monster" ever since.

Radatz got his chance with Boston when the Red Sox bullpen started to present problems. Previously he was with Pesky and Seattle with eyes on a major league berth. In an exhibition game he pitched five scoreless innings and struck out eleven.

Afterwards Pesky called the then Manager Mike Higgins of the Sox and the decision was made to send Radatz to the Boston bullpen.

When Radatz was told, the burly bloke snorted, "A relliefer? What the ball do I want to be a relliefer for."

"Because the Red Sox need one—and that's the only way you'll make the club," he was told. "That's different," said Radatz.

He reported to the Red Sox for spring training in the spring of 1963 and when told he would get the minimum salary of $7,500 remarked, "I don't care if you give me only five bucks as long as you take me to Boston with you."

Some of his 1963 performances were classics. In Washington he struck out five of the six men he faced. During one four-game stretch he whiffed 17 men in eight innings. He struck out the side in the ninth inning of his first game in relief—a 6-5 win over New York, then was the second game by pitching four scoreless innings. In early September he pitched nine innings of relief against the Yanks there giving up one run, seven bingoed whiffing nine men.

By the time the 1963 season was over, Radatz had appeared in 63 games, won nine and lost six, all in relief, struck out 144, walked only 40 and compiled an earned-run average of 2.52.

Last year by mid-season he had a fantastic earned-run average of 1.00. In May and June he ran up a streak of 33 straight scoreless innings.

In his rookie year Radatz was the best relief pitcher in the American League. Everything he did well then, he does better now. His fastball is faster, his slider more deceptive, control sharper and his confidence greater.

Manager Johnny Pesky thinks that before the "Monster" retires he will be the top relief pitcher of all time. And many other experts feel the same way about the 27-year-old star.

Radatz, you will recall, pitched superbly in the All-Star game, but threw the gopher ball to Johnny Callison in the fateful ninth that won the tilt for the National Leaguers.

US Olympics Rowing Trials

Semi-Finals Are All Set

NEW YORK (CP)—At the fields for the semi-finals of the U.S. Olympic rowing trials were completed Thursday with the addition of eight more single scullers and four more eight-oared crews.

A 30-mile-an-hour tail wind with gusts up to 20 lashed a chill rain at the backs of scullers in the repechage, or second-stages, heats but enabled them to better times than those recorded by the winners of the opening trials Wednesday.

Washington University's varsity and junior varsity eights qualified Thursday at Orchard Beach lagoon for the semi-finals. Another eight that qualified was a composite college crew representing Laconia, N.H. Rowing Association.

California and Harvard, the Vesper Boat Club's No. 1 crew of Philadelphia and Yale were able to sit it out Thursday while the first day's losers battled in four wearier heats for a second chance.

The first two eights in each of today's semi-finals go into the four-crew final Saturday with a trip to Tokyo as the prize. The first three in each semi-final heat in the sculls go into the six-man final, also Saturday afternoon, for the honor of representing the U.S. in the Olympics.

HAD BEST TIME

The best time of the day was turned in by Lacoma (about 14-miles) Olympic distance. This day was the Washington Jayvees' six minutes, 13.2 seconds. The Washington Varsity was clocked in 6:17.5, Lacoma in 6:17.8 and Detroit in 6:21.5. Lacoma's winning time Wednesday, the best of the day on a calm, hot morning, was 6:22.4. Harvard rowed the distance in 6:24.2.

David Hurst In Tennis Semi Finals

TORONTO (CP) — Dave Hurst of Belleville, Don Young of London and Fleming Dunn and Mike Zimmerman, both of Toronto, all moved into the semi-finals in the under-18 division of the Toronto public parks junior tennis championship Thursday.

In the boys under 18-quarter finals, Hurst defeated Don Wilson, Toronto, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4. Mike Zimmerman, Toronto, defeated Bart Simmons, Barrie, 8-1, 6-0.

POIRIER SIGNS

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian hasfback Joe Poirier and Ottawa Rough Riders, after weeks of dickering, have settled their contract difficulties. The Eastern Football Conference club announced today that Poirier, a defensive star with centre Jerry Selinger, halfback Gene Gaines and Mike Blum, tackle Bill Sliekaruk and guard Marv Bevan.

ST. ANDREW, Scotland (CP-AP) — Tony Lema took the halfway lead in the British open golf championship Thursday with a brilliant 68 to go with his 72 for 141.

At his heels were Harry Weetman of England at 142, Christy O'Connor of Ireland and Bruce Devlin of Australia at 144, and Jean Garaialde of France at 145. Others stretching behind included lefthanded Bob Charles of New Zealand, the defending champion, and Jack Nicklaus, both at 146.

Lema, winner of three U.S. tournaments last month, included an eagle 2 in his round, despite strong winds that swept the St. Andrews Old Course for the second day in a row.

Once quoted at astronomical odds, Lema now is a 9-to-1 favorite to capture the £1,500 title that actually is worth about $100,000 when fringe benefits are taken into account.

"I ditched my wedge and ran my seven iron," Lema said Thursday, explaining his performance.

JONES LEARNED

That was the advice Nicklaus took Bobby Jones five years to learn about the 6,926 - yard course known as gold mine.

Lema's mastery of blustering gales and all the idiosyncrasies that make up the Old Course fascinated the Scots Thursday. He had played it only once, actually, but an 18-hole round plus seven holes of practice Wednesday gave Eight - time Whitemarsh, Pa., tournament that ended Sunday.

Many golf players have been destroyed by the North Sea winds of the last two days. They blasted through the 72nd green both nine strokes off the pace.

Lema's 68 was the first round below 70 since the tournament started.

With the wind at his back Lema rounded a drive at the 312-yard 12th hole on the green and sank a 25-foot putt for an eagle. He had birdies at the fifth, sixth, ninth and 14th holes. Pars at the nine holes on Thursday was chalked up by Malcolm Gregson, 30-year-old British pro who shot a two-under-par 70. But with his first-round 78 his total stood at 148. HAS 71

Weetman, the No. 2 man, added a 71 to his opening 71 that looked as if it alone would stand for the halfway lead. But Lema, starting toward the end of the group, turned in the best.

The field Thursday was trimmed to the low 45 scorers for today's final 36 holes, with 153 the cutoff point.

Of the eight Americans in the field, five remained in competition. As well as Nicklaus and Lema, they were Arnold Palmer, Sanders had 151 and Phil Rodgers, who lost in a playoff last year, had 153.

Joyces Clash With Cannifton Here Tonight

Playing their best ball of the season while whipping Brockville here Wednesday, Belleville Joyces finally took a minute along the same lines here tonight, against Cannifton's Hardrap Hardrap sluggers.

The game is a regular Eastern Ontario Baseball Association senior tilt which was postponed back in June. Belleville Fairgrounds is the place.

Joyces had a battle on their hands against Cannifton last Friday before winning 4-3. But Cannifton spokesman pointed out later that "we left the bases loaded three times and we could have won easily with just one hit in the right spot." Cannifton pounded out seven hits by the name of Dave Lewis was the only Belleville pitching number and made good use of it.

Joyces had a little trouble with Rickettis.

At any rate the visitors will be for revenge tonight and with clubs pimping for first-approaching O.B.A. playdowns the latter should be a good one.

Cannifton also has a home game here Monday, against Little Britain, while Belleville's next game will be against Ajax Merchants next Wednesday, also on their home diamond.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — President John McHale of Braves says that he may sue chairman Wagner Poschenbieb of the Milwaukee County board of supervisors if the latter doesn't reconsider his statement that the Braves are "definitely capable of playing better baseball."

Ont. Pro. Championship

Knudson Tops With 5-Under 67

TORONTO (CP) — George Knudson of Toronto shot a five-under-par 67 Thursday to take the first-round lead in the two-day Ontario professional golf championship, bettering the Bayview course record by two strokes.

Three golfers in the field of 108 Ontario professionals and assistant professionals equalled the former course competitive record of 69 on the opening day of the 36-hole tournament which features a total of $4,000 in prize money. The eight low scorers also gain berths on the Ontario team, which meets Quebec for the two-province title in August.

The trio at 69 were Ken Gindart, 27, and Bob Rose, 28, both of Toronto, and Jerry Magee, 28, of Belleville.

Alvie Thompson, 28, of Toronto grabbed fifth position with a two-under-par 70. Gary Sweetser, 23, and Moe Norman, 34, both of Toronto, also broke par with 71s.

FIVE EIGHTS

Al Balding and George Carey, both of Toronto, Wilson Peterson and Harry Mellon, both of Whitby, Gus Maue of Bolton, Ken Jacobs of Concord and Bob Brown of Unionville, were all bunched in eighth position with par 72s.

Besides regular prizes, an individual prize of $1,000 for each hole-in-one scored during the tournament, is up for grabs.

The defending champion Ontario team meets the eight-member Quebec squad, which will be decided in a similar tournament at Lavaltrie-Lac, Que., July 23-24. The Quebec-Ontario tournament is slated for Montreal Aug. 22 with a total of $8,400 in prize money at stake.

Minor Track Meet At Peterborough

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — More than 900 athletes and coaches will be here Saturday to take part in the central Ontario juvenile boys and girls football boys track and field championship.

In addition to nine clubs from Toronto, athletes will come from as far away as Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Ottawa and Sudbury.

Some performers attending the meet are Astrid Verduyn and Mark Heat of Peterborough; Cathy Chapman of Toronto Mills Club, Bonny Akpata, Pat Wilson and Bob Rothes of Toronto.

Miss Chapman is a former world record for women indoor 80-metre hurdler. Miss Wilson is a Canadian midget girls record set last weekend when she ran the 100 metres in 13.3 seconds in a meet at Hamilton.

British Army Wins Shoots

BISLEY, England (CP-Reuter) — The British Army edged out the Canadian Army to win the United Service Challenge Trophy in a marathon shoot. Wednesday.

The British regulars scored 1,320 points out of a possible 1,400. The Canadian eight scored 1,308 for second place.

The British Army team also won the obstacle course competition, clearing all targets in 42 seconds with 12 rounds left, to capture the Hamilton Leigh Trophy. The Royal Marines of Plymouth placed second, the Canadians third.

Belvedere Nips Cheese

Landscapers Extend Lead

Chalking up their third win in as many nights, Barriage Landscapers opened up a four-game lead in the Belleville Commercial Softball League standings last night with an 11-6 victory over Tar-Hard Daubers.

In another game, Belvedere Hotel defeated Black Diamond Cheese 14-13.

Landscapers took an early 7-0 lead and coasted to the win.

Lawrence Levesque pitched and batted his club to victory. He gave up seven hits while striking out five and walking a pair. At the plate, he slammed a two-run homer and a pair of singles.

Tar-Hard hurler was the Tar-Haar loser, giving up eight hits and fanning a pair. He issued six walks.

Levesque was the only winner with more than one hit. Garry Hannah had a single and triple. Defeated, Red Turner, Jim Sopha and Gord Duff singles.

Don Holroyd added a four-bagger for the Daubers. Hugh Pointer getting a double and single and Donald Moore two singles. Bob Duggan and Latchford had the other safeties.

Belvedere tallied five times in the bottom of the seventh, overcoming three by the Cheesemen in the top of the frame, to get that win. The losers held a 7-0 lead in the second, the winners scored five in the third and held a 5-3 margin in a high-scoring fifth as both teams scored in bursts.

Casson for the winners gave up 13 hits and Hass for the losers allowed 14. Casson walked four and walked three with Hass reversing those totals. Three were also ten errors committed, six by the winners.

Despite the large number of hits and errors, no base-loaded walk forced in the winning run with two out.

Clapp had a four-run homer, double and single for Belvedere, Bryant and Parry also belting homers. McFee, McLeod, Bean and Casson each got two hits, Lucas and Day one each.

Hannah had a homer and single, Douglas a grand-slam homer and Kelly a final circuit blast for Black Diamond. Gibby doubled once and singled twice, Archer got one of each, Cruickshank two singles, Hass and Kellar one.

Rally In Sixth

Juniors Shade Lombanks

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Scoring all their runs in the ninth inning, Ellis Juniors nipped Tweed Lombanks in a 4-3 cliff-hanger here last night that could go a long way toward deciding the S. and D. Softball League pennant race.

Ellis and Trenton now share top spot, two points up on Tweed and each club has two games remaining before the schedule winds up next Thursday. Trenton visits Tweed in the next game on Monday.

Tweed broke open a 3-0 lead in the fourth, the first dent in either club's armor last night, then came the Juniors' winning rally, making it 4-3 — but all was not over.

Lombanks made it 4-3 in the eighth on Gorr's lined homer to left and then got runners to second and third before Healey holeted out to end that threat.

In the top of the ninth, with rain and darkness approaching, a lead-off error and Carleton's scratch hit put men on first and third with none out. Then after Mc-T. LeSage on an infield pop fly struck out Merwin, Gorr grounded to short but the throw was wide and Pete Wessenger came in with the sprawling catch for the final out.

Gorr's double and two errors plated Tweed's first two runs but a double play put out the second.

Moon started the game-winning rally in the sixth when his ground ball evaded two outfielders for his third home run of the season.

Lombanks faltered in the clutch and Weston was safe on a dropped throw. Chatland cracked a double sending Weston to third and that was all for Tweed pitcher Rich Morton.

Elaine Healey came in but Woodie Bonisteel was left loading the sacks. T. LeSage threw into the first in an attempt to force a man at the plate but Ellis scoring on the play for a 3-2 Junior lead. A passed ball made it 4-2.

Bob Ekhier hurled the distance for the victors, scattering nine hits. He struck out seven and walked three.

Morton was tagged with the loss, giving up three runs and six hits. He fanned none and walked none. Healey got one on strikes and also passed one.

Bob Moon had a homer and single, Merwin a double and two hits but struck with a double play single and Wayne Woods singled twice. Larry Soule and Carl Boomhower also hit safely.

Gary Gorr homered and doubled for Tweed and Don LeSage singled twice. Other hits went to Terry LeSage, Ray LeSage, Lorne Carleton, Rich Morton and Don Coles.

Ellis Juniors will travel to Oshawa for a junior tournament on Saturday.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Bobby Reid, a four-year-old trotter from Michigan, captured the featured $1,200 Invitation Trot at the Western Fair Raceway Thursday night.

The gelding, owned and driven by Reid Ballentine of Bad Axe, Mich., defeated a field of five starters to take the mile event in 2:08 3-5 over a track listed as good. He returned $6.80 to win.

Another first time starter at London oval this summer was Demon King, winner in the secondary feature of the 10-event card, a $600-purse pacing dash. Demon King went the mile in 2:05 3-5 and paid $4.20 for the win.

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Intrusion roped to his seventh win in 10 starts Thursday night in the featured eighth race at Greenwood Raceway where a crowd of 3,541 was treated to some big payoffs.

The even-money choice, Canadian Intrusion snapped a string of three successes by longshots, including a $40.40 payoff by Frisco Hilarion in the seventh race.

Owned by Ross and Colin MacKinnon of Owen Sound, Canadian Intrusion, in winning the Junior Invitation, earned $1,000 and increased his seasonal earnings to $5,081, well over the $2,271 mark he had last year when he won but three times in 28 starts.

No Hula Curves For 'Beau' Belinsky

Two-Hit Shutout

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bo Belinsky won't get to Hawaii, but he's returned to paradise.

Los Angeles Angels' controversial left hander sailed home Thursday night with a two-hit, 3-0 victory over Chicago White Sox for his first shutout since Aug. 11, 1962.

Less than a month ago, Belinsky was asking Angels' general manager Fred Haney for a ticket to the beach at Waikiki, where he was slationed last season after a demotion to the minors. Belinsky said the pressure in the American League was too great.

Haney, however, ruled thumbs down on a trip to the land of the hula and suggested the fun-loving Belinsky would do well to let his pitches do the dancing.

Fine, said Belinsky. "But if I'm seen in a light spot, that's my business. No one else's. It's not that I'm not going to take the game seriously. I'm simply going to be loose and relaxed about it."

Since then the 27-year-old southpaw has won three of four starts and compiled an early opening 0.96 earned run average. Over-all, he's 7-4 with a 2.58 era and headed for his best season since he broke into the majors in 1962 with a 10-11 record, including a no-hitter.

Meanwhile, Baltimore Orioles boosted their league lead to 3½ games and added to their astounding record in one-run-games by sweeping a two-night doubleheader from Cleveland Indians 4-3 and 2-1. The Orioles have a 2-1 record in the one - run squeakers.

The other AL games all were decided by one run with New York Yankees regaining second place by defeating Washington Senators 6-5, Minnesota Twins slipping Kansas City Athletics 2-1 and Detroit Tigers edging Boston Red Sox 4-3.

Belinsky was touched only for singles, by Ron Hansen in the fifth and Jerry McNertney in the sixth, and did not allow a runner to reach second base. He got the only run he needed in the fourth inning when Lou Clinton homered off Gary Peters for the first earned run allowed by White Sox pitchers in 31 innings.

Doug Rowell provided all the Orioles' runs in the opener with a pair of two-run homers. Rookie Wally Bunker allowed the Indians only three hits, but two were homers by Leon Wagner and Bob Chance.

In the nightcap, Bob Johnson's double in the eighth drove in the winning run for the Orioles before rookie Sam Bowens won it in the ninth with a two-out single over Jim McGlothlin.

Don Lock's three-run homer shoved the Senators into an early lead but the Yankees tied the score in the fifth and put it out of reach with a three-run eighth. Joe Pepitone's bad-hop single with the bases loaded provided the margin.

The Twins won when Bob Allison and Don Mincher hit consecutive first inning homers off Jose Santiago, making his first major league start for Kansas City. It was Allison's 13th and eighth hit, including a homer by Ken Harrelson.

Dave Wickersham, tagged for two homers by Lee Thomas, needed Larry Sherry's relief help in Detroit's victory but became the AL's first 12-game winner. Gates Brown hit a homer for the Tigers.

Pulls Key Defensive Play

Callison's Arm Wins Squeaker For Phils

By MURRAY CHASE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Johnny Callison has an arm, too.

The National League All-Star batting hero showed it Thursday night, saving Philadelphia Phillies' 4-3 victory over Cincinnati Reds by throwing out the potential tying run at the plate in the seventh inning.

The triumph kept the Phillies 1½ games in front of the second-place San Francisco Giants.

Callison, whose three - run homer in the ninth inning beat the American League All-Stars 7-4 Tuesday, pulled the key defensive play after the Phillies grabbed a 4-2 lead with three runs in the sixth.

Richie Allen's two-base throwing error put Pete Rose on third and Frank Robinson on second with one out. Then Johnson then laced a single to right field.

Rose scored, and Robinson tried to do the same. Callison, however, fired the ball to catcher Clay Dalrymple, who nailed Robinson for the third out.

In other National League games, the Giants whipped Chicago Cubs 9 - 4, Milwaukee Braves defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 11-5, New York Mets nipped St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 and Houston Astros edged Los Angeles Dodgers 6-5.

TSITOURIS TAKES LOSS

John Tsitouris was the victim of the Phillies' winning rally allowing three run-scoring singles on first pitches. John Edwards homered in the fourth of winner Ray Culp, who evened his record at 6-6.

The Giants rapped 16 hits, including a solo homer by Willie Mays in the first inning, his 25th, and Willie McCovey's two run homer in the sixth.

San Francisco starter Jack Sanford was forced out in the second inning after Chicago batters drove two balls off his right arm.

The Braves gave Warren Spahn nine runs in the first three innings, but the 43-year old southpaw failed for the 11th time to pitch his first complete game since May 10. Spahn now 68, was lifted in the sixth after walking the first two Pirates.

Ed Matthews triggered a five-run first inning and a three-run second with singles and homered in the third. Bill Mazeroski and Gene Alley homered off Spahn in the fourth.

Frank Thomas hadn't played since May 21 when he came to bat as a pinch hitter with one on and two out in the Mets' ninth. He celebrated his return by hitting a home run off Curt Simmons that wiped out a 3-2 deficit.

Houston also came from behind against the Dodgers, scoring four runs in the ninth. Nellie Fox' two-run single climaxed the rally and deprived Don Drysdale of his 12th victory. Jerry Grote hit a two run homer for the Colts.

Foxboro Nips Concretes 5-4

A timely hit by Gerry Mann in the 8th inning after two were out drove in the winning run and gave Foxboro a 5-4 victory over Plaxy's Concrete in South Hastings baseball.

Foxboro led 3-1 going into the top of the 7th when an error and three doubles gave Plaxy a 4-3 lead which they held till the bottom of the eighth.

Dickey pitched the victory, giving up six hits, striking out six and walking four.

Cole, with Culp in the 6th, toiled in defeat. They were nicked for 10 hits, struck out five and walked three.

Reynolds and Young each had three hits for the winners while Mann, Charlton and Belanger had two each. Skelly and Babcock also singled.

Urch, Clapp and Harvey had a double each while Empey, Petrie and K. Forsythe had a single each for Plaxy's.

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD
Four-Time Winner of the Masters

A GOOD DRILL TO SAVE STROKES

You don't have to drive all the way to the course or the driving range to get in some worthwhile practice. All you need is a backyard and some balls and a normal-sized backyard.

One of the best ways to save strokes is to instill a highly developed sense of feel and accuracy on your short shots. Once you develop the skill and confidence needed to land a short shot on, say, nearly a pre-determined spot on the green, you will find yourself one-putting many greens that formerly required two.

Just practice in your backyard, trying to drop short shots into the bucket. You may not "sink" one on the first time out, but I guarantee you'll notice an improvement in your short game the first time you play a round at the course.

Hevenor Remains Man To Beat

By W. R. Wheatley

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Canadian Golf Association's senior golf championship swings into its final 18-hole round today and the man to beat is George Hevenor of Toronto.

The 59-year-old golfer came out of Thursday's second round with a three-stroke lead despite some fuzzy putting that had him nervous and jittery for a spell. He managed to get down one birdie in four holes and produced a five-over-par 77 to put with Wednesday's 74 for a 151 total.

Out of Thursday's play a new contender emerged in Romeo Vitale of Sudbury, who shot a 75 and goes into the last round of the 54-hole tournament with 154.

Tied for third place with 158 were C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London, Ont., and Herb Thorp of Montreal. The veteran Sandy's 78 clipped two strokes off his opening round. Thorp rallied even more strongly in posting a 76 beside his first-round 82.

Hevenor was winner in 1962 and the man who dethroned him last year, Bill Martin of Brantford, was well back with rounds of 79-85 for 164. Both previous wins by Hevenor and Martin came when the tournament was at match play.

LEADS CLASS D

Norman Falkner of Toronto, who stardily walks the course despite an artificial right leg, leads the class D contingent for golfers 70 years or older. Falkner has put together two rounds of 89 for a 178 total, five strokes better than James Wagstaff of Toronto. Wagstaff has rounds of 94-90.

The championship is not restricted to any age class, but there will be prizes for winners in each.

Hevenor leads the A group, 25 to 59 years inclusive, with his 151. Somerville leads the B class with 158 and Ben Merwin of Sudbury the C group with 163.

Ontario has a seven-stroke lead over Quebec for provincial team honors — the only two provinces with enough players to return which four low scores are to be picked. Ontario's aggregate after two rounds is 631 and Quebec's is 638.

Minor Baseball Results

Barriage Landscapers blew a 6-0 lead in Bantam baseball last night and dropped a 7-6 decision to the Park Dale Ratepayers' crew.

Park Dale fell behind by the wide margin after two innings, but started their comeback with five in the third. The game was halted after five innings by darkness.

Terry McTaggart was the winning pitcher, allowing four hits, striking out four and walking the same number.

S. Ling started and gave way to loser Howard Wark in the fourth. They also allowed just four hits, but struck out ten and walked nine.

Catcher Wayne McTaggart punched a double and single for Park Dale. Larry Moore and Gary "Red" Burnette added the other base knocks.

D. Roper had a double for Barriages, Paul Howe, H. Wark and D. Edgar getting singles.

Saturday's scheduled Peewee game, between I.B.E.W. 118 and Bad Boys, has been cancelled, due to the tournament in Niagara Falls.

Terrell Eyes Patterson

NEW YORK (AP) — Ernie Terrell, like every other heavyweight contender, would like to get the next shot at heavyweight champion Cassius Clay. But the gangling Chicago boxer said today he'd settle happily right now for a crack at ex-champion Floyd Patterson.

The No. 3 contender will risk his chances for advancement tonight when he faces light-heavyweight contender Bob Foster of Washington, D.C., in the 10-round fight at Madison Square Garden.

Winner of 16 straight, the 206-pound Terrell is rated a 2-to-1 favorite over the 181 - pound Foster, who has won three straight by knockouts.

Terrell's record is 23-4, including 15 knockouts. Foster has 24-3 record, including 20 knockouts.

PATTERSON NAMED

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson, former heavyweight champion from New York, was named Fighter of the Month today by Ring Magazine.

60 Riders Sweat It Out

Leafs Club Red Wings, Bisons Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons can hardly wait for the first pitch at Toronto's Maple Leaf Stadium tonight. Nothing has gone right for them since they swept a four-game International League series over the Leafs last weekend.

The Bisons bade an unfond farewell to Syracuse Chiefs Thursday night, committing three errors and losing manager Whitey Kurowski after a seventh-inning rhubarb as the Chiefs thumped them 8-1 to hand them their fourth straight setback in their own park.

The Leafs approached the Buffalo series on a happier note, clubbing 17 hits and scoring five unearned runs on the way to a 9-3 victory over Rochester Red Wings. Atlanta Crackers battled the league-leading Jacksonville Suns 8-1 and Columbus Jets outlasted Richmond Virginians 8-7 in the other games played.

The shaky Buffalo infield and a pair of home runs by Mack Jones and Ron Northrup were all the support right hander Cliff Adams needed to pitch the Chiefs within two games of the Suns, who fell apart against tail-end Atlanta after committing three errors in the first inning.

Ron Piche, the Leafs' right hander from Verdun, Que., picked up his seventh victory in nine decisions when a bad throw by losing pitcher Nels Chittum opened the gates for five Toronto runs in the sixth inning. The Leafs also got back at Vern Handrahan, who blanked them earlier in the series, by scoring two runs against him in the eighth.

Frank Herrera's bases-loaded double in the ninth gave the Jets an uphill victory over Richmond after they had trailed 6-0 in the fourth inning.

Batting — Eddie Mathews, Braves, contributed a homer and two singles to Milwaukee's 17-4 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Pitching — Bo Belinsky, Angels, threw two-hitter at Chicago White Sox in 3-0 Los Angeles victory for his first shutout since Aug. 11, 1962.

HUNTLEY-BRINKLEY

Television's most famous two-man news team, Chet Huntley and David Brinkley, came together for the first time in the 1956 United States political conventions.

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Frank Clair watched about 60 Ottawa Rough Riders sweat through the Eastern Football Conference club's intra squad game Thursday night and then said he would wait until today before announcing the first mass desertures from his training camp.

The Whites, staffed by most of last year's defensive club and behind quarterbacks Bob O'Billovich and Mike Moscoff, beat the Red team 33-30.

With fewer than six changes to make from the club that finished second in the big four last season, Clair said he was considering keeping a third quarterback this season to back up first stringer Russ Jackson and O'Billovich.

Ben Charles from the University of Southern California and Moscoff, from the University of Idaho, both promising signal-callers, had their moments in the intra-squad game watched by 9,955 fans.

One ailing stetched détain after the game—halfback Ernie White will keep his job despite a pulled groin that was first feared.

White ran 14 yards for one touchdown, set up a second by catching a 40-yard toss from Jackson and got big yardage on seven kick returns — his specialty last year.

Lost Leg, Not Determination

Amputee, 70, Golfs, Curls, Skates

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Norman Falkner of Toronto on daily golf carts. He would rather walk, and does — briskly. Just for fun he's play two full rounds of golf a day. In winter he curls and flies times skates.

If this strikes you as nothing unusual, consider that Falkner is 70 years old and has an artificial leg.

He was wounded during the First World War and the amputation was above the right kpée. Five months later he was on a skate. Later there followed years of one-leg skating shows throughout Canada and in parts of the United States.

Currently Falkner is well in the lead in the Class D—for golfers 70 years and older—in the Royal Canadian Golf Association's senior golf championship of Canada. He has shot two rounds of 89 each.

Possibly growing out of his determination to skate on one leg, Falkner seems to have something of a philosophy.

'LEARN BY TRIAL'

"You learn by trial and error, and you learn a lot more thoroughly than be being told just what to do. You have to find out for yourself."

Falkner is a member of the Western club in Toronto and his interest in gold has led him into the executive field. He didn't begin playing golf until 1930, 13 years after his leg was amputated.

He is a governor of the RCGA and chairman of the handicap and course rating committees for all Canada. He heads the same committee of the Ontario Golf Association and is on the board of directors.

Little more than a month ago he was fourth in the Ontario wa amputees championship at Kitchener with a score of 94.

Falkner was born on a homstead near Saskatoon. As a youngster he learned to skate and like it.

After outbreak of the First World War he went overseas with the 21st battalion. He lost his leg "in front of Vimy" late in July, 1917.

He went to hospital in England. Around Christmas of the same year he decided he wanted to skate again.

Falkner gamely put on the left skate on a Monday for a practice whirl. At a private skate.

"I fell down and got up; fell down and got up. I used about as much ice as the size of a table top. Tuesday morning I could use as much as the floor of a small room.

"Tuesday afternoon we had the show. About 200 people turned out.

"Oh, I fell, all right. But most of the people didn't know whether these were real falls or whether I was sitting down to rest."

Falkner went on from there to a professional skating career after his return home.

Falkner skated daily four last winter.

"I couldn't go for more than a minute at a time because my leg was bothering me. Not that one, this one; my good one."

SCORE IN TRIALS

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — American Eagle and Constellation scored their second straight victories in United States trials to America's Cup candidates Thursday. American Eagle ran her over-all record to nine victories against no defeats, beating Easterner by over a 20-mile triangular course on Rhode Island Sound. Constellation won over Nefertiti, making her first start in the current series. Columbia was idle.

REPORTS ON DUCKS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Bulk of the western waterfowl crop this year will be produced in Manitoba and in the eastern and northern parklands of Saskatchewan and northern Alberta, Ducks Unlimited (Canada) reports. Over all production should be on a par with 1963 if present conditions continue and there is significant reseeding by drought - displaced Prairie birds," the private conservation says in its fall survey.

Ratings About As Popular As Ants at a Picnic

Arthur C. Nielsen Jr., is president of the A. C. Nielsen Company, the market-ing research organization whose rating of U.S. television programs are the yard-stick by which is measured the life span of most pro-grams. In the following col-umn for vacationing Cynthia Lowry he explains briefly the ratings process.

Written for AP
By ARTHUR C. NIELSEN Jr.

NEW YORK (AP) — I know that ratings are about as popu-lar with some television view-ers as ants at a picnic. If I need to be reminded, I have only to read my mail.

Each season dozens of letters ask why Nielsen took a favorite program off the air. Last year's show, Going My Way, which starred Gene Kelly is a good example. Many people wrote to say that this kind of wholesome television series deserved to continue — adding that any sys-tem that would give a low rat-ing to a fine show like this was absolutely wrong.

Writing to say how you feel about a program makes sense and we plan the letters on to the proper network, but the let-ters point to a widespread mis-understanding of what a rating is.

A television rating tells you only one thing: The estimated number of families watching a program.

CAN'T GIVE RATINGS

Often letters ask us to please give a show a good rating. We can't give a particular show a good rating because this is be-yond our power. Nielsen doesn't decide the ratings. Viewers in our sample audience do when they watch—or don't watch—a program.

All network shows are rated by our electronic measuring de-vices, similar to your gas me-ter, or electric meter. When the set is turned on, our instrument measures the time and channel. The rating of a program is de-termined by projecting from that sample audience the total number of homes view it.

Reaching large audiences is important to the continued suc-cess of television. Ratings re-port how large a program's au-dience is. But other considera-tions are important, too. Pub-lic-affairs programs, for ex-ample, are judged more on con-tent than on the basis of au-dience size.

Wooler

WOOLER — Mr. and Mrs. David McColl of Toronto who have been spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry McColl are leaving on Wednesday to spend seven weeks in the Old Country.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanveal of Trenton were Sunday guests of their son, Mr., Fred Vanveal, Mrs. Fred Vanveal and family.

Mrs. Lloyd Dorland is spend-ing a week with friends camping at Fenelon Falls.

Mr. Pete McColl of Bancroft, spent Sunday with his aunt, Mrs. Gladys Herrington. Mr. and Mrs. Ian McColl of Belle-ville, also called on their aunt, Mrs. Herrington.

Mrs. Cyril Pelster and child-ren of Ottawa are spending the holidays with her mother, Mrs. Grace Crews, while Cyril is at-tending summer school in To-ronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Don White and family of Peterborough, spent a few days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elgin McMaster.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gra-ham and family spent Sunday at Bear Lake.

Robin, May and Randy Hag-gerty are attending boys' camp near Madoc.

Mrs. Vera Teal entertained Kay Conrad of Kingston, and her mother, Mrs. Mabel Con-sul of Trenton; also Mrs. Gladys Herrington, and Mrs. S. L. Terrill on Saturday even-ing.

Shapely Barbara Nichols One of Best Cooks in Town

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Take good look at shapely Barbara Nichols. Would you believe this bundle of sex appeal is one of the best cooks in town?

Barbara lives alone in a three-storey apartment off the Sunset Strip. She does all her own cooking.

"It's really the thing I do best," says Barbara. "But no one will believe it until they try it."

Often she invites her dates over for home cooked meals but she usually gets the same an-swer: "Honey, let's eat out."

"Somehow, they take one look at me and think I'm going to poison them — or something," she said.

Miss Nicholas, 30, has devel-oped her culinary talents over the years, occasionally picking up recipes from her boyfriends.

She has dated a number of men over the years, including Armenian playwright William Saroyan.

"Bill likes my cooking very much," said Miss Nichols. "I learned many good Armenian recipes from him."

Most of her favorite dishes are of the exotic variety featur-ing French and Italian cuisines. But her repertoire also includes wholesome Anglo-Saxon dishes.

Miss Nicholas said: "I have never dated a chef yet—maybe I will one of these days, I'm always willing to learn."

Girls who look like Barbara just don't go with the kitchen image. Most of her roles ex-plain why. She usually plays a showgirl or a stripteaser, or something that exposes her curves.

Queen Charlotte Islands Open Season Deer Country

By BRUCE LEVETT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Meat hunters stay home—they don't want you up in the Queen Char-lotte Islands.

But if you're a sportsman, looking for a land where it's open-season deer country all year long with virtually no limit on the bag, it's the place for you.

The deer aren't large. They might dress out to 50 pounds or so. But they're plentiful.

Don't get the idea that the hunting is uncontrolled. A hun-ter must have a tag for each deer taken.

But, says Don Robinson, Brit-ish Columbia's chief of game management:

"You can buy as many deer tags at 50 cents each as you have money for. You can shoot and remove the animals from the Charlottes 365 days a year." NOT ENOUGH FOOD

Provincial game officials esti-mate there are about a quarter of a million deer roaming Moresby and Graham, the two main islands of the group that lies 450 miles north of Van-couver off the Alaska Panhan-dle.

A herd that size, with the feed available, can support an an-nual harvest of some 40,000 ani-mals, they estimate. At pres-ent, the harvest is 3,000 deer. As a result, many die a slow death from malnutrition.

Then why the restrictions?

Control is necessary to pre-vent such incidents as occurred a few years ago when a group of hunters drove the logging roads in a truck, firing from the flat deck and stacking up their kill like cordwood.

"The residents won't stand for that sort of conduct," says Ross Fraser, Vancouver realtor who has an interest in one of the two hotels in the islands.

"With a tagging system, we can keep a tight control on who shoots and on how he shoots."

FINE FOR ARCHERS

The deer are not indigenous to the islands; they were planted in the early 1900s. There are few predators to keep the multiplying herd within bounds.

With the deer population esti-mated at about 20 head per square mile, most are taken at a 35-to-45-yard range which makes conditions ideal for arch-ers," Fraser says.

The deer share the towering Sitka spruce jungles with a few black bear and elk and hunters usually go for mounds, geese and brant within season.

Fishing is a year-around pro-position, with steelhead available in the winter; cut-throat and rainbows and Dolly Vardens in the spring; blue-backs (small coho salmon) in the summer, and large coho in the fall.

A 5-passenger aircraft puts down once a day at Sandspit on Moresby, the southern island. The fare is $72 round trip from Vancouver.

You can take out 100 pounds on your ticket. Anything above that costs 11 cents a pound or $8.55 for a hundred pounds.

And don't worry about the fame or fish spoiling on the trip out—that 450 miles to Van-couver goes by in one hour and 40 minutes.

Jones Is Best Young Singer In Long Time

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Most singing sons of famous singers have trouble carrying a tune in a shopping bag.

But Jack Jones, 28, is the best young singer to come along in recent years. He's got this year's Grammy Award from the record industry to prove it.

Surprisingly few people know that he is the son of Allan Jones, the famed MGM singing star who used to share Jean-nette MacDonald with Nelson Eddy.

Says Allan: "Jack's made it on his own. When he was going through school, he used to play Frank Sinatra's records instead of mine."

Unlike Frank Sinatra, Jr., the younger Jones shares no simi-larity in singing style with his father.

Allan was operatically train-ed. Jack is a Sinatra-like bal-ader.

The other night at his opening at the Slate Brothers, young Jones sang his father's trade-mark song, "Donkey Serenade, from The Firefly which Allan made with Miss MacDon-ald.

Twice during the song, young Jones' voice cracked.

"It would have to happen on that number," he laughed. For-tunately, his father wasn't in the club at the time. "I usually can sing it, but not as well as dad."

But composer Jimmy Van Heusen gives Jack credit for writing this year's best song Academy award for Call Me Iz-responsible, a van Heusen-Sammy Cahn song.

"Jack outsold Sinatra two to one on the number," says van Heusen. "And you know I'm not kidding because I'm one of Frank's best friends."

Sinatra, too, is a Jack Jones' fan.

"He may have a pop style," says Frank, "but he has his father's pipes. There's some-thing to be said for gabetics."

Jack mostly plays the clubs, but has done some acting. He has added heritage there. His mother is actress Irene Hervey.

Australian Tennis

Emerson, Stolle Back In Fold

MELBOURNE (AP) — Aus-tralia's hopes of regaining the Davis Cup from the United States in September took on a rosy hue today.

Roy Emerson, the Wimbledon champion, and Fred Stolle, the Wimbledon runner-up, were re-instated by the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia after a tense closed meeting.

The action qualifies Emerson to play for the Aussies in their North American Zone Davis Cup match against Canada in Montreal a week from today. Stolle will not play against Can-ada, since his name was not submitted to the Canadian As-sociation within the required 10-day limit.

Emerson had asked for rein-statement several days ago and Norman W. Strauss, president of the LTAA, explained that "Davis Cup captain Harry Hop-man took the precaution of in-cluding Emerson's name on the team when he submitted to the Canadians in the hope that the ban would be lifted in time for him to play."

Strange said a cable request by Stolle for reinstatement had been received only this morn-ing. Emerson and Stolle, along with several other Australians, had been suspended for playing in foreign tournaments before March 1 without permission.

SWAN SIGN GRANDE PRAIRIE, Alta. (CP)—A 10-foot-high steel-sup-ported model of a trumpeter swan—this city's emblem—is to be raised at the north end of the town at a cost of $800. The city adopted the emblem after a flock of the birds feasted on a nearby lake.

SCOOTERS WANTED SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)— Mayor Armand Nadeau wants a female scooter brigade to re-lieve Sherbrooke police of their tasks as issuing parking tickets and directing traffic — system similar to that in effect in Ot-tawa. City council here has yet to make a decision on the plan.

AT THE PARK — In the Dead of Night — Vincent Price ter-rorizes Debra Paget in scene from American International's newest Edgar Allen Poe thriller, "The Haunted Palace." Fine color and Panavision shocker, opening Monday at the Park Theatre, also stars Lon Chaney for its first Belleville show-ing.

Executives Howled Down By Pickets

TORONTO (CP) — A picket-line incident involving a senior executive of The Globe and Mail resulted in a $10,000 claim against a Hamilton man early today.

W. Ellie International Typographical Union (CLC) pickets marched in a line at the rear of the newspaper building, a group of the newspaper's executives, including James L.
Cooper, vice-president and editor-in-chief, and Earle R. Richards, secretary-treasurer and personnel manager, appeared at a loading platform.

They attempted to explain the management position in the dispute which has caused a walkout of compositors of the three Toronto newspapers.

Pickets howled them down and police asked the executives to return to the building. As they did so, one man swung at
Mr. Richards but missed.

Police charged Harry Collins, about 30, with creating a disturbance. He was released immediately clear whether he was a member of the ITU.

CITY OF BELLEVILLE — LOCAL IMPROVEMENT NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE THAT:

1. The Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville intends to construct as a local improvement the following watermain together with service connections as required by the individual owners,
AND intends to specially assess a part of the cost upon the lands abutting on the work and the balance against the Corporation at large as follows;

Street	From	To	Estimated Cost	Corporation's Share	Owner's Share	Additional Owners Share Service Connections	Estimated Cost Per Foot Frontage	Estimated Annual Rate Per Foot Frontage	Estimated Rate Per Service Connection	Estimated Annual Payment Per Service Connection
N. Park St.	Existing Watermain 763' North of North at Park Gardens	Existing Watermain at North Park St. & Bell Boulevard	$13,089.00	$1,592.75	$9,612.25	$1,884.00	$3.0914	$0.307982	125.60	12.52

EXAMPLE: Lot with 50' frontage would be assessed as follows:
50'x3.0914 = $154.57 + $125.60 for service connection or a total of $280.17.

If paid over a period of 15 years at 5¼% per annum the annual cost would be;
50'x0.207982 = $15.40 + $12.52 for service connection or a total of $27.92.

2. The Special Assessment is to be paid in fifteen equal annual instalments.
3. Application will be made by the Corporation to the Ontario Municipal Board for its approval of the undertaking of the said work and any owner may within twenty-one (21) days after the first publication of the Notice file with the Clerk of the Municipality his objection to the said work being undertaken and the said Board may approve the said work being undertaken, but before doing so may appoint a time and place when any objection to the said work will be considered.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For July 11

"The wise man controls his destiny . . . Astrology points the way."

Aries (Mar. 21 - Apr. 19): Be conservative where investments, expenditures are concerned. Iron out details. Clear red tape. Consult expert, including one familiar with taxes. Tonight very good for being with stimulating individual.

Taurus (Apr. 20 - May 20): No matter what the odds appear to be . . . you ride today with element of luck. You seem able to overcome obstacles. Aid due from business or marital partner. Money comes from surprise source.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20): Numerous questions tossed in your direction. You don't have to know all the answers. Your willingness to help is what impresses. Obtain valuable added hint from today's Aries message.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22): Many well - wishers create atmosphere of joy. But be sure this is not transformed into aura of over - confidence. Remember past resolutions concerning caution in connection with money.

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 22): Tendency exists to "Fight City Hall." This is not necessary if you seek alternative method. Those in authority can be convinced. Your cycle remains high. Take time to prepare thorough outline.

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Get facts straight concerning reports, journeys, attractions which appear "far away." Bring forth sense of responsibility. Realize older individual is on you side.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Emphasis on income, budget, spending and saving. Answer is to complete present project. Don't stop in the middle. Grass only appears greener across the way. Be perceptive.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Take a chance on your own opinions, abilities. Move to the forefront. Lead rather than follow. Make suggestions. Speak your piece in authoritative manner. Higher - ups will now listen!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your instinct for truth serves you well. You are now better able to ferret out the real from illusion. Applies to relations with people — and business dealings.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): One close to you is ultra-cautious concerning project close to your heart. Go ahead, anyway! Much in your favor not apparent on surface. Utilize logic. Store up confidence.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Best to "lie low." Be an observer rather than a participant. Check details, routine affairs. Be especially alert where legal decisions are concerned. Hold off on final decision. Don't go too far afield. Stick.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20): to what is familiar. Solidity ideas. Realize you have many assets close at hand. Not necessary to travel long distances for results.

If today is your birthday . . . you possess great amount of sensitivity, your intuition is highly developed — you could succeed as teacher or diagnostician.

General To&Dcricles: Special word to Leo: Your cycle high, but you encounter opposition. You gain the most by examining arguments. Only then will you be in position to state your own case. Plainly, avoid arrogance!

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

All taxpayers know that the exemption for a child under 16 for whom family allowance (baby bonus) is received cannot exceed $300. When this family allowance is stopped for certain reasons, other than the age limit of 16, the parents will try to claim $550. This larger amount is not allowable as the child is still qualified for family allowance, if the circumstances for its non payment are rectified.

Family allowance may be stopped if the child fails to attend school; takes employment; is confined to an institution or training school by court order. In any of the above cases the parents can only claim $300, because the family allowance payments would be reinstated when the cause for stoppage was eliminated.

A child previously qualified for family allowance, who leaves Canada is not then qualified due to the residence rules. The parents may in such cases claim $550 providing they still support the child during its absence. If the child returns to Canada, family allowance payments will resume as it is qualified from the day of the return.

Should the child return late in the year, the parent may claim $550 providing the family allowance received after the child's return is added to the tax payable. Most taxpayers who try to apply this section of the Income Tax Act (sc. 85C) will add the family allowance received to their own income but this is in error. The add back is done on the line indicated as tax adjustments.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems please enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin for each question you wish answered.

QUESTION: I have sent my son to a school in England. The family allowance was stopped. Can I claim $550 for him?

ANSWER: YES.

QUESTION: My 14 year old son was committed to a correctional institution. The family allowance was stopped. Can I claim $550 for him?

ANSWER: No. He is still qualified for family allowance if he returns home before he reaches 16 years.

Special Events Feature Activities at Playgrounds

Fancy dress parades, scavenger hunts, pirate days and inter-squad softball games have been the order of the day at city playgrounds this week as the summer playground season got under full swing.

Special events have already been held at most of the 23 playgrounds in operation and varied programs will continue throughout the summer.

At one playground, "Pirate Day" saw the kiddies barn out in the most original of pirate costumes, while at others the traditional scavenger hunt has turned up some really accomplished sleuths.

And inter-playground rivalry for softball honors has started out right from where it left off last August.

But it remained for the fancy dress parades to bring out variety ranging all the way from the sublime to the ridiculous. Period costumes and close copies of the latest weird in "topless" dress have all been included.

Playground registration this week at the 23 city playgrounds was just under the 2,000 mark, but playground officials say this would be increased as children return from early summer holidays.

Papers Continue To Publish Despite Strike

Union and Publishers May Soon Resume Talks

TORONTO (CP) — A work slowdown by 900 printers and mailers at Toronto's three daily newspapers went into its third day today, with all papers continuing to publish scaled-down editions.

But there were signs that officials of the International Typographical Union (CLC) and the publishers may resume talks shortly.

Wilfred Healy, a Toronto lawyer acting as spokesman for the publishers, and Robert Monkman, president of ITU Local 91, said in separate statements their groups were prepared to meet Monday morning, as the publishers had suggested earlier, or even during the weekend.

The Toronto Newspaper Guild executive committee held a special meeting Friday night and early this morning issued a statement which Executive Secretary Orval McGuire said was intended to clear up a misconception about the controversial computer jurisdiction, heart of the strike.

The statement said the guild, representing 1,800 editorial clerical, business office and business employees at the three papers, "believes that the ITU should have jurisdiction over computers when they are used to perform work under the jurisdiction of that union."

"The ITU, on the other hand, believes that when computers perform work within the jurisdiction of the guild, the guild retains jurisdiction."

DENIES DISPUTE

Mr. McGuire said there had been unfounded reports of a dispute between the guild and ITU over computer jurisdiction, and Friday's meeting, attended by J. W. Blatt of Washington, a international director of collective bargaining for the American Newspaper Guild, was intended to clarify the matter.

Guild members have been crossing ITU picket lines to continue normal duties, but a spokesman Friday afternoon warned members not to work beyond their normal scope. The guild's basic staff strength could face loss of union membership, which would mean loss of their jobs, because guild membership is a condition of employment in present contracts.

The union's stance notified the mailers' union Friday it will take no damages from that group, a subsidiary of the ITU, for alleged breach of contract. Previously damages from an arbitrator is provided in their contract.

Both afternoon papers, The Star and The Telegram, published Friday with regular formats, although both papers, which are tabloid in shape, were smaller than usual.

PRINT TWO EDITIONS

The Star and Daily Mail printed two Saturday editions, one at 10 p.m. Friday and another at midnight. The Star's 48-page, two-section paper, the first produced after the strike took effect Thursday afternoon. Today's edition showed a marked reduction in the number of typographical errors Friday.

The usual Saturday magazine section was not carried, but the paper said it would be delivered later to subscribers.

Supervisory and other non-union, non - mechanical staff have been operating three newsroom and other production chores normally done by the 900 printers and 300 mail room

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A mass of cool air lies over Northern Ontario and is advancing slowly southward. The leading edge of this cool air will cross Southern Ontario this afternoon and evening accompanied a few thunderstorms. Otherwise, little change is seen for southern Ontario's weather.

Computers Said Threat To Security

TORONTO (CP)—A machine, with a dizzying maze of flashing colored lights, dials and switches, is the focus of a contract dispute between Toronto's three daily newspapers and their printers.

The machine can handle such varied jobs as the processing of bills, making up payrolls and preparing office procedures of any kind. It can also do some composing room work normally done by printers.

It's a computer, know in the business as "The hardware."

The newspapers — The Star, The Telegram and The Globe and Mail—say they must have the computer if they are to stay abreast of the electronic age. The printers, members of Local 91 of the International Typographical Union (CLC), see in it a threat to job security.

Both parties agree that the computer will form a vital part of newspaper operation, but they disagree adamantly on who should control its operation.

WANT JURISDICTION

The union demands that when automated processes are introduced which in any way relate to the setting of type, ITU members must have jurisdiction over the operation. The papers maintain this is impractical because the computer will perform jobs for other departments at the same time it processes composing room material.

Although the computer was not the immediate cause of Thursday's strike of 880 ITU men at the three papers, it remains the major stumbling block to accord. The strike—termed a lockout by the unions—came when the papers introduced new work rules agreed to in earlier negotiations.

At the moment, computers at the papers are set up only to justify tape, a process of spacing and hyphenating words to fit into the desired column width. They do instantaneously what has previously been a relatively-slow job.

Composing room material to be fed into the computer is prepared on punched tape. When the tape is processed by the computer, it is put into an automatic line-casting machine.

The punching of tape for computers is the same as for the teletypesetter equipment used by news agencies. Teletypesetter tape is prepared on a perforator which is equipped with a keyboard somewhat similar to a typewriter. The tape may be used to operate a line-casting machine locally, or for transmission by wire. In this latter case, a "reperforator" at the receiving end duplicates the original tape.

MANY USE TAPE

More than 75 per cent of some 100 daily newspapers in Canada use teletypesetter tape to some extent.

The use of such tape caused Thursday's walkout. Tape use was included in new work rules put into force by the papers, and the ITU refused to handle the tape, in this case Toronto

ARDA May Be Changed

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (C) — Important changes in the Agriculture Rehabilitation and Development Agency (ARDA) are to be considered at a federal-provincial conference here next month or in early September.

Forestry Minister Maurice Sauvé announced the meeting of provincial agriculture ministers in the Commons Friday during debate on the agriculture department's 1964-65 spending estimates.

In a down-to-work attitude that has dominated most of this week's sittings, the Commons sat an extra 25 minutes in committee in order to get through the spending estimates. The estimates are the first of any department approved of this session of Parliament.

On Monday the Commons returns to debate on a bill to implement federal-provincial agreements reached at the financial conferences last November and at Easter.

Charges that provincial governments are using the ARDA program to further their own political ends were made Friday by several Opposition MPs.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said that when ARDA was announced in 1961 by the former Conservative government, it was seen as a major, long-range attack on the problems of depressed agricultural areas. Projects under the plan were to be initiated by the provincial authorities.

"But I feel that the provinces themselves are using ARDA for their own ends and not for the ends which we as a national government decided," he said.

Louis - Joseph Pigeon (PC—Richelieu / L'Assomption - Montcalm) accused the Liberal governments in Ottawa and Quebec of discrimination against Conservative ridings in designating areas to receive special assistance under the program.

Mr. Sauvé, who assumed responsibility for ARDA in March, reminded the Commons that the federal government has nothing to do with the provincial administration of the program.

"If here and there political considerations are affecting the program, I will be the first to correct such situations.

"Political party membership is a condition of employment in present contracts.

The Liberal organization notified the mailers' union Friday it will take no damages from that group, a subsidiary of the ITU, for alleged breach of contract. Previously damages from an arbitrator is provided in their contract.

Both afternoon papers, The Star and The Telegram, published Friday with regular formats, although both papers, which are tabloid in shape, were smaller than usual.

Bedfellows Strange Politicians Running Against Each Other

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—"You can't tell your husband everything, you know," says Mrs. Patricia Milan.

For instance, she didn't tell him she's planned to run against him for a three-ward seat in Flint's non-partisan spring commission election. Edward Milan, 40, a jeweler, the news came as a surprise.

The couple say they have disagreed about some local political issues.

Milan found out about his wife's campaign plans when he went to the city clerk's office to obtain nomination petitions. Later he learned his wife had picked up a set—but the petitions weren't for him.

"Nope, they were for me," Mrs. Milan said, "but it will be a friendly campaign."

THREE'S A CROWD — Or soon will be. The three-and-a-half months' old triplets of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bowler, R. R. 2 Belleville, were crowd-spoilers at Front Street yesterday. The mother is seen with her carriage full of triplet sons, Roger, Raymond and Ronald.

Desperate Scranton Appeals To Republican Voters at Home

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—William Scranton has virtually given up hope he can stop Barry Goldwater by a direct appeal to the majority of Republican convention delegates.

As thousands of workers prepare for the fanfare of Monday's convention opening, the Pennsylvania governor is reduced to the strategy of appealing mainly to the people back home.

His staff is firing off thousands of letters and telegrams, attempting to arouse the people in the danger of Goldwater's nuclear and other policies, hoping this will build pressure on the 1,331 voting delegates to oppose the arch - conservative Arizona senator.

Goldwater triumphantly proclaimed Friday he has secured votes he pledges making more certain he will have a first-ballot victory in the presidential

Erhard Girds for Battle With Francophile Adenauer

BONN (Reuters)—West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard girded himself to do battle with "Gaullist" rebels against his policy of a "big European" co-operating with the United States.

Leaders of the growing revolt against Erhard's leadership after nine months in office were ex - Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, at 88 still powerful as chairman of the ruling Christian Democrat party, and ex-defence minister Franz Josef Strauss, chairman of the party's strong Bavarian wing.

In a press interviews and speeches the two politicians have stepped up their campaign to unify concrete moves toward Franco-German political unity along with any of he other four Common Market countries willing to join.

The intensity of the revolt reflected their express disappointment at Erhard's attitude in talks here last weekend with French President Charles de Gaulle who urged swift action toward unity.

Apparently as a last-minute concession to French insistence that something be done, the chancellor agreed Bonn would formulate new proposals toward European consolidation.

But no new suggestions will then be discussed with France and

Talks on Getting Better Airliner Rights to Start

OTTAWA (CP)—A new, possibly crucial round of negotiations opens in Washington next week on Canada's long-standing bid for more and better air routes into the United States.

Prospects for easy or quick agreement are not regarded here as bright—despite a special presidential report favoring a continental approach to airline services in the two countries.

The talks started last April and ended early in May after what both sides called a fruitful exchange of views.

Several joint working groups were set up to prepare further documentation for the second round, opening Monday.

But there was no indication that the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board or U.S. air carriers share Canada's view that Canadian airlines should be allowed to fly to many more major U.S cities.

Canada is pressing for routes to such cities as Miami, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Dallas.

Parley Moves To Country

By STEWART MacLEOD

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and other Commonwealth leaders are taking a "break" from their blunt-spoken conference this weekend to pass around their views quietly in the serenity of the English countryside.

In different groups, they are visiting the country homes of British Prime Minister Alec Douglas - Home and Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys to chat about what has already been said, and what is likely to be said, at the 18-member conference.

Meanwhile, officials from each delegation will be meeting in London today to tell ideas on the possible formation of a new Commonwealth organization that was variously suggested to the conference Friday as a Commonwealth secretariat, a Commonwealth clearing house and conciliation machinery.

The job of the officials is to determine exactly what is wanted by many of the smaller countries who support the idea —first advanced about 15 years ago by Nigerian Minister Menies of Australia — for a "permanent" organization involving all Commonwealth members.

The suggestions cropped up as the prime ministers turned their attention to the progress of British territories toward independence—expected that, as expected, turned most of the attention on the Southern Rhodesian racial issue.

ENCOUNTER NO TROUBLE

Widely publicized as a subject that could cripple the Commonwealth, the first day's debate on Southern Rhodesia showed no indications of doing that Friday and some Canadian observers were hopeful that the subject would be finished on Monday without any emotional eruptions.

Several African leaders, notably Kenya's Jomo Kenyatta, called for the intervention of troops if necessary to insure that Africans are given a fair voice in government if Southern Rhodesia should gain her independence. The colony, un-

Johnson Orders More FBI Men To Mississippi

Rabbi, Two Others Beaten With Iron Bar

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—The FBI, at the direction of President Johnson, has strengthened its force in this racially-troubled state.

The boost came Friday as FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, who flew here to dedicate new facilities for his agency, said he believed the three civil rights workers whose disappearance last month has baffled the U.S. dead.

The FBI boss said, however, that the search for the trio—was ranked No. 21 at the small east-central Mississippi town of Philadelphia — would continue until "the bodies are found."

Hoover, 69, conferred with state officials including Governor Paul B. Johnson, who has urged Mississippians to comply with the new civil rights law until it is tested in court. He also met with local unit current continued in the state.

At Hattiesburg, hometown of Governor Johnson, three white men—one swinging a heavy iron bar—attacked and beat a white and two Negro civil rights workers. Two Negro girls with the trio were not bothered.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

Police said the two men, one about 60 and the other 35, jumped from behind a truck and began attacking the three whites.

Rabbi Arthur Lelyveld, 51, of Cleveland, who bore the brunt of the attack, was taken to hospital with a deep cut over the right eye and lacerations of the head and right ear. Hattiesburg police ordered a search for the two white men.

The White House had announced Wednesday more FBI agents would be assigned to the state—to remain as long as necessary. Hoover said 153 agents were presently in the state, including more than 100 assigned to the search at Philadelphia for the missing trio — Andrew Goodman and Michael Schwerner, two white New Yorkers, and James Chaney, their Negro companion from Meridian.

Meanwhile, in Atlanta the first major court tests under the new Civil Rights Act appear to be shaping up. Though the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People reports compliance with the new federal law in Georgia has been general in most areas, a Negro restaurant owner faces a federal court hearing and an Atlanta motel is challenging the constitutionality of the act.

Maddox, the restaurant proprietor who twice has turned Negroes away from his eating establishment Friday, he would continue to operate his business on a segregated basis but would appeal to the federal court to serve Negroes. A federal court has ordered Maddox to serve Negroes. A federal court has ordered Maddox to serve Negroes. A federal court has ordered Maddox should not be placed under an injunction requiring compliance with the civil rights law.

Assistant Blamed In Operation

TORONTO (C) — Dr. Kenneth Brown took the stand in his defence Friday and blamed his assistant for injuring the spleen of Patricia Morgan, on whom Dr. Brown operated Oct. 18.

Testifying at his trial on a charge of failing to report Miss Morgan's death to a coroner, Dr. Brown said Dr. A. T. Vargas's "dementia and fear" led to a small tear in the capsule of the spleen.

Miss Morgan, 23, who was operated to clear possible cancerous blockage of the junctures of the stomach and intestine, died Nov. 4. An autopsy revealed death was caused by a surgical nicking left in her abdominal cavity.

Dr. Brown is one of six persons charged under the Coroner's Act with failing to report Miss Morgan's death. One doctor has been acquitted and six other convicted and fined $100.

Dr. Brown is expected to complete his testimony today when the defence plans to call one or two expert witnesses.

Dr. Brown was in charge of the operation on Miss Morgan in Toronto East General Hospital. Dr. Vargs, former senior resident in surgery at the hospital was his senior assistant.

HAD ARGUMENT

Dr. Brown testified he and Dr. Vargs argued because Dr. Vargs thought the older doctor was going to cut the spleen capsule.

"It is his temerity and fear, the spleen was pulled away so that a small tear occurred in the capsule," he said.

He also accused Dr. Vargs of acting "like a Mexican jumping bean" during the operation and of delaying the operation by wanting to pause to study the abdominal interior of the patient.

On Wednesday, Dr. Vargs said Dr. Brown damaged the spleen unnecessarily during the operation. Earlier he had also called Dr. Burns Plewes, chief of surgery at the hospital, who stopped the operation.

Dr. Plewes said under defence questioning Friday that Dr. Brown and Dr. Vargs of 45, had been performing about 30 operations a year without incident. He said he examined the records because of things he had heard, although he had no direct reason to doubt Dr. Brown's competence.

THIRD VOTE POSSIBLE

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa voters, who have twice turned thumbs down on Sunday sports, may vote on the question for a third time in the December civic election. A petition being circulated by a Sunday Sports Committee has drawn 14,500 of the 16 700 signatures required to force voters to put the question of Canada.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Madeleine Foby St. Hilaire, a Quebec City separatist, said French Quebec separatists have finally made English-Canadians aware of the French-speaking population of Canada.

Bared Bust on Chelsea Bus Shocks 18-Year-Old Conductor

LONDON (AP) — Richard Nesbitt, 18-year-old bus conductor, ordered a pretty girl passenger off his bus Friday because she was wearing a topless dress.

As the bus bowled along through London's West End while the girl asked for a six-penny ticket. The conductor was about to give her the ticket when her coat slipped from her shoulders and revealed a topless dress.

"It was most embarrassing" said Nesbitt. Several of the other passengers were embarrassed so I asked her to leave the bus. The girl was furious.

"She took my number and said she would report me to London Transport but I know I did the right thing. She was upsetting the whole bus. It was terrible. I was dig susted.

"I didn't realize then that she had on underneath until the coat fell back, she made no attempt to cover herself up."

A spokesman for London Transport said: "Conductors are told that if an emergency arises which is not covered by ordinary rules they should use their own judgment. If the facts are as stated, the conductor adopted the right course."

Will Operate Muley Saw At Picnic Area

The historic upright Muley saw at the O'Hara Mill Conservation Area northwest of Madoc will be operated Sunday afternoon for the benefit of visitors to the mill site.

The water operated saw will be operated from two to four o'clock in the afternoon.

Future operation of the saw after this weekend will be dependant upon the water supply in the mill pond.

The mill pond is now full but operation of the saw diminishes the supply rapidly.

The O'Hara Mill Area is a popular picnic site, operated by the Moira River Conservation Authority. The 100-year-old mill property was purchased some years ago with the mill pond being restored and the mill rebuilt for its historic interest.

Women Figure Profit Will Pay For Lessons

How much does it cost for a group of 40 children to get swimming lessons?

As far as the members of the Plainfield Women's Institute are concerned, the cost is considerable work—plus the cost of the ingredients for catering to a luncheon.

Yesterday the Plainfield W.I. catered to the lunch at the official opening of the new warehouse addition owned by the Ontario Cheese Producers at Belleville.

"We figure that the profits from the luncheon will just about cover the cost of the swimming lessons," stated one of the mothers.

The 40 Plainfield kiddies have been brought in regularly for swimming lessons at the Kinsmen pool on Dundas St. There is just one more lesson to go.

ANNUAL SALE-EVENT STARTS NEXT WEEK

Ireland's annual Warehouse Sale starts Thursday, July 16th at 9 a.m. The history of this annual sale dates back many years to the time when Ireland's used the Belleville Fair Grounds as their warehouse. Each year the buildings had to be vacated and the surplus merchandise disposed of so as Ireland's could operate through July and August with no additional warehouse space.

Many people will remember the sensational offers of chesterfields, mattresses, dryers, refrigerators, etc. being placed on sale at half price. This year will be no exception. Watch for the many items to be sold below cost to reduce their stock to the proper level and to make room for new fall merchandise.

Playground Activities

OSD

The neighborhood surrounding OSD playground was the site of a scavenger hunt Thursday afternoon. Thirteams participating and a list of 18 articles for which to hunt, ranging from hobby pins to dead flies. The latest-beginning and the smallest team, comprised of Allan Ineson, Terry Pilliston and Doug MacCormack, was the winner, finding all 18 articles within the time limit. Becky Lee, Teddy Howe, Hero Hughes, Marnie Tilley, Melonie May, Michele Fogarty and Vicki Fry were the members of the second-place team. Third-place team had Janice Baisey, Laura Sakovich, Janice MacCormack, Debbie Corbett, Chris Stapley, Dale MacCormack and Bonnie Douglas as members.

Friday, O.S.D. won the Ball Hill 17-4 in an exhibition softball game in which Doug Rashotte had 10 strikeouts.

QUEEN VICTORIA

Special event was Costume Day at Queen Victoria School Playgrounds on Thursday.

Parade morning around neighborhood. Pots and pans made noise to march by.

Judging in afternoon. Done by a mother, Mrs. Cole, and three senior playground members. Winners were: Bennicet, Glen Besma, age 6; best looking, Suzanne Coulter, age 5; most original, Lisa Rose, age 5.

Bubble-gum contest was held, winner being Tony Lantiff. Other special contests were held.

Supervisor — Cathy Cook.

Gas Seepage Touches off Fire, Heavy Damage

Damage estimated at between $6,000 and $7,000 resulted yesterday afternoon when gas seepage from a propane gas stove touched off a fire at the home of O. J. Bertram, 66 Dunbar St., at the rear of Holloway Street United Church.

The flames were confined to the utility room and kitchen of the home, but smoke and heat damage was extensive in other parts of the house.

City firemen answered the alarm with two pumpers and an aerial truck.

The fire started when the 14-year-old son of the Bertram family went to light the propane stove.

Apparently the gas jet had been partially turned on and the gas erupted touching off the fire. The Bertram boy escaped with his hair being slightly singed.

ACTOR WED

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Michael Wilding and actress Margaret Leighton were married Friday in a private ceremony that took most of the British couple's acquaintances by surprise. The marriage was the fourth for Wilding, 51, who was Elizabeth Taylor's second husband, and the third for Miss Leighton, 42, formerly married to actor Laurence Harvey.

Highway Traffic Act Offences Total 666 Since Year Began With 315 Guilty of Speeding

How callous a driver is the Belleville citizen?

While use of the automobile is taken for granted, its abuse also appears a matter of form for more and more drivers.

This appears the predominant theme in statistics for the first six months of this year, released today by Police Chief J. B. McLauchlan.

The hulky file of data just processed shows a round 666 convictions in city courts for Highway Traffic Act offences since the year began.

And the biggest slice of the statistical pie is filled with speeders.

So far, 315 automobile drivers have been found guilty of speeding on streets.

Accidents, there have been a total of 229—have caused property damage of $68,200. The accident rate has been increasing since May.

And besides those charged and convicted, almost as many faulty drivers have been warned on the spot by patrol officers.

Besides those charged we're getting an average of about 80 a month borderline cases being warned on the streets," noted Chief McLauchlan.

One reason for the mounting number of incidents could be that more motorists are coming under scrutiny—thanks to the department's reorganized traffic patrol system.

CONCERN STRESSED

With the emphasis on mobility, the revamped system keeps a constant number of motorcycle patrols on city streets.

Concern of city authorities with the high accident stressed this week to city council. Mayor Jack Ellis warned that a concerted safety commission had decided to extend radar speed-control into the evening hours.

"If necessary police will put radar checks on every street in the city," he informed the council.

But speeding is only part of what appears lacking at the centre of safety-consciousness for too many drivers.

Since January nearly 130 people have been convicted for ignoring stop lights and signs. How many went undetected is impossible to estimate.

However, prevention also has come to play an important part in the drive for traffic safety by the police department. Besides a traffic clinic for the adults, the youngsters are receiving full-time attention.

A stepped-up school program —safety officers lectured to 32 assemblies, for instance — education—has been extended to the playgrounds and swimming pools. So much so, the duty has become a function for a specially-trained officer.

MAJOR CRIME DOWN

While traffic statistics make joyless reading for the conscientious, the situation on hometown crime is brighter.

So far, major crime has virtually shown city police a clean pair of heels. Total property lost by local citizens has amounted to $14,000. Of this, $12,000 went in one fell swoop —when thieves escaped with a truckload of cigarettes from a wholesale warehouse. This left only $2,000 in the burglary pool for all other burglaries and thefts.

It also has been a poor season for car thieves. Of a score reported stolen, all were recovered and "we've more arrests (for car thefts) than we've ever done," said the chief.

Incidentally city businessmen might take note at this point.

Men on the beat have found more than 300 doors insecure on their nightly checks since the year started!

Other statistics might show the officer's lot may not be one-hundred-per-cent happy, it is, at least, varied.

In all, they have received reports on nearly 2,900 occurrences ranging from domestic disturbance to morals offences.

High on the list are the number of disturbances they have been called to sort out — 316 since the year started.

And besides pounding the beat, officers have been driven department cruisers an average of 2,000 miles every month in the line of duty.

Recover Auto Used in Getaway

Toronto police reported this morning that they have recovered a 1955 Buick stolen from the Subway Service Station of Eldon Weese on Highway 33, north of Trenton.

The car was believed used in the successful getaway of three convicts from the Dominion Experimental Farm on Thursday night.

The three fugitives, William Wilson of Toronto, James Mc-Cooeye of Fort William and James Fisher of Hamilton, are still at large.

Obituary

REV. JOHN E. GLOVER

Marmora

Following a lengthy illness Reverend John Ewart Glover passed away in Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday, July 8th.

Deceased was born in Madoc, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Glover, and was in his 77th year. He is survived by his widow, the former Rosie Andrews, one daughter, Mrs. C. A. Mutton (Helen), of Sarnia, one son Vaughan of Marmora, seven grandchildren and one great grandchild, also one sister, Mrs. Harry Love (Florence) and one brother, Wm. Glover of Madoc. One brother George predeceased him this spring.

Mr. Glover was a graduate of Victoria College, Toronto and had served in the Bay of Quinte Conference for 39 years as a beloved pastor, also acting as treasurer of the Conference for 27 years, resigning 2 years ago due to ill health when they came to live in Marmora.

Mr. Glover had ministered on the following charges, Centreton, Seymour, Cambray, Smithfield, Claremont, Hastings, nine years and at Elgin. He was ever ready to assist in filling or absent pastor. Flowers are gratefully declined in lieu of the Memorial Fund at St. Andrew's United Church. Funeral Service, Sunday, July 12th at 3 p.m.

CAR CRASHES like one above on Highway 14 north of Belleville sent seven people to hospital as police reported traffic heavy on all highways.

Traffic Accidents Send Three People to Hospital

Late night and early morning car accidents sent seven people to hospital in the Belleville district—a period police reported highways heavy with traffic and a rash of speeders.

Just before midnight Detector, 75, of R.R. 4 Stirling and Mrs. Karen Martinelli, of Downsview, a self-employed restaurant mother, were hurt in a three-car crash north of the 401 overpass.

Minutes after police and pedestrians had "a narrow escape when an automobile roared down on the scene — its driver apparently aware only at the last minute he was approaching an accident. His car skidded then slewed sideways onto the shoulder as the crowd scattered.

Police say the accident occurred when Mr. Detlor's automobile pulled out to pass a car halted before turning into a service station at Cloverleaf Drive. The impact bounced the Detlor vehicle back into the automobile driven by Rockne Taylor, 5 Craig Street, Belleville.

Mr. Taylor and Carmen Martinelli, the injured woman's husband, were uninjured. The Martinellis, staying at an Oak Lake cottage, were enroute to Toronto.

An OPP cruiser was driving by the spot at the time of the mishap.

Later this morning, four people were taken to hospital after a tire blew their automobile on Highway 401, west of the Trenton overpass.

Police say the driver, driven by Edward Arsenault, of Toronto, skidded 300 feet and rolled over.

A passenger, Norbert Hargott, 47, R.R. 1, Bamberg, suffered lacerations and possible rib fractures. His wife and Mr. and Mrs. Arsenault received minor injuries.

On the Point Anne Lane policed said driver Cecil Cummings, Point Anne, suffered severe head cuts when he lost control of his automobile and it crashed in a ditch.

CLEAN SCENE

HALIFAX (CP) — Highways minister Stephen Pyke hopes that 400,000 blue and white litter boxes, being distributed throughout Nova Scotia will do more than keep the province clean.

Suspect Held After Office Is Entered

A Belleville man released last evening on bail was back in jail hours later — as a burglary suspect.

Thomas Edward Deline, 25 of Murney Street, was arrested after a chase when police surprised a break-in attempt at the Canadian General Electric warehouse on Bell Boulevard.

Deline had just been released on $100 bail on an assault charge. He now is charged with break and enter with intent.

Police say a man took off across a field after being challenged by a police constable. A second man is believed to have escaped.

Cherries Seen On Market For First Time

An abundant supply of cherries was the feature product on the Belleville market this morning.

Mostly Tarts, the offering sold for $1.65-$1.75 a six-quart basket and 40 cents a quart. Some early sours brought 25 cents a quart.

Strawberries and gooseberries were unchanged at 45 cents and 35 cents a quart. A light offering of red currants were 35 cents a quart.

Green beans sold up to $1.25 a basket and 35 cents a quart. Peas were 25 cents; cucumbers 25 cents, cabbage 20-25 cents; radishes three for 25 cents and lettuce 12 cents for leaf and 20 cents for head.

UPHOLDS RULING

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State Court of Appeals agreed Friday that Representative Adam Clayton Powell (Dem. N.Y.) had libelled a 66-year-old New York City widow, but the state's highest court also upheld a lower court ruling that cut the judgment against him to $46,500 from $211,500.

Bowling Notes

A Belleville rink of Mrs. Dorothy Price, Mrs. Jessie Hunter with Mrs. Elsie Humphreys as skip won the women's trebles tournament held in Campbellford on Friday afternoon. Another local rink of Mrs. Anne Avery, Mrs. Millie Smith with Mrs. Betty Vince as skip won two games and were beaten for the top spot by the eventual winners. Another rink of Mrs. Vera McIntosh, Mrs. Helen Coutts with Mrs. Myrtle Smith failed to get into the prize money.

The women reported the greens were in excellent condition and the hospitality of the finest kind.

On Thursday a rink of Mrs. Rita Gettler, Mrs. Rita Lawrence, Mrs. Liz Mascaro with Mrs. Myrtle Smith as skip won the afternoon bowling league score.

Mrs. Anne Avery and Mrs. Rita Lawrence were the tea hostesses for the social hour that followed the playing of games

Son of Hockey Star Hanged While at Play

SOUTHAMPTON, Ont. (CP)—Steven Roth, 8, son of Lyle (Mickey) Roth, former Stratford and Indianapolis hockey star, was accidentally hanged Thursday night at his parents' cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Roth and their four sons had been spending the summer at the cottage here, about 125 miles southwest of Owen Sound.

The boy was found entangled in a rope which was hanging from a tree on the property next to the Roth cottage.

Police said the boy may have been twisted in the rope dangling from the tree, lifting his feet from the ground and letting the rope wind around him as he twisted. His head was caught in a noose twisted in the rope.

New addition to the Ontario Cheese Producers' warehouse in Belleville will mean approximately 40 per cent more refrigerated storage space. The $200,000 extension was officially opened on Friday.

Interior view of cheese grading room in cheese producers' new warehouse extension is seen above. Cheese from all over Central Ontario is sold at Belleville Exchange and graded here.

$200,000 Cheese Warehouse Extension Officially Opened

A new $200,000 cheese warehouse extension which will add approximately 40 per cent in storage capacity was officially opened in Belleville yesterday by the Ontario Chees Producers' Marketing Board.

Federal and Provincial agricultural officials, along with district members of parliament and local dignitaries, along with several hundred other visitors were on hand for the ceremonies.

Following the speech-making there was an official tour of the new warehouse facilities and overhead offices. Lunch was served by members of Plainfield Women's Institute.

Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board chairman, Hector C. Arnold of Campbellford, presided over the official opening ceremonies.

He said that the producers' cheese warehouse in Belleville now represents an investment of over $800,000, the money being made available by the Provincial and Federal governments.

"The quality of Ontario cheddar was unsurpassed and commanded a premium of 18 cents per pound over New Zealand cheese on the world market," he said.

Mayor Jack Ellis said that Belleville was proud that the Ontario Cheese Producers some years ago had decided to build their warehouse in Belleville, and now to increase its facilities.

And government agriculture representatives congratula t ed cheese producers directors for their initiative in improving marketing methods which had done much to increase domestic consumption.

Mr. S. C. Barry, federal deputy minister of agriculture, said there were two segments to Canadian agriculture whose products were unsurpassed on world markets. These were Canadian wheat and Ontario cheese.

Other speakers included K. E. Lantz, assistant deputy minister of agriculture for Ontario; J. M. Hertwick, president, National Dairy Council; Dr. D. B. Goodwille, director of dairy products division, Ottawa; Douglas Alkenbrack, MP, Prince Edward-Lennox; J. L. Baker, Ontario Dairy Commissioner, who told of plans for Ontario's cheese centennial year, and W. E. Sandercock, MLA for Hastings West.

Three Killed In Car Crash At St. Thomas

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Three persons were killed near here Friday when their car collided head-on with another vehicle and burst into flames.

A man, his wife and pre-school-age daughter died in the crash which took place on a two-lane section of Highway 401, nine miles west of here. Police withheld their names.

Four persons in the other car involved were slightly injured. They were treated in hospital here and released. They are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown of Belleville, Miss. and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McCalsin of Rockford. Mr. Brown was driver of the second car.

Both cars burst into flames immediately after the crash. Heavy weekend traffic was lined up for two miles in both directions while firemen fought the blaze.

Truck driver George David Longford of London, Ont., pulled the driver from the second car before it burst into flames.

WANTS SEX EDUCATION

VICTORIA (CP) — Health Minister Eric Martin of British Columbia has finished plans for more sex education in school, churches and homes. Mr. Martin said in an interview Thursday he is concerned about the mounting immorality of teenagers. He said teaching of sex education by clergymen should be stepped up and parents also should not back away from sex education in the home.

Single Rocket Used to Launch Two Stations

MOSCOW (AP)—A powerful single booster rocket launched two scientific space stations into widely differing orbit today, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

The vehicles, Electron III and Electron IV followed a similar launch Jan. 30.

The Electron series is apparently unmanned.

Tass said the two space stations carried instrumentation for scientific research and reporting back to earth. The Tass report made no mention of the size, weight or power of the satellites or the rocket that carried them into space.

Tass said:

"The purpose of the launch is to continue the comprehensive study of the earth's radiation belts, the various kinds of radiation coming from the depth of cosmic space, the earth's magnetic field, and the physical conditions in the upper layers of the atmosphere."

NO RIVAL TO U.S.

At the time of the first launch in the Electron series, U.S. officials said the project did not seem to indicate a challenge to U.S. space shots. Experts in Washington noted that the United States put three satellites into orbit with a single rocket in June 1961.

Tass said preliminary data indicated Electron III was in a lopsided orbit which comes as close as 251 miles to the earth and as far away as 4,365 miles. Electron IV's, orbit was even more extended, 285 miles at its nearest point and 41,076 at its farthest.

The satellites were completing their revolutions around the earth in two hours and 46 minutes and 21 hours and 54 minutes, Tass said.

REVENUES GOOD

VICTORIA (CP) — The British Columbia government collected so much money last year it paid off $17,000,000 of debt and still had $4,000,000 left over, Premier W. A. C. Bennett disclosed Friday that revenue totalled a record $398,700,000, $17,000 000 more than he anticipated in the budget for 1963-64.

FOUR LOVELY DAUGHTERS and son Jay Ross paid family tribute to dad and mother, Mr. and Mrs. "Wicky" Ross, at the banquet honoring Mr. Ross' retirement held at Club Canara last night. They are Lois (Mrs. Hugh McGlashan) Wayne, Michigan; Lorene (Mrs. Max Stein) Belleville; Joan (Mrs. Robert Mitchell) of Rossmore and Jean (Mrs. Barry Harper) of Arvida, Que.

FORMER BASEBALL STAR "Wicky" Ross gets an intentional "pass" from CNR Operations Manager W. Dave Newell at last night's testimonial banquet. The gold pass was tangible tribute from the railroad to former general yardmaster.

J. W. 'Wicky' Ross Honored By Former Rail Associates, Sportsmen on Retirement

James Wilfred Ross will never forget Friday, July 10.

You probably won't recognize the name. Call him "Wicky", dress it up with railway talk and you will know who is meant.

"Wicky" launched himself into well-earned retirement after 49½ years with the Canadian National Railway in a blaze of banquet and tribute glory at Club Canara last night.

The popular general yardmaster of the CNR who retired recently, was feted and honored by upwards of 120 of his friends and associates.

"Wicky" shared the tributes with Mrs. Winnie Ross, recovering from an automobile accident, four beautiful daughters and a handsome son.

And he went home with a lot of popularity and appreciation gifts.

Mr. W. "Dave" Newell, operations manager, representing E. E. Hunt, superintendent of the CNR Rideau Area, presented "Wicky" with a lifetime gold pass.

Mr. Newell also paid verbal tribute and read a letter of appreciation from Donald Gordon, CNR president.

Verbal and tangible tributes poured in from a cross-section of Wicky's friends and railway associates.

And enjoying them with husband and father were: Mrs. Ross, the four attractive daughters: Lois (Mrs. Hugh McGlashan) of Wayne, Michigan; Lorene (Mrs. Max Stein), Belleville; Joan (Mrs. Robert Mitchell) of this city; Jean (Mrs. Barry Harper) of Arvida, Quebec, and the only son, Jay Ross of Belleville.

Bob Ashman, representing the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, presented the guest of honor with a wallet.

Fellow employees presented him with a purse of money and Mrs. Ross with a beautiful bouquet of red roses.

WELCOMED TO RETIREMENT

Among the many verbal tributes was that of Mr. Alex Wilson, former divisional superintendent, who welcomed "Wicky" to the "green pastures of retirement."

Wicky, a former star of the Grand Trunks and National Ontario champion baseball teams was paid sport tribute by George R. Carver, sports editor of The Ontario Intelligencer.

One of his closest associates, Herb Poinier of the Yard Office, added a colorful addition to the tributes as did Ron Messenger, CNR trainmaster.

Lorne Brisbin was the master of ceremonies and did an excellent job.

He recalled the many activities of the guest of honor, recalling Wicky's heroic act in saving the life of a youngster, who had strayed into the path of a locomotive.

"Wicky received a well-deserved award," Mr. Brisbin said, "and is being considered for a Carnegia award. A representative was here a short time ago and his opinion of Wicky was 'a truly remarkable person'."

Mr. Ralph Plumpton of Corby's Distillery, represented the industries of the city.

The banquet and subsequent dance were excellently arranged by Johnny Dall and Al Wardbaugh.

Ladies of the CNRA Auxiliary served a delectable turkey and fish repast. And adding a colorful touch was a handsome "retirement" cake.

"Wicky" spoke briefly in deep appreciation of the honors accorded him. He paid his own tribute to his "fellow workers," recalling the many years he had served with them. Speaking for Mrs. Ross and his family, he expressed sincere thanks for the many spoken and tangible tributes, closing with "I now wish you a warm goodbye."

SHIPS ARRIVE

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Three RCN training ships, carrying 135 officers and men, docked Friday as part of an annual summer reserve training program on the Great Lakes. The three vessels, the HMCS Porte St. Louis, Port St. Jean and Sviatoi, will leave Monday for Goderich, Ont.

The Best Is Bad

A railway strike has been averted.

Non-operating employees of the railways will get the wage increase recommended by the conciliation board. The Federal Government, which means Canadian taxpayers, will pay the shot.

That is, at one and the same time, the best possible solution and a far from satisfactory one.

That judgment is based on some assumptions. One has to assume, for instance, that since a conciliation board recommended the pay increase, the non-operating employees of the railways are entitled to it. And one also has to assume that the railroads were not juggling figures when they pleaded that they could not afford to pay the increase out of present revenue.

Normally when a situation like this arises, companies increase the prices they charge their customers for their goods or services. The railroads, though, are forbidden to increase freight rates, pending government action on a royal commission's report on railroad problems.

A government subsidy to meet the increase in the railroads' wage bill is thus defensible.

But let nobody suppose that what is defensible is always, in all ways, desirable.

The new subsidy is but one of several, direct and indirect, by which railroads are assisted to meet costs which should be covered by the charges they make for their services.

Some time, one presumes, these subsidies will be wiped out and the railroads' costs will be met wholly out of the revenue they obtain. This will involve considerable adjustment in freight rates which will, in turn, affect the costs of a wide variety of goods.

There is no assurance that all the industries which ship their goods by rail will be able to extract a compensating amount from customers. Some may find that competition, from other firms closer to the market, or from substitute goods, will prevent them increasing prices. If they are ruined, they will be able to argue with considerable validity that past subsidies destroyed them.

Subsidies of any kind have a habit of distorting the market. They are like a thumb laid heavily on the scales of supply and demand. Endeavoring to unravel their effect would be a gargantuan task. Not every firm may realize the extent of the benefits it now receives and the seriousness of the consequences of an eventual end of subsidies.

Unless we are prepared to adopt a comprehensive system of governmental controls and to use subsidies deliberately as a means of influencing the production and consumption of goods, governments ought to use subsidies as sparingly as possible and for as short a time as possible.

There are scant signs that this is recognized. Subsidies are used as a last resort, in an unorganized, unrelated fashion. Where they could be avoided by a willingness to face and deal with problems within the railways' freight rate structure, there is no sign that any sense of urgency grips our legislators.

The result is a confusing tangle of government handouts which force the taxpayer to meet part of the costs of goods and services he may not use himself. Somebody is almost certainly getting robbed, but it would take all the country's accountants seven years to figure out who is the victim and how much is being filched from him. And, if such an inquiry were instituted, the taxpayer would either have to pay for it directly or subsidize the group undertaking the survey.

Just a Commentator Now?

Dwight D. Eisenhower will spend a great deal of time during the Republican convention next week commenting on an American television network.

That like will get $50,000 for four days of work is a laudable fact. Any man who can make twice his yearly pension of $25,000 in four days ought to be congratulated.

The fact that Eisenhower will not take a more active part in the convention is another matter. This man four years ago was the Republican president of the United States, the most powerful man, supposedly, in his party. Surely, four years later when the Republican Party is trying to overcome the magic of Lyndon B. Johnson and the image of John F. Kennedy, the former president should be in the thick of the convention using whatever influence he still possesses to bring to the front the best candidate in the Republican tradition, be he conservative or moderate liberal.

From the French-Canadian Viewpoint

This is a selection of editorial comment on current topics, translated from the French language press of Canada.

Ironies

Trois - Rivieres Le Nouvelliste — Canadians celebrated the 97th birthday of Confederation in unduly and even anglish. . . .

For nearly a century the squabbles between the two races have repeated that everything was going well, that conflicts were nothing but little surface incidents. Far from improving, however, the situation has become worse because indifference has been transformed into deaf hostility. . . .

The French Canadians are finding it difficult to keep their numbers from falling below one-third of the population of the country. This is because of the assimilation going on in Ontario, the West and in the Maritime provinces. The result of a school system that denies our people the right to schools where they can be educated in French.

Quebec authorities believed that in setting an example by keeping an open mind toward the English minority in the province, the other provinces would be more generous toward their French populations. This mutual understanding of the mentality and linguistic imperialism practised by the English since 1760.

If this attitude does not change, Confederation will no longer work. . . . And if this unhappy event occurs, the French-Canadians will be the first to feel a sense of sorrow. For they have not stopped believing in a united and understanding Canada where two cultures, two languages, various religions and different traditions could mingle to form a sort of ethnic fabric that would ensure harmony, tolerance and affection for the rest of the world. (June 30)

Quebec Le Devoir

Montreal Le Devoir — The projected study of the economic economic effects of Quebec's separation from Canada) that Mr. Pearson outlined in the Commons will be worth much more in itself than the limited inquiry first envisaged.

Instead of a private examination by civil servants, the government will launch a wide - ranging study of the economic ties linking the different parts of Canada. . . .

But can such an investigation be undertaken by the central government alone? According to the constitution, the economic situation must be under both federal and provincial jurisdiction. Hence an inquiry conducted jointly by the provinces and the federal government would lead to the results Mr. Pearson seeks. . . .

The Pearson project comes at a time when another organization, the Laurendeau - Dunton commission, is studying certain problems that also have important economic implications. Since the birth of a parallel inquiry, the Laurendeau - Dunton commission was to be confined to studying only the so-called cultural problems. This would prevent it from going to the bottom of the malaise between Canada of the two founding fathers. It would be the unkindest cut of all to a body that has given a broad interpretation to its mandate.

Mr. Pearson is a baffling leader. He is groping. His intentions are excellent, but he possesses to a rare degree the knack of dropping the ball just when he appears to have caught it. — Claude Ryan. (July 2)

La Tribune

Sherbrooke La Tribune — The unstable situation of the federal government . . . is reflected in the debates in the commons. Since the session started debates have dealt more frequently and at greater length with questions of primary importance for electoral purposes but of secondary importance for the good of the nation.

This situation became marked toward the end of May when the flag question was brought before the house by Mr. Pearson. About the same time, the affair of the film on a day in the life of the prime minister cropped up. . . .

It is certain that when discussion on questions of this kind lasts for hours they contribute nothing to proper administration of public affairs, which Parnell stated, in fact, since the session started the legislative work has gone ahead at a snail's pace and everything leads us to believe it will go on this way in coming weeks. . . .

Seeing what has gone on in the commons since the opening of the session, there is reason to wonder whether the members are not thinking more about elections than about the good of the nation. (June 29)

Quebec Le Soleil

Quebec Le Soleil—The July 1 ceremony (in which the Montreal world's fair officially took possession of Ste. Helene) marked a turning point in preparations for the 1967 International Exhibition. . . .

It confounded all the prophets of doom and demonstrated that Canada is capable of finishing what it starts.

In large measure, this efficiency is due to the resolve and the diligence within the governments of the country. If the fair comes off, the centenary of Confederation, it will show the effects of a century of constitutional stability in the country. Canada is one of the freest countries of the world and it appreciates and values the freedom which will assure its prosperity.

The whole world will see in 1967 that, despite certain weaknesses, despite the need for certain corrections in its application, the Canadian constitution created a great country, worthy of a country. We must begin preparations for this grandiose event in friendship and agreement. (July 2)

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

July 11th, 1944

The shadow of indigent hospital accounts, bugbear of Hastings County councillors at their regular meetings, showed a silver lining at Tuesday session in fact the bright rays of a sun of pleasant surprise lighted up the session when Gordon Bellcly, Belleville General Hospital administrator, addressed county fathers in a vein that was vastly different to that of one, two and three years ago. The light of appreciation gleamed in official eyes when Mr. Barclay announced that the accounts of the hospital were at present in the best shape they have ever attained. "We are now standing on our own feet due to the proper handling of accounts," Mr. Barclay said. He thanked the county clerk and his secretary for their efficient co-operation.

Outstanding tribute was paid to Superintendent Elmer Sandercock and Matron Sandercock of the Hastings County Home in an address given Hastings County Council at the closing session yesterday by Inspector of County Homes, J. Charlton. "Our superintendent and matron are doing a splendid job and are worthy of all their charges," Inspector Charlton told council. Speaking generally, the inspector informed council that there are over ten thousand aged people in homes of municipalities and this number is increasing gradually. "But" he added "thanks to efficiency of administration and the interest takes in these people by municipal governments, they are getting the best of care. The standard of care has been raised and officials are sticking to the new rules, thus assuring their charges the ultimate in comfort."

Pigeon Out-Pens Martin In Mailing List Marathon

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — . . . notes off the Parliamentary reportorial cuff . . .

Mountain of Mail:

The improbable, if not exactly the impossible, has been discovered in this most amazing of 25 years of Parliaments.

Found in connection with a larger, more comprehensive mailing list than External Affairs Minister Paul Martin who, over his 29 years in the Commons, has built up a file of names and addresses of just about everybody in his metropolitan Windsor consistency of Essex East where better than 45,000 voted in the last election.

The remarkable Mr. Martin is famous for his correspondence.

On it up comes the date, and with it the name, address and special occasion — birthday, every man, woman and child in Essex East who has a birthday or an anniversary that day.

Additionally, he has a personal office staff of three watching the Windsor Star and the 20 county weeklies for such items as who has a new baby, a new job, who is having married and who has been bereaved.

And of course, out goes a little personal note of congratulations or condolence signed, not by the Secretary of State for External Affairs, but rather, signed by your friend and mine, "Paul Martin."

EVERY LAST ONE

Well, everybody always figured Paul Martin was undisputed champion of the Parliamentary mail league.

And everybody was wrong.

For a new Parliamentary postal king must be crowned.

Meet Andrew Pigeon, Conservative MP for Joliette, L'Assomption-Montcalm, an urban-rural industrial riding north of Metro Montreal which last election polled some 50,000 votes made more than a passing effort in Mr. Martin's populous Essex East.

And the Honorable Member for Joliette Etcetera wrote a personal note of congratulation to every single girl in the university, out went the letters expressing cheers for a year's work well done.

That is a lot of mail, for remember, families in Quebec use a much smaller size than in Ontario or the rest of Canada.

Louis Joseph Pigeon's secretary, a girl who has been in service in the House of Commons and from long experience not easily intimidated by the volume of mailings, this time was a bit staggered.

Her friends in the Parliamentary stenographic "pool," and Hansen from other MPs' offices pitched in and gave her a hand.

But a letter to every last one of thousands of elementary and secondary school students who made it from grade to grade in all the schools of their ridings. . . that is a mailing to impress even the blase Mr. Martin. . . .

WEEP NO TEARS

Don't feel sorry for the Honorable Members of the Commons who are starting to complain about having to work through the summer.

Don't forget they're well paid for it: an annual $18,000, with $10,000 of it tax free on an open-ended expense account.

And get this: generally overlooked in the excitement this very Parliament voting itself what has amounted to a 100 percent pay raise has been the way it very quietly tripled its pension.

Parliamentarians, when they were getting $10,000, had a pension scheme paying $5,000 a year for life after 15 years.

Now they get $9,000. They contribute, of course, the anybody does to a pension fund.

But $9,000 for 15 years of work at $18,000-plus a year!

Douglas Fisher, the New Democratic Deputy, has attempted to justify it or at least defend it by charging that all the protest has come from a "jealous" Press Gallery, envious of Parliament's higher pay.

True, the Gallery is jealous. Who isn't?

Especially the taxpayers.

The National Revenue Department has just put out its annual statistical review of incomes, and in the list of 42 cities placed London as 21st, the average. And what is the average income in average London?

Just $4,580.

A bit short, what, of a Parliamentarian's $18,000 and expenses.

How to Tell If You're Old

Owen Sound Sun-Times

The inroads of time are so camouflaged that it is getting harder to tell anyone's real age, perhaps even your own.

In case you are puzzled about your own age, the "experts" have some suggestions. You're probably still on the sunny side of middle age if—

The mortgage on your home has 194½ years to run. You still call your wife by the pet nickname of your courtship days instead of saying the children by addressing her as "mother."

Being broke all the time now doesn't bother you as much because you feel supremely confident that in another five years at most you'll double or triple your income.

You are not so old if it makes you feel more mature to smoke a cigar, but you are so unused to doing this that you haven't learned to take the band off before lighting up.

Other standards for deciding you are not so old are if: You like to open letters because you relish the hope that good news as well as bad news comes by mail.

You can overhear a conversation between two teen-agers and understand at least half of what they are saying.

You don't remember how Shirley Temple looked as a curly-haired little girl, or Bing Crosby singing as on of The Rhythm Boys.

To Your Good Health

Sudden Muscle Spasm Could Cause Annoying Pain

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: When I drive a car about 30 miles or so, I have terrible pains in my right leg where I sit, like someone sticking me with a knife. Is this due to poor circulation? Could I have a stroke from this? — Mrs. L. M.

No, this isn't going to cause a stroke, because a stroke is some interference or abnormality in the brain, either a clot shutting off the flow of blood to some area, or a rupture of a blood vessel.

It may be that there is faulty circulation in the leg, but that is far from being my first suspicion.

Because you have this pain, starting rather suddenly, I gather, in one leg not both, it sounds more like a spasm of the muscles, or a problem of pressure on a nerve at some point — not necessarily at the point at which you feel the pain. It could be at the spine, or at some point farther down.

Try moving the car seat forward or back. Or use a small cushion to give your back more support. If you can't find relief this way, ask your doctor to check.

When some interference with circulation is involved, it is more likely to occur from activity — that is, from walking. If circulation is impaired, you can be perfectly comfortable as long as you don't put any great demands on the muscle in the area involved. If the muscles don't have to work very hard, they get enough circulation to keep them operating comfortably. But if you make the muscles do some harder work, they soon protest if they are not getting enough blood supply. By "protest" I mean that they go into a spasm and hurt.

People with heart trouble encounter this. If circulation is below normal, either from the heart trouble or some other cause, they find that exertion either soon causes a "cramp" or spasm.

But to get back to you: Tense muscles can also cause such a cramp. It may be that you are nervous about driving, and you just tighten up all over when starting out. Perhaps a shorter trip may not be enough to cause a spasm and pain, but after an hour or two (as you have mentioned) it might. Are you always tense when you start driving? That could be significant, too.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes a sizzling noise in my head. It seems to interfere with my ears and hearing. I have been to a doctor but he doesn't help much. — M. D.

There are several causes; some can be corrected and some can't. I suggest you send for my booklet, "Ear Noises, Their Causes and Cures." To receive a copy, write me in a self-addressed envelope and 15 cents in coin. Address your request to Dr. Molner, care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been instructed not to drink milk, among other things, but have been eating quite a bit of cottage cheese. Is this all right? Since cottage cheese is made from milk, is it safe for me to eat it? — J. M.

I can't answer that without knowing what you aren't supposed to have milk.

The butterfat content is one possibility, and those with easier skim milk or cottage cheese would be fine, since the fat has been removed from them. Let's not guess. One brief phone call to your doctor will give you the answer.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

Van Doos on Cyprus

Handful of Canadians Police Region of "Harsh Passions"

By PETER BUCKLEY

KRINI, Cyprus (CP) — The 20th century has brushed by the village of Krini and its neighbors in northern Cyprus almost without stopping.

In passing it dropped one or two modern farm implements, a truck or two, some European clothing and more efficient instruments of death. Little else in the dusty quiet makes the passerby believe the villages belong to this age.

Certainly not the houses—squat stone and stucco buildings, darkly cool and musty inside, layered with pale brown dust outside. The dwellings cling together, squeezing the unpaved streets in, in separate clusters atop a knoll or in a valley in the southern foothills of the Kyrenia Mountains.

Each of these villages is dominated by rocky crests rising 1,000 feet or more and each looks down in turn on land falling away in sunburned rows to the great central plain of Cyprus.

Each village has its open patch of rocky land to pasture the dark, scrawny goats with meagre udders and the coarse-fleeced Cyprus sheep.

Even the passions seem out of date. The ferocity of the medieval vendetta lies behind outbursts of hatred and sudden violence.

RATHER DIE

The young Turkish schoolteacher of Plotia village says: "I would rather die than live with the Greeks."

A Greek businessman a few miles away at Skylloura asks: "When someone smacks you, what do you do? You smack them harder."

In the midst of this archaic atmosphere, standing between the harsh passions, are 20 members of the Royal 22nd Regiment of Canada, part of the United Nations peace - keeping force on the island.

They are bored because their work often seems pointless, frustrated most of all perhaps by an overwhelming sense that this is a country with an ingrained resistance to change.

"What makes it so hard for the men is that they don't feel they're accomplishing anything," says 2nd Lieut. Mike Perreten, 23-year-old native of Williams Lake, B.C., who with his men is responsible for preventing violence between Greek and Turkish Cypriots in this 50-square-mile area of wheat and barley fields, goat pastures and ancient villages.

MAKESHIFT SHOWER — Pte. Eddy Lefebvre, 21, of Donnacona, Que., rinses under a makeshift shower used by Canadian troops in the village of Krini. The village is an outpost of the Royal 22nd Regiment in the foothills of the Kyrenian Mountains in Cyprus. (CP Photo)

"We've been here for three months and there's been no change in the situation. The guys know that when they leave here in another three months there still won't won't be any change."

GUARD VILLAGES

Perreten's platoon is divided into three sections. His headquarters is at Krini and here he keeps 14 men. Six more are at Agirdha to the north and six at Pileri, a few miles west.

All three villages are inhabited by Turkish Cypriots, both natives and refugees from nearby communities who fled their homes in fear of the Greeks. All three are threatened from mountain crests above them.

The first crest of scrub-covered rock is manned by Turkish Cypriot fighters. The second, much higher, is held by Greek Cypriots. Neither group is visible from below, but fire from the Greek position occasionally spatters a village and there are frequent exchanges of ineffective firing between the two armed groups. Casualties are almost unknown.

The Canadians are not empowered to disarm the hill fighters so must be content with protecting the villagers from raids, providing escorts for farmers, negotiating the return of stolen sheep, maintaining communications among their own outposts and with battalion headquarters.

Besides automatic rifles and other personal weapons, the Van Doos claim a trump in protecting the villagers. A 50-calibre machine gun, black and ugly and easily the most powerful weapon in the region, sits outside the Krini headquarters, aimed towards the mountains. Its fire could reach the farthest position.

PROTECT FARMERS

For escorts, two men from each section usually spend the days in their jeeps, bouncing along the rutted paths and over dusty fields with Cypriots who want to work in areas controlled by their enemies or standing guard while farmers harvest fields close to enemy positions.

The negotiating is usually handled by Perreten, who logs up to 100 miles a day in a jeep over roads which make British Columbia logging paths seem like paved highways.

MORE . . . . .

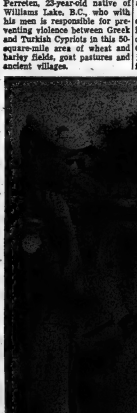
Apart from the escorts, the guarding and the hearing of troubles, the Van Doos are weighed down by the problem of filling idle hours in a strange, sometimes hostile, environment.

The attitude of villagers ranges from coolness to dislike, although the children still grin and wave at the Canadians.

At Krini, the platoon headquarters has just moved into a new schoolhouse from a ratinfested stone farmhouse at the request of the local mukhtar, or mayor, presumably to make way for refugees. The Canadians obliged happily.

In Agirdha, the six men share a three-room upstairs apartment in a new building, the only furniture a wooden dining table and folding army cots. From a small balcony, they have a breathtaking view of the plain, with Nicosia barely visible through a haze 10 miles to the southeast and the black bulk of the Troodos Mountains filling the far horizon.

In the street below, the village well is a modern faucet set in concrete inscribed "AD 1957," a reminder of the days when Queen Elizabeth's governor was in charge and the British brought mountain water through miles of pipe.



At Pileri, the Van Doos occupy a clean, one-room school similar to those in Krini quarters. As with the other Canadians, their food and drinking water is delivered daily from company headquarters about 10 miles away. A breakfast of bacon and eggs is the only meal they make on the spot.

Every day, two members of each section go by jeep to Kyrenia, a nearby Mediterranean resort town, to swim and rest and augment their already easy sustans.

Every night, at least half of the men can go to company headquarters to see a movie. But often they don't bother because half of the movies are in English and the Van Doos are predominantly French-speaking. A similar quirk of officialdom provides English paperbacks for reading.

But the Van Does can tune in French - Language programs beamed 150 miles by a Beirut radio station and they get French - Canadian newspapers twice a week.

Mostly, however, they sit in the shade in off-duty hours and engage in army talk and look forward to the end of their six-month tour of duty when they can return to their families.

WEIGHING IN — Pte. Marcel Carpentier, 22, of Arvida, Que., (right), and Pte. Morris Berard, 21, of Magog, Que., help a villager to weigh his wheat in Krini, a Turkish Cypriot community near Kyrenian Mountains. The soldiers are members of Canada's Royal 22nd Regiment, stationed in Cyprus as part of the United Nations' peace keeping force. Despite disorders on the island, both Greek and Turkish Cypriot farmers are able to continue harvesting, though on a reduced scale. (CP Photo)

Bancroft Woman Killed in Crash Near Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP)—Elsie Foster, 50, of Bancroft, Ont., died in hospital Friday after being injured earlier in the day in a car-truck collision on the outskirts of Winnipeg.

Mrs. Foster received multiple fractures when thrown from a car also carrying her sister, Florence Southerland, 52, of Peterborough, and Mrs. Southerland's 15 - year - old son, Vernon.

Mrs. Southerland and her son were reported in fair condition in hospital. Vernon suffered several fractures while his mother apparently was not seriously hurt.

The Ontario car was going to Calgary when it collided with a water tank truck carrying about 1,000 gallons of water.

Engine Part For Brigantine Still Missing

ATHENS, N.Y. (AP) — For the St. Lawrence II and her crew of Canadian sea cadets, a voyage to New York world's fair has become a matter of "tow, tow, tow your boat."

The towing, by a 38 - foot, diesel-powered work boat, was resumed Friday because an engine part for the 60-foot sailing ship went astray somewhere between Detroit and this Hudson River village where the brigantine had been since running aground Wednesday.

The operator of a marina in nearby Catskill, who supplied the tow boat, said it was hoped the St. Lawrence would have to be towed only as far as Haverstraw and sail into New York or that the missing part would arrive for its auxiliary engine.

The brigantine, which left Kingston July 1, has been plagued by engine trouble and other mechanical problems during its trip through New York State's barge canal and the Hudson.

It's ship - to - shore telephone now is not working.

Before resuming the trip down the Hudson, the teen-aged crew attended a picnic given by the Catskill Chamber of Commerce.

SINCE BRITON HELD

LONDON (Reuters) — The foreign office Friday night said a British tailor employed at a United States air base near Minsuch has been held in prison there for three months on suspicion of spying.

Sidewalk Torn up Three Weeks, No New One Yet

Has city hall forgotten the West Hill district?

That is what property owners on Charlotte Street are wondering.

Sidewalk repairs on the street have been started but residents also have been asking for new street lights to replace the present inadequate lighting.

The city public works department started the sidewalk repairs. Approximately 75 feet of broken and heaved sidewalk has been torn out in preparation for new walk.

That was three weeks ago, but still no sign of the new walk.

"We've called city hall numbers of times but haven't got any satisfaction," said one irate property owner.

Woman Will Have Hard Time Proving She's Fit Mother

DEAR DORIS — I didn't sleep last night with worry and I decided the best thing I could do was write to you.

DORIS CLARE

My brother don't know where to turn for help. A while ago his wife went to see her divorced mother and came back with the line that if Bob couldn't buy her what she wants she could leave with the children and as a mother has all the rights to the children and he would have to send her money.

Bob said he could never see the children with her as she is not capable of looking after them. She sits around all day. He gets his own supper. She bats the children around. She is in the beer parlor all evening. Has men friends. Runs up huge bills.

As long as she can hold the stick over him, that she gets the children, if he kicks her out she knows he has to put up with it. He looks so old and I don't know how much longer he can go on without breaking. — WORRIED SISTER.

DEAR SISTER — A woman as unprincipled as you say this one is would have a tough time proving herself a fit person to care for children. And if she leaves her husband without just cause he cannot legally be forced to support her, in Canada.

Your brother should consult the family court for his area or a private lawyer.

DEAR DORIS — I think it very wonderful for you to kindly give people your advice. Would you please tell me what color scarf and lipstick I should wear; also what color coat would suit me best. I have black hair and a dark complexion. — OLIVE.

• • •

DEAR OLIVE — Rouge and lipstick should be in a clear red — avoid a pink or orange cast. It's best to get a color chart from your cosmetic saleslady and select the shade recommended for your coloring. To help you use it properly I am sending the leaflet "Make-up Magic".

Lively colors are flattering to a dark complexion, especially yellows and reds. Yellow in all shadings — lemon, sulphur, butter or pale yellow. Red from pink to crimson.

A pale yellow scarf would tie in (as it were), with a charcoal or beige-colored coat; pink with a rasberry red coat. Avoid anything drab.

DEAR DORIS — How come if you are friendly to a person nowadays they take advantage of you but if you are not friendly you are considered a snob?

The girl down the street from us started to high school this year so we invited her to come along with us to school and in other activities. Now she and her grade nine friends have stepped in and taken over completely. Now George goes with Mary and John goes with Sue. Now we go to a party and the boys have to stick with who they go with or the girl won't speak to him, and if you talk to him you're flirting with him.

Doris, they have taken over the kids we have known and had fun with since grade nine. Why can't these kids find some one their own age to hang around with instead of invading our group? How can we get our old group back together again?

DEAR LONGING — You want the "good old days"? At 17?

Sometimes boys tend to match up with girls a little younger than they are — and you can't go against nature. Make a new circle, with some new boys a year or two older. You're probably ready for them.

DEAR DORIS — My mother died a year ago and my aunt lives with us. She is good to us but sometimes ? ? ? I say I like the Beatles; she dislikes them. Whenever I say the word "Beatles" she says, "Oh shut up, you're too young to talk about things like that." Doris, am I too young? I don't think I am for I am not that crazy about them, but only for the fun of it.

I fix my hair up with bangs. "Oh! So you're trying to have a Beatle hairdo." That's all I hear. I'm too young for that according to her, but too young for work. She keeps telling me about all she had to do when she was my age. It even haunts my dreams. Doris, please tell me what to do. — UNFAIR AND CHEATED.

DEAR UNFAIR — At 12, you aren't exactly an old lady. Your early interest in boys and bangs and Beatles alarms your aunt. You see, even the brightest of us (and you are unusually bright) need to live a little, socialize a lot, and get practice in handling ourselves with the opposite sex.

You miss your mother — but remember, she is not easy for your aunt to try, to fill her place either. She talks with you because she wants to help you with her point of view. Ask for her praise — and let her see you need love as well as lecturing.

QUESTION:

I have tried without success to procure a recipe for Kentucky Fried Chicken. I would appreciate it very much if you would send it to me . . . Mrs. E. S.

ANSWER:

KENTUCKY FRIED CHICKEN:

Chicken must be precooked by simmering until tender, cooling and cutting into serving pieces. Dip pieces of cooked chicken in this Fritter Batter: Beat 2 eggs. Stir in ½ cup milk. Sift together and beat in 1 cup sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt. Beat in 1 teaspoon melted fat or salad oil. After coating, drain off excess batter and fry in deep fat at 375 deg. Fahr. until golden brown. Drain on paper towels. If you would like the batter to be "spicy" you could add ½ teaspoon paprika or curry powder or crumbled sage.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menus

Italian Lasagne; Generous Tossed Salad with Chopped Olive Mayonnaise; Raspberry Pie; Tea.

QUESTION:

Would you please print your recipes for freezing red raspberries and for making red raspberry jam? . . . Mrs. Van deW.

ANSWER:

FREEZING RED RASPBERRIES:

Select fully matured, sweet soft-ripe plump berries and freeze them as soon as possible after picking. Clean and remove stems and wash gently, lifting fruit from water. Drain. Dry, pack is most popular. To each quart of raspberries add 2-3 to ¾ cup sugar. Amount depends on your sweet tooth. Mix gently but thoroughly. A quarter cup is a good too for this. Besides being a sweetener, sugar acts as a preservative of color, texture and flavor. Turn into freezer cartons and seal with freezer tape. Freeze at or below zero. MVP (moisture-vapor-proof) containers are recommended and available at locker plants and paper supply stores and mail order houses. Frozen raspberries (all frozen foods) must be tightly sealed.

RED RASPBERRY JAM:

Four cups ripe red raspberries (about 2 quarts), 6½ cups sugar, ½ bottle liquid pectin (certo). Prepare fruit by crushing thoroughly about 2 quarts fully ripe red raspberries. (If desired, sieve half of pulp to remove some of seeds.) Measure 4 cups into a very large saucepan. Add sugar to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in liquid pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into clean hot glasses. Cover jam at once with ¼" hot paraffin. Makes about ten 8-oz. glasses.

QUESTION: Since we've moved to this town, I've had little opportunity to make friends. We have three small children, so I have no time to join clubs and committees. My husband, on the other hand, has made many friends through his office, and has been invited to card games at the homes of some of his associates. He thinks we now should invite his office friends and their wives to our home for a party.

Since I've never met any of these people, would it be correct to do so? And, if it is, would it be permissable for my husband simply to invite the men and ask them to bring their wives? I would prefer the invitations to be handled this way, so I won't have to call people I don't know. —Mrs. H F. A., Wilmington, Del.

ANSWER: Eyes, though you may not know your husband's office friends, it would be correct to invite them and their wives to a party at your home, since hospitality already has been extended to your husband vis the men's social get-togethers.

You should do the inviting, however, and not leave it up to your husband. If you're shy about calling unknown wives on the phone, then do it by note. It's easier to indicate who you are in a note and it gives the wife a chance to consult with your husband before accepting or declining.

QUESTION: I have a friend who acts like the hostess at every party she attends. If someone has an empty glass, she asks if he'll have another, then takes his order to the host or whoever is in charge of liquid refreshments. Then, wherever she notices guests are not helping themselves to the spreads and dunks on tables, she grabs trays and passes them around, insisting that everyone have something.

Some of our mutual friends have resented this in the past, and feel that she puts them in a bad light by making it appear they are negligent hostesses. When I finally mentioned this to the woman, she brushed the whole thing aside and claimed she was merely trying to be helpful and that guests are expected to pitch in when needed. What do you say about this?

Mrs. A. L., Chicago, Ill.

ANSWER: What I've said many times in this page — that guests should keep hands off unless the host or hostess specifically asks for help. An interfering guest often makes the hostess feel like a bumbling oaf — as if she's insensitive to the needs of her guests and simply can't cope with all the details of a party. Rather than risk offending, a guest should wait until she's asked for help instead of thrusting it on the hostess, ready or not.

GETS 12 YEARS

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Arnold Baker, 19, of Toronto was sentenced Thursday to 15 years in jail on 12 counts of robbery after 13 elderly men were slugged over the head with iron garden posts and robbed over a 10-month period. Magistrate C. A. Thoburn said the youth is sadistically inclined and that he was giving him a long prison term for the protection of the public.

Going Places

Enchanting Town of Freiburg Very Rich in History, Color

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

FREIBURG, West Germany — The road here from Stuttgart is one of the oldest, most historic and colorful in Europe.

Part of the way, south through the ancient towns of Tubingen, Balingen, Rottweil and Donaueschingen it is the Old Swiss Road, the path the Romans blazed when they invaded Swabia in 90 A.D. Here, where the Brigach and Neckar Rivers meet, the Danube starts its 1,500 mile course east to the Black Sea. Westward stand the towering pines of the lower Black Forest. So do a valley named Heil and a village called Heaven, and a road built especially for Marie Antoinette in journeys to Paris as the bride of Louis XVI.

The lands south of Stuttgart were once the private preserve of Wilhelm of Wurttemberg. Hunters in kee pants and feathered caps still ply the roads. In the village, lacy wrought-iron signs bright with gildings hang from five-story balconies beneath leaded windows. In Tubingen, a university town for five centuries, little has changed. The cobbled streets emerge into four-hour squares surrounding the painted facade of the city hall.

Northeast of Balingen, dominating one of the highest points of the Swabian Alp, stands the fairy-tale castle of Hohenzollern where Frederick the Great is buried. Here rest the crown jewels of Prussia that later migrated north to Prus-ia and founded the imperial dynasties of Kaiser Wilhelm I and II.

DANUBE'S SOURCE

In Donaueschingen stands the imposing palace of the Duke of Furstenburg, his family retaining one of three 13th century codices of the Nibelungenlied. Germany's epic poem. Here, on the palace grounds marks the source of the Danube.

Westward the mountains and the Black Forest close in, until at Titisee it is wide enough only for the road, a creek and the railway line. And, of course, a souvenir shop at the narrowest point. On a cliff stands a statue of a deer — one of many animal monuments in this part of Germany — memorialized for a prodigious leap from one height to another to escape a hunter.

From Freiburg, in the southwestermost corner of the country, the Rhine plain and the Vosages mountains are visible. But on three sides 2,000-foot peaks shelter the city, bright with bloom in summer and white with snow in winter. There is an intimacy and timelessness to it — about the city. Its entrance is famous for its more than 200 statues.

Old Streets: Only houses are painted with medieval dates, intricate among Freiburg's post-war sections. Parks bursting with tulips fill the city. In one of them is the city's most photographed sight — a statue of a dock.

People in this part of the country are sentimental about God's creatures, and this particular duck has a mystical significance. One night in 1944 it went quacking wildly through the streets of the city. Sensing danger, much of the populace evacuated, and the city was bombed that night. The duck was found dead in the streets the next morning.

Freiburg has always had an international character. Its university, its proximity to Switzerland and France (not only is it a favorite of French tourists, but there are French troops stationed in the city today), and the fact that it was Austrian until 1806, all have made it a center of travel for centuries. Germany's oldest inn, the Baren dated in the old town, is said to date to 1130.

GALA WINE FESTIVAL

The surrounding hills are lined with vineyard slopes which are part of the longest contiguous wine growing area in Germany. Any occasion from May Day to harvest time is an excuse for a wine festival in the surrounding communities.

Then a huge tent is set up in a field. Local producers bring their products for sampling at a few cents a glass. Long tables are set up for those who spend the day. A costumed band in wide - brimmed Black Forest hats plays waltzes and polkas. If the locals didn't enjoy it so much, it would be easy to assume it was all put on by the tourist board.

Several of Germany's old-fashioned classic spas surround Freiburg. The most classic is at Badenweiler. The steady use since Roman days, its waters and cures have been taken by kings and princes. Parks, sidewalk cafes and the inevitable band shells are surrounded by traditional old hotels like the Romerbad, so exclusive that non-guests are not even permitted on the premises. Once it was a courtyard where coaches deposited royal personages — the earliest drive-in registration.

Mineral waters are at least as valuable as oil in Germany. Near Mulheim, an expedition digging for oil hit a mineral spring instead. So, naturally, they built a spa.

CATS

Two brown and white kittens
What can they be at?
What on earth are they doing
With that summer hat?
If they wish to destroy it —
No longer 'twould be
The act of two kittens,
But Cat - as- tro- phy!

—Martha Martin.

The animal world of our neighborhood is an never-ending interest and delight.

At present it is composed mostly of the cat kingdom. We had a sleepy Maggie and Jiggs. The latter we've known since his kittenhood and how he is quite the gentlemanly overseer of his world. But Maggie went away one day, never to return, (we still miss her) and their mistress obtained Suzy, a Persian who has captured the hearts of everyone. A veritable little fairy, she has an engaging way of standing up on her hind legs when she wishes to be petted.

There's Pasbow (pronounced See-bow)) an elegant little Siamese, whose blue eyes light up like jewels any time their mistress what an ornament she is! (Little wonder that Poland's new stamp issue is devoted to cats and has a 10-stamp group of feline pets which include Persians and Siamese.)

Another beloved pussy is smokey, the shy one, who just hopes no one will ever touch him or make advances in any way; but he has the cutest way of blinking his lovely round eyes. Yet today he came, lay down and rolled over for us, as he usually does only for his mistress. This is quite an honor. (No touching though!)

White Silver as pretty as his name — is fast slipping from a kitten to a juvenile who is mightily intrigued with the world about him. Blacky in contrast is the senior member of this cat family,—quite the "sitby-the-fire" kind now.

Whenever we see him, we're reminded of the unusual Paris restaurant, named the "Chat Noir" created in the '90s, by an artist; Rodolphe Salis. He had a sculptured cat hanging above the entrance and a sleek, real black cat basking before the fire place. Those who "lived by their intelligence" were welcome, along with those who "earned their thirst artistically" and were served free wine.

One cat we miss greatly is buried beside the garden tree. His name was Nerve, and he "sought such happiness with his pie de resistance" his delight in playing with all kinds of little toys, and the way he'd try to open the doors where they were kept. A traffic casualty.

There's no doubt Augustine Fagals de Mouff would have enjoyed writing about our neighbo hood cats. Mouff, you may recall, was claimed "Laureate to the cats" when his little volume "Les Chats" appeared about 1727. Though he had written what is now considered "vapid frivolous, pastoral and heroic tales," he was a member of the French Academy, and when his confreres died and issued him about his charming cat volume, he had it withdrawn from circulation. Yet, only by it, does his name live in literature today.

Categorically speaking, however, Clyde Farnsworth in London recently wrote about the Whitehall mouse-catcher, whose identification medallion, which hung around his neck from a tartan ribbon, read: "Peter, Horse Office, S.W.1." Perhaps you have heard of timi Born in a London back alley, Peter efficiently dealt with hundreds of enemies of state, and prowled the long, darkened ministry corridors (close to where Charles I was beheaded!)

As the only OOT (licensed to kill, like James Bond) he enjoyed the Horse Office on the payroll 16 years ago; had his pictures on the Home Secretary's Christmas cards in 1958 in recognition of outstanding service, and had even appeared on British television.

The other day, Peter died from old age.

Most cats buried at the Animal cemetery at Ilford, just near London, have ordinary White box coffins. Peter's mourners at the Home Office donated funds for funeral expenses and he was given an oak veneered coffin with brass handles. The People's Dispensary for Sick Animals provided Goldie, a Shetland pony, as the official mourner.

Fresh flowers blanketed his resting place, which lies beside a small plaque that reads:

"In Loving Memory of Coco." (Coco, explains Mr. Farnsworth, was a mouse!)

And now, if we may, let us return to the animal world of our neighborhood, for Suzy and Jiggs would like to be remembered to you their mistress, Miss Amy Wardrop, 213 John Street. Pasbow, Smokey, Silver and Blacky bring forth their mistresses, who are sisters: Miss Hilda Ackerill and Mrs. Mary Beamish, 208 John Street.

Two-Piece Costumes Are In for Fall

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Couture Group closed its semi-annual press week activities Friday with previews of fall collections by Paul Parnes, Monte-Sano Pruzan, Countess Mara-Zamoyska, and Malcomb Starr.

While many U.S. designers prefer the cooler dress—that is, the one piece dress that looks like two—Parnes preferred the versatility of mix - and - match two-piece costumes. Trim silk-faced jackets topped slim suit skirts.

Muskrakin formed roll collars on jackets and coats and edged towel shaped stoles.

The string bells on easy-fitted dresses with deep pleated skirts, swingy cape coats, and a high fitted dress. Two of the dressiest suits were highlights of the collection by the Monte - Sano house. Most themes were executed in lush mohair tweeds, in soft hues, and exaggerated checks or plaids for which the style house is famed.

Evening dresses like the bracade, flouncy black chiffon, banded by velvet — reminiscent of the '30s — were Malcomb Starr's contribution.

With Victor and Jenelle Alexander, under the direction of Mrs. Eugene Blanks, Mrs. Vera Worsley and Mrs. Amy D. Gatcum.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The first meeting of the month was held in the Moose hall with the new Senior Regent, Lilly Saunders presiding. The turnout for the evening was small due to a lot of co-workers being on holidays.

The minutes of the previous meetings were read and approved. The auditor's report was read by the recorder, Nellie Scrymgeour, from the sick. It has been reported that co-worker Alexandra Gamblin is in Bellleville General Hospital.

The door prize donated by the chapter was won by Clara Seams.

The meeting was brought to a close and lunch was served by the officers.

Mr. F. M. Barrett and Mr. Bruce C. Sills local piano tuner-technician craftsmen, have just returned home from Chicago, where they attended the seventh annual piano technicians guild convention, held at the Palmer House. At these conventions technology is taught; the latest improvements shown and illustrated, and the association services audit. This improved instrument, is fast taking its place in the musical world of today. The convention heads claim, that the piano construction, and sales of today have surprised all, associated with the instrument.

On Tuesday evening, members and friends of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints attended the closing social of the Relief Society of the church. The president, Mrs. Myrtle Barnum, welcomed those present. Following her remarks, Mrs. Jack Brady led the ladies in a sing-song and Mrs. C. E. Ladoucier conducted a contest.

A kitchen shower was an interesting event, with Miss Barnum opening the many gifts for the kitchen of the new chapel.

The entertainment closed with the showing of a variety of slides by Geo. S. Murray.

To complete an enjoyable evening, guests were served a buffet lunch under the direction of Mrs. Eugene Blanks, Mrs. Vera Worsley and Mrs. Amy D. Gatcum.

Mathematics Helps Girl To Good Job

TORONTO, (CP)—Mary Jane Syrett has a real 1964 - style summer job. She's a computer programmer at $80 a week.

A third-year honor mathematics student at Waterloo University, 19-year-old Miss Syrett lives in the Toronto suburb of Leaside where her mother is an English teacher.

She was interested in computers in high school, even read books on calculus. One of her first summer jobs was in an insurance office "picking up paper clips and papers."

"I couldn't type. I had just about the lowest position there. Then I wrote my first actuarial exam, a test in mathematics, including calculus."

She scored 90 per cent and the insurance company gave her the programmer's aptitude test to try. Her mark was so good she was sent to a computer programming course.

Now she works at the IBM Datacentre where problems of brokerage, insurance, manufacturing, banking, engineering and merchandising are handled.

THE RETURN OF THE EVENING WRAP

Those of us who remember the 1930's, will recall the full length evening wraps that, in spite of our cruel waiters, were seen at every formal occasion. They were usually black velvet, full - skirted and sometimes trimmed with white rabbit fur collars. Ermine was used for more costly wraps.

The return of opulent fabrics for full formal evening wear has brought an upsurge of matching evening coats, wraps, capes or cloaks. These dramatic full-length coats are perhaps the most exciting fashion news of the season.

The silhouettes dominate the collections. The waisted in, double - breasted coachman's coat seems to lead in popularity. Sometimes, it is split up the back, other times the skirt is gored with a bloused effect at the back waistline. Bold revers and jewelled buttons, pockets and fly-away cuffs are optional. The other silhouette is the enveloping full coat with gentle shoulders and a skirt flowing out in a pronounced "A" line. This vast coat calls for a tall figure, as the sheer volume of the fabric used can easily swamp anyone under 5'6" tall.

Puffed jacquard fabrics, deep pile velvets and even thick woven wools are used for these coats, but there is not a fur collar in the whole range. The trims in most cases are confined to jewelled buttons, and the materials are rich and the colors glowing in a few cases, beaded motifs are used on collars, shoulder plastrons or epaulettes, to match the beaded trims on the stripped down evening dresses for which these coats have been designed.

In one case, the model wore a full-length, fitted black velvet coat, trimmed with a discrete silk ribbon over a dramatic bare evening gown, with a slit skirt and the same ribbon trim outlining the neckline. Her only jewelry was a blazing ornate diamond necklace. She stood out among the beaded and spangled gowns in white, red, green and royal blue.

With the trend to formal evening wear so dominant, it is hoped that adequate supplies of evening accessories will be available in time for the prestige cans for 16 - button gloves of fine white kid, beaded or jewelled evening bags and evening sandals not pumps. A brief survey taken in Montreal in 12 stores showed that some buyer. are aware of this trend.

U.C.W. Meeting

MARSH HILL U.C.W.

MARSH HILL — The July meeting of Marsh Hill United Church Women was held at the home of Mrs. Allyn Finkle with 17 members and one child present.

Mrs. E. B. Finkle conducted the worship service and opened with a poem and a sing-song of favorite hymns.

Mrs. Harold Deitor gave the Bible study on the chapter, "The Learners God" which was followed by a discussion period.

The members reported sending 17 cards and making ten house calls and one hospital visit. Mrs. Harry Coulter read an article on citizenship.

The committee for the fall bazaar is Mrs. David Liddle, Mrs. Harry Coulter and Mrs. Bill Clark.

Mrs. Allyn Finkle is to be chairman of co-operation in Christian Citizenship and Missionary Education in Mrs. Fred Campbell's place.

The president, Mrs. Harold Deitor dedicated the offering with prayer.

The meeting closed after which the hostess served refreshments.

SMOKES HEAVILY

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. Denise Thrasybule has become the first Canadian ladies' pipe smoking champion after she puffed 2.3 grams of tobacco in 79.09 minutes, outlasting all but three of 35 contestants. She took up pipe smoking "just for fun" but practised seriously before the contest. Only one other woman competed.

Will Debate Red Ensign At Meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — Two resolutions supporting the Red Ensign as Canada's official flag will be debated by the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs at its biennial convention, opening here Sunday.

The resolutions, submitted by the Calgary and Nanaimo, B.C. clubs, ask the 7,000-member federation to petition the federal government to retain the Red Ensign.

Federation sources in Ottawa Stressed Friday that the presence of the two flag resolutions on a list with 81 other topics for the five-day meeting does not necessarily indicate national support for the Ensign among business and professional women's clubs.

The proposed Canada Pension Plan is criticized in a resolution from the North Toronto club. It calls for the plan as envisaged now, discriminates against some survivors of contributors, especially housewives other than wives or husbands, and especially against unmarried contributors.

Also among the 23 resolutions is one asking the federal government to appoint more women as deputy heads of government departments and to take steps to ensure that discrimination is not exercised against women in the senior levels of the public service.

Ald. Against Suggestion Of No Pay

VANCOUVER (CP) —A woman who served on council in Birkenhead, England, for six years has brought a spirited reaction here with her contention that members of city council should serve without pay.

"Council work should be entirely voluntary," said Alderman Opie, 57, who recently settled in Vancouver. "If you are not sufficiently interested in it to do it that way, you shouldn't be there."

A "ridiculous idea," said Alderman Bill Strongitharm, whose job pays $2,400 a year plus $1,200 expenses.

"I'm wondering where they have party politics at the local level. the aldermen drop in once every two weeks and have a party policy and say they are doing a job," said Alderman Earl Adams.

Alderman Broome added that council work under the Canadian system where there are no political parties at the local level takes half a person's time each week.

"It takes me more time to be a Rotarian than it does to be a member of Parliament," said the former Conservative MP.

Tap Dancing Mother Should Try Performing a Solo

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am 18 years old with a real horrible problem. If you can solve it you are a genius.

My mother begged me to start tap dancing lessons about eight months ago. I didn't want to. She said dancing lessons would help me get poise. She also promised that if I'd take lessons, she would too, and we'd practice together. It sounded like fun so I said O.K.

Two weeks ago the dancing instructor assigned routines for the yearly recital. She made up a number for my mother and me to do together — in matching costumes. I thought for sure mother would refuse but to my shock she is very excited about it. All of a sudden she thinks she is Eleanor Powell.

I'd rather die than do a dance number in public with my mother. Please help me, Ann Landers, I can't talk her out of it. — NO SHOW GIRL.

DEAR GIRL — Don't try to talk her out of it. Simply tell her that you refuse to be a party to something which is bound to make the whole family look ridiculous. Let her know that if she wants to do a solo it is all right with you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Is it possible to see too much of the husband you love?

My husband is a certified public accountant. When he went in business for himself two years ago we decided to have the back porch closed in and made into an office. It would save him office rent and make part of our homeexpenses deductable.

This worked out fine for about six months, and then he began to get on my nerves. He wants me to wait on him all day long. When he has a client I have to serve them coffee or cold drinks, or lunch. He is always after me to do a little filing, a little typing and a little telephoning. If he misplaces some papers I have to drop everything and go hunt for them.

Now that he can afford an office downtown I want him to have one. Am I being selfish as he says? — AROUND THE CLOCK DUTY.

DEAR DUTY — Your husband is selfish to expect you to be on call 24 hours a day. He's asking you to be a housekeeper, wife, mother, short-order cook, typist, filing clerk and telephone operator — and it's too much. Some men must conduct their businesses from home but a C.P.A. should not be operating from a back porch if he can afford a downtown office.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a woman executive (over 30) and considered interesting looking, competent and the independent type. I've let a few good marital prospects get away but frankly, the number of men who have dropped me first is about three to one.

The man I'm going with now is attractive, moderately successful, has excellent character and wants to marry me. Two problems: One, he stutters constantly during movies, plays and concerts. It drives me crazy. Two, he is considerably younger than I am.

Please don't tell me to make this decision by myself. If I could decide by myself I wouldn't be writing to you. — GEMINI.

DEAR GEM — People who have a habit of talking during performances can be silenced with a couple of sentences, so this is no big deal.

The real hooker is how much younger is the man? Your omission of the vital statistic suggests there is quite a gap, and that this is the reason you can't decide. What are the facts, Lady?

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Garden Notes

Controlling Plant Diseases

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Everything looks lovely in the garden, but on close inspection we find that insects and disease have taken over certain plants. By frequent inspection, knowing our enemies, and a good control program we can eliminate many plant diseases. Insects transmit many diseases. Aphids transmit twenty-one kinds of virus. Leaf-hoppers, blister beetles, cucumber beetles and tarnish bugs are among the greatest carriers. They carry aster yellows to potatoes, Dutch elm disease, aster yellows, cucumber mosaic wilt and many other diseases.

Healthy conditions and insect control will go a long way toward providing disease - free plants. Clean up all plant parts after harvesting. Cut off and destroy by fire if possible diseased plant parts. Burn anything that might infect you or other plant this year or next. Many spores live over winter on weeds and dead plant parts. Don't throw diseased plants on the mulch pile.

Buy resistant varieties whenever possible. Consult nursery and seed catalogues. You will find many listed that are resistant to common pests. Know what very plants are resistant to. Tomatoes resistant to rust may not be resistant to late blight. Wilt-resistant asters may be attacked by aster yellows. Know your plants' weak points and be prepared to spray or dust to defend them.

DISEASE FREE STOCK

Nurserymen regulated quite disease and most of their stock is clean when shipped but this is fresh stock quickly becomes infected in the home garden by neighboring plants if they play host to insects, virus, and bacterial disease.

A lily bulb with mosaic will infect the bulblets that grow from it but seedling will not be infected. On the other hand, bollyhock plants infected with rust will infect the seedling that come up around it. The seeds do not carry the rust spores but the spores do live over in the vicinity on weeds and dead plant parts.

Mineral deficiency may give the appearance of plant disease we are none exists. It will leave the plants open to attack and leave it less able to fight pests. Leaves may become yellow or mottled, curl or brown at the edges and the plant becomes stunted.

When any of these appear without any sign of pests, try applications of complete fertilizer.

CAUSES YELLOWING

The shortage of potash and phosphorus will cause yellowing and leaf drop. Perennial phlox is a good example of this. When these plants have been grown for years in the same place, without feeding, the leaves yellow and drop. Often these conditions are blamed on mildew or red spider. Where mildew is apt to appear treat before it gets started. A sheet of white paper will help you identify red spider. Hold the paper under the leaves and tap the leaf gently. When tiny red specks appear you will know you have the spider mites.

Many evergreens and chrysanthemums are favorite feeding plants for the red spider. Be on guard and attack early.

A word of warning about sprays. Too concentrated sprays can burn your plants, and the pests that escape can build up immunity to the spray. Try to use less than the amount called for and mix in exact method worked out by manufacturer. When a weaker spray concentrate will do the work and give good results.

Windfall Mines Must Produce Full Statement

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange has asked Windfall Mines and Oils Ltd. for an "up-to-date statement" giving results of drilling and other work on the company's property near the rich base-metal strike at Timmins.

The exchange said in a statement Friday the Windfall report "must be satisfactory to the exchange" and be available to be made public early next Monday.

George MacMillan, president of Windfall, and other mine officials were not immediately available for comment.

Price of the company shares on the Toronto exchange has spiraled in the last week. It rose from 56 cents to more than $2, fell back to $1.10, gained sharply Thursday and opened trading Friday at $3.25.

It was traded extremely heavily Friday, closing at $4, up $1.45.

WAS IN ORE

Mr. MacMillan said last Tuesday that the company's first drill hole had cut into mineralization at a depth of 419 feet and still was in ore at 500 feet.

There was no further statement, although a spate of rumors had flooded Toronto's financial district.

The TSE statement, issued by its vice-president, Howard D. Graham, said the exchange "considers that it is the responsibility of the company to either confirm or deny these rumors and to disclose to the public the latest and most accurate information that is available.

The statement gave no indication of what the exchange might do if the statement is not filed, or is not satisfactory.

The stock reached a high for the year on Friday of $3.35 and in March traded at its low for the year at 31 cents.

Bulletins From Birdland

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

CATBIRDS ON THE SHELF

Like hawks, catbirds are much maligned — but not for the same reason. Hawks are incorrectly accused of doing harm, while catbirds are wrongly thought to make no other sound but that unpleasant "meow" which gave them their name. Indeed, this call is not given very frequently until late in the summer, and the catbird has a long, variable, and interesting song, with snatches of other birds' songs thrown in here and there, and notes that remind us of various musical instruments. The whole combination is distinctive and decidedly pleasing.

Strangely, though the singer sits boldly on a branch in the open, it is otherwise shy and secretive. While nesting operations are in progress it remains unbelievably quiet, slinking through the bushes to avoid being seen because its anxious to keep the home site a secret. Do not attempt to find the nest or the bird will desert the home, leaving either eggs or young. Your progress through the bush makes a trail for any enemy — trodden grass and broken branches.

GAIN CONFIDENCE

However, having nested on the same property without molestation for a number of years, a pair may gain confidence, and allow you to look at the eggs which, like robin's eggs, are like the robin's. But the pleasure of entertaining catbirds on a feeding shelf is unusual.

Ours had arrived at the stage when they knew we would not deliberately disturb them and city. They had seen baby whitethroats, chipping sparrows, juncos, chickadees and jays happily alighting on the tray just outside the window. Still the pains did not go away. He went back to the doctor, this time got a thorough check-up and was told he was in a private hospital for an operation. The children were told it was a holiday.

BEGAN HAVING PAINS

Then Mr. Mac began having pains in his abdomen. When they hadn't gone away after a couple of weeks, Mac made him go in a doctor. He got a prescription. Still the pains did not go away. He went back to the doctor, this time got a thorough check-up and was told he was in a private hospital for an operation. The children were told it was a holiday.

Four months after the operation, Mr. Mac had returned home, had gone back to the hospital, and again had returned home and once more gone back. Second operation was pending, and the $4,000 cash value on the life insurance had been taken and spent. "Which was all right," Mr. Mac told his wife, "because I always figured that as an emergency strategy for us . . ."

Eleven months after Mr. Mac's first operation, the remaining $3,000 in savings was down to $650. Most of the medical expenses was in sight. Mrs. Mac notified the children that things were getting serious.

Mr. Mac had figured when they bought their retirement cottage that his life insurance, or the cash value from it, or the $5,000 in savings, or the two of the mortgage on the cottage if he died. Thus Mrs. Mac with an income then received from the month could manage alone. But he had cancelled out his insurance when he took the $4,000 rather than borrowing the sum and having it to pay interest on it. And now the savings were nearly gone.

If the medical expenses didn't stop, where was the money coming from to pay the hospital and the surgeon?

The Golden Years
'Mom and Pop Fixed for Life' Until Illness Changed It All

By THOMAS COLLINS

You are somewhere around age 40, have a family, and are getting along well. You are nice people. Your parents are retired.

If this fits you, you had better have a look at your parents' health insurance.

A couple that must be identified only as Mr. and Mrs. W. P. McM. show the reason why.

Mr. Mac retired about three years ago. He had done well, and he and his wife had a fine way of life in a neighborhood apartment. His retirement income added up to $940 a month. He had $8,000 in savings, and a $4,000 cash value on his paid-up life insurance.

He and Mrs. Mac decided they wanted to give up the apartment and move into one of the retirement villages that are now opening up everywhere. They chose one where they would buy their small cottage for $3,000 down, and pay $70 a month on a mortgage.

They could well afford it. The address was a pretty one. They two children, now with families of their own and doing well, were quite proud of them. And Pop are fixed for life," one of them said.

A year went by, and everything was lovely. Mr. and Mrs. Mac found friends among the villages. They were busy with their children occasionally. They were living easily on an expenditure of $940 a month, having $100 a month for any luxuries they wanted.

BEGAN HAVING PAINS

Then Mr. Mac began having pains in his abdomen. When they hadn't gone away after a couple of weeks, Mrs. Mac made him go in a doctor. He got a prescription. Still the pains did not go away. He went back to the doctor, this time got a thorough check-up and was told he was in a private hospital for an operation. The children were told it was a holiday.

Four months after the operation, Mr. Mac had returned home, had gone back to the hospital, and again had returned home and once more gone back. Second operation was pending, and the $4,000 cash value on the life insurance had been taken and spent. "Which was all right," Mr. Mac told his wife, "because I always figured that as an emergency strategy for us . . ."

Eleven months after Mr. Mac's first operation, the remaining $3,000 in savings was down to $650. Most of the medical expenses was in sight. Mrs. Mac notified the children that things were getting serious.

Mr. Mac had figured when they bought their retirement cottage that his life insurance, or the cash value from it, or the $5,000 in savings, or the two of the mortgage on the cottage if he died. Thus Mrs. Mac with an income then received from the month could manage alone. But he had cancelled out his insurance when he took the $4,000 rather than borrowing the sum and having it to pay interest on it. And now the savings were nearly gone.

If the medical expenses didn't stop, where was the money coming from to pay the hospital and the surgeon?

CHILDREN TOOK OVER

The children, a son and daughter, visualized the approaching disaster. They'd got what good children of nice people do — they took over. They moved the father by ambulance to the daughter's home. The son took the mother. . . with small homes and the dislocation of the small children from their own rooms, there was no way except to separate them. The son and daughter negotiated with the retirement village to get a $3,200 refund on the cottage.

The cost of nurses, hospitals, and doctors from the time the father went into the daughter's home until he died was $6,700. The son and daughter had to go out and borrow about $4,000 to pay the costs and the funeral, after the mother's funds were gone. And now the mother is living alternately with them.

This is the tragedy that "nice people" in our society face. If they were poor, or were not proud, there are charity doctors and hospitals. But nice people are proud that they are that poor, and they are always proud.

So the nice children of retired people should look to their parents' health insurance, and buy some of their own pockets if necessary. The insurance is not all good. Some of it may have small amounts of dates, while the cancer still spreads But until something better comes along, nice people, somehow, had better see that their parents have some.

Many of the African leaders made the same demands with strong support coming from Prime Ministers Nkrumah of Ghana and Milton Obote of Uganda. President Julius Nyerere of the United Republic of Tanganyika and Zanzibar said that if Southern Rhodesia should defy Britain and declare herself independent, Commonwealth troops should move in under British command.

Ghana and Southern Rhodesia held centre stage, racial shocked British Guiana was also being talked about, along with the threat to Malaysia from Indonesia. But observers said no clear consensus had yet emerged from the still uncompleted collection of views.

Some ITU members were suspicious and the general walkout followed.

The two parties have reached a tentative agreement on the computer issue three times, but the agreement was rejected each time by the ITU international executive at Colorado Springs, Colo.

The newspapers say they will agree to ITU jurisdiction over the operation of keys of the computer and the handling of tape after it has been processed, but not over the computer itself.

While the union shows concern over computers today, it is looking ahead a couple of years when more-refined computers are expected to hite further into composing room work. an ITU stronghold for nearly 100 years.

"Computers will open up new jobs for engineers and such," an ITU spokesman said, but "they will kill off many of the crafts."

of The Affluent Society. In a confidential report prepared for the late president Kennedy, he said Canada and the United States should be considered as one country for purposes of fixing sharing of air traffic across the border.

His report gave the Canadian government hope for a new bilateral air agreement that would permit deeper U.S. penetration by Canadian carriers.

But Gordon McGregor, president of Air Canada, testifying recently before a Commons committee, expressed misgivings about the outcome after the first meeting.

He said he was disappointed that Canada was unable to win even a tentative agreement on its position.

up between 30 and 40 of the 58 Oslo votes.

Scranton isn't giving up the one-sided battle, but he appears to be growing more bitter. He hinted the Goldwater forces are rigging the platform - drafting operation and raised the possibility his own forces may demand a showdown on the convention floor when the platform is presented for approval Tuesday.

Warren Sinsheimer, chairman of the Scranton - for - President committee, charged that Scranton supporters are being blocked from the platform committee sessions.

Scranton wants the Republican to adopt a strong plank in favor of Negro rights and in specific opposition to the extremist John Birch Society. He wants a Republican president to retain control of all nuclear weapons and not allow the North Atlantic supreme commander to have power over the use of small nuclear weapons as Goldwater proposes.

WORK ON PLATFORM

Meanwhile drafters labored today over a platform likely to prove acceptable to Goldwater.

In private conversations, Goldwater is said to have estimated that he has a rock bottom 80 votes over the 655 needed for the nomination. He still wants an additional 20 as a "safety pad" for the last-minute assaults expected against his stronghold.

Goldwater made it clear that if he is the nominee, he will mount an all-out attack on President Johnson's foreign and domestic policies. He said the will to use U.S. strength is the surest way to avoid war.

In the domestic field Goldwater said steps must be taken to end "reckless deficits," curb government spending and return to the states a greater portion of tax collections. He said that if elected president he would enforce the Civil Rights Act and go ahead with it in trying to end discrimination.

Asked whether he would seek repeal of the law because he had contended that the public accommodations and equal employment sections are unconstitutional, Goldwater replied that he would not.

He said: "The legislative branch has spoken for the people and I accept the majority view. The president's job is to administer the law."

A Lift for Living
Religion, Like Water, Takes Shape of People It Fills

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Lately I have spent considerable time near the beaches of one of America's largest inland bodies of water, Lake Michigan. These grassy bluffs of Michigan's western shore seem made for a musing man. Lonely stretches of beach, dappled with sun and shadow, are drenched with a great quietness. One spot in particular is a serene and spacious place where bright and clear beneath me some hundred yards away magnificent Lake Michigan stretches wide its blue and emerald waters from the pale dune beaches of Indiana and Illinois to the rolling Straits of Mackinac, from the mist-haunted bays of Michigan to Wisconsin's balsam - shaded shores.

I suspect that the peacefulness of this place has something to do with the immensities spread in extravagant abundance here. The bright sky is wide and high. The waters are lavish and inexhaustible. Nature's generosity with space and sky and water are impressive here. Nothing is crabbed, stingy, mean, or small. Everything is liberal, especially the wide sky and the vast waters, reminding the visitor of the infinity of time rolling back to the eternity that lies behind today's dawn and the eternity reaching far out beyond tonight's sunset.

FRESH PERSPECTIVE

Seeing the great lake always gives me a fresh perspective. Its very bigness, shames human pettiness. A look at the lake adjusts one's feelings of self-importance: Its waters could swallow the most conceited fellow and hardly interrupt the murmur of a wave. This lake view is good for one's anxiety. By contrast it makes most big worries seem like small matters, and small worries seem trivial. And an hour on this bluff is good for one's religion, for it's hard to be thoughtful here and remain religiously bigoted. In such a place one is reminded that no one man or no one church or denomination can know all about a great God any more than any one person from any particular shore can see all of Lake Michigan. The biggest things in life are so great to be entirely grasped or contained by one person, one group, or one institution.

Religion is a little like the mighty lake that washes and rinses our shores. Lake Michigan possesses awesome, blue-green depths and bright, clear, amber shallows. These great waters sweep into many bays — Grand Traverse Bay, Little Traverse Bay, Big Bay de Noc, Little Bay de Noc, Green Bay, and all the others, and Lake Michigan takes the shape of every depth and shallow, of the big bays and the little coves into which it flows.

One bay is not as good as another. There are wide, deep harbors that bid cordial welcome to the greatest ships and where the largest vessels can safely ride. Other bays are narrow, pinched and stingy, or shallow, marshy and trivial. But the same Lake Michigan fills the greatest depths and the little nest shallows and all the bays, big and small. How much less interesting Lake Michigan would be if it were simply a mighty sarcopan, all the same depth, or if all the bays were just alike, as if cut by the same vast cookie-cutter.

So religion takes the shape of the people it fills. Why should we demand of our acquaintances and friends that they conform to our particular pattern of religious thinking? Why should Christians insist that all churches worship according to the same ritual and adopt the same formal creeds if they are to be recognized as Christian churches? No one man or woman among us is God; we can not contain God, and then only a little of God. No single church or denomination is God, but each is a happier receptacle, receiving some of God.

This does not mean that "one church is as good as another" any more than all bays of our neighboring lake are or equal values. Rather we mean that we need to develop a capacity for appreciating God wherever He appears, as we recognize Lake Michigan no matter how big or little the bay.

Stories of Famous Hymns

O HOLY SAVIOUR, I'LL END UNSEEN

O Holy Saviour, Friend unseen,
Since on Thine arm Thou bidd'st me lean,
Help me, throughout life's changing scene,
By faith to cling to Thee.

What though the world deceitful prove;
And earthly friends and hopes remove;
With patient, uncomplaining love,
I'll still I cling to Thee.

Though oft I seem to tread alone
Life's dreary waste, with thorns o'ergrown,
Thy voice of love, in gentlest tone,
Still whispers: "Cling to Me!"

Though faith and hope are often tried,
I ask not, need not, aught beside;
So safe, so calm, so satisfied,
The soul that clings to Thee.

Faith-testing sorrow has ever made Christians appreciate anew their dependence on Christ the great Comforter of whom Charlotte Elliott sang so beautifully in her devotional hymn, "O Holy Saviour, Friend Unseen."

Miss Elliott herself was passing through a time of deep sorrow when she wrote her verses. She had lost her father and the solicitous in her hymn to "life's changing scene," a "deceitful world," "treading alone life's dreary waste," and the loss of "earthly hopes and friends" are taken as references to her bereavement.

Throughout the song there is no undercurrent of sadness but its message bears witness to the author's reliance on Christ in tribulation and it has served through the years to comfort countless other souls in sorrow.

It was written by Miss Elliott in 1834 and appeared the same year in her "Invalid's Hymn Book." There were more than 100 sacred songs in that famous little volume including the popular evangelistic gem, "Just As I Am Without One Plea" which many evangelists have called the world's most effective soul-winning hymn.

Miss Elliott, whose father was Charles Elliott of Clapham, Brighton, England, was born on March 18, 1789. She enjoyed unusual educational advantages and was devoting a good bit of time and interest to music and the when, at the age of 32, she fell prey to an illness which was to cast a shadow over all of her later years. For half a century she was an invalid and much of her literary work and most of her hymns were written from the sick bed on which she spent so many weary years.

But her Christ-like spirit carried her through every tribulation

Ontario Intelligencer SPORTS

Sport Slices . . .

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Russ Whitfield, that amiable departmental head of the Tweed District, Department of Lands and Forests, has issued a "whodunit" treatise on the question of coarse fish in the lakes and rivers of the district.

He asks why many conservation clubs, sports writers and individual anglers endeavor to fix the blame directly on fellow anglers.

He defends the angler ("the most vulnerable target") because, as he puts it, "there is a pronounced lack of evidence that anglers are responsible."

In fact, after reading the treatise, it would appear that Mr. Whitfield backs his angler defence by suggesting the culprit is none other in the main than old Mother Nature herself.

He says that few anglers carry coarse fish for bait, and secondly, few anglers dump residual bait fish into the lakes.

The fastidious fisherman, who makes a study of the sport, memorizes tables and whatnot, operates by statistics and what have you, probably, is the type that would register complaints about the presence of coarse fish, but the run-of-the-stream hike who fishes for fun and a trout, doesn't givadam what the experts lay at his door.

I cannot imagine a jolly old fishing party out for a weekend of fun at some far northern lake, worrying about how the perch, sunfish, or rock bass got there because they proved their presence.

Nor can I imagine the careless angler out for the weekend fun casting a whit about whether people say he is to blame.

Bouncing back from his angler defence, Mr. Whitfield takes the offensive and hands Mother Nature a few jolts above the midriff.

He says beaver damming at outlet creeks often will flood low-lying areas of shoreline creating a perfect habitat for perch, sunfish or rock bass.

Gully flooding by beaver during the spring freshet, backing up water in low-lying areas between lakes or connecting streams should not be discounted. This would also be a means whereby coarse fish find their way into new water.

Birds, such as kingfishers, herons, osprey and gulls are all carriers of fish, and in large quantities at certain times of the year. It is not impossible that these birds could well drop some of their live cargo into water enroute to nesting sites.

But he admits the possibility that certain anglers—perhaps through good intentions—may contribute to the introduction of coarse fish to new waters. If they have those fish in bait, they perhaps feel it would be a good thing to help support the trout in their favorite lake by tossing the coarsers overboard.

"Such practice," says Mr. Whitfield, "will not contribute anything whatsoever to the betterment of angling, and little, if anything, to the welfare of the trout population generally."

Contrary to general belief, Russ points out, speckled trout do much better in lakes where there are no minnows. They can and do survive and grow fat on insects alone. Minnows can compete with trout for food in certain lakes and can well be a deterrent rather than a help to the trout population.

Some anglers believe, and rightly so, Mr. Whitfield said that residual bait fish (those where all fish have been removed by use of the fish eradicant) provide the best angling success.

When live, bait minnows are used when angling in these lakes, they appear to have a tendency to attract the trout more surely than in waters where minnows are present, perhaps because they are not faced with them every day.

In fact, hatchery-reared speckled trout have never seen a minnow until one is dangled in front of it by an angler in reclaimed lakes that contain no other fish species.

Finishes Seventh, Crothers Wins Heat

Kidd's Best Not Enough

LONDON (CP) — Mike Bullivant of Britain won the six-mile event at the British Amateur Athletic Association championship Friday night in the second best time ever recorded.

Bullivant's 27 minutes, 26.6 seconds was 17.2 second faster than the ratified world record of 27:43.8 set by Sandor Iharos of Hungary in 1956, and was a European record.

Bullivant's time put a European and British all-comers record over the distance in which Toronto's Bruce Kidd ran his best six-miler and finished only seventh. Ron Hill of England was two seconds behind Bullivant, and J. J. Hogan of Ireland was third in 27:35.0.

Kidd's time was 27:56.4. His previous best was a winning one 29:09.4 at the British Empire Games at Perth, Australia, in 1962.

Earlier Friday, Bill Crothers, 23, a Markham, Ont., pharmacist, won his heat in the 880-yard event in 1:53.2.

Kidd, a 20-year-old Toronto Star reporter, said in his dressing room at the White City Stadium after the race, that he was disappointed with his performance. He said:

"I dropped back badly at the four mile mark. But I finished strong and think I might have run better than I did."

The first five finishers were within Iharos' time.

Crothers nearly lost in his semi-final because as he said later, he "ran a stupid race.

"I got boxed in about 40 yards from the end. There were three men around me and I thought they would spread out on the final turn but they didn't."

Crothers had to stop, change stride and then start running again.

The Belvedere Cup

Twenty seven couples go to the tees on Sunday to quest the Belvedere Cup, an invitational event on the summer agenda of the Bay of Quinte Country Club.

Competition is mixed two-ball medal play over eighteen-holes.

The luck of the draw made yesterday did not partner a golfer with his wife.

The field will tee off in six-some, the first starting at one o'clock, and the remaining eight teeing off at twelve-minute intervals.

It is an all-out competition with Belvedere members decided at the end of Sunday's play.

Presentation of the Belvedere Cup will be made at the annual trophies dinner to be held.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Win Again, the $100 filly, did just that at Greenwood Friday and provided the shortest return of the afternoon in winning the $2,500 Valparaiso purse. He did it:

Won in a raffle last year by George Schriber, after purchasing his ticket for $100, Win Again has raced four times this season, winning two and placing once to boost third to her other outings.

The winner paid $3.10, $2.70 and $2.30 across the board.

In the featured Gimbore Purse, the seventh race, Return Trip, the three-year-old legcared son of Mosseborough, defeated Dark Wind and Vous, running to the lead after laying just off the pace through out most of the one mile hurf test.

Nicklaus Five Strokes Behind ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Tony Lema, Caddy, Win British Open

By TOM REEDY

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Tony Lema won the 104th British Open golf championship Friday, but he lays claim to only 49 per cent of the credit.

Tip Anderson was at least 50 per cent of this team, and if I refuse to say 51 per cent would not be too far wrong," the 30-year-old San Leandro, Calif., professional said.

Anderson, 28, whose correct name is James Junior, may be the best caddy in the world. The son of James Anderson, who still is caddying at famed old St. Andrews, he steered Arnold Palmer to two British Open titles and a second place that was only one shot short.

Lema's first-ever onslaught on British courses took place there this week, and he whipped the "Old Lady" with 73-68-68-70—279 and a five-shot triumph over runnerup Jack Nicklaus.

Nicklaus, 24-year-old Columbus, Ohio, pro who had rattled rounds of 76-74, fired a 66 Friday morning to equal the course record and a four-under-par 66 in the afternoon for 284.

Lema's total score was only one stroke off the record for the 6,926-yard course.

"Tip did it," Lema said. "He taught me the first lesson—to run seven irons on to these tough greens. I got the real sword of his advice and that's the best thing I ever did."

The great Bobby Jones required something like five years to learn you cannot attack the greens on the British courses but must approach them with shots that might not look unspectacular or even good.

Argentina's Roberto de Vicenzo placed third with 76-72-70-67—285.

Lema's first prize was $4,200, but his victory was worth a lot more in prestige to the Nicklaus won $2,800 and de Vicenzo $2,240.

Bernhard Hunt of England was fourth with 73-74-70-70—287 and Australia's trio of Australia fifth with 72-72-73-72—290.

THEY TIE

Harry Bretman of England and Ireland's Christy O'Connor tied at 291.

South Africa's Gary Player, a big money-winner on the U.S. circuit, tied for eighth with 75-73-72-73—293.

Lema's triumph applied him for the $100,000 World Series of Golf with the winners of the U.S. Master's championship, and Canada Cup champion, Jack Nicklaus, in which he defeated Palmer in a playoff.

After Lema's winning performance, Tip Anderson said:

"He's a great player. His swing is about as good as Sam Snead's. There's very little difference in his game when you compare it with Jack Palmer's. He is more relaxed. When something goes wrong he doesn't tie his took at the fifth hole Friday, he forgets it immediately."

Asked if Lema ever ignored his advice, Anderson replied:

"No, sir. Once at the 14th. I told him to shoot for the corner of a church and he drew the ball a bit and we didn't come out on the right side of the wood. But he hit it where I told him every time."

Fred Corcoran, Lema's business manager, said he is trying to arrange for Anderson to visit the U.S. for a TV program.

"He'd be great," Corcoran said. "He can tell you exactly how to win the Open if you will believe it and have the talent to back it up."

Three Tied For Second

Knudson Ontario Pro Champion

TORONTO (CP) — George Knudson may have felt a little deflated in spite of winning the Ontario professional golf championship.

The 23-year-old Toronto redhead shot a one-over-par 73 over the 6,868-yard Bayview golf course Friday to win the championship with a 36-hole total of 140. But his performance was six strokes below his opening-day score of 67, when he bettered the course competitive record by two strokes.

Knudson's victory brought him $1,000 in prize money, the Ontario title and a berth on the Ontario team that will meet Quebec team in a Quebec-Ontario tournament in Montreal Aug. 22.

Al Balding, the 39-year-old touring pro, Moe Norman, 34, the 1953 OPGA winner, and 26-year-old Ron Ross, all of Toronto, finished the two-day tournament tied for second place with 143's, three back of Knudson.

BREAK PAR

The four former finishers in the tourney were the only members of a field of 106 professionals and their assistants who managed to break par.

Bill Kozak of Niagara Falls, Ont., also had a 73 and in the tournament with 144 and a fifth-place tie with Gerry Magee of Stouffville.

Win It In Tenth Inning

Joyces Shade Cannifton 6-5

By PETER CARVER

Young Dave Lewis' clutch single in the bottom of the tenth drove in the winning run as Joyce Seniors took an extra inning squeaker from Cannifton by a 6-5 count last night.

Lewis was the second man to come in to the circle after taking over from starter Bev McLean in the ninth inning. Both relieving the Clippers down on three hits allowing one run.

The teams battled the first five innings out on even terms. Cannifton finally jumped on McLean in the sixth. Parks singled and came home on Don Forsythe's triple. Empey got on by error and O'Connell promptly singled home Forsythe. A fielder's choice by Atkins base and Gerry Brennan's base hit plated the third and fourth runs.

Joyces narrowed the lead with a three run explosion in the bottom half of the inning. Scored on by error and Mavety walked. Bradley singled Weston home and McGuinness cleared the sacks with a booming triple.

Cannifton moved into a 5-3 lead in the seventh when Forsythe walked, advanced by error and scored on Scott Clapp's hit.

Bellefield kept pecking away at the Cannifton lead. They scored in the eighth when Bradford singled and came home on Larry Lewis' double, and tied it up in the ninth when Soule walked and reached third on a pickoff play that backfired. Court Bralley's single plated Soule to bring him home.

Lewis whiffed the side in the tenth and then won the game in the tenth when he singled home brother Larry on third with a two bagger to left.

Starter Bev McLean threw good ball until the sixth. In five complete innings he gave up four runs off seven hits. He whiffed six and walked four. Lewis took the win in his four-inning appearance. He threw three strikes by eight Clippers and passed only one.

Butch Clapp started and left in the ninth in favor of Bill Hill. Hill came in with the score tied and took the loss. They were touched for eleven hits while whiffing four and walking three.

Larry Lewis had two hits, one a double as did Larry Soule. Pat Anestisine also hit safely on two occasions. Cliff McGrimmon slashed out a triple with Bralley and Lewis rounding out the attack.

Ron Ucrit was the best for the Clippers with a double and a single. Don Forsythe hit a two-bagger, Pat O'Connor collected two safeties with Parks, Empey, Clapp, Cole and Brannan contributing safeties.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Brother Hy, an eight-year-old gelding, paced his fastest mile of the year and the fastest of the night Friday when he captured the featured $1,000 Preferred Pace in 2:07 1-5 at the Western Fair Raceway here.

He paid $17.30 for the winning seventh in 13 starts this year.

The daily double was a popular one and paid only $12.00 on Brian Chips in he first at $4.00 and Say Hy D in the second for $4.10.

Mamie Herbert, winless in 10 starts this year and last, finally found a field he could best in the third race. The three-year-old filly turned in a strong effort to pay $10.00.

TORONTO (CP) — Ardee Lad edged up in the stretch for a head decision over Cadenza in the Invitation Trot Friday night before 6,586 at Greenwood Raceway.

The 3-to-2 choice in the seven-furlong test, Ardee was last at the two-furlong flash turned into the stretch. But the gelding rebounded to win for driver Harold Wellwood, registering his fifth win in 12 starts for the Bramalea Stable of St. Mary's, Ont.

The finish of Ardee and Cadenza made for a quinella of $20.

Wrestling Record Set

Referee Wins Main Bout

A wrestling record was set here last night.

For the first time in man history a referee won the first fall of a main bout.

Ditto the winner was awarded the victory without laying a hand on his opponent.

And the whole thing took less than two minutes of action.

It happened during a flurry of last-minute substitutions.

In the mat mixup Big Like Eakins took the place of the Mighty Jumbo who had eaten trouble against Yukon Eric.

Timmy Geohagen, the lovable irritant, doubled in tights drawing with Duke Noble in the opener and partnering Ilo Di Paolo in the tag team semifinal against Big Bob Stanlee and Bull Johnson who subbed for Baby "Sad" Lyons.

Big Ike looked for trouble the minute he entered the ring for the first fall of the main bout — and he got it.

Before the wrestlers had settled in their seats, Eakins and Referee Bunny Dunlop engaged in a tussle in Ernie's corner. Bunny who doesn't fool around Big Ike effectively grappling him to the mat then counting him out.

It took just 23 seconds.

Probably fighting mad at the turn of events Big Ike charged out of his corner straight for the Yuke.

His knees churning he dallied into the Alaskan. Suddenly Eric dropped to the mat in what was apparent agony.

The fans surged ringside and Referee Dunlop announced that he had awarded the bout to Eric. Later it was stated Yukon was taken to hospital apparently suffering with a groin injury.

In any event he was helped from the arena to a waiting automobile.

Timmy Geohagen and Ilo Di Paolo had a ball with Big Bob Stanlee and Bull Johnson.

They more or less toyed with the pair of heavies, Timmy winning the first fall putting the boot bye-bye with his unconscious Ilo.

Tim won the second and deciding fall the same way after his handsome Italian partner had softened up the opposition.

As was noted Geohagen wrestled to a thirty-minute time-limit draw with the strutting Duke Noble, a favorite partner of "Sweet Daddy" Siki, the Broadway beatnik.

Esky Rookie Looks Good

EDMONTON (CP) — Rookie quarterback Jerry McIntosh of Tulsa came out of the defensive unit late in the final quarter and fired two touchdown passes to guide the Green to a 28-7 victory over the Gold in Edmonton Eskimos' annual intra-squad game before a record 20,000 fans Friday night.

McBirnie hit halfbacks Sammy Harris and Jim Thomas with 25-yard touchdown passes to account for the winning margin after he replaced Lynn Amedee at quarterback with the score tied 20-20.

Alou's Six Hits Spark Giants' Win

Phillies Beaten

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Has Jesus Alou given San Francisco Giants an omen?

Alou, youngest of the three baseball brothers, became the first National Leaguer to get six hits in a game in more than four seasons Friday as the Giants trounced Chicago Cubs 10-3.

The victory, coupled with first-place Philadelphia Phillies' 5-1 loss to Cincinnati Reds, moved the Giants to within a half game of the league lead.

Alou, 21, a rookie, belted a home run and five singles in six times at bat. The last NL player to get six hits was Dick Sisler of Pittsburgh Pirates. May 13, 1950.

That, in case you've forgotten, is the year the Pirates won the pennant.

The Giants will need more than omens to win this year, but a few more similar performances from Alou certainly will help.

Elsewhere in the NL, Los Angeles Dodgers edged Houston Colts 4-3, Pittsburgh Pirates dumped Milwaukee Braves 5-4 and St. Louis Cardinals beat New York Mets 3-1.

HITS TWO HOMERS

Besides Alou's rampage, Willie Mays slammed two homers, giving him a total of 27. He connected with one on the first and hit a solo blast in the fourth. Orlando Cepeda contrib-

Indians Took A Chance That Paid Off

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cleveland franchise is supposed to be sick, and even the healthiest guy on the club is taking pills.

That would be rookie sensation Bob Chance, who keeps popping diet pills into his mouth and homers into the stands.

Chance continued his slugging Friday night, slamming two homers and driving in five runs as the Indians ended a five-game losing streak by walloping American League leading Baltimore Orioles 8-0.

The victory, trying to revive fortunes in the year of the Pirates won the pennant.

The Giants will need more than omens to win this year, but a few more similar performances from Alou certainly will help.

Elsewhere in the NL, Los Angeles Dodgers edged Houston Colts 4-3, Pittsburgh Pirates dumped Milwaukee Braves 5-4 and St. Louis Cardinals beat New York Mets 3-1.

HITS TWO HOMERS

Besides Alou's rampage, Willie Mays slammed two homers, giving him a total of 27. He connected with one on the first and hit a solo blast in the fourth. Orlando Cepeda contributed a homer; a triple and two singles to Juan Marichal's 12th victory against four defeats.

Sandy Koufax won his ninth straight game and became the first pitcher in the majors to reach 13 triumphs in the Dodgers' victory, although he needed relief help, leaving in the sixth inning when the Colts rallied.

Dick Farrell, making his sixth try for his 11th triumph, suffered his fourth setback. He hasn't won since June 18.

The Reds stopped the Phillies' five-game winning streak on the hitting of Frank Robinson and Deron Johnson. Robinson clouted a two-run homer in the fifth while Johnson doubled home a run in the second and homered in the fourth. Dennis Bennett lost his sixth game in 15 decisions.

Bob Friend scattered six hits, gaining his seventh triumph against eight defeats. The Pirates jumped on Braves' starter Tony Cloninger for three runs in the second on singles by Bill Mazeroski, Jim Pagliaroni and Friend, Bob Bailey's double and a sacrifice fly.

The Mets threatened the Cardinals in the ninth inning, load ing the bases with two outs, but starter Bob Gibson got pinch hitter Jim Hickman on a game-ending strikeout. Mike Shannon singled home two St. Louis runs in the fourth.

Hevenor Wins Senior Crown

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — For the second time since the tournament was begun in 1902, the Royal Canadian Golf Association's senior Canadian championship belongs to George C. Hevenor of Toronto.

A pre-tournament favorite this time and the leader through all three rounds, Hevenor compiled a 54-hole total of 227, four strokes better than Romeo Trudeau of Montreal.

Ayr golf club Summerles course par of 72, Hevenor shot rounds of 74-77-76. Trudeau, also a former head, started 23 day's final round, had 79-75-77 for 231.

Second place was held jointly by C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London, Ont., Canada's former amateur great, and Guy Giroux of Montreal. Each finished with 236. Herb Thorp of Montreal was next with 239.

Hevenor, 59 - year - old stock broker, won the inaugural in Winnipeg when the tournament was match play. It was the same in 1963 when Bill Martin of Edmonton won at Quebec. This year the change was made to medal play.

WINS DIVISION TITLE

Each championship win automatically made him winner also in Class A, for players 56 to 59 years old. The 60-64 is class was won by Somerville and the 65-69 Class C by Ben Morrison of Sudbury with a 240 total.

Victory in Class D, for those 70 years and over, was a close one for Norman Falkner of Toronto, who plays despite an artificial leg. He lost his right leg above the knee as a result of wounds during the First World War. He is 70.

Falkner had rounds of 82-80-82 for 244 to win by one stroke over James Wagstaff of Toronto.

The daddy senior of them all — 86-year-old Wallace Rodd of Moncton — finished with three medical certificates in his bag.

The provincial team title, for four lowest scores, went to Ontario with the best aggregate of 947. Quebec, the only other province with sufficient players for competition, had 982.

Grid Cards Expected To Move

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League are expected to announce next week that they will move to Atlanta, sports editor Bob Broeg of The Post-Dispatch reported Friday.

The only things that could block the announcement, he said, are opposition to move by league colleagues or legal action by St. Louis.

Broeg's report said the Cardinals are dissatisfied with a proposed lease and facilities at the new downtown sports stadium now under construction.

AGREES TO FIGHT

NEW YORK (AP) — Middleweight champion Joey Giardello will be asked to defend his title against Jose Torres, Puerto Rican-born New Yorker, at a site and date to be named later for a $75,000 guarantee, promoter Murray Goodman said Friday. Goodman said the bout, Giardello's first defence since he dethroned Nigerian Dick Tiger at Atlantic City, June 7, will be held in an eastern city shortly after Sept. 7.

Chiefs Win Two Games From Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Syracuse Chiefs narrowed the gap on Jacksonville Suns in the International League Friday night as they swept both ends of a doubleheader from Rochester Red Wings, 3-1 and 9-5, while the Suns took a 7-6 decision from Atlanta Crackers in Virginia.

In other action, Toronto Maple Leafs outslugged Buffalo Bisons 7-4 and Columbus Jets whipped Atlanta Crackers 11-5.

Syracuse climbed to within 1½ games of the front-running Suns as Mack Jones slammed his 22nd and 23rd home runs. His third-inning blast with one man on was the opener and his sixth-inning ball with two on broke a 6-6 tie in the nightcap.

Don Morgan contributed two home runs for the Suns to drive in four runs and lead Jackson-ville's 13-hit attack.

At Toronto, Bobby Del Greco knocked in five runs with a pair of homers and a single. Ernie Bronstad to his seventh victory. Leon Jones and Duke Carmel hit home runs for the Bisons.

The Jets spotted Atlanta four unearned runs in the first inning before rallying with 11 to push the Crackers deeper into the league cellar. Johnny Powers led Columbia with a three run homer and a double.

Your Car

Failing Coil May Act up Only on Road

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Your car's ignition system depends on the coil for power. Essentially a transformer, it steps up low voltage of the battery or generator and delivers a needed high voltage which is routed through the distributor to the spark plugs, providing the hot spark that ignites the fuel mixture.

Although the coil itself is not too often an immediate source of trouble, it could be to blame if points are burned or pitted, if the engine is missing, if starting is difficult. . .or if you cannot start at all, even with a push. Sometimes a failing coil acts up only on the road after it has been working for some time.

Whether or not an ignition cell is defective can be quickly determined by modern test equipment. Sometimes, it is unjustly accused when the fault actually lies with a loosely connected high tension lead which permits arcing. This condition can cause heavy corrosion, and, of course, excessive resistance at the coil terminal socket.

F. S. asks: "If the wheels seem to vibrate badly at high speeds, would this be due to misalignment?"

It could — but unbalanced wheels are common causes, too.

M. H. writes: "My engine stalls on sudden stops and is hard to restart. I think it is flooding and hope you can tell me what would cause this. Is it the fuel pump?"

Faulty choke, carburetor adjustment or carburetor float level would be more likely than excessive pump pressure.

From T. T.: "During a hard rain, water seeps inside our car at the bottom of the windshield where it meets the moulding. Must I replace the weatherstripping in order to stop this?"

You can buy a sealant (in tube form) at your auto supply store which should cure this trouble.

* * *

S. H. writes: "My young brother bought an old car and the temperature gauge is apparently hooked up wrong. When you switch off the ignition, the needle swings over to boiling. Does this mean that when the ignition is on and the needle indicates "cold" it's actually hot?"

No. On this car, the normal rest or park position for the gauge (when the ignition is off) is at "Hot."

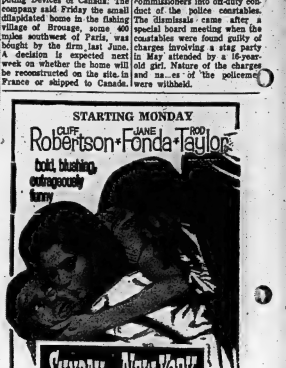
HARVEY SIGNS

QUEBEC (CP) — Management of the Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League announced Friday that veteran defenceman Doug Harvey has signed with the club for next season.



TO PRESENT HOME

OTTAWA (CP) — Birthplace of early French explorer Samuel de Champlain will be turned over to the federal government as a centennial project by Computing Devices of Canada. The company said Friday the small dilapidated house in the fishing village of Brouage, some 400 miles southwest of Paris, was bought by the firm last June. A decision is expected next week on whether the home will be reconstructed on the site in France or shipped to Canada.

POLICE FINED

CALGARY (CP) — Three city police constables were dismissed and four others received heavy fines Friday after an inquiry by the board of police commissioners into off-duty conduct of the police constables. The dismissals came after a special board meeting when the constables were found guilty of charges involving a stag party in May attended by a 16-year-old girl. Nature of the charges and names of the policemen were withheld.

Peyton Place to Be Shown As One Long, Long Novel

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "We'll either have the first 104-set play or a long, long novel." That is producer Richard Goldstone's conception of a bold experiment in television programming, Peyton Place.

At least it is bold for the U.S. But the device has worked successfully in England, where Coronation Street has been the top-rated show. At least the Wednesday night chapter is; the Monday night chapter is a few notches down the list.

ABC has designed Peyton Place to follow the Coronation Street pattern: Two half-hour dramas with continuing characters, appearing on Tuesday and Thursday nights.

"It's an exciting concept, but one that presents all kinds of logistical problems," said Goldstone, a veteran of films and television.

"The writing is difficult, because we have to keep several different plots going and to involve a number of people in the town. Each show is like a chapter of a book. It must be self-contained and yet relate to the rest of the story."

MUST BE AVAILABLE

"We require a large cast; at least 13 people so far, and they must remain available at all times. We have two directors leap-frogging their units, each working every other week. So far we have been able to shoot two half-hours per week."

Network programming will be a problem too. If one show is pre-empted, the string will be broken; and obviously Peyton Place will be pre-empted Nov. 3, U.S. election day. That's one the network minds will have to ponder.

The cast includes Dorothy Malone in the role played by Lana Turner in the feature version and Warner Anderson in the Lloyd Nolan part.

Subject matter?

"We'll deal with contemporary problems," said producer Goldstone, "without getting into the sexy material Grace Metalious had in her book."

Darocher Trial

Love Life Of 'The Lip'

MIDDLEBURY, Vt. (AP)—A Middlebury bricklayer said Friday he once threatened to punch Leo Durocher in the nose if the baseball coach didn't stop associating with Mrs. Morin and their 26-year-old daughter, Carolyn.

Rena Morin, testifying during the trial of his damage suit against Durocher, said the baseball coach called his home a few years ago from New York City.

Morin, 51, said Durocher, 58, asked for Carolyn and then for Mrs. Morin, but neither was home and Durocher hung up.

"I say 'What's the matter with me'," Morin said, "and I called back and I say 'keep your nose out of my business or I'll punch your nose'."

Morin's suit charges Durocher with stealing the love of his wife Anna, 51, and asks $150,000 damages.

DENIES CHARGES

Durocher, a coach for Los Angeles Dodgers, denied the charges and said he is in love with Carolyn, an attractive brunette, who has played small parts in movies and television. 7.

During her testimony Thursday, Mrs. Morin described her husband as "a full blooded Frenchman, who is very professional, with a low boiling point."

Under questioning by his lawyer, Morin said Durocher "hurt my home, bust my family, bust everything."

He said the relationship between his wife and Durocher made him "want to turn my car upside down and break all the trees in Middlebury."

Morin said he and his wife argued about Durocher's attentions to their daughter.

"I didn't want my daughter getting involved with a man older than her father," he said.

TIGER TO FIGHT

NEW YORK (AP) — Nigeria's Dick Tiger, the former world middleweight champion, will meet contender Jose Gonzales of New York in a 10-round fight at Madison Square Garden July 31. It will be the 34-year-old Tiger's first bout since he lost his title to Joey Giardello at Atlantic City last Dec.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For July 12

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Be prepared for surprises, including visit from one who was confined. Routine may be "shaken." Maintain attitude of calm. Do what must be done. Then relax — enjoy yourself!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Excitement connected with change and travel indicated. Involves loved one — and also children. Communicate thoughts in specific manner. Otherwise, confusion apt to result. Attend church of choice.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Don't delay in reaching understanding which can promote domestic harmony. Day to cooperate with family members. There is tension indicated — but it can be transformed into creative excitement.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): You may be drawn between two extremes. Best courses seem you seeking extra time. Don't be stampeded into money decision. Avoid self-deception. See facts, persons as they actually exist.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Your approach should be aimed at promoting confidence. Involves investments, long-range planning. Time is on your side. Convince one in authority you possess necessary creative spark.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): One who urges caution is thinking of your own welfare. Know this — respond accordingly. Be diplomatic. Cycle high enough to break from tradition. But do so in tactful manner!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Previous "secrets" due to be exposed. Bask in the light of greater knowledge. Take initiative. Be sympathetic to aims of loved one. But take steps which outline new course.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Encouragement due from friends. But one close to you may be skeptical. Strive for balance. In dealing with children, be stern but understanding. Map program — follow it through.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You may receive honor within the community. Be gracious. Offer co-operation. But also realize that promises made to family must be kept. Excellent for outing, including picnic.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Fulfill obligations. Go all out for one far away. Fine day for basic accomplishments. Best to remain close to home base. No unnecessary travel.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Feeling of frustration will be erased. You can obtain co-operation you requested. But now you may find you are not completely ready. Be sure to insist on proper arrangements, agreements.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Your ability to take surprising changes in matter-of-course fashion very important. Realize that emotions affecting relationship not settled. Act accordingly. Be easy.

If today is your birthday . . . you have remarkable sense of humor. Often, however, you "put it aside." Bring it out in open more often!

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Virgo, Libra, Scorpio. Special word to Pisceans. Others are past events which require review. Do this before entering "new waters."

For July 13

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): If you attempt short cuts, you will be forced to retrace steps. Day features ability to analyze and draw valid conclusions. Eliminate guess work. Go directly to the source.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Don't jump to conclusions where member of opposite sex is concerned. Day when rumors apt to fly. Be mature. Important to strive for harmony at home. Have faith in loved one.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Conditions you once considered "settled" may prove to be the opposite. Time to review facts, figures. One who works for you may have made error. Be lenient — but demand an accounting.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): What appears certain . . . may be "transient." Take nothing for granted. Trust inner feelings. Then verify beliefs. Need to consult expert. Friends mean well, but are not informed.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Money situation requires clarifying. Includes expenses, budget, promises — and past resolutions. Project should not be left "hanging." Be thorough. Convince higher-ups you are aware.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Cycle high. But you may not recognize true friend. Be perceptive. Don't be discouraged by what appears to be a setback. View potential. Look ahead — avoid needless worry.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Concern for what might be is waste of time. Do job with confidence; those in position to aid will flock to your side. Your natural sensitivity will prove valuable. You are on right track!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Friend who appears irritable may be conscience-stricken. Probe deep. Don't maintain "holier - than - thou" — attitude. Matter of investment must be clarified. Take your time. You will receive answers.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You achieve goal today through unorthodox methods. Means don't be afraid to break from tradition. Check facts — then utilize them in unique, original manner.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Fine lunar aspect promotes intellectual curiosity. Read between the lines. You can make valuable discoveries . . . arrive at valid conclusions. And in turn will impress superiors!

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Be willing to share. Means problems as well as joys — and includes confiding in loved one. Atmosphere among family members may be tense. Help relieve situation through humor.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Hold off on contracts, agreements if possible. There may be unfavorable clause of which you are not aware. Do some basic research. Be familiar with all aspects of current project.

If today is your birthday . . . you are practical, able to make the most of assets — and you have a "soft spot" for those who are creative.

General Tendencies: Cycle continues high for Virgo. Special word to Gemini: Emotions appear unstable. Whirlwind of reactions best describes day. Slow down!

Teen-Age Canada

Many Don't Understand Negro Issue in U.S.

By JACK HUTTON

"My sisters and brothers and I grew up in a small town without ever seeing a Negro. We had no Negroes attending our little high school.

"How can we be expected to understand in Canada what all the fuss is about below the border? We're sympathetic — but we just don't know the score."

That's a 19-old - girl speaking, only one of about 30 readers who apparently felt very upset after reading a letter in this column from a Negro teen-ager who felt he'd been slighted in Canada.

The Negro reader had a serious charge to make: he claims Canadian teen-agers are just as guilty of discrimination as their counterparts in the U.S. — even if they are more polite about it.

If you remember his letter, he said he had always believed Canada was the one spot on the North American continent free of discrimination. But after working briefly in Vancouver, Windsor and Toronto he returned disillusioned to Detroit, Mich.

I can't print all of the letters that replied to his charge, but they boiled down to one conclusion: we weren't given a chance. Any stranger who judges a country on such brief acquaintance isn't being fair.

Here was Miss O.M. from Winnipeg, Man.: "In my opinion, this boy is sadly disillusioned. It seems to me that he has given up far too easily. After all, life is not a garden of flowers, but rather a skimpy plant trying to survive amongst a board of weeds.

"The first thing this boy did was to look for a room with the result that he was turned down.

"Now it is said he became suspicious then. Suspicious on 'no try? What kind of will power is that! Sure, if he'd been turned down four or five times I see his point — but on one try?

"And does he think that coffee shops where school gangs just about his age hang out are the only places where teens congregate? I wonder if he tried going to churches, Young People's meetings or YMCA groups?"

SYMPATHETIC

A 15 - year - old Halifax, N.S., reader who preferred to remain anonymous had this to say. "I feel very sympathetic towards Negroes in their segregation fight, and I'm sure all of my friends do too. But we're so far from it here.

"Your correspondent wonders whether Canadian students think twice about taking home a colored friend. I don't think that's true, but I can't prove it. You see, we haven't had the chance to meet Negroes and discuss these problems.

"Also, he said he felt out-of-place in the big cities. Believe me, there are lots of us who feel small and lonely in places like Toronto, Vancouver and Montreal. It's different when you get to know them. I'm sure, 'but they seem so big.

"All I want to say is we all share the problems he described. And I wish he'd come back and give us another chance."

UPSET

We also heard from "An Upset Reader" in Vancouver. "I read in your column about the Negro teen-ager who felt he'd been a bad deal in our city, and I couldn't help wondering whose fault it was.

"We've any number of clubs that would have welcomed him. There is almost literally no limit to the number of things he could have done and enjoyed — swimming, attending night classes, playing tennis, book clubs, listening to records and music.

"Perhaps our fault is that we don't make enough people aware of these activities. I guess we don't if even one fellow feels that badly."

John B. of Toronto had a brief comment: "I felt rather badly and not a little ashamed when I read your column," he said. "It must prove that we simply don't understand the depth of feeling in racial relations. Perhaps we just take people for granted in Canada and don't make enough an effort to reach visitors like these."

One last note: we didn't hear from one other Negro reader.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League — Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Please give me information necessary for a trip to Mexico by car. We will be leaving in about three weeks. — G. P., Belleville ANSWER: You will need a Canadian passport, a Mexican tourist card, obtainable at the Mexican Consulate office, Carlton Street, Toronto, or at the Mexican Government border offices at the official points of entry into Mexico, also a smallpox vaccination certificate for re - entry into Canada. Check with your insurance man for you will need special coverage to travel in that country. Suggest you enter U.S. via Detroit, then on to Toledo, Fort Wayne, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Springfield, Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Amarillo, Roswell, and El Paso. Maps may be obtained from any oil company or your local Ontario Motor League Club, if you are a member.

QUESTION: We are planning a trip to Arizona by car. Would you please give us the highways to use, and any useful information that you can. There will be four of us and we can all drive. — Miss C., Belleville.

ANSWER: The Ontario Motor League recommends the following routes to Phoenix — Belleville to Detroit, Highway 2 and 75 through Toledo, Dayton, Cincinnati to Georgetown, 60 into Louisville, 31W to Bowling Green, 79 to Jackson, 40 to Memphis, 55 to Pine Bluff and Texarkana 67 to Dallas, 80 through Fort Worth, Abilene, Odessa, El Paso to Tuscon and 80 to Phoenix.

QUESTION: Could you give me information on the length of the following turnpikes and the creative cost; Garden State Parkway, New York Thruway, Pennsylvania Turnpike? — Miss M., Trenton.

ANSWER: Garden State Parkway: Martinville-Cape May, N J., 173 miles. Max: toll $2.75. New York Thruway: 559 miles line — New York City, 559 miles. Max. toll $8.20. Pennsylvania Turnpike System: Stratton or Delaware River to Gateway (Ohio line near Youngstown) Pa., 470 miles. Max. toll $4.80.

The Ontario Motor League, Eastern Ontario Club takes a look at the early days of motoring:

1905: In Lancaster, Massachusetts, police set up speed traps to the foot of a hill where speed was required to achieve the necessary momentum to get over the next hill. Fines of $15 had to be paid by each speeder.

1912: Ten miles an hour in cities and towns and villages, and fifteen miles an hour in country was the limit for Ontario motorists.

1919: It wasn't until April of 1919 that the Ontario Legislature through its municipal statutes, was able to pass a bill and have the speed increased to a twenty-mile-an-hour limit in cities and towns, and a twenty-five-mile-an-hour limit in the open country.

1919: In Japan, this notice was given to motorists: "You must drive your automobile at the speed of eight knots per hour on the city roads and not twelve knots per hour on the country roads. Do not drive the motor car when you get drunk and do not smoke while in the driver seat."

Five Elderly Men Perish In Fire At Kirkland Lake

Four Placed in Home By Teck Twp. Agency

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — Five pensioners—four of them crippled — died Sunday night when they were trapped on the second - storey of a blazing boarding house in which they lived.

Another crippled pensioner leaped to safety from a second-storey window and two others, who had been watching television downstairs, ran from the building, one of them carrying the television set with him.

Flames destroyed a fire escape at the rear of the building, but police and firemen said they doubted that the dead men would have reached it.

Dead are James Henry Dale, 77, who had only one leg; Absalom Migras, 60, partially paralysed; Joseph Skelecki, 65; James Kenney, 88, and Samuel Portelance, 84.

Firemen found the bodies of Kenney, Portelance and Migras in a bedroom. Dale's body was found in a washroom and Skelecki was found dead in bed. Autopsies were ordered.

INVESTIGATE CAUSE

Fire marshals were called in today to investigate the cause of the fire, believed to have started in a shed at the rear of the building.

Firemen said the fire could have been burning for some time before it was first noticed by building owners Mr. and Mrs. William Lynette around 7:30 p.m.

They ran into the living room of Mrs. Alice Bingham, 73, and Frank Legault, 64, who both escaped out the front door, Mr. Darling signing the television set with him.

Frank Mizar, 36, whose legs were partially paralyzed, was helped to a window by Samuel Davidson of Hamilton, who was visiting. They leaped together.

"I tried to rush back in to get another man out, but the flames stopped me and kept me from getting trapped myself," said Davidson.

SHOOT THROUGH ROOF

Flames were shooting through the roof of the frame building when fire crews arrived. The building was destroyed before they could bring the flames under control.

Only two of the eight men living in the home were there regularly, they said, the others coming and Mr. Portelance. Mr. Dale, Mr. Skelecki, and Mr. Migras were placed in the home by Teck Township welfare agency; Mr. Migras by the provincial welfare and Mr. Migras by nearby McGarry Township.

Most of them were waiting to enter a 75-bed home for the elderly which officials hope to complete here in 1965. The home will eventually accommodate 150 and work on an access road started today.

K. Plans Huge Grain Stockpile

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev said today Russia will build up a giant grain stockpile to guard against "accidents."

The premier told the opening joint session of the Supreme Soviet the stockpile would be equivalent to at least half or even the whole of the Soviet Union's annual grain needs.

Khrushchev did not say when the stockpiling would begin or where the grain would be obtained.

Russia was reported last May to be thinking of buying 500,000 tons of wheat annually from Canada.

After a severe crop failure in the Soviet Union last year the Russians bought $500,000,000 of wheat and flour from Canada and other large amounts from the United States.

Khrushchev said today there were good prospects for this year's Soviet harvest, despite a late spring.

Although Russian sources said earlier the Supreme Soviet would enact a five-day, 40-hour week, the subject was not officially mentioned in the agenda adopted today.

However, the deputies agreed to discuss the question of pension for peasants and wage increases for teachers, health workers and employees in the catering trade and consumer services.

Russians now work a 41-hour, six-day week.

Khrushchev called for improved quality in consumer goods and said this task was one of the country's central objectives. He also called for better food supplies in certain areas.

He said the Russian national income rose 2.3 times in the last 10 years, that 62,000,000,000 rubles ($71,500,000,000) have been invested in buildings in this period, and that half the country's urban population now had a high school education.

Khrushchev also touched on peaceful economic competition with capitalist countries, primarily with the United States.

"We have no doubts as to the outcome of this competition," he said. "We are bound to win."

He scoffed at foreigners who speak with "malicious glee" about the "crisis" and "flops" of Russian agriculture following last year's crop failure.

Khrushchev said that over the last 10 years Russian grain production had risen by 77 per cent, he said.

Resume Talks On Strike

TORONTO (CP)—Talks between the publishers of Toronto's three daily newspapers and striking members of the International Typographical Union (CLC) were scheduled to resume at 10 a.m. today after a mass meeting of the ITU members Sunday reaffirmed the stand of their officers.

The Globe and Mail, a morning paper, and The Star and The Telegram, both afternoon papers, have continued to publish since 900 printers and mailers walked off their jobs Thursday afternoon, claiming a lockout when the papers instituted new work rules and pay increases agreed upon in contract negotiations, but not yet embodied in a signed contract.

Picket lines were manned by members of the women's auxiliary during heavy showers Sunday as about 600 members of Local 91 held their first general meeting since the work stoppage.

The meeting was closed to the press but local President Robert McCormack said there was a unanimous vote endorsing the actions of the officers. He gave no other information about the meeting, or possible union proposals to be brought up today when he meets the publishers.

GRANTED AUTHORITY

The ITU bargaining said Steve Martenuk, an official from the union's international headquarters in Colorado Springs, negotiations, read a telegram from ITU President Elmer Brown. Mr. Martenuk and Allen Hister, another ITU international representative on the scene, have full authority to speak for Mr. Brown at today's talks.

There was official comment on the significance of this was made, an informed view was that the necessity for checking any proposed major contract changes with the union's headquarters in Colorado Springs, Colo., would remain.

In addition to today's meeting, both sides have already agreed to a request by Ontario Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree for further meeting with Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer for the labor department.

The city was quiet around the jurisdiction of computers being introduced by the papers. The ITU has set no jurisdiction during periods when the computer is being used to process information for editorial. Previsional agreements reached on this point have twice been rejected by the union's international office.

Editions were have been publishing slimmed-down editions since the strike. All three papers are publishing a combined weekend non-union office personnel staffing the composing rooms, and producing a full automatic type-setting services of The Canadian Press.

The publishers say there has been no difficulty with display advertisements, although advertising deadlines have been advanced.

Pearson Urges Commonwealth Declaration of Racial Equality

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson proposed today that the Commonwealth conference adopt a declaration of racial equality.

Speaking first in this morning's discussion of the crucial Southern Rhodesian problem, the Canadian prime minister said:

"It would be an objective of policy to build in each country a structure of society which offers equal opportunity and non-discrimination for all its people, irrespective of race, color or creed.

"The Commonwealth should be able to exercise constructive leadership in the application of democratic principles in a manner which will enable all people of the many cultures and natural groups in our various countries to exist and develop as free and equal citizens."

Pearson suggested these ideas as the basis for the declaration by all the prime ministers and presidents attending this 12th conference which has now passed its halfway mark at Marlborough House.

Pearson's unexpectedly forth right statement was understood to have won considerable sup-

3 Shot To Death In Sleep

MISSION, B.C. (CP)—Police held a suspect today as they pressed an investigation into the fatal shooting of three teenagers as they slept at a remote campsite.

The three, all 19 - year - old weekend campers from Surrey, a suburb of Vancouver, were shot through the head with a .22-calibre rifle at their campsite Saturday near the edge of a logging road six miles north of here.

Bodies of Tony Webster, Donald Kehler and Rodney Wieren were found Sunday by a brother of one of the victims and a friend who drove into the area 40 miles east of Vancouver when the campers failed to return on schedule.

Chief Joe Suzirol of Mission municipal police issued a charge of murder shortly after the murder was discovered. He said he believed there had been a fourth youth who had gone camping with the

Goldwater Likely To Win Bid On First Ballot

Strong Militant Note In Republican Platform

By HAROLD MORRISON

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—The right - wing forces of Senator Barry Goldwater seem in apparent control and determined to give the Arizona senator a first-ballot presidential nomination as the 28th Republican convention opens in the big Cow Palace today.

Thundering over the opposition Pennsylvania Governor William W. Scranton was attempting to provide Goldwater's outriders already had put the senator's conservative brand on the platform the convention will be asked to adopt Tuesday. And Goldwater promptly rejected a challenge by Scranton for a debate before the convention.

Goldwater moved into the convention's opening day with 740 first-ballot votes credited to him in an Associated Press poll — 86 more than he needed for nomination if they remain in his column. This total included 26 delegates in his favor him but are not officially bound. The survey credited Scranton with 276 votes, none of them bound to him.

Scranton continued at every turn, however, to rally the liberal forces for a last - ditch effort Wednesday to revive on the convention floor some of the proposals that failed to get through the Goldwater - dominated platform committee.

At the Cow Palace, Republican National Chairman William E Miller of New York, a leading candidate for the vice-presidential nomination, was scheduled to bang the gavel at 1 p.m. EDT. Opening session greetings were to follow, along with the election of Governor Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon as temporary chairman.

REJECTS BID

Proving for an opening in the emotion - packed Goldwater forces, Scranton fired off a letter Sunday night challenging the senator to an unprecedented debate before the convention. Goldwater rejected this proposal as ridiculous and returned the letter unanswered.

Apparently hoping to tease Goldwater into a confrontational response, Scranton charged that Goldwater's managers "have already decided and compromised" voting delegates; that the delegates are being "led like sheep to the slaughter" and that "the decisions whose necks will be wrung at will."

He accused Goldwater of unclear irresponsibility; of attempting to read the names of Abraham Lincoln and Dwight D Eisenhower out of the Republican party; of disloyalty to political extremism and of rigging of convention.

Deputy Miller, Goldwater's campaign manager, replied in a statement that Scranton's re-

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — A strong note of militancy, which may shock some among the restless and the frustrated, runs through the proposed Republican platform.

Bearing the clear imprint of Barry Goldwater's thoughts and condemned in part with the party's moderates, the document suggests a Republican president would raise a clenched fist against world communism while fighting socialism and centralism in the U.S. government's domestic affairs.

It suggests there should be tighter curbs against highly competitive imports. Nowhere does it mention the Kennedy round of world tariff bargain-

Will Table White Paper On Pensions

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has no reply ready for any resolution of the argument that there is more important legislation which Parliament should deal with before the proposed maple leaf flag.

The flag debate was interrupted last week to get through a series of Senate amendment measures. One was a bill to set up a single chief of defence staff. Another was to pay a $10-a-month allowance to parents of 16- and 17-year-old attending school.

The Commons still is dealing with a number of others. They are a student loan program, a bill implementing fiscal arrangements made with the provinces — on which debate continues today—and a government report for adding the Canada Pension Plan to the list of priority legislation.

The government's amendment to pave the way for the Canada Pension Plan now is before the Senate Parliament. Finally such amendments go through the Parliament at Westminster in London.

Fear New Cyprus Explosion After Clandestine Landings

NICOSIA (AP)—The possibility of another explosion in the simmering Cyprus dispute faced the United Nations peacekeeping force today after it reported the landing of reinforcements to both Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

Archbishop Makarios, Greek-Cypriot president of Cyprus, convened an emergency session of the cabinet Sunday to consider what a government source called "the clandestine landing of Turkish troops on Cyprus."

The source said the government experts the UN Security Council and the Commonwealth prime ministers conference, now meeting in London, to help the Greek - Cypriots meet the "Turkish aggression." He indicated urgent appeals would be sent to both bodies but made no mention of the even larger landings of Greeks reported by UN command.

During the last five weeks, a UN spokesman said Saturday, UN patrols have observed some 500 Turkish military personnel

Lower Half of Body, Feet Tied, Is Found in Old River, Miss.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — An autopsy at the University Medical Centre on the lower half of a body near Tallulah a clue today in the case of three missing civil rights workers.

A fisherman found the decomposed lowere torso, its feet bound with rope, Sunday in Old River where it cuts away from the Mississippi about 15 miles south of Tallulah, La.

Tallulah is some 125 miles southwest of Philadelphia, Miss., where three civil rights workers disappeared June 21 shortly after their release from jail on a speeding violation.

The condition of the body made it impossible to tell the race or sex, officials in the medically notified Mississippi and FBI authorities searching for the missing men.

The body was taken to Jackson.

The dead person apparently had been wearing blue jeans and tennis shoes. A leather belt on the trousers had a metal buckle with the initial M.

The missing are Michael Schwerner, 24, and Andrew Goodman, 20, both of New York City, and James Chaney 22, Meridian Negro.

The pockets also yielded a gold watch, a key chain with two keys, and a piece of paper with the words "s and M Colegal. Rural Mississippi." Alcorn Agricultural and Mechanical College for Negroes is located at Lorman in Rural Mississippi.

Motoring Throuh Georgia Washington Negro Educationist Is Slain

COLBERT, Ga. (AP) — FBI and Georgia state agents continued today to push an intensive investigation into the mysterious shotgun slaying of a Washington Negro educationist.

J. J. Casper, assistant director of the FBI, would say only that the investigation is continuing.

State investigators fanned out Sunday over a rural area taken through northeast Georgia by Lemuel Penn, 49, director of Washington's educational high schools, when he was shot at the wheel of his car early Saturday by a right-wing gunman.

Residents along the rural route said agents moved from house to house in their questioning on Sunday, but Public Safety Director Lowell Conner said there were no arrests and that he had nothing to report.

Penn, a lieutenant-colonel in the army reserve, was killed by a shotgun blast fired from a car which suddenly passed his automobile from the rear about 10 miles northeast of Colbert. Two other Negro officers riding with Penn escaped injury.

Several residents, spurred by a report that Penn was carrying a large amount of money, theorized that it was a robbery attempt by someone who had followed the men from Ft. Benning. The three had completed a refresher course at the base.

But the sheriff disagreed. He said Penn had only $30 and a government cheque for $845 in his wallet.

There was violence in other parts of the South during the weekend.

An argument involving a Negro and a white man in a recently integrated Henderson, N.C., restaurant led to a riot that was quelled only when police arrested 19 persons.

About 300 Negroes and white persons — including men and women — took part in the street clothes battle using flats, rocks and bottles. Police finally restored order about 1 a.m. Sunday with the arrests of four white men and 13 Negroes.

Only one person was injured seriously enough to require hospital care.

At Lake City, Fla., Charlie Avenger, 18, was hit in the back by buckshot early Sunday but was not badly injured. Police said the shot was fired from a passing car. Two white youths were questioned, but were not charged.

In Jackson, Miss., a white man struck a Negro woman with an iron bar while the two were arguing at an integrated bus station lunch counter.

The woman, Mrs. Bennie Lee Catchings, 28, was arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace. The man left before police arrived.

Eight Negroes dressed in street clothes met a bus in Selma, Ala., shortly after the bus arrived from Jackson. They beat a Negro man and a white woman, the only passengers who had come from the Mississippi capital.

San Francisco had its biggest civil rights demonstration in history when a crowd estimated by police at 25,000 persons marched up Market Street.

The demonstration was called to protest the likely nomination of Senator Barry Goldwater as the presidential nominee of the Republican party. The Arizona senator voted against the civil rights bill.

Times Hard, Four Children Enough On $700, So She Gets Sterilized

BEREA, Ky. (AP)—"Times is hard . . . we just can't take care of any more children," the gaunt woman said as she signed for a sterilization operation.

"My John had $9 of a paycheck and I didn't send a nary one of us to school a bit. I want to better myself and get a job if I can and I think I got all I can handle."

And so 29, the woman, is the mother of four. She had to make her case to get the operation. She can't write. Her husband, a tenant farmer, earned about $700 last year.

"These are the sort of people we want to help," said O. L. Roberts, volunteer contact man for a committee that is sponsoring a six-month program of voluntary sterilization for needy parents.

The program is administered by the Human Betterment Association for Voluntary Sterilization of New York. It is financed by a $25,000 gift from Jesse Hartman, a New York businessman.

Dr. Louise Hutchings, president of the Kentucky Maternal Health League, is chairman of the Berea committee. Her group also is concerned with birth control, including sterilization, for 38 years.

"I want to see a doctor about three years ago," another mountain woman admitted "I was pregnant with my 10th child and my legs swelled up so much the doctor said he didn't know how I could stand.

"The doctor told me about the operation, I asked him."

The association paid for the operation, which costs about $200 for women.

This woman and another, who underwent the operation 10 days ago, had the operation at the time of childbirth.

So far, six couples have applied for the operation. They have a total of 53 children and four of them, with 16 children, have a total income of $4,000 a year.

Two-Day Storm Kills Two, Burns Barns, Causes Mishaps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two boys were electrocuted, two barns burned down and several highway accidents were caused in the Metropolitan Toronto area during a two-day thunderstorm which swept southern Ontario during the weekend.

The storm was accompanied by heavy rainfall which dumped 1-1½inches over most of the area and up to three inches in parts of suburban Toronto, flooding basements and making roads hazardous for driving.

Kais Gordon, 12, of Cornwall and Thomas Lockhart, 16, of Montreal died Saturday night when they apparently sheltered under two trees about 400 yards from the Gordon boy's home, northeast of Cornwall.

The boys were electrocuted. Police said the trees showed signs of having been struck by lightning.

Lightning was believed to have started a fire which destroyed two barns on the farm of Adrian Verhoeven near Waterdown, five miles north of Hamilton, Sunday. Damage was estimated at $45,000.

Traffic was tied up for hours on a four-lane Toronto expressway by an accident involving nearly 100 persons and causing over $7,000 damage. An eastbound car skidded on the wet pavement, crossed the centre median and ended up in a westbound land after hitting a jammed standard. A private car and a police cruiser stopped to lend assistance and a chain reaction developed when a bus hit another car which had slowed up and spun it into the side of the cruiser.

Another car and a bus also were involved. However, only two persons were taken to hospital and were released after treatment for shock.

Area Students Returning Home After Que. Visit

Eight area students will arrive back in Belleville Thursday noon after spending two weeks in Quebec.

Along with the eight will be their Quebec hosts. These eight young French-speaking students will spend the next two weeks in the Quinte area as part of the Intercommunity Visits Plan of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews.

This is the ninth consecutive year for the Plan. Results have been most gratifying and the plan is felt to be a positive grass roots approach to improving English - French - speaking relations.

Those arriving back Thursday included: Shirley Chisholm of Roslin, Jerry Krcek of Batawa, Rasalind Jean Noaden of Foxboro, Sally Farquharson of Coeburville and Joan McConnell, Sharon Mendes, Martha Munsrove and Sharon Sweet, all of Belleville.

marks "tragically reflect upon the character of the Republican party and every delegate to this convention."

"Perhaps on consideration," "Perhaps on consideration," he added, the governor will recognize the intemperate nature of his remarks."

IKE ARRIVES

Former president Eisenhower scheduled an afternoon press conference. But Scranton apparently could hope for no reinforcements from that quarter. Arriving by train, the general said that although publicly or privately would he express a preference for the presidential candidate.

Appearing as a television commentator for ABC, Eisenhower said he may have made a mistake in announcing 11 months ago that he was not going to express such a preference.

The presidential nomination is expected to be made Wednesday. The convention is expected to wind up Thursday.

Along with Goldwater and Scranton, such other notables as New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller, Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and former Minnesota Governor Harold Stassen are in the presidential nomination race but only Goldwater appears to have sufficient votes for victory.

Negroes, dissatisfied with Goldwater civil rights policies, intend to picket the convention while members of the American Nazi party have indicated they may picket the picketers. An army of police has been ordered into the area to prevent a clash.

STRANGLES FORMER WIFE

PFORZHEIM, West Germany (Reuter)—A school principal strangled his 21-year-old ex-wife with a towel here after she complained he brought dirty sports equipment into the house, police reported Sunday night. The man is 56.

Lions Wind Up 4 Days Of Fun

TORONTO (CP)—The 34,000 delegates to the 47th annual Lions International convention wound up four days of fun, business, and controversy Saturday by electing a 56-year-old Puerto Rican millionaire as third vice-president. The position will automatically lead him to the international presidency in three years.

Jorge Bird defeated Al Schlick of Sioux Falls, S.D., after a colorful campaign which began long before the convention opened here last Wednesday. Both men estimated they travelled thousands of miles and spent about $50,000 in pursuit of votes.

Mr. Bird arrived in Toronto a week ahead of time to set up campaign headquarters where his supporters handed out hats, pins, shopping bags, and refreshments in the last stage of his 10-year campaign.

Dr. Walter Campbell, of Miami Beach, Fla., moved up to first vice-president and Edward Lindsay, of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., became second vice-president as the Lions continued their policy of electing only third vice-presidents, and moving the men up one post each year until they become president.

others. The elder - model car that the youths had driven to the area was missing.

RCMP at Langley in the Fraser Valley later took a man into custody at a motel.

"They (the victims) were in their sleeping bags and there wasn't a sign of a struggle except that the gas lantern had been knocked over," said Arthur Wilson, who lives a mile from the murder scene. "They looked like they were still sleeping when I first arrived at the campsite Sunday afternoon."

The youths lived in the same neighborhood in Surrey. An uncle of one of the victims said they had been pals for years and had gone on many camping excursions together.

"They were keen marksmen and usually took their .22-calibre rifles and did a lot of target practice," he said.

Donald Kelher was one of five children. His mother, Mrs. Margaret Kelher, a widow, said: "I can't say anything. I can't believe it myself."

Tony Webster had just completed Grade 13, and was to have entered the University of B.C. to train as a teacher.

Safe-Breaking Tools Found In Stopped Car

Three Belleville men have been charged with possession of safe-breaking tools after their car was stopped by city police last night.

Arrested were Bernard James Michael, 25, Raymond Wood, 42, and Robert Mondeville, 31.

The trio were taken in custody after police kept them under surveillance for some time before halting it on Coleman Street.

They will appear in magistrate's court tomorrow.

$10,000 Damage To Earth Movers By Vandals

Vandals may have caused up to $10,000 damage to construction equipment when they broke into a road contractor's yard north of Foxboro, over the weekend.

Police made the estimate after surveying damage to two big caterpillar-track earth movers owned by the Roe Construction Company.

Both machines had been started, then crashed together head-on.

Police discounted the incident as the work of youthful delinquents.

"They would have to be somebody who knows how to operate that stuff," said an officer.

Roe is engaged in construction of the new concrete road route from Foxboro to Halloway.

RCMP officers from Belleville are investigating.

Leafs' Captain Honored by Kelso Roberts

PEMBROKE (CP) — More than 8,000 persons watched Saturday as Ontario Lands and Forests Minister Kelso Roberts presented certificates honoring outstanding services in conservation and public relations at Algonquin Park 70 miles southeast of here.

Among those receiving the awards were former Ontario premier Leslie Frost and George Armstrong, captain of the Toronto Maple Leaf hockey club.

A program of Indian tribal dances performed by groups from the Toronto and Peterborough areas highlighted the ceremony.

Mr. Roberts explained that the award of chieftain of the Order of Algonquine recognized long-term services in association with the park. The Order of the Spirit of Algonquin recognized acts of public service such as saving of lives and preventing forest fires.

A total of 15 chieftain awards were presented while nine spirit certificates were given.

Sarah Fined For Disorderly Behavior

LONDON (AP) — Actress Sarah Churchill, second daughter of Sir Winston Churchill, was fined $5 ($1b) today for disorderly behavior at London Airport two weeks ago.

Miss Churchill pleaded guilty to behaving in a disorderly manner. The prosecution offered no evidence on a further charge of being drunk.

Miss Churchill, 49, is the widow of producer Audley, who died in Spain last year. She was arrested at the Airport on June 28 as she was about to board a jet flight for Milan.

introduced in the Commons so that its full terms could be available for public discussion before it is proceeded with.

However, the government is expected to have ready for tabling in the Commons a white paper, setting the great detail on the operations of the pension plan. It gives greater detail, and in women's language, than would be in the pension bill itself.

The cabinet is expected to give its final approval to the white paper this week, after Prime Minister Pearson returns July 16 from the London conference of Commonwealth prime ministers.

The value of the white paper arrangement from the government's standpoint is that its tabling would not entail debate. But if a pension bill were placed before the House, the government might be faced with demands for some debate on it before a return to the flag issue.

Legion Members To View Film On Canadians

BRENTON — From Hong Kong to Amiens, from Casino to Ypres, the battlefields of where Canadians fought and died, will be shown in the black and white film, to be presented at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall in Trenton tonight, starting at 8.30 p.m.

In length, the film is 39 minutes. In chronological history, fifty years are covered. Graves of the fallen in foreign fields are shown in the film, "Fields of Sacrifice," and many Trenton and area residents, who may never have the opportunity to visit the last resting places of their loved ones may see, through the eyes of the camera, how well the graves are kept.

The film was compiled by the National Film Board, and Gordon Weir of the Department of Veterans' Affairs, presented it to the Dominion Command of the Royal Canadian Legion at the national convention in Winnipeg last month.

Admission is free to tonight's showing of the film and the public is cordially invited.

$600 DAMAGE

Trenton police had only one minor accident to report over the weekend.

About 2.45 p.m. on Sunday, a two - car collision on No. 2 Highway, at Smithfield, resulted in $600 damage. Charles Lockwood, of Smithfield, reported that his car, owned by Leslie St., Trenton and Frank Thorne of Lingham St., Belleville. Police said there was investigated by OPP officers from the Brighton detachment.

Says Number Of Pickets Exaggerated

TRENTON — On Wednesday, the day of the big parade for the Lions' International convention in Toronto, a delegation of Trenton Lions motored up to attend the once-in-a-lifetime show.

According to one of Trenton's delegates present at the convention, Nostrand Sprague, accounts of picketing of the convention by white Americans Wallace of Alabama was speaking, in Toronto newspapers, were greatly exaggerated. The city papers mentioned 1,000 pickets. Mr. Sprague said he walked through the picket line, counting as he went and he came up with 100.

Mr. and Mrs. Sprague and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bedford were the delegates sent from the Trenton club. Mr. Bedford has been secretary of the local club for many years and Mr. Bedford is immediate past president.

port from his fellow premiers and to have made particular impression upon the African delegates.

The whole basis of Pearson's statement was to indicate that unless the Commonwealth was seen to be doing something concrete it would lose its prestige in the field of racial discrimination and democratic equality it would let slip a great opportunity.

What was being done at this conference would be taken as a test of the seriousness of the Commonwealth as an institution. Its acts would be regarded as a "symbol."

Speaking specifically of Southern Rhodesia, the Canadian prime minister called for the early release from prison of African leaders in the territory, still a British colony though long under minority white Rhodesian rule. He suggested this would be a necessary prelude to any fruitful negotiations between the two sides.

TRAIN IN CANADA

He expressed Canada's willingness to do whatever it can to help Southern Rhodesia, including receiving selected Africans personnel in Canada for training.

He said Canada would be prepared to allocate resources to assist in a "crash program" for education and specialized training.

Many observers feel that secondary education is the outstanding need to advance African into positions where they would be ready to accept responsibility.

Pearson also spoke of the situation in British Guiana, which 13 years ago seemed to be among the most advanced of the Caribbean territories but now was deadlocked in a dispute between persons of Indian and African descent.

The essential need was to establish confidence and a mutual will for concessions. He warned that intervention should not be on any basis other than something agreed by both sides.

KEEPS WITH BRITAIN

Pearson recognized that the responsibility for Southern Rhodesia's future must remain with Britain.

Later today the prime ministers were to turn to the problem of the Commonwealth's future.

Kenya's Jomo Kenyatta said today Southern Rhodesia needs a British responsibility and called on Britain to see to it that the colony gets majority rule as soon as possible.

He repeated the demand of African members of the Commonwealth for a constitutional conference to resolve the problem of the franchise in white-ruled Southern Rhodesia, where only about 11,000 of the country's 4,000,000 Africans have a vote, compared with 80,000 of its 220,000 whites.

Sources said other African leaders at the conference backed Kenyatta.

Plan Lennox And Addington Centennial

One hundred years ago the united counties of Frontenac-Lennox and Addington split up, and the new county of Lennox and Addington became, instead of a long-cherished dream, a reality. The new county had to have a county town, and the village of Napanee was chosen, over its rivals Newburgh, Bath and Tamworth. A town hall was built to accommodate the newly formed town council. All this was accomplished against the bitter opposition of a man who sometimes lost a battle but never a war: John Alexander Macdonald. Although he had once lived in Napanee, and had family connections there, he had become a confirmed Kingstonian, and on principle, as he was later to demonstrate when he achieved Confederation, he opposed separation into small administrative bodies.

The centennial celebrations have been more than a year in the planning. A 250 page history of the county, with profuse illustration will be off the press in a few days. A Centennial association has carefully planned a program of special events, August 1-8, with a Centennial Ball preceding these days, the evening of July 31, in the Napanee Armouries.

A Centennial Queen and 11 princesses are to be chosen to reign over the night pageant "Retrospectacle", and these are to be present at the Centennial Bay. The queen will be crowned at an early performance of the Retrospectacle.

Monday, Aug. 2 there will be a mammoth parade, with floats, old-fashioned vehicles, horses and costumes at 10.00 a.m. In the afternoon there is a boat show at the government dock in Napanee and also Tamworth Firemen's parade.

National Flag Is Subject Of Address by Member at Orange Walk at Marmora

MARMORA (Staff) — Flying Union Jacks and Red Ensigns by the score, Orangemen here Saturday heard an MP charge that the national flag issue was the most divisive controversy in a generation.

Rodney Webb, Conservative member for Hastings-Frontenac warned that the issue seemed part of a deliberate "rooting out of distinctive terms and symbols that bind our nation to its past."

"If it is our flag now, will it be the crown, tomorrow or our Commonwealth association the day after?"

He said the removal of the Red Ensign with its symbol of three crosses is "consistent with current leftist campaigns throughout America—the same as the removal of prayers from schools and divorcing our education from religion."

"It is clear to see . . . that far from being a unifying move it is perhaps the most divisive action taken in a generation in Canada."

Mr. Webb was principal speaker to a gathering of nearly 60 lodges here for the traditional July 12th walk. He spoke to the Orangemen after they gathered at the fairgrounds following an hour-long parade through the village.

Lodges from across Eastern Ontario called out their members for the big event — staged in brilliant sunshine.

The parade went without a hitch — despite some traffic problems. Provincial police aided chief Murray Brown in handling the event — complicated by the fact the community's main intersection is also the junction of two heavily-travelled highways.

DRUMS BOOM

Orange drums began booming across the town early in the afternoon as the members warmed up the atmosphere before launching the walk.

However, the traditional fife-and-drum cacophony was liberally sprinkled with bagpipers. For good measure there even was a small saxophone ensemble.

District residents thronged the sidewalks and filled windows overlooking the route as the parade went by, led by a rider on a white horse symbolizing King Billy — the organization's personal inspiration.

"King" for the day was Bernie Bateman of Centre Hastings Lodge, Springbrook.

Busiest spot at the fairgrounds was the arena, transformed into a dining hall to serve the marching members before and after their walk.

Local Orange notables were on hand to greet and address the throng.

With Mr. Webb on the platform were Elmer Sandercock, MPP Hastings West and William Shannon, Marmora reeve.

Rain Welcomed By Farmers In District

Except possibly those who might just have started on their holidays few people in the Quinte district are complaining about the rain received since Sunday morning.

Reports from the pump house in the west end of the city are that three quarters of an inch of rain had fallen up until eight o'clock this morning.

And the weatherman said it would continue to rain most of the morning, tapering off into showers later in the day.

Parched lawns will get a respite, while the rain also will benefit farmers' canning factory and other hoe crops.

The Commonwealth Grows

Wanted—a name for the Commonwealth.

Have you noticed that, during the present Commonwealth conference in London, the word Commonwealth rarely is accompanied by a preceding adjective?

The British Empire became the British Commonwealth, but the British Commonwealth is a term which is now out of style. Some will argue that the term "Commonwealth" serves well enough, though this might be disputed by the residents of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the believers in the Co-Operative Commonwealth advocated by the CCF and the residents of the Commonwealth of Australia, itself a member of the Commonwealth.

Why not restore the adjective "British?"

Here are the facts. When a prime ministers' meeting was held at London in 1946, shortly after the end of the war, only five countries Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, were represented. Five prime ministers ruled over 70,000,000 people, in a large measure Anglo-Saxon in descent, mostly Christian in religion and virtually all with a Western moral and political outlook.

Attending the present Commonwealth conference are the leaders of 18 wholly independent countries, with a total population of over 750,000,000, or approximately a quarter of the total population of the world, predominantly Asian or African, with Hindus, Moslems and Buddhists outnumbering the Christians.

The Commonwealth is no longer British.

If it is to continue to exist at all, it can only be as something vastly greater and more influential than any of the Empires of history, because this Commonwealth embraces as equals such a wide spectrum of the world's races, religions and political systems.

Mad, Mad World

Whom the gods would destroy, they first made mad.

The gods must have a lot of people tagged for destruction.

Take the occasion of Governor George Wallace's speech before the Lions International convention in Toronto.

"God is outlawed," he said of the conduct of the federal government of his own nation.

The Governor was applauded by a group of Alabama delegates at the front of the audience who stood to cheer.

Some Canadians who sat on their hands may have considered it would be bad taste to applaud a speech which denounced the government of a friendly neighbor of a tyranny.

But Governor Wallace was not alone.

Outside the hall scores of people collected for the Martin Luther Fund. One collector said she was almost in tears after insults from Lions from the southern United States. "One man from the South said here's something for your boy, and threw in a counterfeit Confederacy bill." That's an insult!

This Southerner, though, had companions with less taste. One gave the collector a piece of wrapped garbage.

And Texas still breeds them big and brash. One Texas Lion told his wife the demonstrators "all look like a bunch of half-breed communists."

Some of the Lions just are dopes.

Summer Grab-Bag

On hot days, nobody likes to wear much, even on the mind. This can make editorial writing difficult. One finds himself grabbing at trifles.

You remember, for instance, the car that was designed with you in mind. Some advertising genius has gone that one better. "At last!" we are told, "the bra girls were designed for!"

We like that; uplifting.

And then there is Mr. John, a New York custom tailor originator, whatever that may be. United Press International reports that Mr. John does not like the "monster look" in hair styles. "He recommends a soft, flowing style to go hand-in-hand with a well-bred look." Sounds sort of disembodied.

We don't know, though, why the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. are so excited. It seems around headquarters they think they have a funny story. A member of the chorus at a rehearsal for an inspirational Girl Scout ceremony was asked whether she was a soprano or an alto. The little girl replied "Neither. I'm a Brownie." We suggest the chances are she was right on all points.

Plain Talk Refreshing

Toronto Telegram

A refreshing breeze blew through Magistrate J. W. Butler's court in Scarboro as he handed out jail terms, fines and suspended sentences to 20 teenage found-ins at a drinking party.

It came in the form of plain talk which should act as an example for every parent who treats his offspring as though the child's misconduct is a joke —or whatever it is that psychiatrists and pediatricians call it —would be permanently undermined by any kind of discipline.

Why be so stern about mere attendance at a party? As the magistrate properly explained, drinking parties are a breeding ground for other juvenile troubles. The severity of the sentences and the tongue-lashing made some of the youngsters, who pleaded guilty, blench and brought others to tears.

Their reaction is a good sign. It indicates understanding and the beginning of wisdom is respect for the law.

The magistrate is backed by a power of punishment which parents do not have; but they can take a lesson from his impressive style. Blustering will be told the young people, "and if you don't, I'll scarsten you up."

That sounds like something out of the Victorian age of parental authority. It can hardly be improved upon for pithy and forthright attention to the problem.

"You will be home no later than 11:30 p.m. week nights and 12:30 a.m. Saturdays. Make it less accompanied by your parents." Nothing like doing away from restaurant hangouts and place gangs. Any breach of this proclamation will bring you back here in court."

We thought this kind of talk had gone out with society's acceptance of the psychiatrist's couch; but the magistrate restores confidence in parents to lay down the law without fear of twisting the delicate adolescent's id.

The trouble with many of us is that we wear the mantle of parenthood gingerly. New concepts in progressive education and the development of psychology have made us suspicious of the direct method. It's too simple, and, therefore, untrustworthy.

Instead of talking turkey to youngsters, we resent them. The current quip in the parental set —"he can't be a juvenile delinquent-teen-agers"—is strictly of this age. It could never have emerged in the days of generations ago when the assertion of parental authority was as natural as handing the child in the first place.

In his light of high-fangled philosophy—hang-new, it seems, out of the befuddled atmosphere of a cocktail party —a family must be governed by democratic method and the child is an equal. It thus becomes impossible to lay down the law to an equal.

We had better get rid of this misguided approach, falsely labelled progressive, before it puts the finishing touch to the family institution which is disregard by urban blight. A family is a dictatorship, benevolent yes, but a dictatorship nevertheless.

Any parent who fails to see this is abdicating his natural and rightful role.

The reverse thing about all this is that the adolescent hungers for the dictator's discipline. If he doesn't get it at home, he looks for it in the "crowd" at school or the plaza gang. He needs inculcated standards which cannot be violated with impunity. That gives him the indispensable sense of belonging or, in the new-fangled lingo, security.

We listen to Magistrate Butler for reminding us of the importance and effectiveness of the direct approach.

July 13, 1964 . . .

A conference between the United States and Canada perpetuated the Rush-Bagot Treaty concerning armament on the Great Lakes 42 years ago today, in 1822. The original agreement, signed in 1817, was drawn up by Richard Rush of the U.S. and Charles Bagot of England and limited the number and size of warships on the lakes. The agreement has since been modified to permit construction of larger vessels on the lakes.

1762—Czar Peter III was dethroned in a coup in Russia.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

July 12th, 1944

Voluntarily given into the custody of the Belleville Provincial Police as a war emergency move in 1940 some thirty-five or forty short guns and rifles are today being returned to their owners as the period of emergency is now considered to have concluded. Early in 1940 Provincial Police authorities here made an appeal for privately owned rifles and shot guns to be loaned to the department and used in case of emergency of sabotage. At that time the response was most gratifying. During the entire period in which the loaned fire arms have been in the O.P.P. barracks here, each gun has been oiled annually and kept in a state of repair.

Appreciation of the generosity of the residents of the city and district was voiced at the meeting of the Hastings County Advisory Board of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind at its recent meeting where it was revealed the Tag Day receipts and donations amounted to $2,139.90. This is an increase of $350 over the amount donated last year. D. B. Lawley, field superintendent, commended the work of the Hastings County Board. "It has done a splendid job," he said, "and other counties are modelling their boards after this one."

First ship of the Royal Canadian Navy to be named after this city, the corvette "H.M.C.S. Belleville" will receive her christening on Saturday afternoon at the yards of the Kingston Shipbuilding Company when Mrs. Percy Vandervoort will break the bottle of champagne against her bows to officially start her down the ways. Although the actual launching of the ship will not take place this weekend, it is not expected the ship will be completed for service with the R.C.N.V.R. until late summer.

Mrs. Arthur Charlton and little son, Donnie, and Miss Wilma Hale, of this city spent Wednesday with Mrs. William Perry at her camp at Melville.

Miss Sylvia Rose left today for Montreal and will sail from there on the Empress of Britain for the Old Country where she will spend a month's vacation tour of England, Scotland, and France.

Mr. Harry T. Hurley has arrived from Gods Lake, Northern Manitoba and will spend a month at his home on Queen St.

Mrs. Maynes has arrived here from California and is the guest of Mrs. S. S. Finkle, West Bridge Street.

Mrs. W. F. Ashley has returned home after spending several weeks with friends in Madoc and vicinity.

The Belleville Highland Pipe Band under the direction of Pipe Major Albert Jonstone, and the Belleville Orange Lodge, headed the big Orange walk in Napanee yesterday.

At the meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board 2,153 boxes of white cheese and 758 boxes of colored cheese were boarded. President A. G. Roblin presided and sold the cheese. All cheese boarded sold at 18 cents. The following buyers were present: Messrs. Sprague, Cook, Morgan, Alexander, Morton, Thompson, Ivey, Fitzgerald, Ostrom and McCreary.

Mr. R. Hall spent the week-end with friends in Deseronto.

The Rev. J. N. Clarry of Sarnia, formerly of this city, is spending a few days here.

Jews Shed Old Apathy

By Sam Kaplan in Jewish Western Bulletin

It will be recalled that 12 national leaders of the American Jewish Congress were arrested recently after they began picketing in front of the Jordan Pavilion at the New York World's Fair.

The purpose of the abortive demonstration was to protest a Jordanian mural which refers to Israelis as "terror's fierce practitioners" using their "gains ill - got . . . to disturb the Jordan Valley and make the desert bloom with war. riors."

Protests from fair exhibitors, even New York Mayor Wagner and from countless private individuals had demanded the removal of the offensive mural without success; the fair management would not take action against the Jordanian scene because the participating country is expressly prohibited by the fair's own by-laws from "permitting any concession or exhibit which reflects discredit upon any nation or state."

Handcuffs and the cell, when utilized to restrain such honorable prisoners, became objects of honor; they are, indeed, a measure of the new height and stature of this generation of Jews.

They are a semblance, too, of the image of Israel itself. It is a new profile altered by the tragedy of our six million martyrs and forged by the creation of the state of Israel.

And it is noticeable also in the fact that the leading members of Jews are playing in support of civil rights legislation in the U.S., which is one measures as the massive march on Washington; it is reflecting an increasing indignation on the part of individuals and organizations against the defamation of hate literature; it is mirrored in the rising wave of protest against spiritual and cultural- persecution of three million fellow Jews in the Soviet Union; it is reflected in the growing awareness by Jewry everywhere that our survival as a distinct religious and cultural people now stands in jeopardy as never before.

In a word, it proves one important thing: That we are at last waking up from our centuries-old apathy.

Party Labels Meaningless

Ottawa Journal

"I am a Gladstonian Liberal" proclaimed T. A. Crerar in the Senate yesterday.

A just claim. But what an awful loneliness the senator must feel, sitting there in his own with hardly a Liberal, Gladstonian or of any other vintage, to the right of him or to the left of him, with the possible exception of Norman Lambert and Charles Power, Quebec Liberals they call themselves of course, but theirs is a type of Liberalism that would have horrified Gladstone, not to speak of John Stuart Mill and Cobden and Bright, or indeed Wilfrid Laurier.

There are those two very able men, Senators Roebuck and Roebuck. But Hugessen is constitutionally a Whig, and Roebuck is fringed with Conservatism, and after these only a curious mixture of collectivists, welfare staters and tories, their "Liberal" label meaningless.

But perhaps not much more meaningless than the labels worn by most other senators or the "Conservative" benches, or, in truth, more meaningless than the labels worn by all our parties.

The melancholy fact, indeed, is that the historic philosophies and principles of party parties have become hopelessly blurred, often completely forgotten. Taking their place are hand-to-mouth practices, expediency, pragmatism, socialism parading as liberalism. In truth, were it not for a spirit of tribalism, old loyalties and prejudices, the major parties would disappear.

And that could mean only anarchy.

Health Lotteries

Timmins Press

There are many nations which benefit from lotteries. By supporting the lottery idea the government could kill two birds with one stone — help defray the cost of a health scheme and thus keep taxes down and cut into the margin of dollars which finance the underworld from many of the existing gambling enterprises.

Montreal Regiment Planning Reunion

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

The Royal Montreal Regiment will this year celebrate its 50th anniversary with an all-ranks reunion scheduled for the weekend of 18th to 20th September, highlighted by the presentation of Colours to the serving Battalion by His Excellency, the Governor-General.

Former members of the regiment will receive full particulars if they send their name and address to the Reunion Committee, The Royal Montreal Regiment, 4625 St. Catherine St. West, Montreal 6.

In the hope of reaching interested members of your paper, I would greatly appreciate your publishing this letter.

G. V. Whitelaw, Brigadier, Honorary Colonel,
The Royal Montreal Regt.

Tipping Has Its Problems

New York Times

New Yorkers have become inured to paying out more and more in tips without noticeable improvement in service. There was a time when a 10 per cent was the standard tip; but this long ago gave way to 15 per cent, and now 20 per cent in luxury restaurants where the diner then must run the gantlet of open palms thrust out by captain, hatcheck girl and doorman. Yet some waiters, protesting against the Internal Revenue Service's estimate that tips average 16 per cent, claim that tips amounted to no more than half that amount.

The waiters argue that out-of-towners are satisfied and frequently leave nothing at all. This is hard to believe. It may be that an occasional tourist will protest against slovenly service by refusing to tip, in almost-comic form of defiance unknown to the intimidated and long-suffering natives.

There is support for this in the claim made by waiters that tipping is degrading. This is true for those who wait for tips only to be served as well as for the waiters. The European system of appending a service charge ranging from 10 to 15 per cent, based on the price category of the restaurant, is more dignified than the American custom.

Whether the public would be better served is problematical. But the plan does offer the hope that generous diners would provide extra rewards to the waiter who took the trouble to provide good service.

To Your Good Health

Advice on Using Your Valuable Calorie Chart

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I compared your calorie chart with one from the Department of Agriculture, and there is a vast difference. Your chart lists rye bread at 75 calories, compared to 55, a difference of 20 calories. For egg there is a difference of 5 calories. Marmalade or jelly, your chart lists 100 calories compared to 55.

At the end of the day there is a lot of calories involved to confuse a person. Which one is correct? — Mrs. R. L.

For you, neither chart is correct. For other people, either is correct.

The difference of 5 calories in an egg, of course, does not amount to anything, because not is why in some places eggs are sold by the pound instead of by the dozen.

What about "slice of bread"? Take one of these bir, round loaves, and slather a centire slice with butter and jam, and you can easily reach 200 to 250 calories, meantime consuming "bread" that you had just one slice of bread.

Marmalade and jelly? My chart rates it up to 100 calories" for a spoonful, because to some people a "spoonful" means "the biggest load they can balance on the spoon long enough to get it on the plate.

You can't possibly arrive at an accurate calorie total unless you weigh everything you eat — and even then it is difficult to dried-up slice of bread will have as many calories as a fresh slice, but it will weigh less because the moisture (no calories) has evaporated.

An "average serving" depending on who's idea of average is involved, can differ by a factor of three-to-one, easily.

Besides that, some people pretend to "count calories" and then put sugar on the tomatoes, mayonnaise on the lettuce, cook bacon with the string beans and mash the potatoes with cream and butter.

They virtuously write down the figures for plain tomatoes, beans and lettuce, and potato without cream and butter, and say they are eating "only" so many calories.

The way to use a calorie chart is to accept it as a comparative guide. The actual total that you wind up with does not make any difference. If you keep on gaining weight, you'll have to eat less, and the calorie chart points to the things that are fattening, and lets you know which foods, when substituted, will be less fattening.

So now, madam, start using either of your calorie charts the way it ought to be used. To revive a copy of my leaflet on the subject, write to me in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., requesting "The Calorie Chart," enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover printing and handling.

Dear Dr. Molner: I read a magazine article saying that a vacuum operation (in the case of a male) is not irrevocable, and that surgery can be done to reinstate the ability to have children. Is this true? — H. S. F.

Sterilization (tying the vas deferens, or sperm duct) ought not to be done with the idea that it can be "undid" later. Fertility sometimes can be restored, but cannot be guaranteed.

Note to E. N. C.: That antifungus drug I mentioned is griseofulvin, which is now available under several trade names most of them including the "gris" syllable one way or another. It's very useful. But it doesn't attack all types of fungus. Just some. The drug requires a prescription.

Dog's Nuisance Bad Manners Or Fertilizer

Antics with Semantics:

I am "outgoing"; you are "extroverted"; he is "pushy."

I "merely asked you a question," but you "are trying to cross-examine me."

The noise coming from our house late last night was inducing "considerable anxiety"; the noise coming from the house across the way tonight was a matter of "considerable brawling."

When an orator or writer begins a sentence with "History tells us . . ." what he commonly means is "A particular historian, with whose views I happen to agree, tells us . . ."

My "little boy is "active"; yours is "mischievous"; his is "hyper."

I was swept away by "ardor"; you were knocked off balance by "infatuation"; he weakly gave way to "lust."

If my dog commits a nuisance on your lawn, it is "good for the soil"; but if I had a child and no dog, it would be "an outrage to private property and an offense against decency."

An "outercoat" is a garment we sometimes wear when we want to buy both a topcoat and an overcoat.

What the phrase, "In the final analysis . . ." means is "this is as far as I am prepared, or able, to go in my analysis of the situation."

What you are doing to our candidate is "mud-slinging"; what we are doing to yours is "throwing the spotlight on the facts."

I am involved in a neighborhood project that will accrue to my benefit because I am "community - minded"; you are involved in a venture that may harm my interests and mine are a "busybody."

"Sentimentality" is simply the name we give to any sentiment we are incapable of feeling with the same degree of intensity.

The most mystical creature in the world is the "average man" to whom the real average man feels quite superior — for we have heard many average men in the world tell me that a certain idea appealed to them, why average man wouldn't go for it."

"Scholarly opportunism" is what so many scholars put in their books as a substitute for thinking just as much of what is called "research" is simply wholesale plagiarism acknowledged in a footnote.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Shares of Windfall gyrated wildly on the stock market today in heavy trading.

Windfall opened at $3.15 sagged to $2.70, rallied to $4.75 and then eased to around $4.30.

The activity was spurred initially by a reply from the company to a Toronto Stock Exchange request that no further drilling has been done on Windfall's property in Prosser Township, near Timmins, and that more work on the completed portion of the first drill hole have not yet been sent for assays.

Other Timmins area stocks also moved erratically as they rallied after sharp early losses. Most stocks reduced losses from 10 cents to around a cent or two. PCE Exploration and Bellecterre each gave up three cents to 60 and 53 cents respectively. Goldfields was down two cents to 73 cents and Consolidated Golden Arrow was off 13 cents at one point and then rallied for an 11-cent gain at 62 cents.

Meanwhile industrial stocks were higher across a broad front. The index climbed to a new high of 159.18 with a .23 advance. Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce led the rise, gaining ½ to 67. Steel firmed ¼ to 71¾.

Dickenson added five cents to $1 as gold stocks were higher.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)— Trading was generally dull on slaughter cattle at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Some choice dry - fed steers and heifers sold at steady prices, however, lower grades of grass heifers and yearlings were slow and lower.

Cow and veal calf prices were steady. Hog and sheep and lamb prices were higher.

Slaughter cattle 1,291: Choice steers 24.50 - 25.50 with fancy dry-feds to 26; good 23-24; medium 21-22.50; common 17-20; choice heifers 22.50-23; good 21-22; medium 19-21; common 15-18; choice cows 19-20; good 21-23; good cows 16-16.50 with sales to 17; medium 15-16; canners and cutters 11-15; good heavy bologna bulls 18.50-19.50; common and medium 16-18.

Replacement cattle 700: Good light stockers 22-25; medium and common 18-21.

Calves 471: Choice vealers 27-29 with sales to 30.50; good 24-26; medium 21-23; common 19-21; boners 13-18.

Public School Board Surveys New Property

The July meeting of the Campbellford Public School Board, held on July 8, started a survey of the new property, recently bought from Mr. Robert Anderson, as a future site for the replacement of the old Bridge St. buildings. These may not be built for some years but the board feared it would lose this centrally located property and the contract was completed this summer. A full statement is being prepared for the press regarding this purchase.

Five members assembled in the evening at the Sr. Bridge St. building for the business of the month. Both principals were absent, Mr. Whitfield attending Queen's University and Mr. Rothwell in Germany.

The resignation of Dr. J. Trimble, the public school board representative, on the High School Area Board, was accepted with regret. Dr. Trimble's work has kept him from attending many of the meetings and has not allowed him to carry out his duties as he wished to do. The new appointment will be made next week.

Mrs. Ruth Masterson's application to be placed on the occasional staff was accepted.

Mrs. Deborah Crysenbach has been hired, as part - time secretary to Mr. Whitfield of Kent School.

A letter from Mr. C. W. Young, I.P.S., of Brighton, stated that the Northumberland inspectorate had been divided and the new inspectorate which includes Campbellford, the townships of Seymour and Percy, as well as part of Peterborough County will have its headquarters in Campbellford. Mr. Young thanked the board and the secretary - treasurer for the splendid co-operation which they had given him during his 14 years here and asked for the same co - operation for his successor, Mr. D. Rickley, who will take over the work on August 1, and whose office will be in Campbellford. Mr. Macheasney expressed the board's thanks to Mr. Young for all his help and guidance.

Mr. Gunter gave the property report which was a full account of the many repairs being made in both schools during the vacation.

The principals' reports were given by Mr. William A. Murray, chairman of management and Mr. Duff reported on progress of the building made regarding future attendance to Campbellford schools.

Mr. V. Johnson, finance chairman, gave a survey of the finances to date. Permission was given to make the first payment on the new property.

put ashore in the Mansours area of northwest Cyprus, the only coastline controlled by Turkish - Cypriots. But the spokesman said some 3,000 men and artillery pieces had landed from Greece in support of the Greek-Cypriots.

The Turkish foreign ministry issued a statement in Ankara saying that the only Turkish soldiers sent to the island were routine replacements for the regular 650-man Turkish - Cyprus garrison.

Canon Wright New Rector of Christ Church

The Right Rev. Kenneth Charles Evans, M.A., D.D., Lord Bishop of Ontario, has announced the appointment of Canon R. B. DeBlois Wright as Rector of Christ Church in Belleville. Christ Church is the largest parish in the Diocese of Ontario with one thousand families and some three thousand persons under pastoral care. The appointment becomes effective on October 1st.

Canon Wright is a graduate of Bishop's University in Lennoxville, Quebec where he took his B.A. and Theology and is graduated in 1948. He was ordained in the same year for service in the missionary Diocese of Algoma. He was appointed Curate at St. Paul's in Fort William, where he was in charge of church extension work. He founded the Mission of St. Mary's-on-the Heights, in a suburb of Fort William. He was then appointed missionary priest in charge of Tressalon. An excellent athlete while in college he played football and hockey for the college and coached the high school teams while a priest in Tressalon.

In 1951 he was called to be rector of the rural parish in Newboro in the Diocese of Ontario where both his father and grandfather had served before him.

In 1955 he was appointed rector of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene in Picton. During the nine years as a rector he has seen the parish grow and the attendance and budget increase four-fold. Active in youth and laymens work the Church of St. Mary Magdalene has one of the finest Sunday Schools and laymens organizations in the Diocese.

Canon Wright was made Rural Dean of the Deanery of Prince Edward in 1962 and a Canon of the Cathedral Church of St. George in 1963. He has served on the executive committee of the Diocese for some ten years as well as serving on the evangelism, church extension, divinity students and stewardship committees.

While serving as rector of Picton he has devoted much of his spare time to community service. He is vice-president of the Picton Rotary Club, vice-president of the Tennyson Literary Society, past president of the Picton Library Board, was a member for sometime of the Picton Public School Board, a director of the Children's Aid Society for Prince County, chaplain for some years of the sea cadets, is a reserve army chaplain and was president of the Council of Churches.

In the past three years two boys from the parish have entered college studying for full time work in the church and one has graduated this past spring. Mrs. Wright has been most active in the music circles of the town and they have four sons and a daughter. Canon Wright is the twelfth member of his family on both sides to be ordained a priest in the Anglican Communion. His hobby is writing and he has written a religious column for the local newspaper as well as for national and international periodicals.

Canon Wright is the son of the late Rev. S. B. Gillard Wright who served the Diocese of Ontario in Newboro, Maitland and Bannockburn before being appointed the founding rector of the Church of the Redeemer in Toronto where he passed to higher service in 1948, at the same hour as his son was elevated to the priesthood. The Most Rev. William L. Wright, Metropolitan Archbishop of Ontario is a cousin, as is the Rev. Joseph DePencier Wright of Toronto and Canon Theo. Depencier of Vancouver, British Columbia. Mr. John Lennox Wright, a cousin is headmaster of St. George's College School in Toronto.

Quebec Accounts for Almost Half of 66 Fatalities Across Canada During the Weekend

By The Canadian Press

At least 66 persons died in accidents in Canada during the weekend, with Quebec accounting for almost half.

In a survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday (local times) Quebec had 30 accidental deaths, 14 drownings, 10 deaths by fire and 11 other accidental deaths.

Ontario had 15 fatalities, Saskatchewan 11, British Columbia four, Manitoba three, Nova Scotia two and Prince Edward Island one.

In Quebec two died in an air crash, four persons were drowned and three children were killed when they were run over by tractors in separate incidents. In Ontario, six died in fires, six in traffic accidents, one person was drowned and two boys were killed when struck by lightning.

In Saskatchewan four died in fires, two in drowning accidents, one on the roads, two in an air crash and two in other kinds of accidents. British Columbia's four deaths were drownings. Manitoba had two traffic deaths and one drowning. Nova Scotia a drowning and a traffic death and Prince Edward Island a drowning.

The survey does not include known suicides, slayings or industrial deaths.

The Ontario dead:

SUNDAY

Mrs. Harriet Dewer, 79, of Providence Bay, Manitoulin Island, after the car in which she was riding collided with another near Providence Bay.

Michael Nowitsky, 44, of RR 1, Paris, Ont., killed in a two-car collision near Brampton.

Five unidentified men when fire swept their boarding house at Kirkland Lake.

Three Whitby youths when the car in which they were riding overturned in a creek near Stouffville, 20 miles northeast of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Woods Mark Golden Wedding Anniversary

TWEED — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Woods celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Saturday, July 11th. They were married by Rev. D. M. Totten at Tweed United Church parsonage. Both Mr. and Mrs. Woods were born in the Tweed area and have lived here all their lives.

The couple are both in their early eighties and are enjoying comparatively good health. They had a family of twelve; five are still living. They are Mr. Clarence Woods of Tweed; Sadie (Mrs. John Stoveniski) of Dearborn, Michigan; Madeline (Mrs. Earle Woodcock) of Tweed; Pauline (Mrs. Sidney Lambert) of Tweed and Keitha (Mrs. Bill Martin) of Peterborough. There are 24 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

They celebrated the occasion quietly with a family picnic at Tweed Memorial Park on Sunday.

Canadian Cheese Centennial Year

by Mary Moore

1964 is the Centennial Year of the cheese industry in Canada, which began in Ingersoll, Ontario.

The National Dairy Council celebrated the 100th year of cheese-making in Canada with a dinner at the Old Mill in Toronto, for cheese manufacturers, retailers, nutritionists and food editors.

It was a memorable meal as you can see by the menu:

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Meat Loaf with Mushroom Gravy; Parsley New Potatoes; Broiled Crumbed Tomatoes; Blueberry Tarts with White Cream Cheese; Coffee.

CANAPES AND HORS D'OEUVRES:

Fondue Bruxelloise: Hot morsels of cheese, Processed and Parmesan, breaded and deep fried.

French Ramekins: Small pufts of pastry with Cheddar filling.

Swiss Cheese Tarts: Midget cheese custard tarts.

Canadian Cheddar Fondue: Served hot from the chafing dish, this is similar to a rarebit, wonderful on pieces of French bread.

FROM THE BUFFET TABLE:

Bisque of Chicken Mornay: Pieces of tender white chicken, succulent ham and Swiss cheese in a rich Mornay Sauce.

Vol Au Vent of Seafood: Seafood in a smooth cream sauce, zesty with the flavor of Cheddar, encased in large dome-shaped crust.

Quiche Lorraine Asparagus: A savory Swiss cheese custard pie, decked out with fresh asparagus spears.

Tournedos Favorite: Sauteed beef tenderloin tips gratinued with Gruyere Cheese.

Assorted Cold Meats; Assorted Salads.

DESSERT:

Vacherin Glace "Old Mill": Individual "cakes" of meringue rings, filled alternately with Fresh Strawberry Mousse and Petit Suisse "Canadien" (sweetened cream cheese).

COFFEE:

Miss Henriette Rouleu, Information Division Officer of the Canada Department of Agriculture, was the featured speaker. She told a delightful anecdote: A mouse was being chased by a cat. He escaped by hiding in a hole and quietly waited, hoping the cat would go away. Eventually he gave out a loud trial squeak. The cat answered "Meow!" The mouse subsided to wait longer. Then he tried again: "Squeak!" This time the response was "Woof Woof!" "Good" thought the mouse. "The cat has gone away and dogs don't eat mice". So he ventured forth to be immediately gobbled up by the crafty cat. The moral being, it is a good thing to be bilingual — as Miss Rouleau is, to good effect too.

October is designated cheese month each year. This promotion, over the past 16 years, has resulted in Canadian retail sales of cheese being greater than $100,000,000.00.

If you would like to increase your cheese cooking repertory, watch this column in October when I will give recipes for some of the best items on above menu.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

QUESTION: When my fiance and I announced to our parents that we had decided to get married, his mother, whom I had met only a few times, sent me a very warm note expressing approval. His parents and mine have never met, since we live in different cities. My future mother-in-law, however, has written him to ask my parents and me to visit with them for a weekend next month.

When he told me this, I said his mother really should have contacted my family and me directly instead of issuing such an important invitation through him. My mother feels the same way. Of course, we'll accept, since I feel both families should get to know each other as soon as possible.

Should we answer through my fiance, and let him write to his mother, or would it show better manners to write to her myself? I don't want to ruffle any feelings, so I'd appreciate advice about what to do, so I can get off to a diplomatic start. — M. A. W., New Haven, Conn.

ANSWER: Your fiance's mother should have written you personally to extend her invitation, even though she didn't, you really should respond directly. Send a note accepting her kind invitation for both you and your parents and ask pertinent questions like when you're expected and what train you can plan to take back. It's not necessary for your mother to send an acceptance, as well, but you both should send bread-and-butter notes after your visit.

No Drastic Changes Seen In Fall Clothes

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — When two weeks of style previews for the U.S. press came to a close here Saturday husbands could at last be consoled that nothing —not even the topless bathing suit—has evolved to outdate their wives clothes by next fall.

Now they have only to sweat out the Italian and Paris collection openings this month before relaxing the grip on their wallets.

The only financial risks evident in the collections shown by the New York Couture Group last week, or the American Designers Group the week before, is that fall clothes are pretty and feminine enough to inspire a man with the magnanimity to insist that his lady own some.

Specifically, these style trends have developed:

Silhouettes—Back is easy - fitted shift of last season is not outdated, but yokes, curved seaming, and darts put the body back in the fashion picture.

Every designer's favorite, however, is the long torsoed dress or costume, with a flash of pleats or a flare of gores beginning well below the hipline. Last year's blouson is here, but it's narrower, folding into a swinging skirt instead of a slim one.

JACKETS ARE LONG

Suits and costumes—Jackets are long versions of the smoker-brief cutaways, abbreviated overcoats, trench coats and redingotes.

Costume details — Hemlines range from the knee cap to several inches above the knee.

Hues—A deep shade of red, not quite burgandy or maroon, combines with pinks, blues, whites and yellows . . . everything.

Fabrics—Mohairs are not as bushy as in the past. Menswear fabrics—the grey flannels herringbone tweeds, particularly—obviously were on every designer's order lists. So were twills, jerseys, velvets; corduroys, silk satin, and a lot more brocade than was really necessary.

Accessories — Newsboy caps, tams and boy scout hats were as predominant on pretty manikins as fedoras and derbies were last. Shoes were open at the sides with closed heels and toes, always with a tiny ladylike heel for day.

Successful Living

Child Out of Marriage Illegitimate, Not Illegal

DEAR DORIS — I am just wondering why it is that a child born out of marriage as we have today is called illegal? Who gave us the right to judge others? Certainly not God.

If anyone can prove to me that He definitely states a child born before marriage is illegal in his eyes and judgment — there is no such thing as an illegal human being, so why not change it to just an orphaned child and mom? For when a young woman or girl gives herself to man and he runs out, then the child is truly orphaned.

Illegal children — phoo! — JUST WONDERING.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR JUST WONDERING — The term is "illegitimate" — a man-made phrase to describe a child born out of wedlock. If the parents marry before the child is born, the child is not illegitimate. From a moral standpoint, only the parents are illegitimate!

• • •

DEAR DORIS — What do you think of a guy who calls you up long distance — three hundred miles — and charges the call to your phone? No explanation or apology. I was thinking of saying "Yes" to him. But now I wonder — NOT SO SOFT.

DEAR NOT SO — That next time I'd refuse to take the call. Or the guy.

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO A.R. AND M.C. — Put less stock in boys who get mad at you easily. Don't go steady with either of them.

• • •

(Doris will welcome your comments on topics of human interest.)

U.C.W. Meeting

SPRINGBROOK U. C. W.

The regular meeting of Springbrook United Church Women was held at the church on Thursday evening. The president Mrs. Murney Bateman opened the meeting in the usual manner and Mrs. George Williams was pianist.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Ralph Wellman with all the members taking part. Mrs. R. McKeown gave the topic on Christian education using as her theme, "The Mission of the Christian Family". She explained that the new curriculum is a plan for increasing the effectiveness of the church's fundamental task. The Christian family has an important part to play in that great task.

This was followed by a question and answer period with Mrs. Ed. Bateman, Mrs. Percy Mumby, Mrs. Burt Woods and Mrs. Reg. McKeown taking part.

The business portion of the meeting was conducted by the president and letters of business and thank-you notes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Bailey. A special collection will be taken at the August meeting to buy supplies for the mission bale. Four delegates Mrs. G. Williams, Mrs. G. McFall, Mrs. Murney Mason and Mrs. Joe Thompson were nominated to attend the leadership training school at Belleville from July 20 to 23.

Readings were given by Mrs. Percy Mumby, Mrs. Ralph Wellman and Mrs. R. McKeown; also a piano solo by Mrs. Burt Woods.

Mrs. M. Mason closed the meeting with prayer and lunch was served by the committee in charge.

Community Honors Couple On Departure

MARSH HILL — The members of the Marsh Hill community hold a farewell party in the Sunday School hall in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell who are moving to Belleville in the near future.

Mr. Fred Heasman performed the duties of chairman. Miss Elizabeth Kuglin and Gwenda Detlor in costume favored with several vocal duets of old favorites and were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Basil Kuglin. Mrs. Harry Coulter gave a reading. Several musical numbers by the Mayzils were enjoyed. Mrs. Alyn Finkle gave a reading. Linda Finkle and Elizabeth Kuglin each favored with a piano solo.

Mrs. Harry Coulter read the address of the evening and presented Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell with a purse of money for which they graciously expressed their thanks.

Mrs. Farley Lindenfield president of the Pine Grove W.I., presented Mrs. Campbell with a gift from the Institute.

The ladies served refreshments and a social hour was spent.

Business, Professional Women Meet in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 400 women and one man, Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp, attended the official opening Sunday night of the biennial convention of the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Mr. Sharp, representing Prime Minister Pearson, told delegates of the 7,000-member federation that he often wished there were more women members in the House of Commons. He added: "Especially Liberals."

"In this difficult period of Canada's history, you women should take time out to consider the country's problems," he said. "I suggest that you might adopt as a theme of this convention, 'unity through understanding'."

Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa said: "It is a disgrace that Ontario, with one-third of the women's population in Canada, does not have a woman senator."

The conference was formally opened by President Elsie Gregory MacGill of Toronto.

Today, delegates were to hear her biennial report and reports from provincial residents. The meeting ends Thursday.

Two resolutions supporting the Red Ensign as Canada's official flag have been ruled outside the jurisdiction of the federation by its resolutions committee. But they will be discussed Wednesday.

Declining personal comment on the flag resolutions, Miss MacGill said: "These resolutions like the other 31 on the agenda will come to a vote and it's up to the delegates to decide whether they'll be passed or not."

It was conceivable another resolution favoring the federal government's proposed maple leaf flag could be introduced from the convention floor.

Women Meet To Discuss Alcoholism

VICTORIA (CP) — Every week a group of women meet here to discuss a common problem—an alcoholic.

Only by their first names. What the women know one another only by their first names. What matters is they all need help. A husband, a friend or a relative is an alcoholic.

The women meet to learn how to live with themselves and their sick relative.

As one of the more than a dozen women said:

"Life was miserable when my husband was drinking and it was just as miserable when he stopped.

"I'd forgotten how to live a happy life. I didn't know what to do about it. It required a change of attitude and that takes time and patience."

Another said: "I was lonely. I stayed away from friends as I tried to hide my husband's drinking. Coming here helped me to treat him like a human being."

This club has no executive. Called Al-anon, it nevertheless functions in an organized fashion. There is no self-pity and no gossip.

Decisions are always left to the individual.

Ann Landers

Not All Exotic Dancers Are Cheap Little Bimbos

DEAR ANN LANDERS — In your column recently a wife wrote that she was disturbed because her husband had come home from a stag party where two girls did strip acts. You told the wife she should not be thrown off balance by a "cheap little bimbo whose major talent is parading at stags in the altogether."

ANN LANDERS

For the first time in my life I feel I should defend my profession. I have been an exotic dancer (I prefer this to "stripper") for 12 years. I am no cheap little bimbo but a hard working woman who paid taxes on $40,000 last year.

When I finished my schooling in the East at age 16, I went to work in the office of a major TV network. In the 10 months I worked there I received more indecent proposals and pinches on my posterior than in the 12 years I have been doing my act.

There can be artistry, and taste in exotic dancing. I am told I have a regal bearing which makes men respect me. The average male would think twice before he tried to pinch a woman who buys her own diamonds and minks — and travels with a 200-pound drummer.

Since you claim to be fair, Ann, I hope you will print my letter and give the customers an eyeful. — T.N.T.

DEAR DYNAMITE — I try always to be fair and here is your letter. As for "giving the customers an eyeful" — that's your line, thank you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Have you noticed that service employees are becoming chummier and chummier? I have, and I don't like it.

My butcher always greets me with "Hello, Honey," or "What will you have today, Dear?" I find this embarrassing, particularly when someone I know is standing near.

Am I wrong to feel as I do? Should I say something to the man? Thank you. — OLD-FASHIONED.

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED — If the butcher asked for a date or offered to deliver the pork chops in person you'd have a legitimate beef — no pun intended.

* * *

A "Hello, Honey" should not offend you. If it's more than you can stand, however, ask him to call you "Mrs. Glockenspiel" in the future. You might also prepare yourself for some stringy roasts and tough T-Bones.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Is it wrong to discipline the children of guests?

I have two friends who bring their youngsters over regularly. One little two-and-one-half-year-old boy is into everything. He is fast as lightning and unless someone keeps an eye on him every minute he can take a whole house apart.

The boy's mother is one of these "relaxed" types who never sees anything. I have to take matches out of the child's mouth, ash trays out of his hands and move the candy dish on the mantel or he would eat every piece. He has torn up my magazines and broken my records. His mother is always "sorry" but that's as far as it goes. She says, "I hate to be hard on Jerry because it might destroy his natural curiosity. Children need to investigate."

How about this? — ROBINETTE.

DEAR ROBIN — You have not been "disciplining" the boy, you've attempted to protect your property, and the boy against his lack of training.

The child who is permitted everything and anything at home will try try anything and everything when he's out. His mother is failing him — badly. A youngster who does not learn what No-means is bound to find the world a frustrating and unhappy place to live in and will forever be at odds with those around him. This is how misfits are made.

* * *

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' newest booklet, gives authoritative and complete information on how to plan a wedding. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 40c in coin.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

U.C.W. Hear Talk On First Aid

JOHNSTOWN — Mrs. Earl Stickle was hostess to the Johnstown United Church Women on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Everett Harry was in charge of the devotional period and the program was arranged by Mrs. Kenneth Gare and Mrs. Earl Stickle.

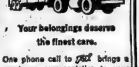
A letter was received from the Retarded Children's School asking for a donation. It was decided to send them $10. A letter was also received from the United Church Mission at Deer Lake asking for Christmas gifts and quilt material to help the Indians and Eskimos in the Outpost Missions. The men and boys should be kept in mind when sending items, as the women and children have more sent to them than the men and boys. The clothing should be warm things. Dolls and painting books or anything they can work with their hands for the children.

The treasurer, Mrs. Winfield Harder gave the report of the bake sale held recently which amounted to $63, and the full amount of the dessert tea $140.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Ken Gare introduced the speaker for the evening, the St. John Ambulance Instructor for Trenton, Mrs. Ursula McKenzie, who spoke on first aid, artificial respiration and told of ways to stop bleeding. She gave a demonstration using Mrs. Alex Vandervoort and Mrs. Kenneth Gare as patients.

A small gift was presented to Mrs. McKenzie on behalf of the Johnstown U.C.W. by Mrs. Gare.



Mrs. McKenzie was anxious for the people of this neighborhood to form a class to learn these helpful things as one never knows when it would be necessary to use them, in these days of many accidents on the farm and highways.

USE OF FORK

The first mention of the common table fork is found in an Englishmans letter from about 1500 commenting on their use in Italy.

Norris Whitney Has Busy Time On Committee

PICTON (Staff) — Local M.P.P., Norris Whitney, has in recent days been following a busy schedule, which includes attendance at public meetings of the Select Committee on the Municipal Act and related Acts of which he is a member. During the month of August, Mr. Whitney will accompany the Committee to many parts of Ontario. Purpose of this committee is to inquire into and review the Municipal Act of the province and related Acts including the Assessment Act, The Dept. of Municipal Affairs Act, The Local Improvement Act, The Ontario Municipal Board Act and The Planning Act, and the regulations made there under by reason of modernizing, consolidating, and simplifying such Acts and regulations and making such recommendations as may be necessary for their improvement. On August 5th a Committee meeting will be held in City Council chambers in Kingston beginning at 10 a.m.

Mr. Whitney feels that representatives of groups such as Municipal governments, school boards, other local boards and commissions, and organizations should be concerned with this occasion to present their problems and their views.

The Committee is scheduled to move to Ottawa on August 8th and in the following week to Sudbury, Sault Ste. Marie, and Port Arthur. In the third week the Committee will be in Western Ontario at Windsor, St. Catharines, and Niagara on the Lake.

The Committee already has listened to a proposal that farm property be assessed for educational purposes on buildings and ten acres of land, the remaining acreage being assessed for only municipal purposes. Need for planning has been stressed by the hearings. If there is no organization in connection with the present rapid growth conditions well may become chaotic. No decision has been made as to whether there should be area or local planning.

Mr. Whitney previously has served on the select committee on two occasions. It is his opinion that Prince Edward County has her share of problems and feels that experienced representatives from the county should express their views at the forthcoming Kingston meeting.

Town Offices Most Spacious, Well Located

PICTON (Staff) — Taxpayers in Wards instances displayed initial confusion recently in attempting to locate the new town offices now situated on Main Street. Town Treasurer, Mr. Will McArthur commented that the most striking improvement in the new location is the fact that the offices are now on the ground floor. Formerly it was necessary to climb several flights of stairs to reach them. A second desirable feature of the new location is its spaciousness. The offices opened at their new site on July 2nd.

MARINA BUSY

Reports from Prince Edward Yacht Club and Prinyer's Cove Marina indicate that many Americans are holidaying here. Throughout the week nearly all slips at the yacht club were filled. Most of the boats belonged to American tourists many of whom were making return visits to the county. Several boaters have announced their plans to make a second stop here later in the season.

Prinyer's Cove Marina operated by Mr. George Richmond, has welcomed over 100 boats, mostly American, since its opening on June 1st.

Belleview Glass to Mark Its Twentieth Anniversary

A Belleville industry celebrates an anniversary this week. Belleview Glass and Mirror, 354 Pinnacle Street will be 20 years old on Tuesday.

Belleview Glass and Mirror is owned and operated by Mac McCallum. He started the business 20 years ago with his first office located at 6 Victoria Avenue. After three years at this location, he moved the business up the street to 24 Victoria. He stayed at that spot until 1958, when because of the increase in business he moved to his present location, 354 Pinnacle Street.

The new location, the former Foy and Irwin building, was purchased in December of 1957 and after complete renovations was ready for occupation in August of 1958. At present ten men are employed by the company.

Mac McCallum has been in the glass business for the past 31 years. He started at the tender age of 14 with his grandfather, E. L. Smith, who owned the K.L. Glass Company in Hamilton. From Hamilton, he went to London, Ontario, where he was employed by the Hobbs Glass Company. Mac left London in 1944 to settle in Belleville and start Belleview Glass and Mirror.

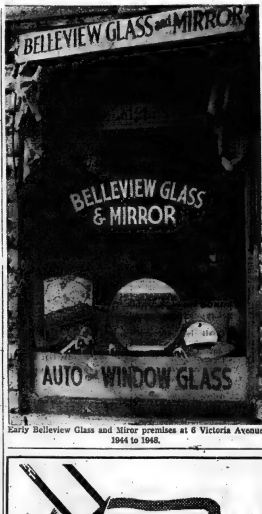
This company was the first glass company in Eastern Ontario and after 20 years holds the enviable position of being the only privately owned glass and mirror business between Toronto and Montreal.

Today, Belleview Glass and Mirror is extensively engaged in the design, drafting and layout of commercial store fronts as well as the contracting for glass products of all sorts. In recent years, auto glass has become a specialty with the company.

Akin to glass products are the many other home improvement items available at Belleview Glass and Mirror. Besides aluminum awnings and doors, there are aluminum railings, Sherwin-Williams and Pilkington Paints and many other paint products.

As one looks around the company offices on Pinnacle Street he sees glass of many different sizes, shapes and colors. Where does all this glass come from? A great deal comes from Canadian plants in Toronto and much is imported from such far away places as England, France, Belgium and West Germany.

Glass is a product we see all around us but few know how it is made and probably know even less about its history. Belleview Glass and Mirror as part of its 20th anniversary will show a film prepared by Pilkington Glass of England which will explain glass, both past and present. An open house will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights with the film beginning at 8 o'clock. Refreshments will be served to all in attendance.



A cordial invitation is extended to all by Mac McCallum and the staff of Belleview Glass and Mirror to attend and help them celebrate their 20th anniversary.

State Visit Will Be Paid To Khartoum

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will pay a state visit to Khartoum, Sunday, Feb. 9-12, 1965, Buckingham Palace announced today.

The palace announcement said the Queen and her husband had accepted "with much pleasure" an invitation from President Ibrahim Abboud, but it gave no further details about the visit.

The impression left is that the Republicans — or at least those now in control of the party — are lukewarm about tariff-cutting.

ACCUSES DEMOCRATS

Bitterly condemning the Johnson and Kennedy administrations as being responsible for most of the world's political and military problems, the proposed platform charges the Democrats with leading the U.S. down a Munich path by appeasing the Communists while ignoring the allies.

Made public Sunday amid charges by the moderates that the 100 - member committee was rigged, the document suggests the U.S. tighten curbs against highly competitive imports, such as oil and lumber.

Oil and lumber are major export items in Canada's trade with the United States.

Republicans also would force Canada and other countries to label their shipments to the U.S. with the country of origin. The Canadian government has vigorously opposed such a move. Legislation to mark Canadian lumber and other imports with the country of origin was vetoed by the Johnson and the Eisenhower administrations.

Mets Sweep Doubleheader ★ ★ ★ ★

Aaron, Braves Blast Phils From Top

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Milwaukee Braves, bogged down in ninth place two weeks ago, made it 11 victories in 15 games by sweeping a doubleheader from Philadelphia 4-3 and 6-2, Sunday, knocking the Phillies into second place in the National League behind San Francisco Giants.

Hank Aaron, who has been laying the groundwork for the Braves' streak with some amazing stickwork, collected four hits against the slumping Phillies—including No. 2,000 of his career—and extended his hitting string to 16 games.

During that stretch, Aaron has driven in 17 runs while hitting at a .394 clip and lifting his average to .312, sixth best in the league.

The Phillies, meanwhile, lost their fourth straight and again changed places with San Francisco in the tight pennant struggle.

The Giants moved one game out front despite losing to Houston Colts 5-4 in a weird game in which San Francisco re-Never Billy O'Dell was ejected before throwing a pitch and Gaylord Perry took over, then proceeded to change his shoes while sitting on the pitchers' mound.

METS WIN TWICE

Elsewhere, New York Mets swept a doubleheader for the first time in more than a year by beating Cincinnati Reds 1-0 and 5-1, while Chicago Cubs downed Los Angeles 6-3 before the Dodgers won the nightcap 6-2 with a six-run ninth inning explosion—equalling their biggest inning of the season.

A doubleheader between St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates was rained out.

Saturday action saw St. Louis wallop New York 11-4, San Francisco shutout Chicago 7-0, Los Angeles defeat Houston 11-6, Cincinnati edge Philadelphia 3-2, and Milwaukee split a 9-8 decision over Pittsburgh in 10 innings.

The Braves jumped on Chris Short in the opener for all their runs in the fourth inning Aaron drove in the first two with a single and Gene Oliver's double brought home another pair.

Aaron doubled and scored the Braves' first run in the nightcap and drove in the second with a single. Eddie Mathews contributed a homer and double while reliever Billy Hoeft checked the Phillies on three hits for seven innings.

At Houston, O'Dell was called in for a relief role in the seventh inning, but was tossed out before he even threw one pitch because of a disagreement with umpire Lee Weyer. Perry then got a hurry-up call, trudged in and sat down to change his shoes.

PERRY TAKES THE LOSS

Perry was touched for a run-producing single by Nellis Fox that tied the score 4-4 and lost it in the ninth when Eddie Kasko, Dave Roberts and Fox stroked singles for the winning run.

Galen Cisco of the Mets won a battle of six-hitters with the Reds' Joey Jay in the opener when New York scored the game's only run in the ninth inning on consecutive doubles by George Altman and Joe Christopher.

The Mets wrapped up their first doubleheader sweep since June 23, 1963, as Ron Hunt collected three hits, including a homer, and drove in three runs in the nightcap. Frank Lary got the victory, his first as a National Leaguer.

The Cubs won the opener with a four-run ninth capped by Billy Williams' homer. Williams' 21st homer, off Ron Perranoski, was the only hit of the inning and followed a two-out error by Nate Oliver.

Ernie Broglio, looking for his first victory as a Cub, had a four-hit shutout going in the nightcap ninth when the Dodgers struck. Tommy Davis' bases loaded single tied the game and Ron Fairly scored the lead run on Frank Howard's infield out.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Believe it or not, one of the "key" players on Casey Stengel's amazing conglomeration of ball players is a Mets Miss named Jane Jarvis.

Miss Jarvis, a pretty blue-eyed brunette, was obtained from the Milwaukee Braves in a straight deal, no cash or players being involved.

She is in charge of the electronic organ at brand-new Shea Stadium and she "says it with music," as the situation warrants.

She has committed only one error in 5,000 times at bat on the organ console. When the last Met drags himself off the diamond, Jane always comes up with "Ain't She Sweet?"

The bobbie came when she played the melody — with only two out—and the Mets started leaving the field.

She is extremely popular with the mask-and-pad pad boys in blue. She never, never plays "Three Blind Mice" to musically criticize an umpire's decision.

She never mocks those tete-a-tetes at the plate between pitcher and manager by carolling "Give Me Five Minutes More."

A brilliant pianist, Miss Jarvis hoped to reach the concert stage but in. 1945 she took a job as organist with the Milwaukee Braves under the instruction, "Three strikes are out, Jane, three outs and the teams change. Then you just play."

Her hurried rendition of the Star-Spangled Banner "that sobered them up quick" halted a near-riot after Ruben Gomez knocked down Joe Adcock with a pitch.

Twice the strains of "The End of a Perfect Day" have rolled over diamonds as a post-greeting salute to perfect-game pitchers, Harvey Haddix and Jim Bunnings.

She consoles the dampened feelings of ballplayers when Jupiter Pluvius rains a day by warbling "Singing in the Rain". Home run hitters get "There'll Be a Hot Time . . ." and a "striker-outer" gets "Just One of Those Things."

She has had a lot of practice this season with "Smile, Darn You, Smile" which she plays after the Mets lose.

And just to show her versatility and familiarity with better class music she will come up with opera light opera and the old masters.

Her timing is perfect. She studies pitchers and how long it takes them to warm up so she can finish her selection as the ball is tossed to second by the catcher.

She keeps up with the baseball times and keeps tabs on deals and trades. If a player is being sent to smaller city she offers "California Here I Come", when he appears for the last time.

She had a feeling the Nats were going to score in the all-star game so she offered them "Soon". And after Ken Boyer and Billy Williams belted homers in one inning she came up with "Happy Days Are Here Again".

In the fateful ninth when Hank Aaron came to bat and struck out she was all set to play Irish tribute if he came through. She was ready to surprise him with one of his favorites "Dance With Me, Henry".

Five In Ninth Give Foxboro 11-5 Victory

Foxboro scored five times in the last inning to put the wrapping on an 11-5 South Baseball League victory over Latta on Saturday night.

Down 4-1 at one point, Foxboro plated three in the fifth and each club got one in the sixth for a fight 6-5 score entering the seventh - then came the clinching rally.

Gord "Soup" Campbell and Bob Skinner combined for a four-hitter on the winners' hilltop, fanning six and walking the same number.

Lorne Cronkright gave up six hits while doing the Latta pitching. He struck out nine and walked three and four Latta errors failed to help his cause.

G. Reynolds hit a double and single, Belanger a home run and Brian Skinner a double for Foxboro. Howard Skelly and Carlson also hit safely.

For Latta, Doug. Rollins had a double and single, L. Cronkright a home run and Bob Smith a single.

Nearly 600 See Fine Racing
'Frosty Magic' Sets New Seasonal Record

By CLAUDE D. TICE

The fastest mile of the season, delightful clear weather and the second largest attendance of the meeting was the record of the harness racing held at the Fairgrounds on Saturday night. There were 580 paid admissions and the mutuel handle was $7,140. The boys and girls behind the mutuel windows, the racing was forceful and interesting and everyone had a most enjoyable evening.

Dominion K. Abbe, owned and driven by Peter Oulette of Odessa, produced the highest payoff of the night when he won the first heat of the second races at $29.60 and from the whoops that went up when his number was posted, there must of have been quite a few ticket holders.

In the feature race of the evening, Magic Millie driven by Irvin Nesa and a consistent winner beat all the good ones in the dash but had to be content with second place in the second heat. At that the mare was not disgraced. Hals Pence, one-half of the stunt entry expected the mare a real bair and Irwin Nesa gave her a breather at the top of the "Lane" when Frosty Magic loomed alongside and the two putting on a thrilling trip to the wire with the colt getting the nod. The time of 2.10 flat was hung out and showed that the track, under constant grooming is getting better. It was a ding-dong mile. Mountainway supplied the main opposition in both heats.

Miss Star Magic was much the best in the third race. Teamed by Cecil Carleton, her owner, she won both heats and combined with Dominion K. Abbe produced a double of $27.50. Sandy McDuff, a real good trotter and teamed by Larry Zebedee of this city was a close second in each trip and except for a little 'jump' in the second heat, could have possibly got all the money.

Direct Dillard, driven by Jim Huff of Kingston made every effort to get one in being a straight winner in the fourth, combined with Tester 2nd in the second heat the horse produced a quinella of $23.90. The second horse came strongly in the second heat after being a poor seventh in the first trip. Can't Deny It, a winner a week ago, could do no better than fourth in each heat.

The racing has been excellently handled since the meeting began, both from the management and the judges angle. Racing has been kept on a high plane and the track has been steadily improved until now it compares with other half mile tracks in the area. The public has responded to the efforts of the club and there has been many fine evenings of entertainment for those who like the harness racing sport.

Rain Fails To Halt Golf Tourney

Jupiter Pluvius rode the greens and fairways of the Bay of Quinte Country Club yesterday but failed to halt the annual Belvedere Cup tournament.

The scheduled twenty-seven couples teed off despite intermittent drizzling rain and came up with some surprising scores.

Helen Smith and Don Skinner, the latter a two-year golfer, showed the class of the field finishing with the winning card of 70 low net.

Bud Payette and Betty Gregory were second place winners with Betty Wrymark and Jack Glover finishing in third place.

Periodical breaks in the drizzle gave the first two-sixsomes the chance to tee off around one p.m. and the rest of the field followed.

The winners will receive the Belvedere Cup at the annual presentation of trophies and awards at the club's closing dinner.

Durocher Wins Legal Battle

MIDDLEBURY, Vt. (AP)—A Vermont chancellor Saturday lost his $150,000 alienation of affections suit against Leo Durocher, coach of the Los Angeles Dodgers baseball team.

An Addison County jury of 12 men and women Saturday entered two hours and 15 minutes before finding Durocher not liable on the charges in the complaint brought by Rene Morin, 51, of Middlebury.

The 58-year-old Durocher said that he is in love with Morin's daughter, Carolyn, 26—and not Morin's wife.

HAVE TWO BURDETTES

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs now have two Burdettes, unrelated, on their pitching roster with Saturday's recall of righthander Fred Burdette from Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast League.

Juniors Split At Oshawa

Belleville Ellis Juniors split a pair of tight decisions as they bowed out in the second round of the Ontario Junior "A" softball tournament played at Oshawa on Saturday.

Ellis' eliminated Capreol in the opening round, at one o'clock, by a 1-0 score. All games were of seven-inning duration.

Galt, one of the strongest entries in the season tourney, knocked Belleville out of contention by a 4-2 count in the three-o'clock round.

In the Capreol contest, third baseman Mike Gratton belted a leadoff home run in the second inning for the game's lone run.

Lefty Bob Ethier toyed with a no-hitter on the winners' mound. He fanned Jack and Peter Weston a single for Belleville.

Galt used a bevy of pitchers but combined for a four-hitter unearned, to grab the 4-2 win. Ellis' scored two in the fourth and two in the fifth added one in the top of the seventh.

Swan, Kitamen, Noles and Hewat combined for a four-hitter on the winners' rubber, fanning nine and walking five.

Bob Boyle started for Belleville with Ethier taking over in the third. They gave up seven hits, whiffed four and passed three.

Belleville hits went to Carl Boomhower, with a pair, Larry Smith, who doubled, and Pete Weston.

Fox homered and Graham singled twice to pace Galt's hitting.

Soccer Game Is Postponed

The Kingston District Soccer League game between Parsons' Cleaners and Kingston Italia was postponed Saturday.

The Kingston club showed up but refused to await the belated appearance of officials and went home.

No officials had appeared after twenty-minutes post-kick-off time and Italia refused to wait any longer.

A Parsons' spokesman said the game was postponed, and the Kingston action will be brought before the league executive.

In another game Batawa handed the league-leading Trenton RCAF a 5-2 setback.

City Baseball Peewees Lose Second Round

Belleville Merchants trounced Welland 26-6 but bowed out of the running in the second round of the Peewee Baseball tournament in Niagara Falls Saturday, losing to North Toronto 11-4.

The Belleville team, coached by Moe Hunter, stayed in Niagara Falls from Friday night to Sunday afternoon, receiving excellent treatment, a complete tour of the city and falls area.

The host Niagara Falls team captured the ten-team tournament, edging Simcoe in the finals.

Against Welland, Wayne Farrell, Daryl Demers and Jim Woods combined to pitch a nine-hitter while Ron Jury handled the catching.

The Merchants collected 12 hits, paced by Brian Coughlin with a triple and single. L. Moore, Glen Gerrow and Bert Loveless each had a pair of singles. R. Festenburg got three Welland hits, one of them a home run.

Forced to play their second game right on the heels of the first, the Merchants outhit North Toronto 7-6 after a shaky start, but could not overcome the early deficit.

Stephen Moore hurled well in defeat. All the winners' hits being singles, with R. Jury again catching.

Paul Hall had a double and single and S. Moore two singles for Belleville. Terry Meagher doubled while G. Carleton and D. Coughlin singled.

John Holgate Joins Ranks Of No-Hitters

A no-hit pitching' chore by John Holgate paced the Jaycees to an upset 7-4 victory over Barriage Landscapers in a Ranlam baseball league game played at Park Dale Saturday afternoon.

Holgate struck out six but ran into control trouble and issued ten walks. Five of the free passes came in the last inning when Barriage scored four times to make the final score close. McKay was Holgate's catcher.

Stephen Ling was the loser, replacing starter Howard Ward in the second inning. They gave up eight hits, struck out seven and walked eight.

Dick Lalonde had a double for Jaycees while singles went to Paul Goodsell, John Holgate, Clifford Scott, Leo Baker, Butch Curtain, McKay and Parliament.

Earlier, in a Tyke division game, Lions Club downed the Yankees 12-2.

Ron McTaggart pitched the win with Don McTaggart catching.

Dean Lang hurled for the Yankees.

One of the Lions Club players hit three home runs but very little information was turned in on the contest, concerning hitters, etc.

CLAIMS RECORD

EASTVIEW, Ont. (CP)—Kelvin Alexander, 28, of Eastview claimed the North American endurance record for roller skaters Sunday after completing 54 hours and 12 minutes of continuous skating.

Bruce Kidd Beaten Again

Crothers, Girls Win In Britain

LONDON (CP) — Canadian hopefuls recorded three victories in British track events Saturday.

Among the British track and field championships, Bill Crothers, 23 year-old middle-distance star from Toronto, won the half-mile final in one minute, 50.1 seconds, despite a shaky start.

The track and field meet in suburban Twickenham, Jennifer Wingerson and Abigail Hoffman of Toronto were easy winners in four events.

Crothers, a pharmacist, settled into fifth place among the seven runners after a slow start. He took the lead at the 440-yard mark and won by 10 yards. Noel Carroll, an Irishman who studies at Villanova University, was second in 1:50.7 and D. G. McLeane of Ireland was third.

Bruce Kidd, 22, of Toronto, who ran six miles Friday in the best time he ever has managed —27:56.4—and still finished only seventh in a classy field, entered the three-mile event Saturday as a last-minute starter and finished 10th in a field of 22. His time was 13:40.0.

POLE WINS

The race was won by Poland's L. Bocuszewics in 13:24.4, with W. Baran of Poland second and Bruce Tullos of Britain third.

"It was a good workout and I enjoyed it," said Kidd.

"I don't run fast enough to win," said Crothers after his half-mile victory. "I don't run fast time."

His best time for the event is much better than his Saturday 1:06.1. He ran the 880 in 1:46.8 for the U.S. last summer. The world record of 1:45.1 is held by Peter Snell of New Zealand.

The Toronto girls competed as guests in the Spartan Club championships at Twickenham.

Miss Wingerson, 21-year-old blonde secretary, won the 80 metre hurdles in 11 seconds, equalling her own best time and qualifying for a place on Canada's squad for the Olympics in Tokyo in October. She defeated by three yards Pam Kilborn, co-holder of the world 80-metre record. Miss Kilborn said she has not yet gone into strict training.

Miss Wingerson also won the 100-yard dash in 10.8 and the 220 in 26.1.

Miss Hoffman won the 440 in 57.8 seconds, which is more than three seconds off her own best performance. The track was heavy and a stiff breeze was blowing. Genny Smart, a member of the British team, was among the girls she beat.

Gail Daley, a petite 18-year-old blonde from Saskatoon, and winner of the women's gymnastic title, was expected to be selected for the team, but the committee decided to send three more.

A full Olympic gymnastic team is six men and six women, but the Canadian Olympic Association ruled that only three gymnasts and a coach would represent Canada.

In the gymnastic championships, Kihn successfully defended his senior gymnastic title by racking up 108.6 points of a possible 120, just one ahead of second-placer Larose, four ahead of Weiler.

Weiler, a gold medal winner in the 1963 Pan American Games in Brazil, seemed to overcome the injury to take third place in the men's gymnastics.

Harit of Montreal to take the suburban Verdun invitational tournament Sunday. The victory, 2-6, 6-0, 6-3, 6-4, was the second for Getz over Harit in the last two weeks. Both players are on Canada's Davis Cup team which will meet Australia here starting next Friday.

Roger Dion of Quebec City, who placed fourth behind Weiler in the senior gymnastic competitions, is the alternate team member.

Dion's chances for a berth on the team mainly rest on the possibility that Sgt. Weiler, a Canadian Army physical training instructor, will be unable to compete because of a shoulder injury he suffered four months ago.

manager-coach of the team.

Gets Two-For-Two

Wilhelm Sets Hit Record

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Hoyt Wilhelm, the balding bullpen specialist of Chicago White Sox, was holding court in the clubhouse and for once, his knuckle ball never entered the conversation.

"Two-for-two and batted in he winning run, how about that?" said the veteran right-hander. "Eddie Fisher, you owe me a steak. You said I wouldn't get two hits all season."

Fisher retorted: "You never paid me the steak from last year."

The score was tied 4-4 Sunday with two out in the eighth with a man on second when John Wyatt, Kansas City Athletic's top relief pitcher, walked catcher J. C. Martin intentionally to get to Wilhelm.

Wilhelm surprised everyone with a perfect single to right scoring the winning run. Another run scored on an error on the same play. It touched for an 11-4 White Sox victory and a doubleheader sweep.

Wilhelm stroked another single to right in the ninth.

Wilhelm, who'll be 41 in two weeks, couldn't remember ever hitting two hits in one game. The fact is, he got two hits all season and two hits in 1962. But he has an explanation:

"I don't bat much pitching in relief When I started, I did all right—I was a pretty good right-field hitter. In fact, I got a home run my first time at bat in the majors. It was in the Polo Grounds."

Wins Rodeo At Kirk Cove

John Robertson, of Arnprior, was the winner of Canada's first "boat cutter", held at Kirk Cove yesterday.

A large crowd attended the affair, despite the rain, and watched Robertson beat competitors from Ottawa, Peterborough, Montreal, Belleville and Kirk Cove.

The Arnprior racer's time was one minute and 45 seconds. He received the Kirk Cove Trophy for his victory with Miss Linda Wright, of Belleville, helping with the presentation.

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

Scores at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club's regular weekend shoot Sunday were: Gerald Robertson 23, Sian Keogh 24, John Yykes 23, Dr. Hale 22, Jack Dodson 22, Harry Farnell 22, Doug Johnston 20.

Snead Wins British Title

WENTWORTH England (AP) Sam Snead, the American PGA senior champion, shot an eagle three on the 15th hole Sunday and went on to defeat Syd Scott 7 and 6 in their 36-hole match for the unofficial world senior pro golf championship.

The 52-year-old Snead, competing as a senior for the first time this year, won the U.S. PGA title last February. Scott is the British senior pro champion. The victory earned Snead $1 400 in prize money and the Teacher Trophy.

AT THE PARK — Corpus Delicti — Vincent Price (right) and Lon Chaney exhume corpse in dramatic scene from American International's Edgar Allan Poe terror thriller, "The Haunted Palace." The color and Panavision shocker, which opens tonight at the Park Theatre, also stars Debra Paget. On the same program the big war picture "The Quick and The Dead" starring Victor French and Larry Mann. Both features are first Belleville Showings.

TV- Radio Column

Must Base Humor on Truth Says Jonathan Winters

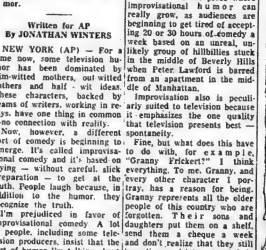
Comedian Jonathan Winters in a column for vacationing Cynthia Lowry discusses his concept of contemporary American humor.

Written for AP
By JONATHAN WINTERS

NEW YORK (AP) — For a time now, some television humor has been dominated by dim-witted mothers, out witted fathers and half - wit ideas. These characters, backed by teams of writers, working in relays, have one thing in common — no connection with reality.

Now, however, a different sort of comedy is beginning to emerge. It's called improvisational comedy and it's based on trying — without careful, slick preparation — to get at the truth. People laugh because, in addition to the humor, they recognize the truth.

I'm prejudiced in favor of improvisational comedy. A lot of people, including some television producers, insist that the sort of humor I'm talking about is "sick." Funny is there's one television show with a man who gets advice from a horse— and they call this healthy."



Humor, after all, is just a reflection of the times in which we live. With the world today a small one, we can't afford not to discuss things any more.

Television is the place where improvisational humor can really grow, as audiences are beginning to get tired of accepting 20 or 30 hours of comedy a week based on an unreal, unlikely group of hillbillies stuck in the middle of Beverly Hills when Peter Lawford is barred from an apartment in the middle of Manhattan.

Improvisation also is peculiarly suited to television because it emphasizes the one quality that television presents best — spontaneity.

Fine, but what does this have to do with, for example, "Granny Frickert?" I think everything. To me, Granny, and every other character I portray, has a reason for being. Granny represents all the older people of this country who are forgotten. Their sons and daughters put them on a shelf, send them a cheque a week and don't realize that they still have lives and interests of their own and active minds that can contribute.

I believe that humor based upon truth is the only real humor.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For July 14

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Be a peacemaker. Don't push, force or demand. Strive for harmony. You will gain most by being a good listener. Express interest in the problems, ideas of others. Good time for planning.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Diet, proper rest, pacing of utmost importance. Planetary aspects indicate self-deception. Avoid this by insistence on facts. Decide on basis of logic, not emotion.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20) Express yourself. Applies especially where romance is concerned. Don't be shy. Let member of opposite sex know where you stand. Day features change, creative endeavors and travel.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) Attend to details in connection with current project. Don't let others talk you into involvement in various schemes. One thing at a time. Best now to concentrate on finishing.

Leo (July 23 to August 21) Ideas sparkle. But they require "refinement." Means leave no loose ends. Get formats, programs, questions in proper order. Many observe with interest. Live up to potential.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Day to absorb knowledge, add to possessions. Your judgment accurate, although you may have some doubts. Best course is one which takes you in heart of matter. Stop procrastinating.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Reach out in various directions. Avoid being fixed or stubborn. Your greatest chance for success comes through versatility. Efforts favored in connection with groups, organizations.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Develop latent potentialities. Much may be "hidden." Dig deep for information. You can gain inspiration through work, hobby. If you are patient, chance for success is enhanced.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Avoid being dogmatic. Friends want to express themselves. Give them a chance. If you listen well, you also learn. Highlight personality, charm. You'll be happier as result.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) Problems will grow smaller if you utilize thinking processes. Illustrate your points clearly. Don't take people or subjects for granted. Those in position to help will now be receptive.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Assure one in trouble that you do care. Stress understanding. Utilize natural qualities of humanitarianism. Many opportunities due for creative expression. Your kind of day. Make the most of it.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20) Avoid childish attitudes. Worries are mostly groundless. Logical approach best bet. You have time, talent on your side. Money problem not as serious as you might imagine.

If today is your birthday you love to solve problems, get basic information and come up with complete story. Would make excellent teacher, psychologist - - or detective.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:— Cycle high for Libra, Scorpio, Sagittarius. Special word to Aries: No day to try cementing agreement. Wait for air to clear. Then you get your way.

PARKS WINS

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP)— George Parks of Toronto took first place and a $1,000 prize in the 25-mile Quebec long distance championship race on the Lac Saguenay River Saturday. Thirty-year-old Parks battled the current and a rising wind to finish the Chicoutimi-Bagotville race with a time of nine hours, 18 minutes and six seconds.

Wings Take Pair From Syracuse

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Red Wings came within two games of second-place Syracuse Chiefs during the rain drenched weekend that saw five of the 10 games rained out in the International League.

Wings Red Wolfe defeated the Chiefs 7-5 Saturday and 4-3 Sunday in the first game of a doubleheader. The second game was rained out after the first inning.

In other action Saturday, Buffalo Bisons shut out Toronto Maple Leafs 4-0 and Atlanta Crackers clumped Columbus Jets 7-2. A game between Richmond Virginians and Jacksonville Suns was postponed.

Atlanta walloped the Jets 9-3 Sunday. A doubleheader between Toronto and the Bisons and a game between Richmond and Jacksonville were rained out.

PITCHES FIVE-HITTER

Tom Phoebus put down the Chiefs for his seventh win in 11 decisions and his first shutout in the first game Sunday. The second game was rained out with the Wings leading 1-0. Pete Cimino spun a five-hitter at Columbus Saturday and blasted a slam homer to lead the cellar - dwelling Crackers. Cimino, who suffered the loss, hitter in his last start, tagged the round tripper on a 3-2 count.

A leaf early Sheehan (Roadblock) Jones, hurled a four-hitter to defeat Toronto and drop them into a virtual tie with the fourth - place Bisons. Jones, dropped by the Leafs earlier in the season, ran his record to 5-1.

Ken Nixon was tagged with the loss, giving up six hits and two runs before being relieved in the fourth. Joe Hicks was the top hitter for the Bisons with three hits, including a double.

Rookie Wins Novel Tourney

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Miller Barber, a 32-year-old Texan who has been on the tour less than three years, rallied for a one-point victory over National Open champion Ken Venturi Sunday in the $25,000 Westchester Classic golf tournament.

Venturi tried to sink a 12-foot putt for an eagle on the 18th hole which could have thrown the event into a sudden-death playoff. He ball climbed part the cup and left Barber the winner, 31 plus points to 30. Barber collected $5,000 first prize and said it was the most money he ever won in a tour tournament.

In the unique tournament, Barber finished with 11 points in the 18-man field in head-to-head match play competition. Each player was awarded or subtracted according to holes won or lost.

Hit Five, Scored Four, Stole Two Orioles' Luis Grabbed Everything But Ball

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Fleet Luis Aparicio, the major leagues' biggest thief, did just about everything but grab the ball and run away with it Sunday as the American League leading Baltimore Orioles split a doubleheader with Detroit Tigers. The Orioles won the opener 4-2, then dropped the nightcap 4-3 in 10 innings.

The sizzling shortstop rapped five hits, scored four runs and stole two bases in the games.

The thefts gave him a leading total of 32 but more important put the pace back into the base stealing racket. They were his first since he stole three times June 2.

Aparicio's hitting splurge boosted his average to .304, far above his .261 lifetime mark.

The first hit for the 30-year-old Venezuelan in the double header was a double in the fifth. He scored the Orioles' first run on Sam Bowens' single.

With Baltimore trailing, 2-1, Aparicio opened the eighth with a single, stole second and third, then scored the tying run on an infield out. Boog Robinson hit a winning two-run homer minutes later.

FIFTH HOMER

He hit his fifth homer in the first inning and scored the second run after lashing a single in the fourth.

Aparicio collected his first hit of the day in the 10th inning, a bunt single which, combined with Larry Sherry's throwing error, gave the Orioles the lead run.

In other American League games, Chicago White Sox swept Kansas City Athletics 3-1 and 11-4, Los Angeles Angels took Minnesota Twins 2-1 and 7-0 in baseball's Washington Senators trounced Boston Red Sox 10-3 after losing 5-3 and New York Yankees split with Cleveland Indians in a 2-2 tie in a game called in the seventh inning by rain.

Saturday New York edged Washington 3-2, Detroit walloped Boston 8-1, California defeated Cleveland 7-4, Minnesota edged Kansas City 5-4, and Los Angeles shutout Chicago 1-0.

The Tigers won the second game despite Aparicio. A walk, a single by Don Wert and a forced ball set the stage for Mike Roarke's winning two-run single over a drawn-in infield in the bottom of the 10th.

Stu Miller, Baltimore's ace reliever, suffered his third setback in seven decisions. The loss was only the Orioles' third in 24 one-run games.

Weslock Chokes Off Cowan Bid

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Nick Weslock made it three wins in six invitations he has played this summer when he won the Sunningdale Invitation Saturday, firing a three-under par 69.

The 47 - year - old shotmaker from Toronto Misslasaugua had his only miss in the early bird at St. Thomas which he plated third.

Weslock choked off a late bid by Gary Cowan at the 17th, where the Ontario Open champion took a bunker and Cowan was hard pressed to get a bogey. They came to the hole but a stroke apart after Cowan had birdied the treacherous par-three 16th.

Cowan shot even-par 72 to fin ish in a four-way tie for second spot with Doug Galloway of St. Marys Jack Nash of London Hung and Les Biddle of Montreal Kanawaki.

Wings Trade Jim King's Rights To Boston

Jim King's three-run homer in the second helped launch Washington to the second-game victory of a Senators doubleheader sweep. Washington added three in the ninth on Ed Brinkman's two-run error and a single by Monday at Kooch.

Roger Maris and Joe Pepitone homered for the Yankees while Leon Wagner connected for the Indians in their shortened game.

Vesper Crew Wins Trip To Tokyo

NEW YORK (AP)—The Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia, a crew put together in the last four weeks, shattered American collegiate rowing supremacy Saturday and won a trip to the 1964 Olympics as the United States eight.

Whipping over the 2,000-metre — about 1¼ miles — Olympic course at Rockard Beach Lagoon in perfect weather, the fourth - seeded Vesper stroked home one length in front of Harvard in six minutes, 1.3 seconds.

California's previously unbeaten eight, stroking furiously at the rate of 44 to a minute, was third one length back of Harvard and 1½ lengths in front of Yale in the four-lane final.

American rowing honors have been strictly a collegiate closed thing in recent Olympics. College crews from the U.S. had won every Olympic final from 1920 until Navy was beaten by Germany's Ratzburg eight in 1960.

Vesper won at Paris in 1900 and at St. Louis in 1904, when the event was listed as a demonstration.

SPERO WINS BERTH

Don Spero, 24-year-old U.S. national champion from the York Athletic Club, won the lone Olympic berth in single sculls by outstroking Seymour Cromwell III, the recent Diamond Sculls winner at Henley.

Shatter 19 Ontario Swim Marks

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Nineteen Ontario and Canadian records were broken here Saturday in the third annual Ontario swimming championships.

Louise Kennedy, 13, of Lonsdale and North York's Dan Sherry led the parade of Olympic hopefuls who shattered the aquatic marks.

Miss Kennedy set marks in the Canadian senior women's 200-yards freestyle and 400-yards individual medley while Sherry claimed honors in the Canadian senior men's 50-yards freestyle and 400-yards individual medley.

Miss Kennedy finished in 2:37.7 seconds to better the 2:39.2 mark set in 1962 by Sherry set a medley mark of 5:04.9.

Gaye Stubbs of Toronto's University Settlement Aquatic Club chopped 7.3 seconds off former Olympian Ann Archer men's 200 yards backstroke mark. Mike Chase of North York set the Canadian senior men's mark in 100 yards breaststroke competition to Eight Mishaps Investigated, Send Four People to Hospital

John Fleming, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Fleming, 28 Southview Ave., Belleville, made a special effort to earn his 14th Cub Scout badge before he and his family move to London, Ont., this week.

John is a member of the recently - formed Winston Churchill Pack 15A, under the leadership of Mr. S. J. Terry and is the first boy from this Pack to earn his 14 badges.

Heavy traffic brought a rash of accidents in the Belleville area Sunday.

Before the day was out Provincial Police had investigated eight mishaps, which sent four people to hospital and brought a narrow escape for four more.

Luckiest break in an unlucky day came for Mr. and Mrs. Donald Yaxley, of Chateauguay, Que., and their two young children.

Mrs. Yaxley was driving the family car with a house trailer hitched to its rear axle when both vehicles rolled over on Highway 401, three miles east of the city.

All four were pitched together in the front seat around the steering wheel — but were taken from the car unhurt.

Police say the trailer apparently started swaying and threw the automobile out of control.

Late last night on Highway 401 a man and wife were hurt when their panel truck collided with a road transport loaded with 20 tons of potatoes.

Scene of the mishap once again was north of Marysville where the highway narrows to two lanes.

Police say, John Bird, 52, of Port Weller, failed to turn onto the four-lane stretch and crashed into the tractor-trailer driven by Clifford Ford, of Leamington.

Mr. Bird and his wife Gladys, 48, were taken to Belleville General Hospital complaining of chest injuries. Mrs. Bird also received a deep leg gash.

And on Highway 14 just north of the 401 overpass, 17-year-old Sue Wiggins, of Madoc, was treated for minor injuries after a three-car accident. She was a passenger in a car driven by Jesse Brady.

The mishap occurred at the same spot where two people were hurt Friday night in another three-car crash.

In Belleville, police charged 46-year-old Garnett Marshall, 24 Forin Street, with impaired driving after his car collided with a parked automobile on Station Street. His vehicle was a write-off, police said. A woman passenger in the car was slightly hurt.

And on Highway 2 at Jones' Creek Dominico Magisano was taken to hospital after his small English station wagon veered into the ditch near midnight.

Magisano complained of leg, neck and head injuries.

FAMILY OF FOUR escaped without a scratch when trailer and car rolled over on Highway 401, three miles east of Belleville Sunday. Accident was one of many in district over weekend.

Two Cousins Found Dead Under Tree

CORNWALL, Ont. (AP) — Two cousins were found dead Sunday under a tree that police said apparently had been struck by lightning.

Calus Gordon, 12, and Thomas Lockhart, 16, were found near a farm owned by the Gordon boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gordon.

Lockhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lockhart of Montreal, had been visiting the Gordons.

Police said the boys went to a nearby field with an air rifle Saturday afternoon. Gordon's parents reported them missing at 3 a.m. Sunday.

Canada Crosses Racial Chasm, Backs Africans

Pearson's Declaration Called Parley Highlight

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Canada's proposal for a Commonwealth declaration of racial equality shares headlines today with Britain's six-point plan for closer economic co-operation in the family of nations.

Prime Minister Lester Pearson's draft 20-line declaration was submitted to the 15-country Commonwealth conference of prime ministers Monday at a crucial moment when it was debating the timing of Southern Rhodesian independence.

The Guardian reports the move this way:

"The most important political event at yesterday's session . . . was the deliberate decision by the Canadian delegation to cross the racial gulf and place themselves firmly beside the Africans and Asians in the struggle to bring about African majority rule in Southern Rhodesia."

Besides his call for an unequivocal statement on racial equality, Pearson offered a "crash program" of education and specialized training for black Southern Rhodesians for roles in government.

AS A SURPRISE

Canada's proposals came as a surprise and apparently had more impact than subsequent economic plans put forward by Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas - Home. The substance of them had been known in advance.

Douglas - Home urged a "massive new peacetime program under which the more prosperous countries would provide technical assistance programs to developing countries."

Sir Alec, who regards his plan as an extension of decisions reached at the Montreal Commonwealth economic conference of 1958, proposed:

—Projects for technical assistance should be made flowing country would co-ordinate the contributions from donors.

—A centre to train Commonwealth public servants, local officials and members of public corporations.

—A Commonwealth foundation for the development of contacts between professions to help improve standards.

—A Commonwealth medical conference to be held in the autumn of 1965 to pinpoint areas where needed aid is most needed.

—Greater assistance for the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association and an exchange of visits among Commonwealth youth groups.

Wheat Sale To Russia Is Possible

By KEN CLARK

WINNIPEG (CP) — A prolonged planting game by Canadian grain officials on the wheat-buying intentions of the Soviet Union may soon end.

Russia will probably have enough facts on its domestic supply situation within six weeks and will then probably be in a position to approach Canada for more wheat if its supply position demands it.

Officials here note that the Russians made their approach for Canadian wheat last year in early fall. The same could apply this year.

Last year's approach led to a 230,000,000 bushel sale of wheat and flour worth $300,000,000. It was directly responsible for pushing Canadian wheat exports in the current crop year to a forecast record of 580,000,000 bushels. The crop year ends July 31.

In any case officials here say a repeat order of this size is a remote possibility. They doubt the 1963 Soviet crop failure will be repeated. There are also doubts that Russia could sufficiently recover in a single year to make her independent again.

EXPECT PURCHASES

Officials believe Russia will probably buy Canadian wheat again, but on a much smaller scale, in the next year.

Delivery of the current order will be completed in a matter of weeks. Under terms of the agreement, Russia is committed to take another 18,700,000 bushels—but not until early 1965.

Officials predict the Prairie grain belt will produce no better than an average crop this fall—possibly 500,000,000 bushels—but Canada would still have ample to meet a big Russian order. . .

Even without a Russian grain market, Canada has a good market in Communist satellites many of whom are tied up under long-term agreements.

Poland, for instance, was reliably reported Monday to have agreed to buy 7,300,000 bushels of Canadian wheat worth $14,600,000.

Campaign of Terror by Night Waged Against Viet Cong Chiefs

SAIGON (AP) — Government squads, generally operating in stealth at night, have begun a campaign of terror against Viet Cong officials in the Mekong River delta of South Viet Nam. Small teams of commandos, armed with exact intelligence and daggers are moving into Viet Cong leaders, and slipping away. They are leaving calling cards on the bodies of their victims—an enormous white eye painted on a black slip of paper.

Officials specializing in counter-insurgency say the idea is to frighten the Viet Cong with Viet Cong tactics.

For years the Communists have terrorized rural government officials, often torturing and slaying their wives and children as well as the officials.

A U.S. adviser said: "We're using a lot of new tactics and some are paying off. One is the use of census teams in provinces we're trying to pacify. After the names of each family in a hamlet have been listed, a census team requires that one member of the family come around to answer a questionaire once every 15 days. The man or woman is asked: 'Do you have any complaints about local government administrators? Do you need anything in particular? And do you know anything about Viet Cong activities?'

"We get a lot of interesting answers."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: The storm centre that gave heavy rains to parts of southern Ontario over the weekend continues to plague our weather pattern. It now is over western lower Michigan and is expected to drift slowly eastward to Georgian Bay during the next 36 hours. This will result in generally cool rather cloudy and unsettled weather for most of the province. Showers are currently over Michigan are expected to spread into central and southern Ontario today. It appears likely that there will be only a slight improvement in Wednesday's weather.

Mutilated Bodies in Mississippi Not Those of Civil Rights Workers

TALLULAH, La. (AP)—Two partial bodies pulled from a river near Tallulah have been identified tentatively as two Negroes missing from Meadville, Miss., since mid-May.

The disclosure by police sources in Jackson, Miss., where both remains were taken, discredited earlier speculation that the first mutilated body found Sunday might be one of the three civil rights workers who vanished in Mississippi June 21.

The sources said there were indications that the second body may be that of Henry Dees of Meadville who disappeared about two months ago. They said the mutilated condition of the bodies — only the lower halves were found — made it virtually impossible to identify them and that identification would be based almost solely on articles found on the bodies.

Efforts found on the first body were traced to Charles Moore, a Meadville, Miss., negro whose family said he had left home on May 20 to go to Louisiana to seek work.

Elsewhere, court decisions spurred plans for school integration, and fire bombs and arson

Students Being Helped

OTTAWA (CP)—Debate opens in the Commons today on a government bill to guarantee bank loans totalling up to $40,000,000 annually for promising but needy university students. Quick passage is expected.

The measure was given first reading without debate Monday. Later, MPs passed resolutions leading to the introduction of two more government bills as they continued their drive to take a summer recess by the end of the month.

Gilles Gregoire, Creditiste House leader, indicated his 12-man group will oppose the loans measure on the grounds it invades provincial jurisdiction over education.

Most of Monday's sitting was taken up with a measure to give the provinces an extra $97,500,000 in tax equalization grants plus an additional four per cent of personal income taxes collected within their respective borders.

The Conservatives expressed a variety of views on federal-provincial relations in the second day of debate on the preliminary resolution, which passed shortly before adjournment.

URGE CONFERENCE

Paul Martineau (Pontiac-Temiscamingue) and Heward Grafftey (Brome - Missisquoi) called for an all-party federal-provincial conference to amend the constitution and decentralize government powers. Provinces needed more autonomy.

Terry Nugent (Edmonton Strathcona) said the government encourages the fragmentation of the country when it permits provinces to opt out of the federal plans and compensates them with larger tax fields. Ottawa should not surrender to the provinces.

Finance Minister Gordon said the Conservatives' proposal for an all-party national conference on federal-provincial relations is "rather woolly idea."

Such a conference would be doomed to failure from the start. There would be too many speeches and too few concrete decisions. Federal - provincial committees now being formed would achieve more.

The third bill introduced Monday provides for the appointment of seven additional judges.

Montreal Gets Lion's Share of Defence Contracts

OTTAWA (CP)—The Montreal area alone gets about half of all the main Canadian defence contracts for aircraft, electronics, instruments and shipbuilding, the defence production department has disclosed.

In a special study prepared for the Commons defence committee, the department says that recently, for the first time, data on regional allocation of defence expenditures in four major industries has been tabulated.

The heavily industrialized complexes of Greater Montreal and southern Ontario account for most of the business received. This business involves only prime contracts and does not take into account subsequent transfers of business between areas by subcontracting for materials and parts.

In 1960-61, total expenditures in the four major industries—aircraft and parts, electronics, instruments and shipbuilding—amounted to $277,000,000.

Of this amount, nearly $144,000,000 or more than half went Beauty Pageant 'Like a Prison,' Miss Scotland Rescued by Beau

NEW YORK (AP) — Miss Scotland, 19-year-old Doreen Swan of Glasgow, has quit the Miss Universe beauty pageant, contending it was "like a prison in that I have not a nervous breakdown."

A spokesman for the Pageant, however, denied her charges and said the problem was a boy friend who flew here and said he wanted to take her home and marry her.

Miss Swan complained "it was like a farce from beginning to end" and asserted:

"I was kept a virtual prisoner. My telephone was bugged, my letters intercepted. I was subjected to photographing from dawn until ten time. And the food I got was mostly salads."

She claimed these rigors had caused her to lose 12 pounds.

The pageant spokesman, Herbert Landon, said she walked out Saturday and had been legally released at her own request and with the permission of her parents.

The boy friend, J. Watt Nicoll, a dog beautician and publicist, said he came to New York "to rescue her when she told me by transatlantic telephone she was very unhappy, couldn't eat or sleep and wished she'd never come here."

The pageant spokesman described Miss Swan's charges as inaccurate or entirely false.

"We are running a responsible pageant with responsible commercial sponsorship," Landon said. "Naturally, our interest is the protection of these beautiful girls. They are fully chaperoned and we naturally screen any contacts with them for their own protection."

Among this year's Miss Universe competitors is Mary Lou Farrell of St. John's, Nfld., Miss Dominion of Canada, who is in New York as a guest of the world's fair committee. She will go on to Miami Beach for the Miss Universe contest.

Printers Reject Proposals

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators for the three Toronto daily newspapers and their striking printers met under Ontario Labor Department auspices today following the union's denunciation Monday night of proposals by the newspapers.

The union and company representatives were brought together at 10 a.m. EDT by Labor Minister H. L. Rowntree in the minister's office Louis Fine, chief government conciliator, was to attempt the strike settlement.

Robert McCormack, president of Local 91 of the International Typographical Union (CLC) said as he entered the meeting: "We always hope for success."

His words were echoed almost exactly by Burnett M. Thall, vice - president of the Daily Star, one of the papers that has been publishing since 880 ITU members walked out last Thursday. The ITU called the situation a lockout.

The papers—the others are the morning Globe and Mail and the afternoon Telegram—met at a series of meetings Monday offered the union a lifetime guarantee for present employees against unemployment caused by automation.

In return the publishers asked for the elimination of "featherbedding" and the removal of foremen and assistant foremen from the union's jurisdiction.

The publishers sought to eliminate reproduction of advertisements received in prepared form from other sources. Film type is later destroyed without being used.

The newspapers have contended publication since the walkout began Thursday.

BLASTS PROPOSALS

Mr. McCormack said the proposals were "tantamount to a declaration of war on the Toronto typographical union and cannot be construed as anything other than a union-busting campaign."

The developments apparently signalled the collapse of talks which began Monday morning in an attempt to end the five-day strike of 880 ITU printers at the three newspapers—the morning Globe and Mail, and The Telegram and The Star, evening papers.

The publishers said in a writ-

Scranton To Test Platform On Convention Floor

Goldwater Seen to Win Nomination in Breeze

By HAROLD MORRISON

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—William Scranton's campaign for the Republican presidential nomination has virtually crumbled. But the spunky Pennsylvania governor won't give up, hoping somehow to turn the tide through a heated convention floor debate over political extremism, control over nuclear weapons and civil rights.

Meanwhile, Arizona Senator Barry Goldwater continues to amass delegate voting strength as state after state reassesses positions to climb on the rolling Goldwater victory bandwagon. With 655 of the 1,308 votes needed for victory, Goldwater claimed more than 800 first-ballot pledges. Aside from the Scranton camp, political pundits and surveys indicated he is a sure winner.

That still leaves the question of what kind of platform the party will adopt. Goldwater has refused to denounce the extremist John Birch Society which supports him. He has spoken of the need of turning over small nuclear weapons control to the North Atlantic supreme commander and he voted against the new civil rights law.

The Scranton forces, delivering a minority report on the proposed platform, will attempt during a special floor debate today to crack Goldwater's armor on all three points.

They filed three major amendments to the platform, which was written by a committee under firm control of Goldwater sympathizers. They will try to force votes on these late today when the statement of party positions comes before the delegates.

DELEGATES RELEASED

The latest Associated Press compilation credits Goldwater with 781 votes if they stick with him, including 43 he grabbed up Monday when Ohio delegates were released by Governor James A. Rhodes to vote for the man of their choice on the initial ballot.

If there was any chance that Goldwater could be stampeded on to share the ticket with him, it apparently disappeared finally when the Pennsylvania governor said Monday night that he did not write a bitterly critical letter forwarded under his signature to Goldwater Sunday night. Scranton assumed the responsibility for it.

It was generally understood in the Scranton camp that his choice for vice-presidential running mate was Rep. William E. Miller, New York Republican, who heads the Republican national committee. But there was reservation that if Republican president Eisenhower should request it, some support to Governor Rockefeller of New York.

Outside the agricultural column, the convention site six miles south of San Francisco,

Strike by Pressmen Closes Down Both of Detroit's Daily Papers

DETROIT (AP)—A strike by members of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union and the Plate Casters, Paper - Handlers Union today halted publication of both Detroit daily newspapers.

Pressmen's Local 13 and Paperhandlers Local 10 went on strike at the morning Detroit Free Press and the evening Detroit News Monday in a wage contract dispute.

Lawrence A. Wallace, secretary - treasurer of the Detroit Publishers Association which represents both papers in contract negotiations with unions, said no further negotiations were scheduled.

The Detroit News made its regular edition schedule Monday before union members went on strike at 6 p.m. EDT.

The Free Press did not publish its regular Tuesday edition.

Pressmen and platehandler pickets marched in front of both The News and Free Press buildings. Both have television stations WWJ AM - FM and WWJ-TV at the strike deadline.

WWJ AM-FM and WWJ-TV are owned by the Evening News Association, publishers of The News.

Spokesmen for the radio and television stations said the strike would not interfere immediately with regular program activities.

The pressmen and paperhandlers' union are the only craft unions without a contract at The News and Free Press.

The average weekly wage for members of both unions currently is $3.74 for 37½ - hour daytime work week and $4.05 for a 35-hour night-time work week.

Both unions voted to strike Sunday unless the publishers made a new contract offer. No new offer was made.

7 Killed In Crash At Morrisburg

MORRISBURG, Ont. (CP)— Seven persons, including four Americans and an Israeli woman, were killed Monday when two cars crashed during a blinding rainstorm on a two-lane section of Highway 401 about 50 miles southeast of Ottawa.

Only three persons survived the accident and all were reported in "fair" condition today with leg and arm fractures and head injuries.

Moe Amsel, 44, his wife, Catherine, 45, their son Kenneth, 19, all of Bethpage, N.Y., and Gitla Hendlish, 58, of Tel Aviv, Israel, died in one car.

Jacob Swerdfeger, 40-year-old gatekeeper at the St. Lawrence Seaway Iroquois Lock, his 38-year-old wife Zena, of Ingleside, Ont., and a relative, Le-

Doctor Fined For Failure to Inform Coroner

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto surgeon Bernard A. Brown was found guilty today of violating the Ontario's Coroner's Act in failing to notify the coroner of patient Patricia Morgan, 32, to a coroner last fall.

Magistrate James Butler imposed a fine of $300 plus costs, with the alternative of 60 days in jail, on the 43-year-old doctor. Maximum sentence possible under the charge is $500 or six months.

Five other charges against Dr. Brown under the Coroner's Act were withdrawn by the court. The specific charge on which Dr. Brown was convicted was failing to notify a coroner of the death in circumstances such as may require an investigation.

Magistrate Butler said the evidence showed that in the case of Patricia Morgan such circumstances existed "and the doctor was aware of such circumstances."

PHYSICIAN'S DUTY

"It was plainly the duty of the attending physician to notify the coroner, he said.

"The court realizes that those involved in the case are citizens of good repute and high professional standings," the magistrate said, but gymnastics with the accused but it cannot alter the duties of justice to become unbalanced by emotions."

Tons of Mail Piling Up As London Postmen Strike

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Several big cities there are four to six deliveries a day.

But because of Saturday service the "good ole" British tend to use it more than most other people. They are inveterate note writers.

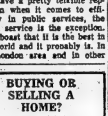
Only one in five of Britain's 130 000 postmen and sorters jumped the gun by joining the unofficial strike Friday, but by Monday morning an estimated 7,000,000 letters and 300,000 parcels were piled up in post offices in London alone.

To help the situation, Bevins has imposed a ban on all parcel post in and out of London and ordered that all second-class mail—bills, receipts and the like in unsealed envelopes and circulars and advertisements — be left behind while workers concentrate on first-class mail.

Looking forward to the end of the postal strike Thursday, one union official said: "There will be chaos by Thursday and absolute chaos on Friday."

Under the go slow, the postmen work strictly according to the book, taking no short-cuts, observing no time-saving methods and refusing to work overtime.

Parking Lot Attendant Fails To Catch Bandit



TORONTO (CP) — William Lee, 43, a Toronto parking lot attendant, failed Monday in an attempt to add an armed bank robber to a list of three bandits he has helped capture in recent years.

Mr. Yee pursued a man who robbed a branch of the Toronto Dominion Bank of about $1,400 near party time. He was joined in the chase by Harry McKenzie, 25, a cashier at the parking lot.

The two chased the man about a block until he turned and threatened them with his gun. The bandit then made an unsuccessful attempt to steal a nearby automobile by forcing the gun into the owner's side.

Unable to start the car, the robber jumped out and ran into a downtown department store with the two parking lot attendants still in pursuit. He lost the pair when he crossed a street into another store.

Heavy Bail Set for Four Men in Custody

Cash bail of $5,000 each was set for four men arrested by city police last weekend—three for alleged burglary, knife, fourth, for a break-in.

Two of the accused openly protested the bail requested by assistant crown attorney Tom Lally.

Thomas Edward Deline, 35, was arrested Friday night after police chased him when officers disturbed an alleged break-in at the Canadian General Electric warehouse on Harriet St. east.

Mr. Lally asking the $5,000 bond, pointed out Deline had just been released on bail on an assault charge hours previously.

"I don't see where that's got anything to do with it," interjected Deline.

"You don't — but I do," retorted Magistrate T. F. Wills.

He agreed to accept suitable property bail when Deline said his parents would put up their West Hastings farm.

Charged with possession of safe - breaking implements were Bernard James Michael, 25; Raymond Wood, 43, and Robert Mordin, 33.

"I think that's a little high for only a workingman," Michael commented when he heard the bail requested for him.

Mondeville also unsuccessfully sought a lower $5,000 bailed.

The magistrate said he was "inclined to agree" with Mr. Lally's request and remanded all four men to July 21st.

Union Assails Republicans Over Printing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Republican national convention printing contract was pilloried Monday by the International Typographical Union, involved in a nine-month strike of major San Francisco commercial printing shops.

About 1,200 ITU pickets demonstrated at the Hilton Hotel in protest of what they said was the Republican party's "deliberate choice" of plants using strikebreakers to print convention material.

The Graphic Arts' Employers Association, representing the printing firms, has said that the strike is a bid by the ITU to take over shops now held by the printing shops by four other unions — the printing pressmen, lithographers, photoengravers and stereotypers.

The ITU contends the strike involves only demands for higher wages and improved working conditions.

A National Labor Relations Board official, after a hearing requested by the employers association, labelled the ITU guilty of unfair labor practices. The union said it will appeal.

Milt Loomis, a director of the ITU strike, called the use of the strikebreakers by the Republicans incredible and a threat "to undermine centuries of progress."

Obituaries

WILLIAM GRILLS
Thomasburg

There passed away on Saturday, July 4th, at the Belleville General Hospital, William Grills, who suffered a stroke in February and has been ill ever since, in his 78th year.

William Grills was born at Thomasburg, the son of the late Lewis Grills and Eliza Jane Carleton, and spent most of his life in this area. He was a member of Thomasburg United Church.

Surviving Mr. Grills are his wife, the former Margaret Jane Elliott; three sons, Milton of Frankford; Melville of Harold, Laurier of Tweed, and two daughters, Mrs. Stuart White (Marion) of Demorestville, and Mrs. Gordon Countryman (Laura) of Tweed.

Predeceased was a brother Albert, and a sister Carrie (Mrs. Will Morton.)

The funeral was held on Tuesday, July 7th, in the chapel of the W. M. Bush Funeral Home, conducted by A. B. Smith, minister of Thomasburg United Church.

During the service, Mr. Bruce Martin and Mrs. Smith sang "God Understands," accompanied by Mrs. Douglas Farrell, of Moira.

Interment was in Thomasburg cemetery.

Bearers were: Joe Kellar, David Thompson, Cecil Geen, Tom Wolfe, Leslie Adams and Roy Johnston.

MILTON HAGERMAN
R.R. 2, Stirling

RAWDON — The funeral of Milton James Hagerman was held on Saturday, July 11th, in St. Paul's United Church, with the Rev. F. J. Stonerson officiating.

A vocal duet was contributed by Mrs. Harry Waite and Harry Brown.

The bearers were all nephews: Messrs. George Haggerty, Jim Hagerman, Everett Lake, Clarence Hagerman, Gordon Gay and Wesley Lake.

Interment was made in Stirling cemetery.

On Thursday evening at the Duffin Funeral Home, Stirling, an L.O.L. memorial service was held.

Bureau Officer Of Legion to Visit City

Attention of all veterans, ex-service men and women, and dependents is drawn to the visit of Mr. Ian Urquhart, of Ottawa, Service Bureau officer for the Royal Canadian Legion, on Tuesday, July 21, 1964.

Mr. Urquhart will be at Branch 99, 122 Pinnacle Street, Belleville from 1.00 p.m. to 6.00 p.m. on that date.

Anyone wishing information advice or assistance, regarding War Disability Pensions, Treatment, Allowances, etc., is requested to contact the local branch of the Legion, WO 8-9033 to arrange an interview. Ask for Mrs. Lawton, our Legion steward who will arrange a time.

Zoning Change Being Asked in Fahey Extension

A zoning change which would permit almost any type of residential construction is being asked for in the Fahey extension area north of College Street.

A public hearing on the request is being held Thursday evening by the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board. The hearing will get underway at the city hall council chambers at 7:30 and submissions both for and against the request will be invited.

The specific request is for a change to RM-3 residential construction which would allow multi - level apartments of 11 suites or more.

The change, if granted, would allow a much greater density of population in the area than presently under the present zoning.

The area for which the zoning change is asked comprises 2.6 acres, bounded on the East by the Fahey Street projection north of College and on the west by Jackson Street.

Despite Polls Goldwater Wields Powerful Influence Over Workers

By HAROLD MORRISON

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—One of the most fascinating aspects of the Republican convention is to watch the strange, almost hypnotic power Barry Goldwater wields over his many supporters.

National opinion polls maintain he is relatively unpopular; Negroes say they won't vote for him; organized labor fears he is a union-buster; peace organizations believe he would lead the U.S. into nuclear war. But there is a lot to his power.

As the likely Republican presidential candidate, he may not beat President Lyndon B. Johnson next Nov. 3 but he may make a significant showing at the polls.

The bespectacled, white-haired Arizona senator has a tight, efficient organization. He appears to have substantial campaign funds. He has virtually the solid support of five of the northeastern states—the political financial backers—saying the financial centre is moving westward.

WANT LESS WELFARE

And those with money in the West and South appear to include many who are disturbed over the growth of central government in Washington. They want to retain more of their profits; they want to see less welfare.

Talk to delegates, to the spectators at this convention and you find that Goldwater support includes highly - respected businessmen and community leaders. They are bankers and lawyers, doctors and farmers, nurses and engineers, housewives and pensioners.

They believe Goldwater will protect them against the overwhelming power of government; against the possibility of socialized medicine; against the increased infiltration of Negroes in white communities.

They maintain Goldwater speaks for freedom for healthy, rugged individuality; for victory against Communists and socialists.

On the basis of what can be seen at this convention, Goldwater may draw substantial strength among the whites of the Deep South; among the white suburbs of the North; of some of the professional civil-law groups and among professional military men who may feel bemused in by the civilian control of the national over command in the field.

3 Americans Die in Ambush By Viet Cong

SAIGON (AP) — Three more U.S. Army officers—a major and two captains—and 16 South Vietnamese rangers were killed in the far north Communist ambush on a highway notorious for such attacks.

A U.S. soldier and 21 government troops were wounded in the rain of heavy-weapons fire that the Viet Cong guerrillas poured into the 16-vehicle convoy 45 miles north of Saigon. There was no indication of Communist casualties.

The ambush occurred on bloody Route 13, which connects Saigon with the Cambodian border 80 miles to the north. Five other Americans have been killed in ambushes on this road in the last two years.

The deaths Monday brought the total of U.S. military men killed in action in South Viet Nam since December, 1961, to 197.

Change Phones Here to All Number Calling

Telephones in the Belleville district will gradually be converted to All Number Calling (A.N.C.) in the next six months.

As the name suggests, these are simply "all number" telephone numbers, a new way of expressing exchange numbers. Instead of the letters with the corresponding figures on the dial, all figures will be used in number. For example, WO 2-1234 becomes 962-1234. (WO is 9 and 6 on the dial).

Going ANC will be a gradual process. Bell Telephone employees will begin distributing the "new look" telephone numbers to Belleville subscribers, in the fall. Information operators will change their master directories to ANC and the 1968 Belleville and district telephone book will list all numbers the ANC way.

Donald Curry, local Bell Telephone manager, points out that ANC is a necessity brought on by the increase in telephones since World War II. For almost the first time, telephone growth does not mean more digits to dial. ANC, he said, provides the most telephone numbers in the least change and inconvenience to customers.

In addition to providing more telephone numbers, ANC eliminates the confusion between the letter "O" and "zero" and between the letter "I" and the figure "1" and resulting errors that have plagued dial service since it began, Mr. Curry says. Other common errors, caused by upsetting the telephone dial's circular finger-stop mechanism, are relegated to history.

There is still another advantage to ANC and one that will facilitate world wide dialing in the future; alphabet and letter arrangements on dials vary widely, but numbers form an internationally common language. Even today, 43 million dial telephones in 100 foreign countries use All Number Calling phone numbers.

Kenyas Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta called for African majority rule for Southern Rhodesia before that country gets independence. He said Southern Rhodesia is a British responsibility and majority rule is a British responsibility. He said that majority rule is implied in the colony's constitution.

Britain pledged that independence will be withheld from Southern Rhodesia until majority African rule is assured there.

But conference officials reported that Commonwealth Relations Secretary Duncan Sandys also insisted Britain must remain sole judge of just what and how the objective of Rhodesian independence can be achieved.

The British undertaking did not altogether satisfy African and Asian government chiefs who have been pressing for a categorical commitment binding Britain to act swiftly for a settlement.

Rotarians Hear Address by Fellow Member

Belleville Rotarians met yesterday at noon in the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte.

The guest speaker for the meeting was Bob Fitts of British American Oil. He was introduced by John Liggett.

Fitts spoke to the fellow Rotarians on "Market Management". He emphasized that today's front runner is the man who distinguish between whether he is product or customer orientated.

"The trend today," he said, "is to customer orientation. No longer can the producer divorce himself from the customer. He must be aware of all customer trends and gear his production to meet them."

Fitts also stressed the importance of profit-sharing programs and accessibility to management. The latter he said is most important for co-operation and progress in modern industry.

Fitts was thanked by president Stan Reston on the motion of past-president Virgil James.

Senior Citizens Will Travel to Cobourg Beach

Members of the Belleville Senior Citizens Club, about 75 strong, will travel to Cobourg Beach on Wednesday for the annual East-Central Ontario picnic. Senior citizens from Kingston to Oshawa will attend the event.

The Belleville group will leave by two buses from the recreation centre at 9.00 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The Cobourg picnic is a much looked forward to event for local members.

Will Divert Traffic on Bridge St. East

With sidewalk and curb repairs underway for the past week or so, paving operations on Bridge Street East, from Pinnacle to Ann, are expected to get underway this week.

The H. J. McFarland Construction Company will do the paving.

During the four days which paving will be underway, traffic will be diverted during the day.

For the past two weeks, children from the Trenton - Brighton and District School for the Retarded have been attending the summer playground in Hanna Park. The children have sometimes joined in the fun with other children who attend the recreation playground . . . sometimes enjoying quiet handiwork with their teacher, Mrs. Irma Plunkett.

Kenneth Couch Appointed to Head Board

TRENTON — Mayor James MacDonald announced yesterday that ex-Mayor Kenneth Couch had been appointed to head up a Waterfront Park Developments Committee, and will spearhead Trenton's Centennial Year project. Further appointments to the committee will be made in the near future.

Mayor MacDonald last night outlined council's plan for the waterfront park, to be located on the site of the former sanitary landfill area, for the members of the Trenton Rotary Club. The mayor illustrated his remarks with a revised plan of the proposed park, which would include softball and hardball diamonds, tennis courts, a swimming pool, a bowling green and other recreational facilities. Mayor MacDonald said that service clubs and other town groups could undertake one or more projects and their project, or projects, could bear the name of the club.

Rotarians, under the leadership of the 1964 president, Ken Hutchinson, have been casting around for a Centennial project. Suggestions have been advanced that the club contribute to a swimming pool for the high school; erecting a YMCA or a Boys' Youth Centre; developing Mount Pelion as a historical park; erecting a bandshell in a town park.

One Rotarian, R. J. "Dick" Whitley, steering clear of grandiose, has suggested the building of wading pools, one for each side of the river; Robert Smithfield wants tennis courts; Eben James is reported to have hinted at donating bayshore land for a swimming pool; Clifford Baker has suggested erecting a memorial cairn on Mount Pelion; and there is a bandstand there; Michael Andison would like the club to take over the soon-to-be abandoned post office for a Rotary Youth Centre and T. J. Belcheson, chairman of the Trenton school board, is holding out for a sizeable club donation towards the cost of installing a swimming pool in the high school.

The new Parks' Board building in Trenton Bayshore Park Extension will hold equipment, such as lawn mowers, but looks like a swank tourist cabin.

Negotiations Appear to Be At an Impasse

TRENTON — Negotiations between the members of town council and the Trenton Police Commission, regarding the implementation of a 40-hour week for the Trenton Police Department, appear to be at an impasse.

Council has asked the department to go on a 40-hour week, using the 18 men now on the force.

The police commission says the 40-hour week can't be put into force unless more men are hired.

Council voted last week to cut off all overtime pay for any of the men who work more than the 40 hours, and the cut-off date was July 4.

However, the commission has yet to authorize the men to cut their work week by two hours.

A closed meeting last Thursday between town council and a member of the Ontario Police Commission, Magistrate Thomas Graham, was, according to Mayor James MacDonald, nothing more than a "re-hash" of details of the dispute between council and the local commission, and resulted in no lasting settlement of the issues.

It is anticipated that the issues will be brought up again at next Monday night's council meeting . . . and what council's next move will be is anyone's guess.

Will Witness Sail Past At New York

TRENTON — A trio of Trenton sailing enthusiasts and their sons, left Trenton Sunday for New York City where they will witness a sail past of sailing vessels off the coast, today.

Dr. W. A. L. McDonald and his son, Donald, Grant Rathbun and his son, Roger, and Rev. J. T. Irwin and his son, William, will be part of the crowd on the waterfront, watching the four masters and other types of seagoing schooners in the regatta, among which is the smallest ship in the show, the St. Lawrence from Kingston.

USES HORN FOR WHISTLE

Trumpeter "Nick" Fraser, one of the star performers with the Trenton Citizens' Band, put his instrument to good use last week. On his first trip out with his boat, Nick found his boat horn missing. Undaunted, he proceeded to "toodle" his way along the watercourse, giving drawbridgemasters a blast on his trumpet as a signal. He isn't sure what tune he played . . . but is reasonably sure he steered clear of such numbers as "London Bridge is Falling Down," and "Jericho."

Friday, July 17, is moving day for the Bell Telephone business office in Belleville.

Local manager Don Curry says his offices are overflowing present premises on Bridge St. and will settle into more spacious quarters at 257 Pinnacle St., closer to the downtown area.

The new business location will include a payment office. However Mr. Curry pointed out telephone accounts can still be settled at payment agencies in town.

The empty offices on Bridge St. will be taken over by other expanding departments of the local Bell operation.

Students

There would be three more for Quebec, two for Ontario and one for Alberta and British Columbia.

OTTAWA (CP) A government bill setting up a system of guaranteed bank loans for university students who need financial aid was introduced in the Commons Monday.

It will provide up to $1,000 a year for students who can produce a provincial "certificate of eligibility" showing that they have a satisfactory scholastic standard and are in need of a loan to continue their studies.

The federal government will pay all interest on the loan during the time the student attends university, and for six months later. Following this period, the student will take over the loan repayment himself, paying off the principal and interest in between five and 10 years.

A $5,000 limit is placed on the total value of loans a student may obtain during his university years. Interest rates will be established by the federal cabinet.

One section of the bill stipulates that the loans will be irrevocable by the banks although the borrower had been of the legal age of 21 when the loan was made. Under present law, there can be no such claim against a person who acquired a debt while under 21.

The preliminary resolution was introduced without the usual debate and the bill obtained speedy first reading. All parties had agreed to hold off debate until the second-reading stage, expected later this week. SETS TYPAL

The bill provides for total loans of $40,000,000 in any one year, apportioned among the provinces according to their share of the population aged 18-25. Any province that wants to run its own plan will get comparable payments to the same basis.

Students qualifying must be Canadian citizens or landed residents for at least one year and the satisfaction they will reside in Canada after graduation. No age limits are mentioned.

The government will pay off the loan, plus accrued interest, in the case of a student who dies at any time in the loan or repayment period.

The $40,000,000 annual ceiling on loan amounts will be increased in relation to increases in the population aged 18-25. This will be determined by the Dominion statistician.

Loans will be arranged at the chartered banks by the individual students. The "certificate of eligibility" will be issued by authorities designated by each province.

Community Gardens Will Be Improved by Special Grant

TRENTON—On the strength of a $7,000 grant from the Town of Trenton, the Community Gardens' Commission is about to embark on a system of "progressive" repair, maintenance and improvement to the arena, commission chairman Daniel Senik said today.

"With the prospect of a firm grant, we can now see to it that needed repairs don't reach the point where they cost us a lot of money," Mr. Senik told a reporter. Mr. Senik said council's decision to give the $7,000 grant to the gardens' board was the realization of a heartfelt wish of his own. Chairman of the board for a number of years until this year, Mr. Senik was asked to step into the breach created when the 1964 chairman, Robert Allore, resigned, because of a transfer to Montreal in his job. Two thousand of the grant will be used to reduce capital expenditures debts incurred through building new dressing rooms in the arena. $5,000 will be used towards operating expenses.

At a meeting of the commission last night, arena manager Ronald Thornton was given a new title, "secretary-manager."

Councillor C. V. Graham was named vice-chairman for the third year in a row; Councillor Edward Todd was appointed chairman of maintenance for buildings and grounds and of skate bar operations; Jack Goldberg was made snack bar director; Louis Schmitt was named in charge of personnel; Carl Weese will continue as rentals and contracts chairman, assisted by Councillor Graham and Phil. E. J. Alto. RCAF appointee to the board.

SPECIAL BOARD

Councillor Graham was also appointed chairman of a special budget committee, on which all members of the board will sit. The committee will spend the next week and a half considering budget requests for repairs, improvements, projects, etc. brought down by the secretary-manager.

Two items to be considered are recommendations from town engineer Eric Alderey that cracks in the interior and on the exterior of the building be cleaned out and refilled with cement; what can be done about the intake pipe in the river to ensure the free passage of river water for ice operations. Water, from the beginning of the freeze-up season in 1963 to April of this year, cost the commission $700 because town water had to be used for the most part. River water would be free . . . but equipment to bring it into the gardens might be costly.

Mr. Senik pointed out today that with the town paying off around $7,900 a year on the $75,000 debenture debt against the Gardens, plus the recent grant of $7,000, the Gardens, was in effect, costing the ratepayers one mill, (around $14,900). In community services, the Trenton Minor Hockey League is given ice time at half price; figure skating is subsidized to some extent and free skating is provided at scheduled times in the skating season. Special agents, sponsored by the town, are also subsidized, and the arena board room is made available to some groups at no charge.

Search-Rescue Unit Hunts for Missing Plane

TRENTON — An Albatross search - rescue aircraft today joined the hunt for a light civilian plane with two aboard missing on a flight to Massachusetts since Sunday.

The plane will sweep a region between Windsor and Chatham and the southwest area of Lake Erie. The RCAF plane joins 21 aircraft of the U.S. civil air patrol searching south of the border.

Aboard the missing plane are Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Simons, Cobourg, Ont.

They are en route from Reno, Nevada.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

COMMITTEE ON AGING

Appointed to study and review the circumstances of the aged and consider all relevant subjects which may be of concern in Ontario.

Private individuals and organizations interested in these matters are invited to appear before the Committee or to present written briefs.

The Committee also wishes to hear from elderly men and women who have aged successfully, since one aim is the promotion of opportunities for self-help to the satisfaction and advantage of the Province's older citizens.

The men and women whose achievements and problems are of concern to the Committee will generally be aged 65 years or over. But the Committee recognizes at the outset that no single birthday anniversary can cover all individual differences or abilities, and that aging is dynamic—of life-long significance.

For detailed terms of reference and dates and places for making representations, please write: Room 3527, Parliament Buildings, Toronto 5, Ontario.

Bacon Camouflage Again

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh has promised the House of Commons that bacon packaging will be carefully reviewed.

Ho, hum!

The music goes down and around—

A few years ago the Consumers' Association of Canada was on the same warpath. It was crusading against those red-striped cellophane packages, which made all bacon look as if the fat and the lean had been laid on the hog in mathematically even strips.

The red-striped cellophane was banned, so the packing houses stacked bacon in tiers, producing precisely the same effect.

The more things change, the more they are the same.

Now the Consumers' Association wants a law "to allow buyers to see at least one full slice at the time of purchase."

Sounds full-proof. But we would not bet on it.

Incidentally, there is a simple and a money-saving solution. All one has to do is to like bacon, fat or lean, thick or thin. Then buy sea-soning bacon. At 25 cents a pound. Of course, this is a bit of a speculation. Sometimes one finds one has bought thick hunks of fat. But, and just as often, one runs across packages of thin, lean strips, the only drawback being that they are tangled. As—25 cents a pound one can afford to untie a few knots in those rashers. Incidentally, there is very little difference between seasoning bacon, at 25 cents a pound, and "bacon ends," at double the price.

The Enthusiast

Orchids are in order for Jerome Fischer.

This Winnipeg elementary school teacher allows his pupils to talk whenever they want to do so. He wants them to express their thoughts, not merely to learn facts. He, sometimes, argues with his students, to get them started on discussions.

As a result, his students display a lively interest in science and in art.

Mr. Fischer says he hates to see children taught through stereotyped, regimented curricula.

One teacher like this is worth a dozen who plod through the year's work without even attempting to arouse the enthusiasm of their students.

That is not to say that encouraging students to talk when they want to do so should be the standard practice. Many teachers do not have the personality to make this system work. If they attempted it, the result would be stereotyped, regimented.

But for Mr. Fischer, surrounded by his students' snakes and paint-blowing straws, the system is right and a living proof that, no matter how efficiently "teaching machines" may take over the work of the teacher who is there to instruct, they can never replace a teacher who aims to enthuse.

Welfare Spending

The Financial Post, recently brought out some startling facts about Canada's rapid march along the road to "welfarism."

"The hard truth is," the paper notes, "that Canada right now allocates a bigger slice of national income to welfare than its chief trading partners do. The widening of social security with pensions and medicare would make the disparity substantially greater.

"We devote 12 percent of personal income to welfare as against 8 percent in Britain and 7 percent in the United States. We now spend through our governments twice as large a proportion of national income on welfare as we did 15 years ago," the paper points out.

It seems high time that Canadian voters, and their elected representatives, spend a little more time figuring out what the country and its economy can afford by way of welfare benefits and, indeed, how those already instituted are to be paid for.

In those long and rambling conversations which Russians still love above all else, you will find that religion and the ultimate meaning of life play an overwhelming part. The bells may be silent. In the vast-Moslem areas of the Soviet Union the muezzin no longer shrills out calling the faithful to prayer. But religion is certainly not moribund.—Alexander Lieven, a Russian writer living in Britain.

Real Power in Government Is Civil Service, Not Parliament

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Members of Parliament — especially the freshmen MPs climbing the high and truly windy hill for the first time — don't take long to learn that the House of Commons does no more than share power with the Federal Civil Service in running the country.

The disillusioned freshman MP often suspects that the division of power has been pretty uneven, with the Bureaucracy seeming to have more actual power than Parliament.

The First-Time MP knows for sure that he has mighty little to say about the way things are run.

And if he tries to speak up, he may or may not be shocked to discover that almost nobody is listening, much less paying any attention.

After a few years, the veteran MP becomes reconciled to the Hard-Facts-of-Political-Life as it has long been lived in the Federal Capital, that regardless of how governments may rise and fall, the real power of day-to-day administrative decision — on remaining with the Bureaucrats.

They know that no matter for whom you may vote, with this party or against that you can't really ever actually get at the government.

For, uncaring of who wins or loses, the senior Civil Service goes serenely on.

JUST A BOTHER:

The MP - Who - Has - Been - Around knows, too, that the top Civil Service, the real professionals among the Administration men, fundamentally have the attitude that Parliament is little more than a nuisance. These "experts" in the MPs feel that perhaps the most useful thing they could do would be to go home and let them run things out of the country to Those-Who-Know-Best.

The really wise MP is the one who comes to realize that about the only way he can actually get at the "real power under government" of the senior Bureaucracy is to ask questions about them in Parliament.

If there's anything a Civil Servant, junior clerk or senior Deputy Minister hates more than an fears, it is to become the centre of questioning attention in the Commons.

It makes them acutely uncomfortable, because they suspect, often correctly, that the top Civil Service, not Cabinet Minister, if it bothers their minister, it just might irritate the prime minister. And that spells trouble.

If the Backbench MP of all parties — including the one in power — historically have somehow come to realize that the real power rests in the Big Bureaucracy, a great many of them now accept this suspicion as fact.

The Conservative in particular regard with such election as a take-over of Government by the Civil Service, nothing short of a bureaucratic coup d'etat.

Isn't the prime minister, the Federal power source, himself a former Civil Servant? And haven't five of the top men in his Cabinet — Trade Minister Sharp, Justice Minister Favreau, State Secretary Lamontagne, Industries Minister Drury and Transport Minister Pickersgill, all got Civil Service backgrounds, four of them as all-powerful Deputies?

YOU DO IT BUSTER

No need now, they say, for the Civil Service to "capture" the Government when they're clearly one and the same.

No longer necessary for an aggressive Bureaucracy Deputy to take his Minister in tow when they're both on the same political team, they say.

Grant Deachman, the freshman Liberal MP phrase-maker from Vancouver South, always that strong Deputies can and do make slaves of weak Ministers.

Deachman is the MP who lesped from Backbench obscurity to news-page attention with his crack that Transport Minister "Jolly Jawn" Pickersgill is the kind of hard political character who will knit cozy stove if you give him some steel wire.

Well, the Vancouver freshman has a formula for separating the Men from the Boys among his party's Cabinet Ministers.

Find out, he says, how they handled their congratulatory mail.

Those who obediently attended to it themselves because their Deputies conned them into believing that only they themselves would know how to reply to old friends Tom, Dick and Harry, who wrote and wired congratulations — these, pal-ies are the slaves, the Boys of the Cabinet.

Those who told their deputies to prepare a brief half-page memo on how to handle the mail then go ahead and handle it while they went out and shot a round of golf — these are the free Men of the Cabinet.

Deachman also has a neat description of Prime Minister Pearson: "He has an amazing survival potential in this accident-prone Government." But political luck drops him like a cat out of the window—and he lands on his feet."

The Money Nobody Wants

St. John Telegraph-Journal

Were a two-dollar bill under an average Canadian's nose and he is so quick to snap it up as a ladybug captures a gnat. Try the same thing on an American — and nothing may happen. Not that americans don't like money; they just don't like $2 bills.

Mrs. Kathryn O'Hay Granahan is fighting a losing war in the campaign to popularize the U.S. $2 bill. For months the treasurer of the United States has been trying to overcome side pleading the sense of the unpopular currency unit, but the public apathy remains and a flurry of mail advising her how the $2 might be made popular.

Print the bills with the cents cut off, is the novel suggestion of a Sylvania, Ga., man. His solution is based on the supposition that the bill is unlucky and one way to avoid misfortune is to tear off the cents. Thousands of the bills are replaced by the Treasury annually because of such mutilation.

Almost no one in the U.S. is spending $2 bills. The demand is so slight that the mint will not stock more than a hundred and went right away. Before the First World War this denomination of money was fairly common.

The treasurer's interest in the dance is more economic than personal. The figures by replacing 300 million $1 bills with 150 million $2 bills the Treasury could save $75 million a year in printing costs. Political costs are the same, regardless of denomination.

One U.S. commentator observes, Mrs. Granahan may be a trifle premature in her campaign. Let inflation take its toll for a few more years and she, or her successor, can promote the $5 bill. Savings in printing costs for the exchange should be phenomenal."

Cradle Rocker

Halifax-Chronicle Herald

Inspired by a crying baby, a Belfast inventor has started production of a device which gently rocks the cradle. The soothing motion is supplied by a slowly turning, motor-driven wheel which alternately raises and lowers the baby carriage. No longer is it necessary to seek the power of the wind in the treetops; electricity has triumphed again.

We are wondering how to revise the famous words of William Ross Wallace: "The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world."

Administration of five different utilities by one staff that is eliminating high overhead costs, is one of the main reasons why residents of this city enjoy low utilities rates, Public Utilities manager here told the Belleville Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon on Monday.

These utilities, Rotarian Scott told members, are: gas, electricity, merchandising and rural districts, the latter embracing a mileage of 126 servicing 300 customers, are carrying the direct costs of the utilities. He warned against the careless comparison of local rates with those of other centres unless they are studied in detail. A report read to the Electrical Convention in Toronto showed that the speaker said, listed Belleville as 44th in 360 cities in cost of power.

Canadians are playing no small part in the operations in the invasion beachhead in Normandy. Every day adds to the story of Canadian success and confidence in what it does. The prestige and success of the British and American forces. General Montgomery has made a name for himself as a military leader has praised the work of the Canadian infantry brigade. The General knows Canadians through his experience with them and he well described the Canadian soldiery when he said that this brigade landed and went right away to its objective and still stands there. It was very good. It is excellent."

His praise went far. The achievement of the Western Canadian Brigade has not been paralleled on the "British front" meaning British and Empire invasion troops. That is high honor and General Montgomery does not distribute praise unless it is earned.

Mastoid Infection Cured By Drugs or Surgery

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My sister is having considerable trouble with her ears. She has to go about twice a week to have them operated on. Otherwise she cannot hear. After these treatments there is a draining of considerable fluid and pus and she is relieved but only for a short time. Can you explain why this cannot be finally cured? — M. S. S.

I should judge this to be an infection of the middle ear, and probably, of the mastoid process which is a honeycomb-like area in the bone back of the ear.

In such infections, an incision in the eardrum allows draining and relieves pressure, but the incision closes and has to be re-opened.

Furthermore, as the infection establishes itself in the myriad of small bones in the mastoid, there is no effective way to apply antibiotics that will freely reach all of the little pockets of infection.

The infection becomes chronic, and sometimes radical surgical procedures are the only means of halting it — that is, by removing the diseased "honeycomb" area of the mastoid.

You may remember that 30 or 40 years ago it was not too uncommon to see people with rather massive scarred places behind an ear from such mastoid operations.

Today, improve surgical techniques do not leave such scars. Further, many of these mastoid infections are nipped in the bud by the use of antibiotics, if this is not successful, then surgery sometimes has to be the answer.

The same day the foregoing letter arrived, there was this note from another person:

Dear Doctor: It took about six months of daily wetting my ear with an eye dropper, applying medicine hourly, to get rid of a fungus infection in my ear. But it was worth it. Last week I watched a Little Theatre group try to put on O'Neill's "Strange Interlude" 30 years ago.

Someone sensibly suggests that baseball adopt the 30-second clock of basketball. He would allow only 30 seconds between pitching deliveries, and would limit conferences among players to one an inning.

Big league baseball has become more of a dramatic spectacle, in slow motion, than a sport. Everyone seems to be mugging for the cameras of the raking the diamond. Coaches, managers, players, even umpires, seem especially aware that they are acting on a stage for a vast audience, and they don't want a gesture lost.

And the spectators at the perk, it must be said, often seem to regard what is taking place on the field as quite incidental to the beer, the popcorn, the shouting and the hot dogs, the fascination of who in the stands would spear the foul balls, and the parted scores of other games.

It was more like a tribal site as an athletic contest. Sometimes its value seemed symbolic more than actual. "Being at" the ball game was the important thing; the game itself was scarcely paid attention to, except in rare moments of filling the bases or double plays. If the management had put on a wide screen movie of Saturday week's game, the audience, I felt, would have accepted it in the same spirit.

Baseball is one of the few sports I know in which the amateur performance is more exciting to watch than the professional; and a good school game, between bustling, fervent kids encouraged from the stands, is a travesty the big - league version has become. . . .

Became Chief Of Bush Tribe

BBC London Letter

The amazing adventures of a Cheshireman who became a tribal chief in Australia were recalled by J. H. Peel in a recent BBC broadcast. Bill Buckley, he said was born in Macclesfield at the end of the 18th century and even his age was amazing; he was 6 feet 6 inches tall. Enlisting as a soldier, he was stationed in Gibraltar, and there the fun really began, because Buckley staged a mutiny and the first victim was to be his commanding officer, who afterwards became Queen Victoria's father. If this had succeeded, Buckley would have wiped out the whole Victorian era before it began. Fortunately, he was arrested in time, court-martialled and sent to Botany Bay for life.

"But at Melbourne," said Peel, "he managed to escape. Armed with exactly one empty gun — but no food or water — he soon found himself alone in the dreaded Australian bush. He had already gone half mad with thirst, when he saw, or thought he saw a spear sticking out of the ground. He went over to it, and pulled it out. It was a spear, but it was not much use to a dying man. He was if!

A little later the delirious man was found by some natives. They took him in search of another at his spear and then fell down and worshipped him. They had lately quarrelled with their chief and Buckley found the dead man's spear. Never having seen a white man before," explained Peel, "the savages assumed that Bill was their dead chief, come to life again, with his spear. — looking uncommonly pale, they accepted Buckley as their new-old chief. They taught him their language at last, how to hunt and fish and they equipped him with a truly regal number of wives."

For fifteen years Buckley reigned as chief and then one day discovered the remains of a recent camp fire. Following the trail, he eventually came upon an expedition led by an explorer called John Batman, the first white man Buckley had seen since he was 20 years. "Buckley went up to him and said — well, he did not say anything as he couldn't, for he had forgotten his own language; Bateman confirmed that, in his account of the dramatic meeting. He persuaded Buckley to return to civilization and face the music. That music, by the way, proved to be very sweet indeed. Queen Victoria not only pardoned the man who had tried to murder her father, but generously granted him a pension for life, in view of his amazing adventures."

Strictly Personal

Baseball More A Dramatic Act Than a Sport

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I was glad to see a piece by that astute columnist of sports, Red Smith, recently, in which he approvingly quoted a magazine article called "Baseball is a Big Bore."

The article was written by a former big-league pitcher, Ed Sommel, who complained that dilatory tactics on the field were slowing up the game to a point of tedium and paralysis.

Last week I attended my first major league game in a decade, because my 9-year-old boy wanted to go and take a friend. We sat there for nearly three hours, and within each of the 9 wasted on deliberations, hesitations, conferences, changes, and general inertia.

By the seventh inning, even the boys were visibly bored, so we left to go over to the playground and toss a few balls around ourselves. I hadn't been so rigid with constraint since I watched a Little Theatre group try to put on O'Neill's "Strange Interlude" 30 years ago.

Sommel sensibly suggests that baseball adopt the 30-second clock of basketball. He would allow only 30 seconds between pitching deliveries, and would limit conferences among players to one an inning.

Big league baseball has become more of a dramatic spectacle, in slow motion, than a sport. Everyone seems to be mugging for the cameras of the raking the diamond. Croinor and Gulf countered the trend, gaining two cents to 26 cents and four cents to 29 cents respectively.

Industrials climbed to a record index reading as gains outnumbered losses by a large margin.

Base metals sagged, Inco and Mattagami Lake lost ¼ each to 37¼ and 15 respectively.

Golds were stronger, paced by Dome which tacked on ¾ to 29¾.

On index, industrials were ahead 0.31 to 132.36, golds 45 to 132.68, western oils .18 to 100.01 and the exchange index .35 to a gain of 46.35. Base metals were down .21 to 64.32. Volume for the session was 7,324,000 shares compared with 11,011,000 shares traded Friday.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was active on a scant supply of dry-fed slaughter steers and heifers at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Grass-fed steers, heifers and yearlings were slow and difficult to sell.

Cow prices were barely steady. Veal calf prices were steady. Hog prices were lower and sheep and lamb prices were steady.

Slaughter cattle 3,197: Choice steers 24.50-25.50 with fancy dry-fed steers to 26.50; good 23-24; medium 21-22.50; common 17-20; choice heifers 22.50-23; good 21-22; medium 19-21; common 15-16; choice fed yearlings 22-23 with odd tops to 25; good 20-22; good cows 16-18.50; medium 15-16; canners and cutters 11-14.50; good heavy bologna bulls 18.50-19.50; common and medium 15-18.

Replacement cattle 700: Good light stockers 23-25; medium and common 19-21.

Calves 426: Choice vealers 28-30 with odd tops to 31; good 25-27; medium 21-24; common 19-21; boners 13-18.

Hogs 1,046: Grade A at Toronto 27.50-28.40 currently selling at 28.25; heavy sows 19-20.

Sheep and lambs 259: Good lambs 27-29 per hundredweight; common and medium 24 - 26; sheep 4-12.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged today.

to the Montreal area. The rest of Quebec received $6,000,000. Metropolitan Toronto $74,000,000 and the rest of Ontario $27,000,000. This left about $36,000,000 for the rest of Canada.

TOTAL GROWS

In 1963-65, the department says, the total was about $250,000,000. Shares by area were $117,000,000 for Greater Montreal, $13,000,000 for the rest of Quebec, $82,000,000 for Greater Toronto, $31,000,000 for the rest of Ontario and $36,000,000 for the rest of Canada.

The report says that since 1955 defence expenditures, have often added an element of buoyancy in a situation where the general rate of economic growth was slower than in earlier years. Defence spending in the last eight years has fallen to 4.3 from 6.5 per cent of the gross national product.

The report also brings up to date Canada-U.S. defence production-sharing figures. In 1963, the U.S. placed $142,000,000 worth of defence business with Canadian industry, bringing the total to $768,000,000 since 1959 when the production - sharing program began. Canadian defence business placed in the U.S. amounted to $132,000,000 in 1963 and to $676,000,000 for the five years.

The report says that in the last few years there has been increasing Canadian reliance on the U.S. for research and development and often for production of most major defence equipment.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Windfall settled into its steadiest trading pattern in more than a week while industrials moved to a new index high in active trading on the stock market today.

Windfall, the volatile mining issue with a property near Timmins, opened at $3.25, rallied sharply to $4 and settled back at $3.85 with a 20-cent advance.

Meanwhile other speculative issues were mixed. PCE Exploration added two cents at 56 cents and Goldfields one cent at 73 cents. Genex was off two cents at 52 cents and Glenn three cents at 29 cents.

Strength in the industrial list was in a handful of scattered favorites. Algoma Steel, a $1 gainer Monday, added 1 to 75¾.

Cominco tacked on ¼ to 36¼ as senior base metals made a small advance.

Golds were fractionally stronger. Bralorne was ahead 10 cents to $4 while Dome and Giant Yellowknife gained ¼ each to 29¾ and 30¼ respectively.

On Monday trading was highlighted by wide fluctuations in speculative mining issues.

Windfall—which climbed from 56 cents a week ago—was again the key issue. It turned over 1,085,325 shares and closed with a loss of 35 cents to $3.85. However, during the session it traded as low as $2.70 and as high as $4.75.

The roller-coaster trading pattern was followed by a group of other mining properties in the Timmins area. Most stocks opened lower, rallied and then sold off.

PCE Exploration was down seven cents to 56 cents, National Exploration four cents to 25 cents, Glenn two cents to 32 cents and Genex one cent to 54 cents. Goldfields was unchanged at 73 cents after selling as high as 80 cents and as low as 63 cents. The stock turned over 130,900 shares.

Ina Mable Burrell of Hinsvelton, N.Y., were killed in the other car.

Eugene Amsel, 13 - year - old son of the Bethpage couple, was taken to hospital in Ottawa suffering from multiple abrasions and a fractured right leg. Garth Brewbaker, 17, whose parents died in the accident, and his grandmother, Mrs. Alice Swerdfeger, 73, both had both legs fractured and both suffered head injuries.

Police said the American car was eastbound and, while passing another car, apparently went out of control and skidded across the highway. It was struck broadside by the Swerdfeger car, which was approaching from the opposite direction.

The impact ripped open the side of the American car and crumpled the front of the Swerdfeger car.

The Swerdfegers were travelling east towards their farm home.

Legislation to provide interest-free loans to needy university students received speedy first reading.

Associate Defence Minister Cardin said the maple leaf flag design was flown for a time by a Canadian destroyer.

Finance Minister Gordon rejected Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's idea for a national conference on Canadian problems.

Paul Martineau (PC—Pontiac - Temiscamingue) enlarged on the conference idea, saying it could write a new constitution.

Gene Cheamus (PC—Northwest Territories) rapped Agriculture Minister Hays for delaying a program of free milk for school children.

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) accused the Liberals of neglecting the far north, in contrast to years of Conservative development there.

Printers

ten statement issued from their public relations office that -to the best of their knowledge the offer of a guarantee against unemployment from automation is the first such offer to employees in the publishing business in North America.

The statement also said:

"... Because of damage to equipment, the publishers' are statement that full supervision of their composing rooms be restored to management. They refuse ever again to be put in a position where foremen and assistant foremen are required by union law to walk off their jobs at the call of the union.

"It is understood that those foremen had assistant foremen who remained on their jobs have had their union cards lifted and-or have been subject to $5,000 fines."

SAYS STRINGS ATTACHED

Mr. McCormack said after the break-up of talks that the publishers' proposal not only had strings attached but that "the strings were bunched together in the form of a noose.

Ray Hilles, a member of the ITU's public relations committee, said the publishers' offer of a guarantee against unemployment due to automation was a "sell-screen to take the emphasis off the other two union-busting proposals."

The publishers noted that a new agreement would have been open for renegotiation again in October because of the length of the bargaining process. They proposed that any new contract be extended for two years.

The dispute between the printers and papers was brought to a climax by the question of union jurisdiction over multi-purpose computers when applied to composing room tasks.

Earlier Monday, Mr. McCormack charged the Globe and Mail with hiring "a bunch of pimply-faced kids" to do jobs of members of the mailers' union, a subsidiary of the ITU, who have remained off work.

A spokesman for the paper said it augmented the work force in its mailing room, made up of supervisory and non-union personnel, with 20 salesmen who sell the papers on Saturdays.

The Globe today reinstated its Report on Business, a Tuesday-Thursday - Friday section that was dropped last Friday when the paper was hit by the walkout.

Scranton

there were anti-Goldwater pickets and a group of seeming Goldwater supporters, each marching in their own circles while police watched. One Goldwater marcher hit an opponent with a placard but police stepped in to prevent a clash.

PRINTERS PICKET

About 300 union printers also picketed a downtown Republican headquarters hotel, charging that Republicans used "professional strikebreakers" from parts of the U.S. and Canada to print convention material. Picketing was peaceful.

One possible hopeful sign for the Scranton forces was the hearty applause that greeted the call by keynote speaker Governor Mark Hatfield of Oregon for rejection of "bigots."

"There are bigots in this nation who spew forth the venom of hate," Hatfield said as he attempted to build up convention spirits. "They must be overcome and this applies to the Society, the Communist party and the hundreds of others like them."

Amid the cheering, Hatfield said the Republican party "will lead the quest for victory in the struggle to change the minds and hearts of men."

And for the first time the audience heard that the threat is not only from the Communist front but through "the fascist menace that lurks, threatening to capture us."

This appeared to refer to the fear of some of the delegates that the party will fall into the hands of men who speak of freedom but who really intend to seize totalitarian control over the central government.

SUE COMPANIES

NEW YORK (AP) — Premo Pharmaceutical Laboratories, Incorporated of South Hackensack, N.J., filed an anti-trust suit Monday seeking $25 000 000 damages against American Cyanamid Company, Bristol-Myers Company, Chas. Pfizer and company, Incorporated and their top officers. Premo charged the defendants and co-conspirators had conspired to monopolize and eliminate competition in the manufacture, sale and distribution of broad-spectrum antibiotics.

Midsummer Ceremonies

Mr. and Mrs. James Hamilton Verner are pictured signing the register after their wedding in Holloway Street United Church. The bride is the former Jane Corinne Townsend, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer M. Townsend, 72 Highland Avenue, Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Air Commodore and Mrs. James A. Verner, formerly of Winnipeg, now residing in Vancouver, B.C.

VERNER — TOWNSEND

Pale blue and white were the colors used throughout for the recent wedding of Jane Corinne Townsend, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer M. Townsend, Belleville, to James Hamilton Verner of Kingston, son of Air Commodore and Mrs. James A. Verner, Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Rev. C. W. Coleman was the officiating minister at the ceremony in Holloway Street United Church where tall standards of white and blue mums with pink gladioli flanked by wrought iron candelabra with lighted candles made a lovely setting for the service.

Traditional wedding music was played by the church organist Mr. Angus MacLeod, who also accompanied the soloist Mr. Robert Reid.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, chose an original sheath gown of white peau de sole with cathedral train. Appliques of French lace enhanced the front of the dress as well as the back where the train was attached. Her double-tiered bouffant veil of pure silk illusion was held by a shaped head band made of matching peau-de-soie, and she carried a cascade arrangement of white orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Paul Leonard of Hamilton was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Verner, Vancouver, B.C. and Miss Cindy Scratch, Stratford, Ontario. They were gowned alike in pale blue organza over taffeta featuring a scoop neckline and full skirt. Each carried a cascade arrangement of blue and white mums and stephanotis. Their headdresses were coronets of stephanotis, the blue alternating with the white.

Mr. Robert Verner of Vancouver, B.C. was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Brian Dawkins of Kingston, and Mr. David Verner of Winnipeg, Man.

At the wedding reception held at the Shrine Club the bride's mother received, wearing a dress of turquoise linen Shantung with bodice of Chantilly lace, matching jacket and accessories. She wore a corsage of white orchids.

The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a jacket dress of beige lace. Her corsage of American Beauty roses matched the shade of her hat. Beige accessories completed her ensemble.

The bride's table decorations featured a three-tiered wedding cake with tulle around the base held in place at each corner by blue-tinted carnations. Silver candelabra held white tapettes, and the guest tables had bud vases of blue-tinted carnations alternating with white candles.

For travelling to the Maritimes the bride wore a pink sheath dress with a matching three-quarter length coat, white accessories and corsage of white orchids.

Out-of-town guests were present from Kirkland, Washington; Vancouver, B.C.; Winnipeg, Man.; Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, Peterborough, Port Dover, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Burlington, Stratford, London, Almonte, Kingston, Bath, Trenton, and Halloway.

Mr. and Mrs. Verner will reside in Kingston until the end of August, when they will leave for Nigeria, Africa.

Before her marriage the bride was the recipient of many lovely gifts at showers given by Mrs. Raymond Masse at the home of her mother, Mrs. Wilbur Wright; at a dessert party given by Mrs. Gordon Edwards with Mrs. Harold Mott as cohostess; and at a coffee party with Mrs. Arnold Campbell as hostess. A tea was given by a class mate, Miss Dona Phillips, Toronto, and a couples' party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Atkinson, Kingston. The bride's mother entertained at a trousseau tea.

No Shockers In Topless Gowns Shown

ROME (AP)—Rome fashion showings for fall and winter opened Monday with lots of toplessness—but not a shocker in the lot.

There were "topless" shoes and "topless" gloves in the morning accessory exhibit, and an almost-topless nightie in the afternoon boutique presentations.

Asunta showed brief after-ski pony skin or broadtail jacket, embroidered in sparkling jet.

A three-quarter black mink coat had a gobelin tapestry lining, and high tapestry boots to match. For evenig. Asunta presented narrow midcalf-long kimonos — chinchilla over a black velvet tube dress, and white mink over white-on-black silk.

Fur suits from Mapli came in black or eggshell broadtail-brown Alaskan otter.

The topless nightie came from Gaber. The bosom "blooms from a cloud of valenciennes," said the commentator. The rest was filmy pink, with another cloud of lace around the wide hem.

Albertina shows tunics and tunic coats side-slashed over matching or contrasting skirts. Tube dresses under deeply cut tan-slashed coats, in cable-ribbed knit, have tiny cap sleeves and a high bateau neckline.

A sour cream dressing which is especially good with fish salads is made this way. Combine ½ cup commercial sour cream with ½ cup mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons minced onion, ¼ teaspoon salt, and ¼ teaspoon dill seed. Mix well and let stand in the refrigerator for 1 hour to blend flavors.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Robbin, Belleville, R.R. 2, announce the engagement of their daughter, Janice Emma, to Harvey Lawrence Treenser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Treenser, Blackwater. The marriage will take place on Saturday, August 22nd, 1964, at 2.30 p.m., Massassaga United Church, Massassaga.

Playground Activities

BAYVIEW

On Friday, June 10, a doll show was held at Bayview School playground at 10 a.m. The dolls ranged from hockey players to nurse dolls as they lined up to be judged by Gary Bowen, Michael Rose, Tim Gowne and Linda Beaudoin.

The winners were as follows: the cuddliest doll — Maryanne Terry; Bobby Hollinger; cleanest doll — Valerie Geen; Pam Hollinger; biggest doll — Darlene Thompson, Maryanne Terry; smallest doll — Joan Smith, Susan Ross; doll that can do the most things — Patsy Smith, Bobby Hollinger; doll with the sweetest smile — Pam Hollinger, Darcel Thompson; most original doll — Bobby Hollinger, Valerie Geen.

The supervisor would like to thank all those who participated or assisted in the doll show.

On Thursday, July 9 Bayview School playground had a scavenger hunt. Four teams were each given a list of 15 items to find and all the time to find them. The winning team consisted of Addie Bell, Bill Kirkman and Gary Thompson. The team standing second was headed by Susan Rose.

The team standing third was headed by Pam Hollinger. The hunt was very successful and the teams managed to unearth several difficult items, including a copy of the new Canadian Flag.

CHURCHILL HEIGHTS

A toy day was held at Churchill Heights playground on Thursday. Many participated by parading from one end of the park to the other, around the swings and slide, singing as they went along. There was a large variety of dolls, cowboy, Dale's Cathy, baby, Brazilian doll, Bestie doll and even one from Nigeria. Among the helpers for this special event were Bonnie Gallinger, Janice Christopher, Mary Lou Dall, Mary Lou Cook, Joan Sundby, Elizabeth Rice, Jo-Anne Tugnett, Dennis Woods, Linda Trueman and Kenny Haye. All enjoyed themselves and look forward to the next special event.

Playground supervisor, Carolann Kelly.

Sunday School Picnic

WHITE'S CHURCH

WHITE'S DISTRICT

About 50 members of White's Church Sunday School convened on Saturday at Presqu'ile Park at the noon hour for a pot-luck dinner.

Mrs. Rose Stickle had the closest birthday and a birthday cake was passed around. Master Robin Taylor the youngest present received a gift as well as Mrs. W. Jeffery, the oldest member present a gift.

Many spent the remainder of the afternoon on the beach, wading, swimming or just watching the others from easy chairs.

Sunday School will resume again on Sunday, August 16th when it is hoped that all will have returned from their various holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wayne Garrison are pictured following their recent marriage in the Church of St. John the Evangelist, Bancroft. The bride is the former Katharine Helen Derby, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. Derby of Toronto. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Garrison of Prescott.

GARRISON — DERBY

A lovely summer wedding was solemnized on Saturday, June 27th, at 2.00 p.m. in the church of St. John the Evangelist, Bancroft, when Katharine Helen Derby, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Derby, Toronto, and Robert Wayne Garrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Garrison, Prescott, exchanged marriage vows in a double-ring ceremony. The Rev. Geoffrey Rennison officiated.

The bride chose a floor-length gown of ivory delustred satin, with scoop neckline, long lily-point sleeves and detachable chapel train. The fitted bodice was adorned with a finely crocheted lace collar, which had been made by the bride's grandmother, and worn by the bride's mother. A circlet of satin held the long silk tulle veil, which had also been worn by the bride's mother and three of her aunts. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and stephanotis.

Miss Ruth Merriam of Toronto, attended as maid of honor, with Miss Mary Derby, sister of the bride, and Miss Lindy Wilson, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaids. They were all identically gowned in sheath dresses of deep orange-pink shantung with detachable pleated overskirts of the same material, and matching head bows. They carried nosegays of white carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Melvin Alyea, Toronto. The ushers were Mr. Walter Bolkoff, Bancroft, and Mr. Ross Walmsley, Belleville.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Wilson, Faraday Mines, at which the bride's mother received the guests in a dusty pink sheath ensemble of chiffon over lace, with matching straw and chiffon hat. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a two-piece aqua blue chiffon and lace dress with a flowered tulle hat to match.

For travelling the bride donned an ice blue Shantung dress with matching accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Guests were present from Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Waterloo, Woodstock, Noranda, Niv e Lisdar, Haileybury, Stirling, Hilton, Batawa, Belleville, Trenton and Bancroft.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower by Mrs. W. Bolkoff, Bancroft; luncheon by Mrs. W. A. Robinson, Toronto; and a shower by Mrs. F. G. Smith, Toronto, and afternoon teas by the bride's mother in Bancroft, and the bridegroom's mother in Prescott.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of the University of Western Ontario.

Business Women Turn Down Uniform Educational System

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—It would be impossible to set up a uniform educational system in Canada's schools, a Brantford woman with 40 years' teaching experience said Monday.

Hazel Devereux told the biennial convention of the 7,000-member Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs:

"How can we hope to have uniform education across the country when we haven't even got it in our own province? Think of the money that would be involved. Can you imagine the expense of just changing the textbooks?

"If it ever happened I would say that the earth had turned into a little heaven."

Miss Devereaux was opposing a resolution submitted by a member club in Trenton, Ont., which urged the federal government to set up a uniform system of education in all provinces.

MOVE AMENDMENT

After a number of delegates said education was a provincial matter and outside the scope of the federal government, the resolution was amended. As amended, it criticized the present situation where students who had to move from province to province often had difficulty with their school work.

Delegates also passed a resolution urging the federal government to take the lead in establishing special treatment clinics for known sexual offenders. The resolution, submitted by the Calgary club, asked the government to ensure that known sex offenders would not be released from custody until judged to be cured by a competent psychiatric board.

The federal government was also urged to amend the Income Tax Act to make dividends from taxable corporations tax free for individual taxpayers.

A slight drop in membership was reported by Membership Chairman Louise Card of Nespaws, Man., who recommended an intensive public relations program to attract new members.

After a half-hour debate, the federation delegates decided to continue to sponsor the annual Business Women's Week which will be observed Oct. 18-24. Clubs opposing the week, begun by the federation in 1954 to promote achievements of Canada's working women, said it had lost its significance.

BATEMAN — DONNELLY

White gladioli formed the background setting in Christ Church, Belleville for the recent marriage of Gloria Jean Margaret Donnelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Donnelly, Belleville, R. R. 2, to Wilfred Thomas Bateman, son of Mrs. Gordon Bateman, Belleville and the late Mr. Bateman. The Rev. J.J Smith officiated at the ceremony.

Mr. John Wilford presided at the organ and accompanied the six choir boys in appropriate selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a bridal gown of Chantilly lace over satin featuring a fitted bodice with scalloped neckline and long illusion sleeves. The bouffant skirt was enhanced with a flowing train from the waist. Her shoulder length veil fell from a crown-style headpiece and she carried a bouquet of red roses with stephanotis and trailing ivy.

The maid of honor, Miss Donna Hay of Belleville was dressed in turquoise nylon dress with matching accessories and a bouquet of yellow roses and white mums. The bridesmaids, Miss Helen Hart, Mrs. Faye Mahoney, aunt of the bridegroom, and Miss Barbara Vader were dressed alike in yellow nylon dresses, matching accessories and carried bouquets of yellow roses with white mums. The little flower girl was Miss Judy West of Madoc, cousin of the bridegroom who was dressed in white nylon frock highlighted with a full skirt, matching accessories and a bouquet of white baby 'mums. The ring-bearer was Master Shane Hayo, cousin of the bridegroom.

Mr. Allan Blackburn of Eldorado was groomsman, while the ushers were Mr. Douglas Bateman, Mr. Gordon Donnelly, brother of the bridegroom and Mr. Wayne Parks, all of Belleville.

A reception was held at the Moose Hall, Front Street, Belleville which was appropriately decorated for the occasion with the three covered bride's table centred with a traditional three-tier wedding cake, flanked with white candles. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a blue sheath with lace trim, white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a pink cotton dress with lace trim, white accessories and a corsage of white mums.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls the bride chose a yellow linen dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Guests were present from Belleville, Trenton, Stirling, Oshawa, Eldorado, Bancroft, Batawa, Madoc, Cannington and Consecon.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at a shower given by Mrs. T. Sarra of Belleville with Miss Donna Hay as hostess; at a community shower at Centenary at the home of Mrs. E. Hart with Miss Helen Hart as co-hostess; at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. F. Andrews in Stirling. The bride was presented wearing a pink cotton dress with lace trim, white accessories and a corsage of white mums.

DEAR I.P.P.—How exciting! Readers will welcome the news that they can make an entry by mail. I will forward any requests I receive to the Canadian headquarters, which will send each enquirer an application form.

DEAR DORIS — I agree fully with my fellow Beatle Fan. My parents are against the Beatles, but they know they can't do anything about my going hairy (crazy) every time I see or hear them.

They're the gear (greatest) and are just out for a bash (good time.) As for looks, their hair isn't half as bad as some of the styles the boys nowadays wear. At least the Beatles are well groomed.

My Dad is a real crew-thumper (religious person) and he says that I can't play my Beatle records in the house. All I can say is, it's a good thing he works at night.

All my chinas (pals) are Beatle fans and we all belong to the same fan club. It's really beany (lively) and I only wish our parents would stop being such bummers (stupid people) and would come to their senses about these super beck roon boys (instrumentalists) And singers. — ANOTHER F.A.B.B.F.

DEAR BEATLE BOOSTER — Oh! So they really are the most! (Most what?) We used to go hairy over "jazz." Ask any handy octogenarian (eighty-year-oldster) what that means.

DEAR DORIS — I am a grade seven student, and I am at the top of the class. I average 93 percent. But I don't know how to study. How do you go about studying? — STUDENT.

DEAR STUDENT — What are you aiming for? 110 percent?

Sometimes when school work is a breeze it does happen that the student fails to grow good study habits. Then with upper grades and tougher assignments he flounders. Send for my leaflet on How to Study, enclosing ten cents and your name on a stamped envelope.

DEAR DORIS — I note your column about card playing. Knowing comment is free and perhaps welcome, here it is.

Here we have the century old problem of whether smoking, drinking, playing cards, movies, dancing, are sin in a Christian life. Well, it is a fact that almost every gambler or potential gambler was taught to play cards at home at an early age. And that his should therefore be brought into the presence of a supposedly holy place such as the church without blinking one painted eyelash seems a very grave sin indeed.

Concerning the passage "Our Lord says 'I came that ye might have life and have it more abundantly'," it was discouraging indeed to find that you said this refers to the pleasures of life. The "life" refers to the spiritual riches of peace, joy, patience, self-control, love, kindness. — ANONYMOUS.

DEAR ANONYMOUS — You can learn to gamble on any game of chance or skill. Would you outlaw horseback riding because of race track gambling? To me it is a greater sin to deny an overworked farmer's wife some harmless recreation than it is for a church-sponsored club to play bridge.

If you don't think our church groups do more than their share of good works you'd better look into them a little more closely. In your book, does the "abundant life" necessarily do away with anything which is pleasurable?

U.C.W. Meeting

RYLSTONE U.C.W.

Mrs. Ray Stewart was hostess to the Rylstone United Church Women on Wednesday afternoon, July 8 with an attendance of 16 women, the minister Mr. Appe, and four children.

Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, vice-president was in charge of the devotional part of the meeting, and welcomed everyone, including the new minister and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Appe.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Spencer, the subject centring around "creation." Short Scripture passages were read by Mrs. Ellis Jones, Mrs. Ray Stewart and Mrs. James Legge, with a prayer by Mrs. Spencer.

A letter of thanks was read for an overseas bale sent in the spring. A request for supplies and Christmas gifts for Northern outposts was received. A special collection will be taken for this at the August meeting. Plans were started for catering to the community sale at Hoards in August.

Mr. Gordon Appe was asked to be guest speaker for the Rylstone Church anniversary service on September 13th. Arrangements are being made for music from a neighboring congregation.

Mrs. Will Rutherford was convener for the balance of the program put on by the young ladies of the church. Taking part were Sherry Spencer, Mrs. Robert Spencer and her daughter Lynn. A piano solo was given by Marilyn Stewart; a vocal trio by Mrs. Spencer and daughters Lynne and Sue, and a reading by Margaret Meikle-john.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred McKeown in Springbrook with conveners Mrs. Thomas H. McKeown and Mrs. Ellis Jones. The refreshment committee will be Mrs. Will Rutherford and Mrs. Cecil Finch.

CANNED SALMON makes many a quick appetizer from a variety of spreads to top crackers, cucumber slices or halved cherry tomatoes, to a delicious dip, served above in an eggplant shell container gaily decorated with red green pepper "flowers." On the right, salmon-flavored vichyssoise makes a cool first course to a summertime meal. Garnish the cups with a carrot curl to compliment the pastel color of the soup.

Canned Salmon Provides Versatile Dips, Spreads, Soups

Summertime is a friendly time of year. Suddenly, you want to say to a friend or neighbour, "Come on over tonight, and we'll eat on the patio."

While it's easy to feel in the mood for summer entertaining, there are drawbacks to it for the busy homemaker. Sunny days make you eager for the outdoors and you're not apt to relish time in the kitchen, preparing the meals and snacks you'll serve as a hostess. Besides, there's that bathing suit figure to consider; you have to think of calories as well as the clock. What wouldn't you give for ideas for light, satisfying and appealing dishes? — food that's as gay as a summer picnic, that expressed a friendly hospitality you feel, yet is easy to prepare?

The answer can be as close as a can on your pantry shelf — a can of salmon — light, delicious, and the best of all, safe. Salmon can be used in so many different ways in soups and salads, appetizers and entrees, muffins and mousses, and it never takes very long to prepare. A can of salmon stays instantly available for that spot of the moment when you impulsively show the friendliness you feel and ask someone to share a summertime snack. You'll find it especially useful as an unusual way to start a meal, or to go with the long cool drinks that seem to need endless canapes as accompaniment.

Merely mashing the canned salmon with mayonnaise so that it's spreadable, makes a delicate spread. Add a dash of lemon and some finely chopped parsley. Or, add a little mayonnaise before doing the mashing. Spoon on Melba toast rounds or crackers, onto slices of crisp cucumbers, or use it to top halved cherry tomatoes.

Individual canapes are fun to make, but another time, when you want to cut down preparation time, blend a simple salmon dip and let your guests help themselves. If you're planning a small party, hollow out a colorful eggplant, and use it as a gay container for your dip.

Again you might prefer to sip your appetizer in the form of cool, pastel pink, soup-on-the-rocks. That same can of salmon that is so useful for appetizers, or a dip, gives new flavor to a cold cream of potato soup, which is fun to serve, and delicious to drink. A chilled tureen or punch-bowl is nice for serving the soup, or you can pour it directly from a glass pitcher. Have a bowl of fresh cut chives handy for sprinkling on as a garnish, and enough soup for seconds all around. Its taste demands another helping.

SALMON COTTAGE CHEESE DIP

1 pound cream - style cottage cheese
Thin yellow rind of 1 lemon, slivered
1 can (7¾ ounces) salmon, drained and flaked
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¾ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons chopped green onions.

Combine all ingredients and chill for 1 hour before serving.

SALMON VICHYSSOISE

2 medium potatoes, peeled and sliced
1 medium onion, sliced
1 cup chicken broth
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 can (7¾ ounces) salmon
1 cup cream

In saucepan combine potatoes, onion, chicken broth, salt, pepper, nutmeg, and liquid from can of salmon. Bring to boil, cover, and simmer for 15 minutes. Flake and stir in salmon. Put mixture through a food mill or empty into container of an electric blender and blend for 15 seconds. Stir in cream. Chill and serve with a topping of sour cream and chopped chives. Serves 6.

Cucumber Ring With Seafood

by Mary Moore

I want you to read this two-part recipe right through, to made this dish up because I know how eager our readers are for gelatine salads.

This is a new idea. You make a green jellied ring which calls for ground raw cucumber and canned pineapple. When this is turned out you fill the centre with shrimp. Knowing the high cost of shrimp I tried a combination of shrimp and lower priced scallops and it was pretty and good.

I'm telling you how to make and assemble this and arrange colorful items around the border to make a master piece de resistance for a summer buffet table.

Dinner Menu

TUESDAY
(Cold Supper)

Cold Meat Platter: Ham, Liverwurst, Salami or Bologna; Dill Pickles; Potato Salad with New Green Peas; Sliced Cucumbers in Sour Cream; Homemade Rye Bread; Chilled Compote of Cherries; Chiffon Cake; Tea.

COOL-AS-A-CUCUMBER RING FILLED WITH MARINATED SCALLOPS AND SHRIMP:

Jellied Cucumber and Pineapple Ring: Use 1½ packages (4½ teaspoons) plain gelatine, ¾ cup cold water, 1 large (or 2 medium-sized) cucumber, one 20-oz. can best-quality crushed pineapple, 4 teaspoons lemon juice, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon green food coloring.

Scallop and Shrimp Filling: one 7-oz. package frozen peeled, cleaned shrimp (95c), ½ lb. fresh frozen scallops, 1-3 cup salad oil, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Make the jelly ring in advance. (Note: If you do not have a ring mould do not be discouraged. Make this in any shape mould and border it with the marinated scallops and shrimp.) Soak the gelatine in the cold water 5 minutes. Drain the pineapple. Measure juice. You should have 1 cup. Heat just to boiling and remove from heat and stir in soaked gelatine until dissolved. Wash cucumber and pare it, but remove only half of the skin. Put through grinder. Drain and reserve juice. You should have 1 cup. Add the cucumber juice to the jelly liquid along with the lemon juice, sugar and green food coloring. Stir in drained pineapple and cucumber. (Note: The comfort in making this is that you can skip the usual "partially congeal" step because the solids are so abundant they fill the jelly.) Pour into a ring mould and chill until set. To serve, dip mould in hot water, invert large round platter on top, and carefully turn over.

While jelly is setting, barely cover frozen scallops and shrimp with water, bring to boil, covered. Remove from heat and let stand 5 minutes. Drain, rinse with cold water to chill. Drain. Marinate in refrigerator for 2 hours in a combined oil, vinger, salt, sugar and pepper, stirring once or twice. Drain. When jelly ring is turned out on serving plate return scallops and shrimp into centre of ring. Garnish with a border of small tomato and hard-cooked egg wedges, curly endive, or watercress or parsley.

Vacation School Closes at Ivanhoe

Vacation Bible School was held in the Ivanhoe Town Hall, July 6-10 for the children of the community. Miss Lorena Campbell of the Bible Club Movement Inc. was director of the school.

There were 27 children registered and 21 had perfect attendance. Several of the ladies of the community helped in the school. The children studied how "God calls us to Himself."

On Sunday, July 12 a closing program was held in Beulah United Church for all parents, friends and the children. Miss Campbell gave a flannel graph lesson pointing out the judgment of God on a sinful people. "A good work was reported and the children showed their interest by their enthusiasm.

CHECK COMPLAINT

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — United Nations military observers are investigating an Israeli complaint concerning the alleged rape of a young Canadian tourist by a Jordanian soldier Saturday afternoon. According to the complaint to the Jordan-Israel mixed armistice commission, the attack occurred in a deserted area south of Jerusalem. The woman, who was not identified, was said to have been out for a stroll with United States male friend.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS
MAIL CALL

QUESTION: I have a friend who calls on the phone and as soon as I answer, she constantly keeps excusing herself to baste the roast, take something out of Junior's hand, answer the doorbell, etc. A simple phone call to make a date for lunch takes at least a half hour with all the interruptions.

The last time I told her to call back when she had time to talk and hung up. She was a bit angry at my attitude, but I think you'll agree it's discourteous to get people on the phone and then make them wait through numerous slight "emergencies." What do you think? — Mrs. R. Doylestown, Pa.

ANSWER: When someone makes a phone call, she should be ready to complete it without inconveniencing the person on the other end with a steady stream of interruptions. It's polite to call when children are not underfoot, and when the stove or what's on it — does not need watching. If the person making the call seems distracted or busy, suggest she call back inconvenienced. I see no reason why the person on the other end can't tactfully suggest she call back at a less hectic time.

QUESTION: I double-dated with a girl friend last week, and as I was about to go to the powder room, I discovered I had left my change purse home. I asked my date to lend me some change so I could leave a tip for the waitress. My girl friend said this was a rude thing to do and that it would be better for me to "charge" the tab and ask a date for money. I felt as though I had made a major mistake. Am I correct or incorrect about it. I haven't repaid the debt as yet, and was going to forget it until she made this remark. Should I return the quarter and accept a sincere apology along with it? I'd appreciate your help. — G. H., Kew Gardens, N.Y.

ANSWER: Properly, a girl should pay for her own extras, like tipping the powder room attendant and making phone calls, if necessary. However, I think it would be embarrassing your date if you returned the quarter, and a note of apology is entirely unnecessary. Just make sure to double-check your pocketbook next time you go out so you'll have enough enough to cover your own incidental expenses.

EXPECTS RESULTS

EXETER, England (CP) — Jeweller Walter Kent, 63, has started a new line of businesses — as consultant for expectant mothers. Kent claims he can tell the sex of an unborn baby by swinging a two inch gold chain on the woman's back. "I can tell the sex by the way the chain rotates. It's similar to water divining, which I can do also."

Topless Bathing Suits Selling Well in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Topless bathing suits and topless dresses not only are attracting window shoppers — they are bringing in their share of sales a well.

"It's the most peculiar thing in the world about all this nudity," said Leonard Zelsman of a midtown Toronto store which has topless suits on display in the window. "We have sold 620 topless dresses — complete sellout. More are on order.

"We thought topless dresses would appeal to the 25- and 23-year-olds, but the surprise is that women from 35 to 50 have grabbed them up, he said.

Mr. Zelsman said that Friday night a man phoned to say he was having a party and wanted a dozen topless bathing suits put aside for him. Mr. Zelsman figured it was a gag, but the next morning the man came in and bought the 12 suits.

Mrs. Helen Cook, official of a downtown store, reported a sellout on the topless bathing suits.

"Men have been buying them for their wives. One lady came in and said she wanted a topless suit to wear around her private swimming pool. Her feeling about it was why shouldnt she be up-to-the-minute in fashion. "If the topless bathing suit is what the designers are coming out with, why not wear it?

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three dresses with revealing tops were displayed at a fashion show at a private showing and the distributor said he had sold 300 to Western Canada stores.

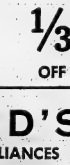
David Fogell of Winnipeg, western representative for the manufacturer, said he expected women would wear the dresses at private parties and such.

"The young business girl and the young married woman will be the best customer," he predicted to reporters.

Most revealing was a tight-fitting black number, solid cloth from knee to just above the waist of the chic model. Seven vertical cloth strands took over from there.

The strands were held up by a horizontal neckline strip. The dress was backless.

"We sell a blouse with it," Mr. Fogell said. "Then the girl can decide later whether she wants to wear it."



For those who want the effect of topless modility without being nude, the strand dress also comes with a flesh-colored nylon mesh attachment.

More decorous was a black sheath with a filmy bodice which hid little.

Banana-Split Salads
You can adapt delicious banana-split parlor favorite for summer salad luncheon by putting scoops of cottage cheese on banana "splits" in lettuce cups. Sauce them with fresh fruits of your choice . . . sugared, in a syrup, or slightly mashed and mixed with a little mayonnaise. Garnish with sprigs of mint. Pretty as a picture and right in good quality protein, courtesy of the cottage cheese!

Drip Tip
Know how to keep that cream pitcher from dripping? Just butter the outside of the pouring lip. A useful hint from Grandma's day!

Summer Safety
Choose picnic foods with care, then keep them cold in transit! Sealed vacuum bottles are a great boon for toting cooked-before-you-hold otherwise lead to spoiled foods and summer sickness. And here's a hint. Freeze those cans of fruit or vegetable juice you plan to include, then wrap bag, boxes, butter and cheese nestled up to the frozen cans. The food will be kept cold until you eat, and by then the juice will be defrosted but nicely chilled!

Hidden Cheeseburgers

Canadian Woman Dedicates Self to Social Revival in Great Metropolis

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—A Canadian woman is setting out single-handed to save a dying area of London.

In an unusual, five-year experiment, Winnipeg - born Ilyn Booker will move into seamy-sided North Kensington, scene of the 1958 Notting Hill race riots, and try to nurse an apathetic people back to health.

"It may kill me, but the idea is an unbeatable one," says Miss Booker, a pleasant, straight - talking community worker who learned the fundamentals of community work in Toronto and five western Ontario counties.

She sees nothing intimidating in a lone woman pitting her social savvy against the soul-destroying isolation of a notoriously tough district that lives in lone-wolf cells and brands all officialdom "them."

With the confidence born of an equally formidable assignment as assistant to reformer Danilo Dolci in Sicily, the 44-year-old Miss Booker looks to self-help as the solution.

MORALE LOW

North Kensington is in the metropolitan heart of London. It has always been a problem area. Notorious for quick evictions and low morale, it presents a dreary picture of decaying, old - fashioned houses contrasting strangely with the affluence of neighboring Golden Hill.

Many West Indians, Pakistanis, Irish and English dwell in uneasy co - existence. Several families share the multi-dwelling houses and nobody knows who is responsible for painting the doors, allowing access to the patch of backyard garden or looking after garbage disposal.

"Self-help is the thread that runs through all our work," said Miss Booker, whose experiment is backed with private funds supplied by a family study project in the area.

"What I will try to do, starting in October, is to help people to come to grips with their problems, to work out their own solutions and to apply intelligent, sustained pressure on appropriate local organizations.

"This kind of rational pressure comes easily to the middle class. They know how to go about it. The working class and the uneducated tend to 'march on the landlord or write the wrong kind of letter."

LEARN TO ORGANIZE

She cited a case in London's Stockwell area where a child was killed in a motor accident. With guidance, residents wrote to police noting that there is no proper crossing on part of the street linking two housing estates. Action was promptly forthcoming because the citizens had learned to "organize their data."

Other techniques will include getting to know people in the area; organizing community groups to paint doors; ensuring everyone has access to gardens; installing portable garbage units.

"We have to think in terms of decades," Miss Booker told a reporter. "The method must be helpful, supporting, non-directive. It takes endless patience.

"You must have absolute faith in what you are doing, and people must have faith in you. It took us 18 months to get Dad in Sicily, but it was harder there because of the different sets of values."

In North Kensington, despite world - wide publicity accorded the Notting Hill riots, racial tensions are not the major problem. Apathy and ignorance are the baleful enemies. The houses are not old enough to be demolished; in the meantime, what happens to the people living there now?

"If we learn anything here, the lessons would be equally valid in the older areas of Canadian cities like Montreal and Toronto."

REVERES MEMORY

Born in the St. James district of Winnipeg, Miss Booker did CBC broadcasts in Toronto and in 1947 joined the Community Programs department in Toronto under the late Dr. Ewart Cross, whose memory she reveres.

She worked for the Ontario government as adviser on rural education until 1952 and from then until 1964 did field work in five counties radiating out of London, Ont. She came to Britain on New Year's day, 1964 and after a spell in public relations went to Menfi, Sicily, to help the controversial reformer Dolci.

She looks forward to tackling tough Notting Hill. "All she would like is more time for a job that really requires a generation. Sometimes, surveying the young secretaries around her with their blush-of-dawn complexions, she feels a pang for vanished girlhood but simply plunges more deeply into her work.

"Of course it's a little discouraging sometimes, you have to find ways of keeping your morale up. I do it by reading, painting and social contacts. I wouldn't want any other job."

"ONE AGAINST NOTTING HILL — Ilyn Booker, a Winnipeg-born community worker, has set out on a single-handed effort to nurse an apathetic people back to health in North Kensington in the heart of London, scene of the 1958 Notting Hill race riots.

Bare-Breasted Models Get Polite Applause

COPENHAGEN (AP)—Black faces and polite applause Sunday night greeted two girls parading bare-breasted before a sell-out audience at "the world's first show of topless fashions" at a beach hotel south of here.

Not one whistle, not one lewd remark, was heard from the well-mannered crowd of about 300 including many married couples. Some brought their children.

It was as 56-a-plate affair organized by several Copenhagen fashion designers and a public relations firm.

Applause was strongest, but by no means stormy, for the younger of the two models. She remained anonymous and clearly was embarrassed, walking stiffly with a forced smile on her pale face as she paraded topless bathing suits on a ramp stretching almost the length of the hall.

The other girl, introduced as a former strip-tease dancer, appeared in a topless gold lame cocktail gown.

The crowd's reaction seemed one of restrained horror.

"That's for the real young ones only," a female spectator commented.

Grandma's Harsh Voice Scares Her Grandchildren

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Do you know of any place I can go to get my voice changed? Somehow I managed to raise five children with this voice and it didn't seem to have a bad effect on them. Now, however, I am told that my harsh voice scares my grandchildren to death and that I'd better do something about it.

ANN LANDERS

I am 64 years old and feel that a person is never too old to learn. My husband says you can't teach an old horse new tricks, and that my voice has been good enough for him these past 35 years — and to leave it alone.

What do you say? — FRIGHTENER OF LITTLE CHILDREN.

DEAR FRIGHTENER — People are not horses — they can and do learn at all ages, but I am not going to send a 64-year-old woman to speech school to please her daughter-(in-law, I'll bet!)

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Elwood and I have been married eight years. We have had our share of minor squabbles but I can truthfully say we've never had any serious trouble — until last week. For my 30th birthday he bought me a little car and is teaching me to drive.

I was smart enough to give him three fine children, but such stuff I am (in dumbest, most unco-ordinated person who ever lived. He says my reflexes are so slow it's a miracle I'm still alive. The list of insults he has handed out since he's been trying to teach me to drive would take up your whole column.

Can it be that I am not doing very well because my husband is a poor teacher, has high blood pressure and no patience? Will you please comment? — FENDER BENDER.

• • •

DEAR BENDER — Even a Milhand who has an abundance of patience (and low blood pressure) should not attempt to teach his wife to drive.

Relieve him of this nerve-shredding job and take instructions from someone with whom you are not emotionally involved.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our 23-year-old daughter wants a formal all-white wedding. My husband and I would like to please her but I'm afraid we would be laughed right out of this town if we give this girl her way.

First: Mary Elizabeth went steady with a young man for three years. They were together night and day and I do mean night and day. He married someone else. I know very well that when Mary Elizabeth went with this young man they did things that would make her ineligible for a white wedding. If you get what I mean.

Second: The man Mary Elizabeth is marrying has been married before. In fact, he has a child by that marriage. Now — wouldn't she look ridiculous coming down the aisle all in white under the conditions described? — SENSIBLE PARENTS.

• • •

DEAR PARENTS — If Mary Elizabeth wants a white wedding, let her have it. Girls who have gone steady, (yes, I get what you mean) do not forfeit the privilege of a white wedding.

The bridegroom's previous marital record does not matter either. It's the status of the bride that counts — and nothing else.

Confidential to FRIENDLESS — I'm not surprised — four typewritten pages of scathing criticism against the world in general and your four "dearest friends" in particular. Why do you demand perfection in others? Are you able to deliver it yourself? The only way to have a friend is to be one. And in this way you have failed.

• • •

Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," gives sound and solid rules for teen-age dating. To receive a copy, enclose with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Campbellford News

Correspondent Reviews 100 Years' History of District

CAMPBELLFORD — With Canada approaching the centennial year, municipalities are looking backward to review and assess comparative progress over the years.

It may be of interest to the residents of Campbellford and the surrounding township of Seymour to learn what has happened in the past 100 years in this particular area of Ontario.

Lord Dorchester's proclamation of 1788 dividing the province into districts is the earliest record relating to Northumberland and Durham Counties. This document named and defined the limits of the new districts. Before this time, the old Province of Quebec was divided into Upper and Lower Canada.

Later in 1792 Lieutenant-Governor Simcoe by proclamation divided Upper Canada into 19 counties for representative purposes. By this proclamation the 12th of the said counties was hereafter to be called Northumberland and the boundaries were defined. The 13th county was to be called Durham; its boundaries also defined, and were all of the other 19 counties.

INCORPORATED AS VILLAGE

Campbellford was incorporated as a village in 1876 when the population at that time was 1,100, the assessed value at $257,310. Because of splendid water power, Campbellford in those early days was becoming extensively known as a manufacturing town. The large woollen mill had been built employing many hands, as well as a foundry, a grist mill, tanning company, manufacturers and planing factory and in later years a large flour mill, a shoe manufacturing plant and others.

There was also a town hall and a school house both made of stone. Churches at this time were the Church of England (still in use); a Roman Catholic Church, later burned by a disastrous fire and replaced by a fine stone building, and a frame Presbyterian Church replaced in later years by a brick brick edifice.

A printing office was also founded by T. J. Vosper and in started at this time and was 1906 was taken over by C. A. Kingston and has been edited by the Kingston family ever since.

Campbellford has not grown in population as much as one might expect, as the year 1903 records the number of people as 3,462. Industrially the town seemed to reach a peak and appeared for reasons not easily explained to lose some of its employment facilities. At the present time the woollen mills employs less people than in early years, smaller industries have come and gone, the pulp mill which was once active is closed, the Canadian Flight has moved the greater part of the plant away. Cooke's chocolate is highly automatic; Bata Shoe Company established in Campbellford in 1956 employs a considerable number of workers. The town is now served by highway system, the passenger service of the C.N.R. has been discontinued and bus service has been curtailed.

Campbellford received its name from a colorful military officer. Of the British army, Major Campbell who first settled in Cobourg, later moved to Seymour township. The story of Campbellford is inseparable from that of Seymour township.

SEYMOUR TOWNSHIP

In 1850 the population of Seymour township was 2,117, and in 1861, eleven years later, the population was 3,542 and 17 years later in 1878, it had risen to 4,288. Now in 1964 the population has reduced to a little over 3,000. In 1878 the native population numbered about two-thirds and settlers from England, Ireland and Scotland, the remaining one-third, the Scottish having a small preponderance and names are found such as Burnbrae.

Major Campbell, who had founded the village, at that time, of Campbellford, also did a great deal in advancing the prosperity of Seymour township. He took up with his partners some 4,000 acres in the township and by his enterprise and encouragement, introduced quite a flourishing settlement. Some of the prominent families at that time, the descendants of many of whom still live in Seymour or the immediate area were the Denmarks, Clarkes, Bonnycastle, Free, Rankine, Rowe and Macoun. Men of these families took a great interest fn municipal and local matters and held important offices.

FORMIDABLE TASK

The early settlers faced a formidable task in clearing the land, with the clearing generally sown with wheat, and the test of human strength to carry a bag of wheat on his back to a distant mill and carry the flour home through a tree-covered blazed trail. Now modern machinery takes over the agricultural tasks. Seymour Township is one of the foremost agricultural areas in Ontario.

Small holdings have been absorbed to make the use of large machinery more feasible which accounts in part for the decreased population. But gone with the old era are the social ties created by the necessary pooling of human resources, the logging bees, the barn raisings, the apple paring parties, the quilting, all followed by dances. In 1878 who would ever dream of the motor travel, or a farmer and his wife spending two weeks in the winter in Florida or modern electric conveniences in the home?

And so as one looks back, one ponders what the future will bring.

Motor Cycle Rider Sustains Broken Jaw

CAMPBELLFORD—An accident occurred early Saturday morning on No. 30 Highway about three miles east of Campbellford. A car driven by Glenn R. Stewart, 22, R.R. No. 2, Campbellford, went out of control off the highway taking off fourteen guard posts The driver was not injured. Damage to the car about $200. O.P.P. constable Diamond investigated.

On Saturday evening a motor cycle driven by Norman Paul Keller, 17, RR. No. 2 Campbellford went out of control on County Road No. 38 at the 7th Concession just out of Campbellford. Coming over the crest of a hill the motor cycle left the road throwing the driver. Mr. Keller received a broken jaw, fractured collar bone and lacerations to his left arm.

Damage to the vehicle amounted to $25. Taken to Campbellford Memorial Hospital Mr. Keller was later taken to Peterborough Civic Hospital.

SNOW FILOT

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP) Mail pilot Robert McIlwaine appears to have a penchant for snow—in June. He ran into a snow squall this summer while flying from here to Pictou Island at 1,000 feet. On the same date last year, also during typical summer weather, he met snow at 2,000 feet above Moncton, N.B.

son were fiery symbols of rural racial tension in Mississippi.

A three-judge federal court of Montgomery ordered Alabama Governor George Wallace and state school officials to "promote and encourage" the elimination of racial discrimination in the state's public schools.

The court also banned payment of state funds as tuition grants to pupils who choose to attend private segregated schools rather than integrated institutions.

The order, called "the most sweeping decree in the history" of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's legal defence fund, grew out of a suit filed during the integration of schools in Macon County, Ala., last January.

In Atlanta, Ga., Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy moved to set up a full-scale legal test of enforcement of the Civil Rights Act. A Justice department motion filed in federal court seeks government intervention on behalf of three Negroes suing a white restaurant owner who refused to serve them.

The attorney general also filed a contempt suit against an Atlanta motel which sued to test the constitutionality of the new civil rights law.

CHURCHES BURN

Two more Negro churches went up in flames in the vicinity of Kingston, Miss., and police said a fire bomb was thrown at a Negro home at Natchez but failed to ignite.

At Columbia, S.C., a federal judge ordered five Negroes admitted to Darlington County schools in September. Darlington is the third South Carolina county ordered to desegrate and two other counties face hearings on similar suits.

Elsewhere:

A state Supreme Court justice in New York upheld the board of education's order that 12 white children attend predominantly Negro schools outside their neighborhoods.

Five white men were arrested at Appomattox, Va., following the bombing of the home of a Negro school administrator. They were charged with malicious destruction.

Dr. Thomas N. Burbridge, head of the San Francisco chapter of NAACP was sentenced at San Francisco to nine months in the county jail for his part in civil rights demonstrations at an auto showroom April 11. It was the stiffest sentence yet imposed in a series of civil rights trials following 500 arrests during March and April demonstrations.

Student Militia Centre Visited By Brig. Ross

PICTON (Staff) — Brigadier J. S. Ross, Kingston and Eastern Ontario Area Commander, accompanied by Major E. R. Friel, C.D., E.S.O. 2 Hdqt. Eastern Ontario Area, and Lieut.-Col. K. D. H. Willcocks, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Commanding Officer, visited Hastings and Prince Edward Regiments' student militia training centre in Picton Armories on Monday.

On the occasion of this annual inspection the visiting officers toured classrooms where 32 high school students commanded by Lt. John Isetg of the Hasty P. Regiment, were executing demonstrations in first aid bandaging. These young recruits are part of a five-week program whose aim is to train high school boys over 16 to provide the militia with potential officers and N.C.O.'s. Boys active in this program have an opportunity to examine army life as a future career, while at the same time they build up the strength of the unit.

The five-week course beginning from July 6th to August 8th, includes weapon drill, firing, cleaning, semi-automatic rifle practice on the range, first aid, map reading, field craft, hunter safety, nuclear, biological and chemical warfare, military law, physical training, traffic control, crowd control, and security patrol.

The Canadian weapon is called the F.N.C.1 (7.62MM.)

SLIGHT INJURIES

Slight injuries were sustained Sunday afternoon by Sharon Sievenpipe, passenger in a car driven by Albert Clifford Leluca, Kingston when the vehicle left the highway and struck a tree, at 1.55 p.m. Deluca who was driving on highway 33 toward Picton, lost control of the car on a turn. Damage is estimated at $75.

TEN BROKEN RIBS

Injuries were sustained by Mrs. Adelheid Monika Edwards, 9 Reichwald Court on Monday afternoon when her car skidded on wet pavement two miles east of Low St. on Highway 33. The vehicle rolled twice before coming to a stop, landing on its roof. Mrs. Edwards suffered 10 broken ribs and lacerations while her companion Heidrun Maria Gerencser, 348 Main St. was unhurt. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $900. Constable Arnold Bestemen investigated the accident.

END TO END

LONDON (CP) — If all the motor vehicles on Britain's roads were placed end to end, they would stretch 36,000 miles —greater than the circumference of the earth. There are 250 vehicles for every mile of British roads.

P. E. County Folk School Develops Self Understanding

Sixteen full time participants attended the second Prince Edward County Folk School at Lake-in-the-Mountain held recently.

The planning committee arrived early to welcome newcomers and assist in registration. The weather was cool causing all sessions to be held in the lodge or dinning hall.

Grant Wallace, Victor Morrow, Isobel Stewart and Gwyn Griffith lent splendid guidance through the presentation of films, discussions, and role playing. The Folk School conducted its own service of worship which was sincerely enjoyed.

A fun night gave all groups a chance to show their talents and caused considerable hilarity.

The purpose of the school was to help the participants understand themselves and each other, and the theme was "See the looking glass." All the presentations were a development of this theme and each person took a thoughtful look at himself.

Good Progress Being Made On New Church

PICTON (Staff) — Good progress has been made in recent weeks in the construction of the new Free Methodist Church which is being erected on Main Street East. Pastor of the church, Rev. T. J. Riddell, stated that it is hoped the new building will be completed by early September. In the interim services are being conducted in the Community Centre.

The old Free Methodist Church, torn down to make way for the new one, was built originally on the farm of Mr. Harry Miller of Ridge Road in 1900 under the pastoral leadership of Rev. E. Snider. In 1913 the church was moved to Main Street East where it stood until this spring.

Over 12 rooms will be built in the basement of the new church to accommodate its large Sunday School. Parking accommodations for parishioners will be provided by a lot at the rear of the church.

Contractors for erection of the building are F. McConnell and son, Napanee. The floor modern structure will be a welcomed addition to the town.

WILDLIFE ATTACKS

The only forms of wildlife that will make unprovoked attacks on humans in the natural preserve of Algonquin Park, Ont., are mosquitoes and black flies.

Despite Criticism of Present System None of Quebec Leaders Propose Anything

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP)—None of Quebec's leaders has yet proposed anything "very precise," despite their criticism of the present system of Confederation, Dr. Ramsay Cook of the University of Toronto's department of history, told the Ontario Conference on Intergroup Relations Monday.

Dr. Cook, a writer and broadcaster on history and politics, said Quebec should stop yelling discrimination and threatening recession and decide what it actually wants from the rest of Canada.

The conference, on "Canadian unity: Conformity or diversity," is being attended by some 80 persons, representing government agencies, religious denominations, ethnic groups and news media. It is sponsored by the Ontario Welfare Council in co-operation with the federal and Ontario departments of citizenship.

Dr. Cook said it is dangerous and irresponsible to arouse national sentiment and a sense of grievance without providing an adequate alternative.

English-speaking Canadians who try to force French-Canadians outside Quebec to surrender their heritage and practice conformity are driving a wedge into Confederation that may split it apart, he said.

SEES HOPE

However, he saw signs "that the younger generation of English-Canadians are far more interested in, sympathetic toward, and knowledgeable about French Canada than their predecessors. It is ironic—indeed tragic—that their counterparts in Quebec are less interested in Canada than ever before."

Dr. Cook attributed much of young Quebec's disinterest to the educational system there which is chiefly concerned with Quebec at the expense of the rest of the country.

An address by Claude Ryan, associate editor of the Montreal newspaper Le Devoir, was delivered by Conference Chairman Norbert Prefontaine when Mr. Ryan was unable to attend.

LISTS REQUIREMENTS

Mr. Ryan gave five requirements for French-English Canadian unity:

Recognition by English-speaking Canada of the rights of the French-speaking minorities outside Quebec, particularly in educational matters.

Education of all secondary school graduates to fluency in both English and French;

Bi-nationalization of all federal institutions across Canada, such as post offices, customs departments and social welfare departments;

Study and redistribution of powers between Ottawa and the provinces, starting with fiscal relationships;

And development of "fully-sensitized leadership," so that Canadian political leaders in all provinces will be conscious of the needs of both English and French-speaking groups.

Murder Charge Laid Against Former Soldier

MISSION CITY, B.C. (CP) — A non-capital murder charge was laid today against a former soldier as police delved into the deaths of three youths, shot as they slept in a remote area north of here.

Each died of a .22-calibre slug in his head.

Their bodies still encased in sleeping bags, were found late Sunday.

Dalton Grey, 34, an unemployed laborer who once served the army was charged with non-capital murder in the death of Rodney Wiren, 19. He was remanded to July 22. A psychiatric report was ordered.

Wiren's body was found beside those of Donald Kohler, 19, and Rob Webster, 18. All lived in Surrey, near New Westminster.

Police said the youths and a companion left Friday on a weekend camping excursion. They apparently took with them Kohler's .22-calibre rifle.

Late Monday police were still looking for the murder weapon.

Women With Shorts Cannot Enter Gallery

OTTAWA (CP)—H. W. Herridge (NDP—Kootenay West) wears wrap-around or portable skirts provided for females who attempt to enter the Commons chamber wearing shorts.

He told the House Monday that he was making the suggestion as a result of a protest he had received from a group of women barred from entering the chamber because they were wearing shorts.

Mr. Herridge said that some years ago women could not enter the chamber unless they wore hats. This problem was solved when it was decided that the House protective staff should provide handkerchiefs as a head covering. However, this regulation now has been abandoned.

To meet the problem of females wearing shorts, Mr. Herridge suggested that wrap-around or portable skirts be issued by the protective staff for a small fee.

Acting Prime Minister Martin said he and Mr. Herridge should discuss the merits of the question with officers of the Commons.

Khrushchev Promises Better Deal for People at Bottom Of Soviet Economic Ladder

MOSCOW (AP)—The people at the bottom of the Soviet economic ladder, collective farmers and public service employees, were promised a better deal Monday by Premier Khrushchev.

Raising Soviet living standards is the most important ideological consideration now, Khrushchev declared at the opening summer session of the Supreme Soviet, the national parliament.

The premier announced a decision to provide pensions for the first time to about 8,500,000 collective farmers.

Effective Jan. 1, farm men reaching 65 and farm women reaching 60 will become eligible for monthly pensions ranging from 12 roubles to 102 roubles. (The rouble is worth $1.11 at the official rate.)

DOCTORS GET MORE

Young doctors now earning 72 roubles a month in city hospitals will get 90 roubles. The pay of a local government official will rise from 56 roubles to 70 roubles a month.

Khrushchev spoke for 3½ hours in the general Kremlin Palace. Passage of the plan is expected to be automatic. The session will last only a few days.

Real incomes have increased 61 per cent the last decade, Khrushchev said. But consumer goods are inadequate and often of the wrong style and design, he said, reiterating press criticisms of poor stocks in the stores.

In an obvious reference to Communist China, which accuses him of leading the Soviet Union toward capitalism, Khrushchev said it is amazing how anyone can call himself a Marxist and "regard the improvement of the living standards of the people in socialist society as a 'bourgeois tendency.'"

PEKING (Reuters)—The Chinese Communist party in a new all-out attack on Russian Premier Khrushchev Tuesday said he and other Soviet leaders were "political representatives of the Soviet bourgeoisie and particularly of its privileged stratum."

The party declared that "the revisionist Khrushchev clique" had "usurped leadership of the Soviet party and state." It said Russia faced "unprecedented danger of capitalist restoration".

It portrayed the Soviet Union as "seething with discontent" as Khrushchev's alleged efforts to restore capitalism and claimed that the Russian people, including the party members, were "using various means to resist and oppose the Khrushchev clique's revisionist line."

These points were made in a massive article running to more than 30,000 Chinese characters.

INJURIES FATAL

TORONTO (CP)—Gary Frederick McGraw, 26, of Toronto, crippled in an automobile accident near Port Hope April 1956, died in hospital Monday from spinal injuries suffered in the accident.

THE OLD AND THE NEW — The new building for Richard Ellis Printing is built completely of shadow-wall patterned concrete blocks, one of the latest building materials on the market. But the stone Frank Foley points out in this picture came from the original Foley Foundry building, built about 1839. Foley, whose firm is building the new Ellis plant, put the old stone in "for luck."

Construction Roundup

By ANDY TURNBULL

ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER BUILDING

More than a thousand boles have been drilled in the rock below the site of the new Ontario Intelligencer building at Pinnacle and Bridge Streets since June 25, and a total of about 1,800 holes should be finished by the end of this week. Starting Monday powderman James Smith of Kingston and construction superintendent Nathan Carr will blast out the basement of the new building. Shooting only six or seven holes at a time, because of the surrounding buildings, the job will take a couple of days. General contractor Andre Construction of Kingston brought equipment from Kingston to drill the holes, three to six feet deep because suitable rock drills are not available here.

JOBS COMING UP

Hugh Murray Construction has the contract to build head quarters for the city's new Fort dealership, Stevenson Ford Sales Ltd. on the old Weigand of Belleville designed the building, Jack Wickens will superintend construction. Work will begin Wednesday. It's an inconvenient time of year to begin construction of a big building, because so many suppliers are closing down for holidays, but Stevenson wants its new headquarters as soon as possible. Jack Wickens is now finishing up a contract at the new Y.M.C.A. building.

Part of Bridge St. will be blocked off from six a.m. to seven p.m. for four or five days, starting tomorrow, Monday, in preparation for repaving of the stretch between Pinnacle and Ann Streets. H. J. McFarland Construction Co. has the job, which includes ripping off the surface of the asphalt. According to records, there is a concrete base below it, but when the road was originally paved about 1920. The road has had little work since the original paving.

The Tatham Co. expects to start this week on services for two subdivisions in the city. Glen Arden at the west end and East Gate to the east end on a sewer contract in Napanee. Gordon Ferril will be in charge of the Napanee job, Bill Tatham will engineer and supervise construction on the two local jobs.

Beaver Construction will be back in town about July 20, to start work on about $75,000 worth of sewer contracts. The firm plans to start one crew, then put another on later. Biggest of the jobs included in the contract are on Dundas Ave. and College Street. City officials expect Archibald Savery, who supervised Beaver's work on sewers in Parkdale, during 1962, will supervise the work.

Building permits taken out during the week include one for James Kemp Construction of Islington, to building a new $24,000 store for Strathwick's floor coverings, at 139 North Front Street. Strathwick's now have a store at 9 Fahey Street.

Another permit is for Roy Bradshaw Construction to do a $5,000 renovation job at 304 Front St. Bradshaw himself will supervise the job, which should be completed before September. It's one of the few grand contracts taken by the firm, which normally specializes in masonry. The contract includes a glazed brick front.

HUGH MURRAY CONSTRUCTION

Started July first, the new Bayside Public School is starting to show above ground now. Archie Parks is superintendent on the four - room brick and block structure. Sub-contracts have been assigned to Acme Plumbing and Heating, Quinte Roofing, Trenton, Provincial Bridge of Trenton for structural steel, Peacock Plastering, Fidutti - Fabri for terazzo and cement enamel, Robert Carter for painting and Quinte Roofing. At the new L.C.B.O. store, superintendent Donald Jackson expects to have the rock excavation completed about Wednesday. Robert Pennell's crew should be finished about the same time with the job of restoring the masonary and replacing the copper flashing on the main building at Albert College. Work started June first. Also at Albert College, Crawford Metals removed one of the two boilers this week, and Quinte Machine and Repair of Trenton is rebuilding the second boiler. It is assumed the first boiler will be replaced.

BELLEVILLE TOWERS

Plastering and final finishing has begun at the Belleville Towers apartment building, and Hugh Murray Construction hopes to have it ready for occupancy next month. Plastering is by Parker and Martin of Toronto, firm, and Fidutti Fabri of Belleville is doing the terrazzo window sills and foyer. Hallways will be carpeted and apartment floors will be hardwood. Bavan says contracts for the carpet and hardwood have not yet been let.

RICHARD ELLIS PRINTING

Built completely of 12-inch shadow-wall blocks and without any windows in the shop area, the new building for Richard Ellis Printing will be finished by the end of August. Superintendent Herb Seames, of the Foley Foundry and Machine Co. started the job July first near the back of Front St., and the walls are already up with a prestressed concrete roof over them. Prestressed Concrete Products, the firm that made the blocks, says it is the first building in the area to be built completely of shadow-wall, (pattern-cut) blocks. Embedded in one of the blocks is a stone from the original Foley Foundry building, built about 1839. The shop area of the building is windowless because the building is designed around an air conditioning system which will be mounted on the roof, and windows would interfere with the system. Acme Plumbing and Heating was expected to start today on the plumbing for the building, the floor will be poured about Thursday. Arthur A. Sills and Son Ltd. were to start excavation Monday, but weather interfered.

WATER MAIN

Lightfoot Construction crews have laid pipe almost to Dundas Street, working south from West Moira on the Sidney Street water main contract. The tunnel to carry the main under the CPR tracks on the way to the pumphouse has been completed and lined, and work is now concentated on manufacturing a rock in a section south of Dundas. The firm cannot blast in Belleville, because of other water mains in the area. Work inside the pumphouse has been suspended until some parts arrive from England, probably during August.

H. J. MCFARLAND CONSTRUCTION

Concrete will be poured next week, and for about six weeks after that, on the north lane of Highway 401 east 10 miles from Marysville, the section being built by H. J. McFarland Construction. Other firms working on other sections of the lane between Marysville and Kingston are nearly as far advanced. C. E. Scott is superintendent on McFarland's part of the work.

THE TATHAM COMPANY

Hon. Irwin Haskett, provincial minister of transport, will be the guest of honor at the official opening of the new Smith Transport terminal, built during the past year by the Tatham Co. Ltd. Top brass of Smith Transport is expected for the event.

Down on St. Paul Street, Bill Northrop of Tatham's has the prestressed concrete in place on an addition to the back of the IGA'OO foundry. Quinte Roofing will finish the roof sometime this week or next.

CITY WORK IN THE RIVER

It was only a rainy-day expedient, but a lot of people were glad to see a bulldozer and city trucks at work Monday, cleaning up the river just above the Upper Bridge. City works supervisor Gordon McInroy said the work was done partly because rain on Monday interrupted the work planned for the day, but he hopes to get time later in the summer to clean up more of the river. The bulldozer and trucks were rented from Hugh McMullen.

NEW FLAG FLOWN

OTTAWA (CP) — Associate Defence Minister Cardin said Monday that the new Canadian pile leaf flag design was flown at sea by HMCS Yukon but that there were no ulterior or sinister motives involved in the incident. Replying in the Commons to Robert C. Coates (PC —Cumberland), an advocate of the Red Ensign as Canada's flag, Mr. Cardin said the maple leaf design was flown at the initiative of the Yukon's commanding officer.

Hear Mikoyan to Be Kicked Upstairs to Red Presidency; Free Brezhnev for K's Job

MOSCOW (AP) — Anastas I. Mikoyan, Moscow's veteran travelling salesman, is reported to be preparing to move into the Kremlin front office.

His appointment to the largely ceremonial post of president of the Soviet Union is to be announced this week during the session of the Soviet parliament, according to unconfirmed reports in Moscow and Cairo.

The shift, apparently marking the final stage of the 68-year-old Bolshevik's public career, was expected to set off a chain reaction in the Kremlin hierarchy.

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, 57, currently touted as Premier Khrushchev's heir apparent, would probably benefit from such a move.

Giving him the presidency would free him from protocol duties to devote full time to building his power base in the party organization, where the vital battles for the succession to Khrushchev will be fought some day.

Mikoyan's semi - retirement probably would entail the transfer of two of his most important functions to other officials.

These are:

Assumption of the premier's duties during Khrushchev's increasingly frequent absences from Moscow.

And his unique role as Khrushchev's personal representative in diplomatic trouble spots.

First Deputy Premier Alexei Kosygin apparently has taken over the first of these jobs. He was pinch-hit governorment chief during two periods this summer when both Khrushchev and Mikoyan were out of the country.

At the same time, Brezhnev was reported to have taken over Khrushchev's chair as first secretary of the Communist party and to be working closely with Kosygin.

Kosygin, 60, a dour industrial premier considered a likely successor in the trouble shooting specialty must, like the black-mustached Armenian, have Khrushchev's absolute confidence.

Alexei Adzhubei, Khrushchev's son-in-law and editor of the government newspaper Izvestia, appears to be the only other person in the premier's inner circle to possess these qualifications.

Most Violent Opposition From Within Own Party

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

After his Munich exploit, Premier Ian West back to Bonn and on Monday started a plan hatched by Adenauer for a Wednesday showdown in the seven - man party executive. Schroeder is not an executive member but Adenauer had invited Strauss—who isn't a member either—to be on hand.

Now the whole thing is to be discussed at a regular meeting next Monday, where Schroeder at least will have a chance to defend himself.

VOTE GETTER

The hard fact appears to be the intra-party opposition does not want to drop Erhard, who as the worker of Germany's "economic miracle" may be a decisive vote-getter in general elections scheduled for next year against the Social Democrats.

But the Adenauer - Strauss faction appears set on knocking down Schroeder because of his encouragement of the trade talks and trade with Communist Eastern Europe as well as his antagonism to unilateral Franco-German union.

It isn't clear whether Schroeder's position has been seriously undermined and there certainly seemed a new firmness in Erhard's words in Munich when he said:

Some people say we need a change in our party at elections: We must not press him too hard. They make a grave error. I do not make policy to win elections, but for Germany and the whole German people."

French-Canada's Youth More Serious Than Last Generation Teachers Told

LAC BEAUPORT, Que (CP) French Canada's youth is more serious and politically-minded than the preceding generation, Sister Marie Laurent-de-Rome, one of the two women members of Quebec's royal commission on education, told a meeting of Canadian teachers Monday.

Sister Laurent-de-Rome was one of the speakers who attempted to explain the special nature of education in a majority French-speaking province to members of the Canadian College of Teachers, a group of diploma-holding teachers from all provinces whose meeting here is a curtain-raiser to the convention of Canada's major teachers' ac ciation.

"They are also impatient, our youth, but their impoliticized seriousness is just as important as their impatience," Sister Laurent-de-Rome said. "They know what they want. When they speak of co-gestion (management) they mean giving students a say in the running of their own universities.

("Gestion" is a French word meaning management.)

Of the 72 members of the Canadian College of Teachers attending session at this resort centre outside Quebec City, 32 will stay to the end of the week for delegates to the annual meeting of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, which groups some 135,000 organized teachers across Canada. The larger association met in executive session Monday. Its convention begins today.

MAKES PLEA

Earlier the college had heard a spokesman for inter provincial co-operation in education make a plea for pooling of research efforts by various provincial educational authorities. Without it, said Dr. Floyd G. Robinson of the Canadian Council on Research in Education, Canada is an "intellectual beggar."

Dr. Robinson anticipated criticism from defenders of provincial rights in education by saying he was not "advocating a federal system of education."

New Zealand Increasingly Admiting Self as Concerned Over South East Asia Issue

NorthPort

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND (CP) — As the situation in Southeast Asia becomes more disturbed, New Zealand is increasingly committing itself as intimately on the defence of the region.

Ever since the Second World War, New Zealand has looked on Southeast Asia as its front line. But today New Zealand has more forces assigned to that theatre than ever before. Government statements indicate that they will take a more active role if the situation deteriorates.

At a member of the eight-nation SEATO pact, New Zealand has undertaken to share in the joint defence of its area against Communist aggression. But it also has obligations toward Malaysia and as a partner with Britain and Australia in maintaining the Commonwealth strategic reserve to meet threats in the region.

New Zealand commitments in Southeast Asia are:

—One infantry battalion as part of the 28th Commonwealth Brigade stationed in Malaysia.

—One and sometimes two warships attached to the British Far East Fleet.

—One and sometimes two air squadrons, based in Malaysia and Thailand, with a third maintaining communications with New Guinea.

—A small field engineer unit helping to build a strategic airfield in Singapore Island.

—A small field engineer unit sent to South Viet Nam to repair roads but not more flags" in that country.

—Officers serving in Malayan units.

—Training of Malysian forces in New Zealand.

—Supply of military equipment to Malaysia.

MAY SERVE IN BORNEO

So far New Zealand has not committed troops to the Sabah or Sarawak borders in Borneo for defence against Indonesian incursions.

But Prime Minister Keith Holyoake now has announced that the infantry battalion based at Terendak camp, near Malacca, will be made available for Borneo service it there is further serious deterioration in that area.

This battalion is fit, at full strength, highly trained and eager for new spheres of activity. It has been engaged in jungle exercises and patrolling on the Malaysia-Thai border for remnants of terrorists. It is the kind of unit which would be exceedingly welcome in Borneo, where British, Gurkha and Malaysian units are stretched thinly along a great length of wild jungle frontier.

In fact, officers of the battalion face a problem in maintaining morale when British battalions based in Malaysia leave for periods of service in Borneo while the New Zealanders remain behind. The same applies to the Australian battalion based at Penang, the 28th Commonwealth Brigade.

AUSSIES BUSY

But the Australians now are taking an active part in the Borneo conflict. An engineer unit has been sent to Borneo and two minesweepers have been assigned to service in Borneo waters.

New Zealand support has so far been confined to a certain amount of naval duty there and a regular air freight run. The indication by the prime minister that a more active role will be taken if confrontation becomes more serious is taken as a sign that New Zealand is committing herself even more wholeheartedly than in the past to full military backing of Malaysia.

This decision follows a tour of the region a month ago by Prime Minister Holyoake, following the annual SEATO conference in Manila.

Holyoake seems to have been impressed, as are all New Zealanders who visit Malaysia, by the determination of this new nation to defend itself and by the very evident spirit of progress and enterprise which is bringing development at a remarkable pace.

Osprey's Nest In Highlands Closely Guarded

BOAT OF GARTEN, Scotland (AP)—One of the most closely-guarded secrets in Britain is the whereabouts of a bird's nest.

It is the eyrie of Britain's rarest bird, the osprey, a large fish hawk that inhabits the lakes and heather-clad moorlands of Scotland's north.

Only two pairs of ospreys are known to exist in Britain, and both have built nests here in the most in the shadow of the blue Cairngorm Mountains.

One nest is a popular tourist attraction. Visitors can watch it through binoculars from a hilltop about 250 yards away. This osprey couple have hatched a clutch of eggs, but how many nestlings there are only the ospreys know.

The locality of the second nest—somewhere in the same area—is secret. Only a few people, members of the Society for the Protection of Birds who are mounting the guard, know exactly where.

ONCE COMMON

The handsome brown - and-white hawks with a five-foot wingspan once were fairly common in these parts.

Collectors coveted their eggs and wrecked their nests. Other birds were shot, just for the fun of it. In the end the ospreys winged away to breed in some other country.

For seven years they were not seen to-nest in the Highlands. This spring two pairs came back, they built nests as high in the trees with a hunter's view of beautiful Loch Garten, rich with fish and set about with pines, beech and bog oak.

Perhaps the osprey could be saved for Britain after all. If the chicks survived they likely would choose the Highlands when their turn came to build nests. And so it would go on.

Bird-lovers therefore were determined that the osprey pairs would have every chance. They turned the woods about Loch

Young Canadian on Cyprus

Sorting Out the Anger of the Beleaguered

By PETER BUCKLEY

KIPRI, Cyprus (CP) — A young Canadian army officer daily weighs complaints and faces flashes of anger from Cypriot villagers caught up in the violent dispute between the Greek majority and the Turkish minority of this Mediterranean island.

Second Lieut. Mike Perreten, 23, commands a platoon of the Royal 22nd Regiment, part of the United Nations peace-keeping force, which is divided into three sections guarding against violence in the villages of Kipri, Agiridha and Pileri in the southern foothills of the Kyrenia Mountains.

Perreten, a native of Williams Lake, B.C., makes the rounds of local villages in a jeep over bumpy roads to hear the petitions and appeals of a peasantry dislocated and disrupted by racial hostility.

On one such journey he stopped first at the Turkish village of Phoita, normally a hamlet of 500 but doubled in size by refugees.

In the village cafe, the elders and idlers were gathered, squatting on low wooden chairs in a semicircle, while in a corner the village barber—for no apparent reason wearing a dried silk-like flower behind his ear—clipped and shaved customers throughout the visit.

The mukhtar or mayor, a man of about 50 with lined face and close-cropped hair, bought a round of coffee, brought a fee for those nearest him while a boy went to fetch the schoolteacher.

SHOWS ANGER

The schoolteacher proved to be an elegant man in khaki shirt and trousers who acted as interpreter between Perreten and the mukhtar and any others with problems.

After arranging to provide the Canadian platoon with fresh eggs and crops in Greek hands and other property allegedly destroyed by the Greeks, the teacher suddenly grabbed a roll of claim papers from the mukhtar's hand and waved them angrily:

"You ask why we hate the Greeks? This is why. These papers are about our crops that have been destroyed, our homes ruined, our property stolen. This is why we must have our separate state."

The mukhtar seemed perhearsed. The old men leaning on their canes, long mustaches wilting under the hot breeze through the doorway that dispersed the smell of coffee and sweat, looked at the young teacher and then looked away.

Then Phoita, Perreten's jeep manoeuvred five miles on dirt paths, past a Greek machine-gun post on a hill, to the hostile atmosphere of the Greek village of Skyllouras.

Greek Cypriots in the area had fired on two Canadians guarding Turkish harvesters a few days earlier. Although the shots missed, Perreten raised a row and Skyrouilas apparently had the fear of God in him. The young bloods believe the Canadians provide too much protection for the Turks.

HOMES BURNED

A Greek businessman, reasonably friendly, was recruited as interpreter and Perreten reiterated the Greek Cypriot insistence on majority rule in Cyprus, with protection of minority Turkish rights.

"We do not hate the Turks," he said. "We want the troubles we lived as one. We each went our own ways and there were no problems. This is the way it must be again."

But behind him, from the porch of the general store, could be seen abandoned Turkish homes, looted and burned. Skyrouilas used to have 600 Greeks and 250 Turkish residents. Now only the Greeks live there.

After Skyllouras, Perreten moved to Agios Ermolaos, a curious oasis of harmony in the general hostility. Some 250 Greeks live with 17 Turks separately but without apparent trouble.

A high school boy, acting as interpreter over the inevitable cups of coffee, explained that some Turks came to the village and warned their local compatriots that they were in danger. But the village Turks stayed. "There is no problem," the boy said.

Shooting in Perreten's area has diminished substantially in three months since the platoon's arrival. But so has local enthusiasm for the UN presence. When the Van Doos first came, Perreten says, the villagers applauded as they drove by in their jeeps. Now the grinning children pause in their games and wave at the Canadians, but the adults generally show only indifference, if not hostility.

Small Change Short in U.S.

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Coin shortages in the United States and continued shortage of world silver production in terms of consumption keep silver prices firm but still notably inflexible.

The U.S. treasury's reserve of the metal hangs over the market as a governor, even if the minting of new small coins is short of feeding the maw of more vending machines or of meeting the needs of checkout clerks at the supermarkets.

Some experts, looking at the world picture, predict that the supply deficit of the metal itself may be eased a bit in the next few years. But the small-coin problem seems sure to hang on in the U.S.

Pressure to change the silver content of coins, or even to eliminate it altogether, is therefore likely to rise. But the chances of the market price of silver in the U.S. either rising or falling to any marked degree is held slight. Its big 40-per-cent jump from November, 1961, to September, 1963, is unlikely to be repeated.

PRICE STEADY

The price has held steady for months at $1.293 U.S. a troy ounce. This is the actual market value of the silver in the U.S. dollar. But experts say the price would have to rise above $1.40 an ounce before it would be profitable to melt down dimes, quarters and half-dollars for their silver content.

The treasury's present reserve of silver is estimated to be enough to fulfill normal coinage requirements for about 10 to 12 years. But the big demand for the metal from electric and other industries, and from makers of household, jewelry and art objects, seems more likely to deplete the reserve in seven to eight years. Industry can buy from the treasury when the outside supply is depleted or too tight.

World production levelled off, even slumped for a time, but as industrial demand started to rise with the electronics and aerospace age. The output decline was due to the fact that copper, lead and zinc weren't enjoying silver's popularity. About two-thirds of silver production is a by-product of the mining of these other metals.

But now copper, zinc, and lead are looking up, and so is silver production. Monetary experts at New York's Chase Manhattan Bank predict that output in Mexico, Peru and the United States will rise at about five per cent a year.

Canada has 125,000 farms producing goods worth less than $7,000 annually. Hundreds are abandoned each year. And even efficient farms operate with rising costs. It all adds up to a revolution in Canadian agriculture. The changing face of Canada's primary industry is examined in this story.

By ARCH McKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"God blessed our labors and gave us fair wheat, rye, barley oats, peas, beans, hemp, turnips and garden herbs."

The rye was as tall as the tallest man that may be seen."

That's a settler assessed the first farming venture of New France, in 1605 at Port Royal in what now is western Nova Scotia.

With a few alterations the statement could be used to describe Canada's huge agricultural complex 364 centuries later.

Agriculture today is Canada's most important primary industry. It's the most efficient. But, in contrast to the early days when good crops mean automatic prosperity, it is beset by complications that also make it perhaps the most troubled industry.

Its land, buildings and livestock represent invested capital of $15,331,000,000 against $1,790,000,000 in 1901.

It accounts in one way or another for about one dollar in consumer spending. Canada's annual consumer food bill is $6,000,000,000—twice what it is today.

Western man may soon be as preoccupied with food production as he is at times now with curtailing it.

But in the meantime, the cost-price squeeze, a situation in which costs rise while revenue goes up only slightly, remains stationary or even declines, is forcing more and more Canadians from their land.

Some authorities suggest that better methods on farm can output for domestic and export use will be handled by 150,000 commercial farms compared with the 361,000 — those producing goods worth at least $1,200—reported in the 1961 census.

NEW REVOLUTION

H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, wrote not long before his death in 1963:

"So rapidly is the farming industry changing that in future it may be possible to look back and find that agriculture was transformed as radically by this revolution as the industrial world was transformed by the industrial revolution of the late 18th century."

In this revolution the farmer is getting older. His sons leave the farm or lack funds to start on their own. His farm is seeking to become bigger or more costly to operate, or both. It is increasingly specialized.

The 1961 total of 461,000 farms compared with 513,000 in 1951 and the record of 733,000 in 1941.

The farm population in 1931 was 3,280,146 or more than 30 per cent of the population of Canada. In 1941 it was 3,152,448 or 27 per cent of a population of 11,506,655. Today there are about 2,128,000 people on Canadian farms or 11 per cent of the 19,180,000 population.

"In a country such as Canada, industry seems to pass from infancy to adolescence about the time that its agriculture becomes 'mature,'" says Dr. Robert Glen, assistant deputy minister of agriculture in charge of research.

"That's about the stage we are in today—a maturing agriculture helping to save the way for budding secondary industries."

TROUBLED INDUSTRY — Canada has 461,000 farms and most are struggling with rising costs. About 125,000 farms are producing goods worth less than $1,200 annually and most are too depressed by bad land or obsolete methods to meet the increase in costs which in 1963 amounted to two-thirds of a $3,000,000,000 farm cash income.
(CP Special Newsmap)

EARLY DAYS — In early days, good crops meant automatic prosperity, but technological advance since the Second World War has trimmed farming into more demanding territory. It is changed annually, despite better methods and greater productivity. This reproduction of a work by Canadian painter C. W. Jeffries shows a harvest scene of the early 17th century.

FEWER FARM WORKERS

The tremendous shift is illustrated by the decline in the farm labor force from 1,375,000 in 1930 to about 650,000 today—anticipated by the year 2000. Western man may soon be as preoccupied with food production as he is at times now with curtailing it.

"Essentially this advance in Western agricultural and food practices has served to free more than half our total manpower for other pursuits such as engineering, medicine, law, teaching, commerce, labor and the various arts and sciences," said a key work paper at last year's world food congress in Washington.

While this may be described as progress, the problem is that many individuals are hurt by the march to efficiency. And in some ways this problem can be attributed to the early settlers.

Farming progress was slow in Canada from the time in 1535 when Jacques Cartier spotted Indians at the foot of Mount Royal engaged in primitive cultivation of pumpkins, beans and peas.

A census of Acadian agronomy in 1671 showed that Port Royal in 45 years had expanded to a venture comprising only 1441 Acadians on 360 acres with 407 sheep, 366 cattle and 35 goats.

And while farming took root at what now is Quebec City only a few months after the beginnings in Port Royal, it was until 1671 that Frontenac planted the first Ontario farm colony at what today is Kingston.

BARREN EARTH

From about 1760 there was little real agricultural growth in Upper and Lower Canada. After Confederation in 1867, development spread to the west and particularly the Prairies. By 1900 this was causing substantial readjustment in central and eastern Canada.

Dr. Glen suggests one real water mark was in 1886 when the first federal experimental stations were established to study the base laid for a scientific assault on farm problems.

But the minister of agriculture in charge of research.

"That's about the stage we are in today—a maturing agriculture helping to save the way for budding secondary industries."

FARMS LEAD

The Prairies form the dominant farming area, with about 73 per cent of the developed land, three-fifths of the gross farm output and half the dollar value.

One of the three predominant land zones on the Prairies — some 42,500,000 acres of black soil — is among the richest lands, suitable for diversified output although limited by climate and rainfall. The second zone is the Fraser Valley of B.C., stretches of southwestern Ontario or some of the St. Lawrence River lowlands.

There is also the "forest fringe," ranging from the Peace River country of Alberta and British Columbia to Nova Scotia. This is a narrow and extremely irregular strip close to or mixed in with the forest—tending to poor soil, small population and a label as a rural slum.

There are also the river valley regions, and finally the city-centred region, matched by urban sprawl. Some of Canada's best land, in the Niagara Fenisula or in Quebec's St. Lawrence lowlands, faces this threat.

Tomorrow: The spreading rural slum.

11-Ton Engine Bought In W. Germany

VICTORIA (CP)—Some people have fairies at the bottom of their garden. Len Hutton has a locomotive.

Mr. Hutton, who has spent 35 years driving every kind of steam engine—from farm tractor to locomotive—bought the 11-ton steam locomotive for old time's sake. He plans to turn it into a tourist attraction.

The 25-year-old behemoth was shipped here by sea from West Germany.

"Once I get her clothed up and ready to go, she could be a popular attraction in one of our parks.

"She was built for use in surface mining but the mine closed in 1943 and the engine was retired after only seven years of use so she should be in good shape."

Mr. Hutton doesn't say how much the locomotive cost him, but he admits to spending $1,150 in customs duties to bring it into Canada.

The engine runs on a two-foot-gauge track.

Mr. Hutton said he had his mind set on an engine in the United States but found it would have cost more to have that one shipped here than $1,150 to ship the German one by sea.

Mr. Hutton gained his first experience with steam engines on aboard a threshing machine on his parents' farm near Prince Albert, Sask., in the early 1920s.

He has driven many steam engines since then and found the trickiest job was manoeuvring big locomotives at Ogden Point docks here.

"One mistake, and the whole engine could have gone into the drink."

6th Sidney

6TH SIDNEY — Miss Leona Morton, Belleville was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Sine.

The Sidney charge of the United Church will hold their official quarterly board meeting in Wallbridge church hall on Monday evening, July 13. All members from the four appointments are expected to attend.

Miss Nina Sine, Richmond Hill called on her mother, Mrs. Morley Sine on Friday evening. She was enroute to her cottage on Steinburg Lake.

NEW SCHOOL

Work has commenced on the new two-roomed school at Marsh Hill (S.S. No. 20 Sidney). Miron-Wigger, building contractors, Trenton, began work last week and the school should be ready for occupancy early in September.

The Misses Monica and Elaine Sine are spending a few holidays with the Misses Nancy and Maureen Boldrick at their cottage.

Two carloads of ladies from the sixth line attended the Hillendale Women's Institute meeting at Mrs. G. Burkitt's last Thursday evening. The 4-H girls did good work in sewing garments made in their recent club.

Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Sine and boys called on Mr. and Mrs. S. Meyers, 2nd Sidney, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Dafoe were Sunday afternoon callers of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Badgley, Thurlow.

Mrs. Maurice Dafoe visited her mother, Mrs. W. Findall, Belleville on Saturday afternoon as she has just returned to the city from a trip west.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dafoe and boys also Mr. and Mrs. Ron Dafoe visited on Friday with Mr. and Mrs. F. Dudley on the Foxboro Road.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

Softball pitchers come and go—but Ray Judd, the famous Mormon fireman, likes Ole Man River "just keeps rollin' along."

Judd may not be a King Felgner as far as tricks with a softball are concerned, but he is one of the smartest mound wizards to show his wares in these parts.

In his second year with the Toronto Richmond Shells of the Metro Fastball League, the likeable Judd is making a bold bid to repeat as the league's most valuable player.

He won the Dow MVP award in 1963. Up to recently he had pitched his team to eight wins in nine starts, fanning 162, walking but four and giving up only 30 hits and seven runs in 81½ innings.

As local softball buffs will attest, Judd is a crowd-pleaser and "crowd-attracter." When he was pitching for the Lakefield team he broke all mound records in the Peterborough area.

Last year with the Toronto club he visited his old stamping grounds and won the Peterborough district tournament fashioning yet another record.

He struck out 53 batters in his three-game mound stint and did it in 90-degree weather. He had 35 strikeouts, all done in just four hours.

The week before in a Toronto tournament he whiffed 63 men in 28 innings. He pitched in three games in 24 hours and lost the third 1-0 in eleven innings.

In 66 innings last year with the Richmond Hill club Judd fanned 121 batters, walked but two and gave up 19 hits. His "bread and butter" pitches are a rise and a sharp drop. His control needs no comment.

That "something" Judd told sports writers last year "that had gone out of my pitching" apparently has come back to roost—with interest. He said he was getting tagged for too many home runs and "hitters are getting wise to my special pitches."

During Judd's sojourn with the Lakefield club he formed a sort of mutual admiration society with Pat Marzolo. He said he had a wholesome respect for the ability and personality of "Ole Rubber Arm." And Paddy had nothing but the highest praise for the Judd capabilities.

Judd and Marzolo met on a few occasions in mound duels and each resulted in what could be called softball classics. If memory is correct Paddy defeated Judd on a couple of occasions in exhibitions and playdown tilts. One game that went twelve innings resulted in a scoreless tie at CNIA Park.

I talked with Judd on a couple of occasions and found him to be a likeable, personable chap who always plays to win but never gloats over beaten opponents.

He was the first to congratulate Paddy Marzolo when the Point Anne star registered his first victory over the Mormon fireballer. He is that kind of a sportsman.

Over the years softball fans hereabouts have seen several topnotch softball pitchers in action, either in exhibition or playdown games.

The Zubs, the Sparrows, the Bagnells and other hurlers of first-rank calibre have shown their wares here but if a popularity contest was held I think Judd would win it on the first ballot.

And speaking of pitchers, I note, via pal Perdue, Peterborough sports columnist, that one Sleepy Dawes, former hotshot of Cobourg is working up thataway and tossed a no-hitter, egad, in a Petes Industrial Softball League encounter.

Will Try PGA Tourney

Lema 'Emotionally Dry'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Tony Lema, 30, wouldn't give too much for his chances in the PGA golf championship this week, but he's ready to give it a try.

"I'm emotionally drained dry after the British Open," said the gangling golfer from San Leandro, Calif., winner of the 104-year-old British classic last weekend.

"I don't see how I can possibly get myself up for another tournament so quickly.

"If this weren't the PGA, if this were just another weekly tournament, I think I'd skip it."

The 46th annual PGA tournament opens Thursday over the 6,353-yard Columbus course with all the big names of golf, foreign and domestic, listed in the 168-man field.

NICKLAUS AT HOME

Jack Nicklaus, the 24-year-old defending champion, lives here. Arnold Palmer, the all-time leading money winner, checked in and immediately started hammering away on the head of his putter.

Ken Venturi, the new National Open champion, came in from New Rochelle, N.Y., where he lost the Wykagyl round robin by a single point.

Gary Player of South Africa and left-handed Bob Charles of New Zealand flew in from Scotland, after choking up the smoke of Lema's spectacular victory.

Lema is the winner of four tournaments in the last six he's played. He won the British Open by five strokes over runner-up Nicklaus and scored 279, just a stroke off his St. Andrews record.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Lady G, winless in her previous six outings, finally registered at the Western Fair Raceway Monday night when she easily won the featured $500 pace, going the mile in 2:09 1-5.

The four-year-old mare had been close in her previous three starts and went to the post as favorite. She paid $3.60 to win.

Another Mareen Kitty Chips was odds-on choice of the crowd of 2,647 persons in the seventh race and paid $3.20 but posted an exacta of $31.40 with second-place Tommy Lee H, an 11-1 shot.

AL Bats Blast 25-Homers Barrage

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Former Homer Record Set By National

NEW YORK (AP)—American League players shattered a major-league record by hitting 25 home runs Monday, breaking the mark for most home runs in a five-game schedule.

The record of 21 was set by the National League May 2, 1894, and equalled by the American League July 2, 1961.

Kansas City and Chicago accounted for 11 homers in a doubleheader classic during a eight-homer tumult in the second game, with the Athletics blasting six. New York and Boston hit four apiece.

Twenty-four different players hit for the circuit, with Tom Tresh of the Yankees the only player to hit two, slamming one inside-the-park and the other righthanded.

The last player to hit a home run from both sides of the plate in a single game also was Tresh, on Sept. 1, 1963.

Home runs were flying over American League fences at a record clip but Al Lopez wasn't concerned until one of them got lost on Charley Finley's pennant porch.

Then the Chicago White Sox pilot blew his top.

There were 26 homers hit in the Al. Monday, four more than the previous mark for one league in a five-game schedule and one more than Lopez counted.

He's convinced that Wayne Causey's homer in the second game of a doubleheader, a three-run shot that led to an 8-7 Kansas City victory over the White Sox, was nothing more than a figment of Finley's runaway green-and-gold drawing board.

Chicago had taken the first game 5-2 and was leading 6-3 in the seventh inning of the nightcap when Causey's drive fell where a hole sequestered the shortened portion of Municipal Stadium from the high wall in centre field.

The umpires ruled the ball had cleared the porch's low fence, hopped over the wall and hit the wall in centre and was playable. Lopez lost the debate and was tossed out of the game.

Ron Hansen of the White Sox and the Athletics' Jim Gentile then matched eighth - inning homers before Causey's baseloaded single in the ninth broke up the eight-homer slugfest.

YANKS GAIN A GAME

The split cost Chicago a chance to gain two games on the league - leading Baltimore Orioles, who dropped a 10-inning 4-3 decision to Detroit Tigers. New York Yankees gained a game on the Orioles with a 10-4 rout of Cleveland Indians. Boston Red Sox blanked Washington Senators 7-0 in the other game scheduled.

The Chicago-Kansas City twin bill produced 11 home runs. First-game winner Gary Peters, 10-4, poked a three-run homer to pace the White Sox 16-hit attack. George Alusik and Dick Green connected for the Athletics.

Pete Ward, Don Buford, Gene Stephens and Hansen homered for the Sox; Manny Jimenez, Ed Charles, Causey and Gentile for the Athletics in the nightcap.

Jerry Lumpe's bases-loaded single in the 10th gave the Tigers their second straight one-run victory over Baltimore, which had won 21 of 23 one-run verdicts before Sunday.

Brooks Robinson's two - run ninth inning homer sent the game into overtime after Don Demeter's solo shot in the second and two unearned runs in the sixth had given the Tigers a 3-1 bulge. Sam Bowens' homer accounted for the Orioles' first run.

The Yankees climbed within 1½ games of Baltimore with their seventh straight victory over the Indians. Tom Tresh hit a pair of two-run homers—one from each side of the plate—and Mickey Mantle and Cleto Boyer also homered, offsetting three by Cleveland.

Boston's Bill Monbouquette turned in the top pitching performance—a four-hit shutout—and the Red Sox twice struck for back-to-back homers. Dick Stuart and Lee Thomas connected in the five-run fourth inning and Felix Mantilla and Tony Conigliaro duplicated in the eighth.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Mornine' Mornin, a four-year-old grey gelding who has performances this season have been off color; Monday won his first race of the season at Woodbine when he took the featured seventh.

A serious contender in last year's Queen's Plate, Mornine' Mornin has been less than that this year, and before Monday's effort had earned a paltry $1,400.

With Eric Walsh riding Mornine' Mornin shot right to the front and plodded home through the mud a 3½-length winner.

He returned $9.10, $4.80 and $3.00.

Says Koufax 'Close To Unhittable'

By CHARLES MAHER

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Up to now, the story of Sandy Koufax has largely been a story of statistics.

One trouble with statistics is they sometimes get a little tedious. But about the only alternative is to have the story told by people, and the trouble with people is that they sometimes get a little carried away.

In a series beginning today, the story will be told both ways, but mostly by people, including Koufax.

He'll tell about the time when he was so disgusted he began to wonder if he shouldn't quit the game, and he'll talk a little about his private life. Others will talk about Sandy's disposition, about his relations with teammates such as Don Drysdale, another $70,000 pitcher.

Get just about any baseball man going on the subject of Koufax and in the space of an evening you can assemble one of the biggest collections of superlatives this side of Madison Avenue.

Former International League president Frank J. Shaughnessy, who saw such pitchers as Christy Mathewson, Grover Cleveland Alexander and Walter Johnson, says Koufax "comes closer to being unhittable than any other pitcher I ever saw."

Ex-outfielder Richie Ashburn calls Koufax "a superman among pitchers."

"I was playing for the Mets when Koufax pitched that no-hitter against them in 1963," Ashburn says. "I remember one pitch he threw me in that game. It was the hardest pitch I ever saw. And, in 15 years, I saw quite a few."

Alvin Dark, now manager of San Francisco Giants, says Koufax is the only pitcher against whom he never entertained the slightest hope of hitting a home run.

Bob Oldis of Philadelphia Phillies said when Koufax is pitching "the batter should get four strikes and three balls and the runner should be credited with one-quarter of a run for every base he occupies."

The Koufax statistics cover the better part of two pages in the 1964 Dodger yearbook, and Koufax has added to the list since the book was published.

He is the only pitcher now active with three no-hitters. He is the only pitcher in major league history with two 18-strikeout performances.

He holds the National League strikeout record for a single season (306 in 1963 a nd has fanned 10 or more batters in a game on 55 occasions, a major league record.

He also holds the record for most strikeouts in a World Series game, 15 in the first game of 1963, and his strikeout average, better than nine per game, is the highest in major league history among pitchers who have worked 1,000 or more innings.

Koufax had the lowest earned-run average among major league starting pitchers in 1962 —2.54—and in 1963—1.88. He pitched 11 shutouts last year, the most ever achieved by a left-hander in one season.

Moreover, Koufax has a career batting average of well over .080.

Pitching—Bill Monbouquette, Red Sox, pitched his first shutout and first complete game of the season, limiting Washington Senators to four hits in 7-0 Boston victory.

Batting—Lou Brock, Cardinals, collected seven hits in doubleheader sweep over Pittsburgh Pirates, slamming homer, double and single in 5-4, 12-inning first game triumph and blasting a homer, triple and two singles as St. Louis won nightcap 11-8.

Cards' Brock Is A 'Natural', 7 Come 11

Two Homers, Triple, Double

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Twice in one evening, Lou Brock tried to score from third base and was thrown out at the plate.

So you wouldn't nominate him as St. Louis Cardinals most popular player of the night. You'd say he was due for a fine, or at least a bit of base-running drill.

Well, the chances are that manager Johnny Keane will let him off this time. After all, when a fellow gets seven hits in 11 official trips including two homers, a triple and a double during a doubleheader and manages to score five runs, you can't afford to overlook a lapse or two, particularly if your team wins both games.

With Brock doing the homers, the Cards thrashed Pittsburgh Pirates 12-3 after tripping them 6-4 in 12 innings. Meanwhile San Francisco Giants downed Houston Colts 5-3, Philadelphia Phillies edged Milwaukee Braves and Warren Spahn 9-2 and Chicago Cubs belted Los Angels Dodgers 10-4.

Monday night's Houston-San Francisco game was not without incident as Craft was ejected for the second night in a row.

The latest hassle revolved around umpire Tony Venzon's ruling that Colt shortstop Eddie Kasko had not touched second base on an attempted force out in the ninth inning. That left two Giants on base and led to the decision. Orlando Cepeda's sacrifice fly brought in the tie-breaker before Jim Hart singled in an insurance run.

O'DELL GETS WIN

The victory went to Billy O'Dell, who didn't get into an argument, got an opportunity to pitch and allowed only one hit in four innings of relief work.

That gave the left hander a measure of revenge for his experience Sunday, when he was tossed out by the umpires before he had a chance to throw a ball when he got into a hassle over his warmup pitches.

At Pittsburgh, the Cardinals lashed 15 hits in the first game before finally winning on Julian Javier's run-scoring single in the 12th inning. Twenty hits and six Pittsburgh errors made the nightcap easier. Bill White hit a homer in each game for the Cardinals.

The Phillies, who had lost four straight to left-handers, snapped the string by beating Spahn as Richie Allen slammed a double and triple and scored two runs. Spahn's loss left him with a 6-6 record but he went the distance for the first time in 12 games.

The Cubs beat the Dodgers and Don Drysdale, 11-8 with a five-run uprising after two were out in the sixth inning. Andre Rodgers' three-run homer was the big blow. Larry Jackson got the victory, his 13th against six losses.

Beats Top-Ranking Marksmen

Boy, 13, Makes Bisley History

BISLEY, England (CP)—William Brereton, 13-year-old son of Lt.-Col. Donald Brereton of Winnipeg, Canadian Bisley team captain, made Bisley history Monday night.

Bill became the youngest winner of a cash prize in a major competition and the first boy to successfully challenge a National Rifle Association prize list.

On Saturday, he scored 47 out of a possible 50 in The Daily Telegraph Cup competition at 900 yards, shooting his father and at least 40 other internationally known marksmen, but he was "counted out" of the prize list.

He challenged the accuracy of the prize list Monday night and put in a claim for one of the two-pluss prizes.

After an official check, the NRA issued a corrected list, including a $3 prize for Bill.

Pte. D. Moffat of Calgary, an Englishman serving with the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and E. Thompson of Australia were among the top scorers Monday who will shoot off Wednesday for a challenge cup and $150.

With 12 British competitors, they put all 10 shots into the bullseye at 500 yards to make the highest possible score of 50.

Cadet Sgt. George Franklin, 18, of Ingersoll, Ont., shot a 47 in the Duke of Cambridge Trophy competition out of a possible 50.

Cadet WO2 B. M. Watt of Victoria, B.C., placed fourth in the Clement Smith Challenge when he scored 145 out of a possible 150 in three of Saturday's events at 200, 300 and 600 yards.

Stamps Meet Als Tonight

MONTREAL (CP) — The stand-pat Calgary Stampeders face Montreal Alouettes, loaded with new talent, in the first pre-season Canadian Football League game of 1964 tonight.

For both teams, the game will be primarily a chance to ex periment.

Calgary shows with a team barely changed from the one that lost to underdog Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Western Conference semi-finals last season.

"We're basically the same team as in the last 3½ years," said Jim Finks, Calgary general manager. "Although now we're more mature."

Alouettes will be doing more experimenting than the Stamps. Montreal coach Jim Trimble has a completely rebuilt defence to test against the tough westerners.

Rookie quarterback George Bork of the Als, and offensive end Hugh Rohrschneider, his Illinois pass receiver, will be under heavy fire for the first time. Bork completed 16 of 18 passes in last week's Alouette intra-squad game, but wasn't subjected to much of a rush from a third-string defence.

The rookies will be backed by veterans Dave Hoppmann, Billy Wayte, George Dixon, Marv Luster and talented newcomer Willie Lambert in the starting backfield.

HARKNESS IS BACK

NEW YORK (AP) — First baseman Tim Harkness, on the disabled list since May 30, has been returned to the active list and shortstop Amado Samuel has been optioned to Buffalo by Minnesota, from where he came, New York Mets announced Monday. Harkness, from Peachtree, Que., crashed into a retaining wall at San Francisco's Candlestick Park May 17 and suffered nerve injuries in the upper right arm and shoulder.

Rain Caused Truce On All Sports Fronts

Rain played havoc with the district sports schedule last night.

The Eastern Ontario Senior baseball tilt, scheduled for the Belleville Fairgrounds, between Little Britain and Canniffon was postponed.

Also washed out was the Belleville and District Softball League game, at Tweed, between Trenton Commercial Printers and Lombards.

The loop schedule winds up this week, with three clubs still in the running. Here at Tweed is slated to visit Trudeau Motors at the CNRA Park at 6.45 p.m. if the field is in playing condition.

Commercial Softball League games, between Belvedere Hotel and Lightfoot Construction and Point Anne and City Hotel, were also postponed.

While no announcements were given, it is thought that other district leagues, including minor softball and baseball, were also forced to submit to wet grounds.

No dates had been announced this morning for re-scheduling of any of the above games.

Two Players Injured In Fist Brawl

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Two players were injured Monday night when a free-swinging battle royal erupted in the sixth inning of the Hawaii-San Diego Pacific Coast League game.

Danny Rivera, a left-handed pitcher for the islanders, broke his left hand. His teammate, outfielder Lennie Green, suffered a cut beneath his left eye which took four stitches to close.

The free-for-all erupted after Rivera hit Padres' Jim Coates. Coates and Hawaii bench came pouring onto the field and haymakers began to fly.

Padres' manager Dave Bristol floored Green with a right to the jaw. Then Cal Emery of Hawaii slugged Bristol and he went down.

Good Guys Win Over Bad Ones

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions dressed their rookies in white-jerseys, their rookies in villainous black, and lat in 12,860 fans Monday night to watch the good guys win 45-14. It was the annual intra-squad game for the Western Football Conference champions and it went predictably. Some 25 men who have been around for a year or more packed the strong team and 27 others made up the underdogs.

Senators Trade Moose

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington Senators traded first baseman Bill (Moose) Skowron to Chicago White Sox for first baseman Joe Cunningham in a double waiver transaction Monday.

Carl Bouldin, a right-handed pitcher, was sent by the Senators to Indianapolis, a White Sox farm team in the Pacific Coast League, as part of the deal.

In addition, the Senators are to receive another player at a later date. Both teams said no cash was involved.

Skowron, batting .271 batting average with the Senators this year. He played in 73 games, hit 13 home runs and drove in 41 runs. The Senators purchased him last December from the Los Angeles Dodgers, who had acquired him the previous year from the New York Yankees in a trade for pitcher Stan Williams.

Meets Stamps In Exhibition

Argonauts Need This One

TORONTO (CP)—There's a certain amount of dramatic irony in the fact that Calgary Stampeders will be the opposition when Toronto Argonauts open their pre-season exhibition football schedule Thursday night.

Argos remember only too well the last visit here by the Stampeders. The 1963 season was well along when the Western Football Conference contenders walloped Argos 50-0 in Toronto.

Argos never did recover from the humiliation and the season's end found them in last place in the Eastern Football Conference.

A victory, or even a defeat with honor, might give Knobby Wirkowski's club the confidence it needs to have any serious thoughts of wresting last place. A lopsided beating, on the other hand, might be a setback from which Argos won't recover until it's too late.

Toronto hopes are based on a fair number of question marks, the major one being whether the great Jackie Parker's gimpy legs have really healed. If he can play quarterback with approximation of the style he displayed in his years with Edmonton Eskimos, it could make all the difference.

Wings Whip Leafs 7-2, Vees Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Baltimore Orioles could make a sizable number of friends in the American League pennant drive by recalling young Curt Blefary. About 50 International League pitchers would be willing to root for anyone who got the free - swinging Rochester outfielder out of their hair.

Blefary and the Red Wings picked on Toronto Maple Leafs Monday night, clobbering them 7-2 though the Leafs tried just about every stratagem in the book, to cope with the left-handed slugger.

Howie Koplitz, the Leafs' only southpaw starter, pitched to Blefary with an Ruthian powerfully deployed to cope with Curt's publishing. Only third-baseman Ernie Virgil, just back of the mound, was stationed on the left side.

Blefary responded with a run-scoring double, a single and his 25th home run, besides receiving a base on balls, before he retired for defensive reasons with a three-for-four record.

Richmond Virginians shaded Atlanta Crackers 5-4 in the only other game played as rain postponed Columbus game at Jacksonville. Buffalo Bisons and Syracuse Chiefs weren't scheduled.

LAVER WINS

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP)—Rod Laver, the 26-year-old Australian with a wide variety of shots, won the U.S. professional tennis championship Monday at Longwood Cricket Club. Laver beat off the challenge of many-times champion Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles to win 6-4, 6-2, 7-5, 6-4 before a crowd of almost 3,000.

NAMED DIRECTOR

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Alouettes today announced the appointment of Paul Desruisseaux, Sherbrooke lawyer and publisher, as a director of the Montreal Football Conference club. Mr. Desruisseaux, 39, is president of Sherbrooke La Tribune and director of a number of companies including the Royal Bank of Canada, General Trust of Canada and Canadian General Electric Company.

Key To Davis Cup Team

Aussies' Roy Emerson Fails To Appear

By TED BLACKMAN

MONTREAL (CP) — Harry Hopman, manager of Australia's Davis Cup team, cast an assigned glares across the Atlantic ocean and asked himself: "Where's Roy Emerson?"

The Wimbledon champ and top-ranked member of the Aussie squad is one day overdue and already has missed three days of practice for this week-end's Davis Cup tie against Canada.

"I don't know" where he is," said Hopman Monday. "I called the hotel and they said an Emerson was registered but wasn't answering his phone. I thought that was funny and I checked. It turned out two Emersons had checked in, but not the one I need."

Emerson, whose suspension by the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia was lifted in time for him to compete, is the key to the Aussie team. Even Canadian coach Beverley concede he's worth two victories in the best-of-five matches.

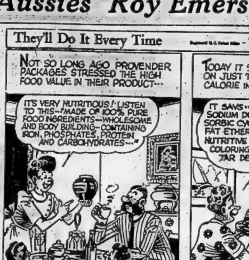
And then there's John Newcombe, Tony Roche and Owen Davidson, the other three team members who are overwhelming favorites to defeat Canada in the first round of the North American zone. The winner plays New Zealand or Mexico where the optimistic Aussies have high hopes.

LEFT CLOTHES

"We left some clothes behind in Mexico City," Hopman says. "But I think we'll leave them there. There's no use having them shipped back to Australia."

It was an obvious prediction that Emerson would have no trouble handling the Canadians when they take to the courts on July 17 and 18.

"I wouldn't leave the clothes in Mexico City like that," Canadian Bill Tuthill told Hopman. "We've got some good players in Francois Godbout, Keith Carpenter, Vince Gets and Val Haril."



"Canada" the shown he can play. He beat Bob Hewitt, a top-ranked Australian, recently and I'm sure we can give them a good game."

Emerson, suspended for leaving Australia to play in international tournaments before an ALTA-set deadline of March 31, was still in the clear Monday. Some Canadian officials claim he's ineligible, but others disagree.

"He was named to the Aussie team before his suspension was lifted," Harry Hopman, chairman of Canada's selection committee. "The international rules clearly prohibit that."

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—American Leagues fifth straight victory in the observation trials for America's Cup defence candidates Monday proved to be the easiest of them all.

Anglers, Hurlers Federation

Asks Closing of Moose Season

TORONTO (CP) — William Owens of Oshawa, president of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, announced Monday the federation has recommended an immediate closure of moose season north of Highway 17, from the Quebec border to Sault Ste. Marie.

Mr. Owens, making the announcement following a federation directors' meeting at Orillia during the weekend, said the federation has also recommended that no further moose hunting should be allowed by either residents or non-residents south of Highway 17, including the Parry Sound district and Manitoulin.

It was explained that moose herds have been dropping off in the areas concerned through hunting, disease and other causes, and that a complete ban on hunting in the area was felt advisable.

Northwestern Ontario, not included in the resolution, is considered a good hunting area by the federation where there is no drop-off.

The announcement came after consideration of recommendations made by Dan Salhani of Copper Cliff, Ont., big game chairman of the federation, at the federation's annual meeting at Hamilton in March.

Mr. Owens said immediate support was not given to these recommendations at the convention because it was felt further investigation was necessary.

The federation also recommended the deer season should continue to be curtailed on the Manitoulin island and discontinued in the sections of the Sudbury district, and a systematic program of deer-yard improvement should be carried out in all sections of the province to save deer herds.

Mr. Owens said the federation would go on record as supporting the work done by retriever clubs and similar organizations in an effort to reduce "the appalling wastage of our waterfowl."

He said that the federation supports the proper use of live birds in the training of these retrievers and in their testing in licensed retriever trials.

Although some groups oppose the use of the live birds in training and trials, Mr. Owens said these activities fulfil a definite need in the field of conservation of wildlife.

Sport Snapshots

By BOB TRIMBEE

EDMONTON (CP) — It has been said that when Neill Armstrong toiled as an end for Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the early 1950s he made half his pass receptions standing on his head.

He'll have to be at least that spectacular this year in his debut as head coach if he hopes to guide Edmonton Eskimos out of the depths of the Western Football Conference.

Armstrong, 37, was named Eskimos head coach March 6, a month after the club fired Eagle Keys in the climax to a wholesale reorganization. Keys now is an assistant with Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The quiet-talking, easy-going Armstrong quit as assistant to Pop Ivy of Houston Oilers of the American Football League to accept the two-year contract here.

Armstrong's return to Canada comes a decade after he decided to end the game as a player when Blue Bombers lost out to Eskimos in the Western final. Edmonton went on to win three consecutive Grey Cup titles.

But since 1956 Eskimos have managed to get to the Grey Cup only once. In 1960 under Keys they made it only to lose 16-6 to Ottawa Rough Riders.

FINISHED LAST

"This is a good opportunity for someone getting a head coach's job for the first time," said Armstrong referring to the fact that the Eskimos finished last in 1962 and '63 and have no way to go but up. "Everyone is optimistic from the directors down to the players."

The optimism is fine but Armstrong would also like to find a "few surprises" among the 60 or so players, including a record 32 imports, invited to training camp.

Len Younce, back for a second season, and Harry Buffington will be Armstrong's regular assistants, though quarterback George Blanda of Houston and George Burnham were also on hand to help during the early camp.

Armstrong, an Oklahoma A and M grad and all-American in his senior year, played with Philadelphia Eagles from 1947 to 1950 joining Winnipeg in 1951 and being chosen all-star end. In 1952, after a year out of football, he returned to Blue Bombers and was picked as all-star defensive half.

From 1955 to 1961 he served as assistant to Cliff Speegle at Oklahoma State and joined Ivy for the 1962 and '63 seasons.

NO HOLIDAY

Since his arrival from Houston, Armstrong has been studying films, examining player charts and plotting strategy with his assistants. He has also roamed the province and the north, speaking to service clubs and luncheon in an effort to stimulate interest in the team. The new big city cost of Armstrongs and their three children a vacation. "We normally take our holidays in June and December but the football schedule is a little different in Canada where June is a busy month."

It also forced him to give up golf, a sport he loves almost as much as football—he shoots in the high 70s or low 80s.

But if some of the Armstrongs have some reservations about a move that forced them to change vacation plans. Neill Jr., 17, has no doubts. He likes horses and rodeos and this summer is working at an Edmonton stable.

Perry Runs Wild

Angry Hurler Smashes Bat

HOUSTON (AP) — Gaylord Perry, San Francisco Giant pitcher, smashed the bat of Nellie Fox, Houston second baseman, in a rage Sunday night after Fox had singled home the winning run in the ninth inning for a 5-4 victory.

This latest development in the rumpus between the first-place Giants and the Colts that broke out in the seventh inning was disclosed Monday when the Colts filed a protest with National League president Warren Giles.

The Colts said they are sending a bill to Perry for the cost of the bat and indicated legal action would be taken against him if there is no rule prohibiting such action by a player.

Perry, who sat down on the pitching mound and changed his shoes when called into the game following the abrupt ejection of Billy O'Dell, picked up Fox's bat and smashed it against the side of the Giant dugout.

"I think Perry's action was darn bush," Fox said.

He added he personally planned no protest but said the club could do whatever it thinks best.

"I've been using that bat two months and had just gotten it to the point where it was good and hard," Fox said. "I had sandpapered it, oiled it and coddled it and I saved it for use only in games."

It was the same bat with which Fox had singled home the winning run Thursday night against Los Angeles Dodgers. That hit also came with two out in the ninth.

Perry was not available for comment.

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD
Four-Time Winner of the Masters
REGAINING YOUR PUTTING STROKE
Even the great putters, like Billy Casper, Bob Rosburg and Jerry Barber, occasionally have periods when their stroke seems out of kilter. Everyone, it seems, has a different method of gaining back their normal stroke. If you don't have such a method, here is one you might try.

First try stroking putts for about 10 or 15 minutes, using only your right hand. Then repeat the procedure using only your left hand. Finally put the two together and see if your stroke hasn't improved.
Putting with only one hand at a time forces a golfer to concentrate on stroking the ball squarely and to move the putter in a precise manner. In no time you will once again be giving every putt the best possible stroke you can.
NEW! JUST PUBLISHED! "HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR PUTTING"! Here is Arnold Palmer's illustrated guide to putting stance, grip, line-up, stroke. Send 25¢ and a stamped self-addressed envelope to Arnold Palmer, c/o this newspaper.

Golf and Tennis Once Regarded As Sissy Games

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Memory is one thing in life that increases in value as you get older.

You've had your fair share of nostalgia if you can look back and remember when . . .

Spinach was the vegetable bane of childhood, because parents said: "It's full of iron —and iron is good for you."

The dentist was pleased if you brushed your teeth at night and morning. Even most rich people didn't bother to brush after every meal.

There was a difference between masculine and feminine realms of power. Mother was the expert on anything pertaining to the house, father was the unchallenged authority on such matters as baseball and politics.

One of the secret diversions in high school English classes was looking up the naughty words in the works of William Shakespeare.

There was no greater thrill than getting to feed a carrot to one of the great grey horses that pulled the fire department's hook and ladder wagon.

Medicine, if it was to do you any real good, had to taste bad—and it usually was colored dark brown.

Golf and tennis were both regarded as sissy games played largely by well-to-do people who weren't physically up to the wear and tear of body-contact sports.

Hospitals were feared by normal persons. They were regarded as places where you went to die rather than to get well.

Anybody who got his car up to more than 60 miles an hour was considered a reckless daredevil.

Every blonde wanted to look like Jean Harlow and every redhead like Clara Bow.

Every well-brought-up little girl took piano lessons; every little boy studied either the violin or the saxophone.

Almost every man, a fellow who thought there might ever be a Second World War.

The only frozen food served in the home was ice cream—and most of it was homemade.

Oratory was still widely admired, and a political candidate who couldn't give a stirring two-hour speech was hardly worth voting for.

Any stenographer risked her reputation if she showed up at the office wearing red flannel polish.

Only the very wealthy worried about the income tax. . . . The working man who got a full week's paid vacation a year felt he was fortunate . . . And only sick people, ever were put on diets.

Those were the days. Remember?

AT THE PARK — Yogi Bear indulges in his favorite sport, stealing lunch from Jellystone Park visitors in the course of his first full-length cartoon feature, "Hey There, It's Yogi Bear!" The Hanna-Barbera production, a Columbia Picture release, is in color. Opening Thursday at the air-conditioned Park Theatre.

AT THE BELLE — John Ponda, Cliff Robertson and Rod Taylor are co-starred in "Sunday In New York", Columbia Mike Nichols' Arie screen version of Norman Krasna's Broadway stage hit, now showing at the Belle Theatre. The romantic comedy is in Metrocolor.

Sport Briefs

OUT OF HOSPITAL

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Manager Al Lopez of Chicago White Sox said outfielder Dave Nicholson, who was hit by a pitched ball Sunday, was released from hospital Monday. Lopez said x-rays had turned up nothing serious in the fist over the player's left eye. Nicholson was hit by right hander Moe Drabowsky in the first inning.

DENY HEARING

BOSTON (AP)—The American League decided a hearing Monday to Vic Power, the Los Angeles infielder who drew a 10-day suspension and $250 fine for allegedly spitting in an umpire's face. League president Joe Cronin vetoed the denial by Angels' general manager Fred Haney.

TV—Radio Column

E. G. Marshall Tells Joys Of Solitude in New England

Actor E. G. Marshall writes of the joys of nature and solitude at his New England home which he built with his own hands in this column for vacationing Cynthia Lowry.

Written for AP

By E. G. MARSHALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Among the basic needs of civilized man are companionship of one's fellows and the stimulation of contrasting temperaments, interests and tastes. And solitude!

The opportunity for solitude is everywhere around us, but most of us are not receptive to it.

We have the radio playing while we eat or even while we bathe. People clutch transistor radios as they ride the bus. /

People seem afraid of silence and their thoughts.

To be absolutely alone in the midst of nature, with only the sounds of nature, is perhaps the greatest refreshment one can know.

Henry David Thoreau said: "We need to witness our own limits transgressed."

COME TO LIFE

These remain like - sounding words and sentiments until the day when in the raw middle of winter, you are pulling a toboggan across a meadow with a blowing snow, a 35-mile wind blowing and a temperature of 12 degrees below zero biting into your marrow. On the toboggan there is a five-gallon can of kerosene, a 100-pound sack of coal and provisions enough to last three or four days.

You climb a steep logging road, pulling the toboggan behind you step by painful step.

You reach the crest, every muscle protesting.

The rest of the way goes quicker and easier. You notice the whispering of the snow as it falls on hemlock, spruce and pine.

Then you see, at long last, the roof peak of your place in the wild. If you had the breath to sing you would.

Sitting before the hearth, the first flames licking the frozen logs into warm life, a cup of hot tea doing the same for you as sudden joy lifts your spirits, you feel a new health and solace.

COVERS GOLDWATER

Robert MacNeil, 33, news correspondent assigned to cover Senator Barry Goldwater at the 1964 Republican National Convention in San Francisco, was born in Montreal and raised in Ottawa and Halifax. A former CBC employee, he joined NBC in 1960.

WAX BEATLES — Stewardess Wendy Glover fails to make an impression on these wax reproductions of George Harrison (centre) and John Lennon, members of the Beatles singing group. They were flying with Paul McCartney and Ringo Starr, also in wax, to the Royal London Wax Museum in Victoria, from the London, England, plant of Josephine Tussaud and Company.

Johnny Salvo Won Longest Foot Race

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know in life didn't open his mail:

If you live to be 70, you will have remembered more than 15,000,000 separate things—from your telephone number to the shape of a watermelon, and perhaps even your wife's birthday.

Busiest day: The longest foot race ever staged was the 1929 transcontinental run from New York to Los Angeles. . . . Johnny Salvo won it in 79 days.

Hint to husbands: If your wife is feeling blue, tell her to give herself a shampoo.

It has been found that with some women washing their hair is as big a morale booster as buying a new hat. (Actress Carol Lawrence says she washes her hair every day.)

Quotable notables: "Nothing but beauty and wisdom deserve immortality." — Will Durant.

Landmark: The Eiffel Tower, 75 years old this year, has 12,000 pre-fabricated parts and weighs 1,543,000 pounds. . . . For 50 years the 984-foot tower was the world's tallest structure.

Here's one we doubt: A British scientist believes some people can work better after a sleepless night than they do when they slept soundly.

A continent on the rocks: Ice at the south pole is 1½ miles thick. . . . And the ground level is 600 feet below sea level.

Folklore: If your ear burns, somebody is talking about you. . . . White marks on your fingernails are a sign of the number of lies you have told. . . . If the palm of your right hand itches, that means company is coming. . . . It is a sign of good luck if a spider spins downward from the ceiling in your direction.

Words remembering: "Middle age is that time of life when spring fever lasts all summer."—Arnold Glasow.

Honesty in the big city: As a goodwill gesture, a television and radio exhibit here started leading umbrellas to visitors on rainy days. . . . In the first few weeks 97 umbrellas were borrowed—and all 97 were later returned.

It was Robert Louis Stevenson who observed, "Every man has a sane spot somewhere."

PRODUCES GOLD

South Africa produces about four cents of the Western world's gold.

Even Wax Figures of Beatles Get Rise Out of Their Fronts

VANCOUVER (CP) — Even wax figures of the Beatles manage to get a rise out of their fans.

About a dozen showed up at Vancouver International Airport when wax reproductions of the four singers arrived aboard a plane from Amsterdam en route to the Royal London Wax Museum in Victoria.

One 13-year-old girl took the whole affair rather seriously, giving the figure of Paul McCartney a hug as he was carried to a waiting car.

"Just think, I actually touched him," said Jean Fryer. "My dad said I wasn't to scream but this is just too much. Isn't he a dream."

The reproductions of McCartney, Ringo Starr, George Harrison and John Lennon were propped up in two convertibles and driven to a downtown store where they were put on display in a store window for a couple of days.

Nancy Johnston and Mary McNeil of the Victoria museum were given the honor of accompanying the Beatles. Motorists watching the motorcade through downtown streets seemed bewildered.

Manufactured at the London plant of Josephine Tussaud and Company, the figures are worth $1,000 each. They take their place at the museum in the Great Hall alongside Sir Winston Churchill, Albert Einstein, Shakespeare and Cleopatra.

A Columnist's Mailbag

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Of interest to New York world's fair visitors: Only 19 per cent of the 1,500,000 people who work in mid-Manhattan live outside the city, but they hold 36 per cent of the top executive, administrative and professional jobs. . . . This is the first proof we've seen that suburbanites are brainy, and commuting pays off.

This big city can be tough and lonely on people, but it is even tougher on animals.

. . . Humane Society officials estimated that more than 100,000 homeless cats and 75,000 dogs die each year of exposure or starvation.

Quotable notables: "Nothing is a waste of time if you use the experience wisely."—Auguste Rodin.

Journalism is a risky occupation in China. . . . Its oldest newspaper is more than 1,000 years old, and it is reported that during that time 800 of its editors lost their heads for criticizing authorities.

HOW IT BEGAN

Know your languages: The word bankabu literally means "black rent." . . .

Along the Scottish border in olden times, farmers paid cattle in tribute to outlaws to be left safe from pillage. . . .

If they paid in silver rather than in cattle, this was known as "whitemail."

Quips from contemporaries: "Too often a man keeps his nose to the grindstone but so his wife can turn hers up at the neighbors. — Kiwanis Magazine.

Bet you didn't know that a year has exactly eight times the stomach capacity of a horse — or that a canary's heart beats up to 1,000 times a minute. Knowing facts like these may not impress your wife, but they are bound to win you more respect from your favorite bartender.)

Folklore: The two best good luck coins are a $5 gold piece or a bright new penny. . . . If a black cat crosses your path, you will have good luck if he ran to the right, bad luck if he ran to the left. . . . When a friend leaves, never turn and watch him go out of sight, for if you do you will never see him again.

Worth Remembering: "Cheer up! these may be the old days you'll be sighing for 20 years hence." — Arnold Glasow.

It was Lord Rochester who observed: "Before I got married I had six theories about bringing up children; now I have six children, and no theories."

FAIR EXHIBITORS

Some 6,500 exhibitors from more than 50 countries will take part in the 1964 Leipzig autumn fair in East Germany.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Beverly Dillard, a four-year-old mare owned and driven by Earl Shea of Bethany, Ont., needed the speediest performance of her young racing career to win the featured mile pace Monday night at Greenwood Raceway. Shea took Beverly Dillard to the lead soon after the eight-horse field left the starting gate and then he held on to withstand the stretch challenge of the 8-to-1 choice Mr. Key Wit, driven by owner Herve Filion of Angers, Que.

The win was worth $650 and boosted the mare's 1964 earnings to $3,962 on three wins, a second and three third place finishes in 14 outings. The mare earned $8,655 last year, winning four of 26 races.

Rally Me Hal registered her fourth win in six starts for owner Jack Kenney of Ancaster in the second race and helped provide a daily double of $10.80, following the first-race triumph by Safety Man the Second, driven by Pat Crowe.

Ron Feagan of Goderich took the sixth race with Lemax and combined with second - place Chuckmor to provide a quinella payoff of $14.30.

AT THE PARK — Terror Twosome — Vincent Price and Debra Paget, co-star in American International's newest Edgar Allan Poe thriller, "The Haunted Palace." The color and Panavision shocker, showing Today and Wednesday at the Park Theatre, also stars Lon Chaney. On the same program the big war picture, "The Quick and The Dead". Both features are first Belleville showings.

Ontario Ladies Open

Sandra Post's 73 Tops Field

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Sandra Post of Trafalgar Golf Club, Milton, blazed round the Sunningdale course here in a two-under par 73 to lead 109 qualifiers in the Ontario Ladies Open Monday.

The 16-year-old former Ontario junior champion toured the front nine in 37 and came back in 36 to hold a one-stroke lead over former Australian champion Margaret Master, of Ottawa Hunt, who shot 74. Rounding Ontario champion Sue Hilton, of London Hunt, was third at 75. She was out in 36 and back in 39—even pars for both nines.

Miss Post relied on her accurate short game as she collected three birdies in a row at the 13, 14 and 15. She hit a five wood to the green at 14 and sank a five-foot putt. Her putt on the 15th was just three feet and on the 12th she got to the green with a drive, three-iron, short chip, and rammed in a short putt.

Miss Masters had three birdies in her round, two on the back nine and one on the front. She went one under par on three of the six five pars.

Championship flight qualifiers:

Sandara Post, Trafalgar, 73.
Margaret Masters, Ottawa Hunt, 74.
Sue Hilton, London Hunt, 75.
Nancy Stoddart, New Uplands, 75.
Una Wickham, Woodbridge, 76.
Gail Harvey, Scarborough, 76.
Betty Cole, Woodbridge, 77.
Linday Deeton, Craigowan, 79.
Nancy Smith, Beachgrove, 79.
Katherine Hellen, Rosedale, 79.
Carol McGee, St. Marys, 82.
Mary Degrouchy, Sarnia, 82.
Alice Willson, Sunningdale 83.
Izabel Armstrong, Weston, 83.
Yolande Whitelaw, Mississagua, 84.
Jane Kirkpatrick, Lambton, 84.

WOOL RECORD

More than 5,000,000 bales of wool were sold by auction in Australia in the 1963-64 season, a record.

Hubert Humphrey Back on the Crest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four years ago John F. Kennedy trounced Hubert Humphrey in the West Virginia presidential primary, and Humphrey looked like a has-been. Now he's back riding the crest, with friends in high places, and with a strong chance of being President John son's choice for vice-president.

As Senate whip, Humphrey has the major responsibility for wheedling, arguing, lobbying and pressuring and finally push ing senators along to vote on government legislation.

Friend and foe alike—he has an abundant, highly opinionated supply of each—could agree that if anyone can keep tem pers soothed during the weary ing days in Congress it's the Democratic senator from Min nesota, a bouncy, high-spirited man who will not be put down.

Humphrey is mentioned re spectfully as one of the most powerful men in Congress, as friend and adviser to the pres ident.

It hasn't been this way long. Few senators have had so much trouble getting themselves taken seriously. Few have met such unyielding opposition.

In an age when the canny politician avoids taking sides until the opinion polls roll in— Humphrey is the pussyfoot's mortal enemy.

He is one of the first to com mit himself on everything: Civil rights (his speech demanding a strong civil rights platform split the Democratic national con vention in 1948), medical care for the aged, nuclear disarma ment, the peace corps.

OPPOSED BY RIGHT

To many conservatives he has personified what they mean when they refer to a wild-eyed left-winger.

Humphrey's present stature is the more surprising when one recalls a bleak, drizzly day four years ago in West Virginia. There, in the Democratic pres idential primaries, Humphrey convincingly lost to Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachu setts.

Everything had pointed to Humphrey victory.

He was a Protestant cam paigning against a Roman Catholic in a Protestant state. He spoke the homey, plain folks language — "I know what it means to be without money"— that should have had great ap peal in a state hard hit by the steady decline of the coal mines.

But Kennedy won by a start ling 6-to-5 margin. For Humph rey it was a galling public humiliation.

At 3 a.m. on May 11, 1960, he withdrew from the presi dential race, managed a wan smile, and trudged gamely through the rain to the victor's hotel to offer congratulations.

Those who were there that night — Humphrey's darkest hour—were unanimous in be lieving that nationally Humph rey had become a politician has been.

WON RE-ELECTION

But Humphrey went home, won re-election to the Senate, and, incidentally, helped Ken nedy carry Minnesota, the only one of the northern great plains states that didn't go to Republi can presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon.

Humphrey hasn't slowed down perceptibly. At 53 his hairline is threatening to re treat and his bulging is threat ening to advance, but his step appears unquenchable.

Shortly after he first came to the Senate Humphrey attacked Senator Harry F. Byrd, (Dem. Va.), and other senators promptly filed out, leaving him alone with his indictment.

He may have been thinking of this when he said recently: "In the Senate you learn manners. You learn to have manners without sacrificing convictions."

A friend of Humphrey's since he was mayor of Minneapolis says:

"Hubert was once known as the liberals' mouthpiece. A man who didn't have any responsi bility. He speaks as a respon sible man now."

When Lyndon Johnson moved to the vice-presidency, and Sen ator Mike Mansfield of Montana took over as Senate Demo cratic leader, Humphrey be came his party's whip, respon sible for lining up administra tion votes.

CLOSE TO JOHNSON

Humphrey worked hard and loyally for Kennedy, but he is closer to, and more at ease with, Johnson.

They came to the Senate the same day, Jan. 3, 1949.

Both have rural backgrounds. Humphrey was born over a Wallace, S.D., drugstore, and grew up in Doland, S.D., pop ulation 587. As the Senate's only pharmacist, he still has the friendly air of a small town druggist.

Both lived through the depres sion — and it still influences their thinking. Because of it, Humphrey had to drop out of college, finally finishing while his wife, Muriel, worked to help pay the bills.

Johnson has said that for his running mate he will choose the man who is best for the coun try, but by a coincidence this may also prove to be the man best for Lyndon Johnson.

No one knows this better than Hubert Humphrey.

"I'm not shopping around for a new job," Humphrey says.

MODERATES CRUSHED AT GOP MEET

Pravda Declares GOP Platform 'Calls For War'

Briton Calls Gathering Hate-Ruled Convention

LONDON (Reuters)—Pravda, the Russian Communist party newspaper, says today that the Republican platform of Senator Barry Goldwater "in fact calls for war with the Soviet Union."

The program called for "open intervention in Cuba, stepping up the war in Viet Nam and the ring of NATO countries, members of the right to use nuclear weapons on their own initiative," the newspaper comments.

It was not surprising, the newspaper adds, that the platform had "frightened even those who previously thought of Goldwater as a noisy but generally harmless fellow."

Pravda and other Moscow newspapers quote American press comment that "if his philosophy were put into practice it could be catastrophic for the country and for the whole world."

Yugoslavia compares the platform with Nazi policies and declared Goldwater's "appetites" were "greater than Hitler's."

BLAST EISENHOWER

In Britain, former president Eisenhower came in newspaper fire along with the platform and Goldwater.

Daily Mirror reporter Rene Maccoll writes from San Francisco: "When the 'architect' of this hate - ridden Republican convention got raked into the cold ashes of history the man who will probably emerge in the worst light is ex-president Dwight D. Eisenhower."

The article says Eisenhower "blew hot and cold" before the convention and later assured Governor William Scranton he "would 'probably' support him — but then didn't."

"Now, on top of that, Eisenhower pops up in San Francisco as a radiant 'guest of honor' the whole thing, at a reputed fee of £10,000 ($28,000).

"In the eyes of nearly everyone this is a lapse of good taste and judgment that is little short of appalling."

CUBANS TAKE CONTROL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States estimates there are 3,500 to 4,000 Russian soldiers remaining in Cuba. Reports indicate the failure of the number of the original 22,000 Russians sent into Cuba during the October missile crisis. A period of 1962, now are turning to over or preparing to turn over their antiaircraft missile batteries to Cuban control.

Lengthy Debate On Bill

By RONALD LESEE

OTTAWA (CP)—Should the federal government play a larger role in supporting higher education? Can Ottawa do so under the constitution?

These thorny issues were thrashed out all day in the Commons Tuesday as debate opened on a bill enabling the government to guarantee bank loans of up to $1,000 for needy university students.

A wide range of views on federal aid to education were aired by the speakers. Even party colleagues differed at times. The debate continues today.

Strongest exponent of federal intervention was NDP Leader T. C. Douglas. He called for sharply increased federal grants to universities to permit them to abolish tuition fees, expand their facilities and faculties and meet their burgeoning operating costs.

SAYS BILL INADEQUATE

The universities were starved for funds and had to turn away thousands of young Canadians from the campuses. The government loan bill was totally inadequate in meeting their needs.

Creditiste House Leader Gilles Gregoire took the opposite point of view. He cited the catastrophe of life for federal legislation dealing with education infringed on provincial rights and violated the constitution.

He said the federal government should give the provinces a larger share of direct taxes and let them tackle the problems of education.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette did not refer to provincial rights. He said the Bank of Canada should print more money to help the provinces, which would distribute university scholarships, not loans.

Speaking later, Lester B. Pearson said the overwhelming university crisis constitutes one of the ways the federal government should initiate national education policies in agreement with the provinces.

BILL ELECTION BAIT

The Liberals had promised 1,000 annual university scholarships of $1,000 each and after long debate were delivering mere loans with only part of the interest paid by the government. It was a really cynical stagger designed as election bait.

Leon Balcer, Mr. Diefenbaker's Quebec lieutenant, said he has serious doubts about the constitutional validity of the measure. The provinces had exclusive and absolute jurisdiction over all aspects of education.

Mr. Balcer wrote the bill so only because Quebec and other provinces with their own plans would be in a position to take the federal scheme and get a grant for the loan guarantee.

Social Credit Leader Thompson said the Bank of Canada should create $500 million capital to finance free university education for all youths with the

Every Attempt To Alter Policy Meets Defeat

Goldwater Supporters In Complete Control

By HAROLD MORRISON

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — A tidal wave of conservative strength crushed all hopes of the moderates led by Governor William Scranton to reform the Republican platform, setting the convention stage tonight for the nomination of Senator Barry Goldwater as the party's 1964 presidential candidate.

Every appeal by moderates to have the Republican national convention strengthen the civil right plank in the Goldwater flavored platform, denounce political extremists by name and ensure that the president of the United States retains control over all nuclear weapons was shouted down in an uproarious, catcalling, foot-stamping session that wound up early today.

The voting indicated strongly that the right wing of the party had taken firm control of the convention and that Goldwater would get a hero's welcome in victory over Scranton, the Pennsylvania governor, in the balloting tonight.

CLAIMS 986 VOTES

A minimum of 655 of the 1,308 delegates nominating vote is required for victory and Goldwater claimed more than 800 vote pledges with more rolling in.

An Associated Press survey showed that Goldwater headed into nomination day with 520 votes while Scranton had 189.

Results of balloting Tuesday has a number of other formal opponents. These include Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Senator Hiram Fong of Hawaii, former representative Walter H. Judd of Minnesota, former governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota and Michigan Governor George Romney.

But pre-voting surveys indicated these would get just a fraction of the votes. Judd probably would go to Goldwater, now the firmly-entrenched master of the Republican machine.

Scranton's forces admitted the platform - mending defeat they suffered there but vowed to continue the fight.

They also pledged to continue the fight for the floor by students on holidays.

The job picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

Is Urging Appeal Of Conviction

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto surgeon Kenneth A. Brown was convicted Tuesday on two of 10 charges arising from the death last fall of patient Patricia Morgan from the effects of a clamp left in her abdomen during surgery.

The 45-year-old doctor, who maintained he was innocent during the unique five-day trial, was fined $300 and costs for a violation of the Ontario Coroner's Act and $50 under the Provincial Vital Statistics Act.

The remaining five charges under the Coroner's Act and two of four under the Statistics Act were dismissed by Magistrate James Butler. The Crown dropped the remaining statistics charge.

The alternatives to the fines are 60 days and five days in jail respectively. Dr. Brown was given a month to pay the fines at the request of the defence.

Defence Counsel Barry Pepper, who was commended by the magistrate for conducting "an excellent defence," said he is recommending to Dr. Brown that the convictions be appealed as "the form of a stated case, with the magistrate explaining his decisions in writing and the defence putting his arguments before an appeal judge.

DEFENDANT COMPOSED

Dr. Brown, almost totally deaf as a result of faulty early treatment for an operating room accident several years ago, stood composed but pale as Magistrate Butler delivered sentence on the charge that the doctor failed to notify the coroner of a death in circumstances such as may require an investigation.

"The medical profession is a great and noble calling, steeped in knowledge, noble in service to mankind," the magistrate said. "The members of that profession must continue to have the trust and confidence of those who place their very lives in their care and keeping.

"This confidence must not be shaken or destroyed by any act or omission on the part of the 'medical practitioner.'"

After further argument and evidence, the magistrate found Dr. Brown guilty of failing to publish particulars respecting a death on the death certificate

Quiet Spell In Cyprus Is Broken

By PETER BUCKLEY

KYRENIA (CP) — Prolonged heavy firing Tuesday broke a protracted quiet spell in the Kyrenia Mountains as Greek-Cypriot forces advanced into a former no-man's-land in what could be a bid to cut a major Turkish-Cypriot supply line.

More than 500 rounds were exchanged Monday night as Greeks set up four fortified positions at a low-lying hill above the Turkish village of Temblos. The Greeks fired at least 500 more rounds Tuesday from rifles and machine guns into Turkish mountain positions without answering fire.

The only casualty reported was a Turkish-Cypriot slightly wounded in the shoulder by a stone cast up by rifle fire.

There was no comment from Greek-Cypriot military officials about a new offensive but United Nations officials were understood to be seriously concerned about developments around Temblos.

The cease-fire is under the supervision of Canadian troops, and Canadian officers spent Tuesday observing positions for reports to the United Nations truce commander and attempting to reduce tension in the area.

The tension is believed to have started after a new Greek-Cypriot police chief took over the Kyrenis district last Friday and imposed restrictions on movements of Turkish-Cypriots in the area around this coastal resort city.

Saturday a group of Canadians escorting three Turks from Temblos to their neighboring citrus orchards for inspection were halted by Greek police and turned back. Greek police also placed heavy restrictions on the movement of fresh fruit and vegetables from Turkish farms to Nicosia 15 miles south of Temblos.

Temblos, whose population of 150 has been trebled since December by refugees, had been the object of another unwritten arrangement — Turks left the town without arms as bystanders while the Greeks stayed away from the town itself.

The Turkish-Cypriot force now comprises mainly women, old men and children.

The first unconfirmed reports said the Turks had answered the new restrictions on movement by stationing armed men in defensive positions within Temblos, adding to fears the Greek - Cypriots may attempt entry into the town.

No New Meetings Scheduled Between Printers, Publishers

TORONTO (CP)—The strike by printers against the three Toronto daily newspapers entered its seventh day today, with no new meetings scheduled although talks with a conciliator are to resume Thursday.

Louis Fine, Ontario labor department's chief conciliator held separate, private talks with each side Tuesday to explore their stands in an effort to end the dispute. The meeting was called by Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree when his efforts to bring about the walkout failed last week.

Today Premier Robarts indicated, following a request from the American Newspaper Guild (ANG) for his personal intervention, that he does not plan to do so.

"I am standing by and available but at the moment the talks are being conducted by the minister of labor," he said in a statement issued by his office.

The Guild has told its 1,800 members here to abide by their contract with the papers and all but a handful are at work.

All the papers have continued to publish since $20 printers walked off their jobs last Thursday. They called it a lockout when the publishers introduced new work rules and pay

Secrecy Paid Off In Deal

TORONTO (CP) — The story of how two Toronto real estate men master-minded the purchase of land for the Toronto-Dominion Bank Centre in the heart of the city without once tipping their principals' hand would make many mystery novels dull reading in comparison.

Between the early part of 1962 and the fall of 1963 fewer than a dozen persons in Canada knew that the bank and CEMP Investments Limited were interested in a block bounded by King, Bay, Wellington and York Streets as the site of their $125,000,000 centre.

The scene will be a huge real estate complex which is planned to include two office buildings. Construction has started, and is to be completed by 1967.

Two of those who knew and the two who arranged the land assembly were Brian Mage and Gordon Gray of A. E. Le-Page Limited.

If word of the project had leaked out prices would have skyrocketed, so Mr. Mages and Mr. Gray, were forced to use numerous subterfuges — including changing lawyers, getting other real estate companies to act against them and, in one case, renovating a building they knew would be torn down—to complete the 36 deals involved at a total of $15,000,000.

CLOSE DOESN'T COUNT

"If word had got out, any one of 100 people could have held us up for millions of dollars," Mr. Mage said in an interview. "In land assembly, close doesn't count, if someone re-

Conventional Military Role Adopted by Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — The trend away from nuclear weapons and toward a complete return to a solely conventional military role for Canada became more pronounced here Tuesday.

Associate Defence Minister Cardin announced that the militia will all but abandon its national survival role, predicated on a nuclear attack on this country, and revert to its former task of providing field support for the regular army.

He said the militia's main job again will be to form three brigades comprising some 18,000 men to train a citizen army in event of emergency.

No such policy had even been hinted at here in a decade because it was felt that only regular forces would have time to get into action in a nuclear emergency.

The implication of Mr. Cardin's statement is that the government considers the possibility of nuclear war as remote and a conventional role for the armed forces as more likely.

Other indications of this trend:

—External Affairs Minister Martin said last week the number of United Nations peacekeeping jobs for Canada is bound to increase.

—Defence department officials said the RCAF could use a cheap ground support plane like the Second World War Mustang or Typhoon, but that nobody was making anything like this any more.

—Armaments said Canada will

Job-Hunting Students Keep Jobless Total About Same

OTTAWA (CP)—A large influx of students into the labor market held unemployment at an estimated 282,000 in mid-June, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The unemployment total down by 11,000 from late mid-May count — represented four per cent of the labor force, compared with 4.4 per cent in June, 1963, and 4.5 per cent in June, 1962.

Seasonally adjusted, the June unemployment rate was 5.2 per cent—a jump from the previous two months when it was 4.7 per cent.

The 11,000 drop in unemployment between May and June was less than expected for the time of year, reflecting in part the push for jobs by students or holidays.

Mao Says Fight for Communism To Go on in China for Centuries

PEKING (Reuters) — Chinese Communist Premier Mao Tse-tung was reported Tuesday to have warned the nation of plots to "watch out for careerists and conspirators" such as Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Mao was quoted in a 30,000-character article which blasted Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders. Part of the article was a summary of Mao's latest theoretical views on the clash between communism and on preventing capitalist revivals such as the article claims is occurring in the Soviet Union.

The attack was printed Tuesday in both the main Communist party organ, the People's Daily, and in the theoretical journal Red Flag.

Mao was said to have predicted that the struggle between capitalism and communism in China will continue for "one to several centuries."

The attack on Khrushchev was the biggest and most detailed to date in a campaign which started months ago and has grown increasingly bitter.

Tuesday's long article said Mao's theories, which are the "enrichment and development of Marxism-Leninism," can be applied to all Communist countries. Mao was quoted as warning leaders to prevent men such as Khrushchev from "usurping the leadership of the party or government at any level" in China.

Khrushchev was tilted On Khrushchev's Phoney Communism and its Historical Lessons for the World.

Among other things, it accused Khrushchev of practising the "communism of the American way of life" and the "communism - seeking credits from the devil." It called him the "political representative of the Soviet bourgeoisie and parties largely of its privileged stratum."

Today's Chuckle

Right now there are two kinds of colleges — those who wish they had fired their football coach last year and those who wish they hadn't.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — More seasonable temperatures and mainly sunny skies are expected for Thursday due to a high pressure ridge building over the Great Lakes. This fair weather will be short lived in western regions as a new disturbance approaches Lake Superior. Increasing cloud with showers and thundershowers will move into the Algoma and White River regions and also threaten central and southeastern Ontario regions by late Thursday.

Parley Reaches 'Crunch' Stage, Finding Formula Difficult

LONDON (CP)—It was the final "crunch" stage today in the 18 - country conference of Commonwealth prime ministers.

A diplomat put the "crunch" tag on the eight-day conference's closing session in which it took up a single task—an extremely tricky one—the release of a communique.

Crux of the difficulty was the demand by African countries for a firm British commitment to intervene and give the African majority in white-ruled Southern Rhodesia, a self-governing British colony, a new deal.

There was strong backing for the Canadian position that at least the spirit of a declaration on racial equality proposed by Prime Minister Lester Pearson be reflected in the draft, particularly regarding Southern Rhodesia.

It was a measure of the discontent regarding Southern Rhodesia that Prime Minister Julius Nyerere of Tanganyika Zanzibar, regarded as one of the more moderate African premiers, took an uncompromising stand.

His instructions to his draftsmen delegates were said to be to sit out and ensure that there was a commitment from the British government on the holding of a new constitutional conference in Southern Rhodesia.

Southern Rhodesia's Premier Ian Smith has been invited to come to London but British officials said Tuesday of the prospects that he could be persuaded to release political prisoners detained by Premier Nyerere and others — and confer with them on the colony's future.

Historian Says Canadians Doubt Such a Thing as Unity Exists in Country

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP) — Canadians are approaching their centennial year not knowing for certain what they are about to celebrate — whether it is to be the anniversary of the birth of a nation or the obsequies attending its death and disappearance," Canadian historian said Tuesday.

Rev. Orio Miller of London, Ont., told the fourth annual Ontario Conference on Inter-Group Relations that "in our secret hearts" Canadians doubt that such a thing as unity exists in Canada.

Mr. Miller said no nation in history has ever approached an anniversary of its founding with as negative an attitude as Canadians now are showing.

"It may, with justice, be said of us that we are highly parochial in our attitudes. We are arch-conformists, and that we are united mainly because we don't like the idea of becoming Americans."

FLAG NOT ENOUGH

The former free-lance writer and broadcaster was guitarist and curate at St. Paul's Anglican cathedral in London, told the conference a national identity cannot be created by an act of Parliament or by designing a new flag for us only come from a common pool of tradition.

Mr. Miller said color must be injected into Canadian history books.

In Canada, "we dry-clean our villain . If at all possible or if we can't, we sweep them under the carpet and try to forget them. Our authentic heroes — and we have may of them — we wash in a solution primarily formaldehyde and enthrone them in the dusty attics of school-rooms."

MUSY BE BILINGUAL

Jean-Louis Gagnon, Montreal journalist and a member of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, said French - Canadians believe all Canadians must become bilingual or the country will be shattered.

He said there is a continuing refusal to respect the rights of French-Canadians outside Quebec. This has led them to an increasingly strong conviction that there is no future for French - Canadian culture outside that province and that it was separatist socials. If not yet politically, from the rest of Canada.

Royce Frith, a Toronto lawyer and another member of the royal commission, said most English-Canadians are willing to let French-Canadians have equal status—as long as it is somewhere else. Residents of Moncton, N.B., were agreeable to having a French - speaking postmaster in Prince Rupert, B.C.

Square-Riggers Of Bygone Age In Sail Past

NEW YORK (CP-AP)—The "tall ships" — stately square-riggers of a bygone age — and smaller sailing vessels, set sail today from New York Tuesday in a majestic marine spectacle before throngs of onlookers.

The windjammers, including the schooner Bluenose II out of Lunenburg, N.S., and the training ship St. Lawrence II out of Kingston, formed a procession a mile long in moving to the Hudson River in ghostlike contrast to the modern liners and skyscrapers lining their course.

The vessels with U.S. Coast Guard barque Eagle in the lead formed two columns, one headed by the Bluenose.

Small craft by the hundreds took out of the main channel to welcome the sailing ships.

The Bluenose, a replica of the original schooner of the same name, was launched at Lunenburg a quarter century ago.

The St. Lawrence II, manned by Royal Canadian Sea Cadets, had a troubled passage down interior waterways to New York, including groundings and engine breakdowns.

HAD INVITATIONS

The ships, from many countries, had come here through invitations extended by the late president John F. Kennedy and New York Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller.

The fireboat Fireflgter, at cost of $7.50 gallons of water a minute into the air, served as advance guard for the 60-ship.

The weather, which had been overcast and foggy, gradually cleared as the procession got under way.

The ships, some of which participated in a race from Portugal to Bermuda last month, had been gathering in Gravesend Bay in the lower harbor since Saturday.

Officers and cadet, a round of social and recreational activities has been scheduled.

The crews also will march Thursday along Broadway from the battery to city hall.

PLUGS FOR DOGS

LONDON (AP)—A new vogue for hairless dogs—a notion by waiving extraction of the canine vocal chords—was condemned the House of Lords Tuesday as a piece of cruelty that ought to be outlawed. "I believe it is time to stop this practice," declared Labor peer Lord Willis.

Business Assistant Named to Board

The Belleville Public School Board at a special meeting Tuesday evening named J. Leighton Anderson of Galt as business assistant to the superintendent of public schools in the city.

The position is a new one with the Belleville Public Schools and carries a starting salary of $5,500 with annual increases of $300. The Board agreement with Mr. Anderson also calls for progress in the office of business administrator, when the certificate course in school business administration is completed.

Mr. Anderson is married to the former Mary Christine Patrick, whose home was at 223 Dufferin Ave., where her mother, Mrs. A. C. Patrick still lives.

GIVES APPROVAL

The Ontario Department of Education has given tentative approval for the construction of an eight-room addition to Park Dale Public School but lack of finances is expected to prevent any progress this year.

Plans for the Public School Board last night were advised of the Department's tentative approval for the school addition, but at the same time were advised that the cost of the project was included in the city's 1963 capital works program and that city council would be unable to finance the work before the first of next year.

The Board approved contracts for extension and improvements to Avondale and Bayview schools on Dundas St. Bayview Son at $4,200 and $3,876 respectively. The lowest bid was accepted.

Fitzgibbon Construction Ltd. was given a contract to provide concrete walks and play areas at Avondale, Bayview, Park Dale and Prince of Wales schools at the tendered price of $3,000.

The Board received deed from Belleville city council for part of Dufferin Street, about, situate the East Belleville playground subject to approval to survey and fencing for the new west boundary of the playground.

Yard Intensifies Hunt for 'Jack The Stripper'

LONDON (Reuters)—The several thefts and prostitutes of Soho have given the police hope that a maniac—Jack the Stripper—with an obsession for undressed prostitutes is on the loose in London.

The police notice was issued following discovery Tuesday in a London street of the fifth prostitute with her head and stripped naked in eight months.

Police believed the person who killed Hilda Fleming, 31, also killed the other four. All were strangled.

Police sources said it was believed Miss Fleming's body had been kept in the trunk of a car for some time before being dumped in the street.

MOTHER OF TWO

Miss Fleming had two children, a two-year-old son and a nine-months-old daughter. She and her husband were separated.

Some Soldiers Now Wearing 6 UN Medals

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian soldiers have been awarded as many United Nations peacekeeping operations around the world that the army has had to issue an order of precedence for the wearing of UN medals and ribbons.

With thousands of Second World War veterans still in the services now shifting to their final year in uniform, the Canadian public soon will be seeing little else than UN "fruit salad" on servicemen's chests.

The dominant color in each set of the ribbons is UN blue. Some 35,000 Canadian servicemen, mostly soldiers, now are entitled to wear UN medals and ribbons. This doesn't include the 1,200 soldiers now in Cyprus earning the new UN medal for the first addition, but at the same time were advised that the cost of the project was included in the city's 1963 capital works program and that city council would be unable to finance the work before the first of next year.

Maj. R. N. Broad, M.C., M.M. Madoc, Dies Suddenly

One of the district's most distinguished veterans is dead.

Major Robert Newell Broad, MC, MM, entombed and decorated on the field after he joined as a private in World War I, died suddenly in Belleville General Hospital this Wednesday morning.

He was 81 years of age.

A life-long resident of Madoc township, he was a well-known, popular figure in the district.

His military record spanned both world conflicts.

He joined the ranks of the second battalion on the outbreak of World War I in 1914, and at the end of the conflict was decorated on the battlefield after he joined as a private in World War I, and

Heavy Agenda In Police Court On Tuesday

TRENTON — Some days at Magistrate's Court in Trenton hardly seem worth the effort.

Mundane cases are heard. Cut and dried sentences are passed. The wheels of justice grind on.

But Tuesday just wasn't one of those days.

One Trenton citizen, Arthur Patrick McCauley, age 19, pleaded guilty to the theft of a girl's bicycle, but his lawyer, Gregory Butler, modified the word "theft" by saying his client had taken the bike, but merely "went for a ride," and meant to return it.

Magistrate T. Y. Wills termed the episode "joy riding on a bicycle," and entered the plea of guilty, when he was told the youth's father is about to undergo a serious operation. McCauley will make a second court appearance August 4.

Sentenced to seven days in jail was 38-year-old Gordon Anderson, convicted of drunk driving on a motorcycle. The court was told when Anderson was picked up on July 11, he was in such a state he couldn't be questioned by police.

Anderson raised a moot question in court yesterday.

"Can a drunk man drive a motorcycle and keep his balance?" he asked.

"I suggest you've just given us the answer to that," replied Magistrate Wills.

It took three burly policemen and Inspector R. J. Rutherford to subdue a local man, Everett Hickerson (who must weigh 100 pounds, soaking wet) when he said he didn't want to go to the Ontario Hospital for a 90-day observation period.

Hickerson, charged with carrying a knife, was literally carried from the courtroom by the police.

Aubrey Green was said to have had 2.6 parts per 1,000 in a blood test taken on June 12, when his Cadillac was involved in a minor crash with another Cadillac.

Green was fined $50 and sentenced to seven days in jail.

D. A. Shand, charged with attempting to defraud by passing two worthless cheques, drawn on a Toronto bank, for goods purchased at Vic Auger's Men's Shop ($322.65), and Holmes Shoes, Ltd. ($39.95) on June 5, was remanded on bail until August 4 at the request of his lawyer, Gregory Butler.

27th Squadron From London Wins Meet

TRENTON — The Air Cadet track and field meet was held Saturday afternoon at RCAF Station Trenton during the final of four camps. Number 27 Squadron from London seemed to steal the show by winning the major event, the track meet, for the second year. The cadets beat their own record by fourteen points to achieve an average point count of 69 points for the squadron. This squadron did not stop here, but went on to win other events in the meet. Terry Lillimen and Fred Clarke came first and second respectively in the senior 100 yard dash. Number 27 Squadron also won the shuttle relay and the 440-yard relay race in both junior and senior divisions.

Henry Marcinkowski of 283 Squadron Kirkland Lake finished first in the football throw and second in the softball throw for the junior division. In the senior division, Bernie Grybowski from 142 Squadron Mimico, finished first in both the football and softball throws. Leonard Olfman of 645 Squadron Kenora and David Warning of 895 Squadron North Kildonan were close competitors in the high jump and running broad jump, while Warning finished second in the high jump and first in the broadjump.

The next track and field meet will be held during the second Air Cadet summer camp at Station Trenton on 25th July.

Two Boys Flee Training School Camp at Park

TRENTON—Provincial Police from Brighton have joined Lands and Forests officials in a search of the Presqu'ile Park area for two juveniles missing from a training school camp in the Park.

The camp is run by the Cobourg Training School and 65 boys are currently attending the session. The two escapees, ages 13 and 15, were discovered to be missing this morning at breakfast.

One Lands and Forests official said, "This camp is a very well run camp. We made the campsite available from an old Boy Scout camp. This year we expect 200 boys from the Cobourg Training School to attend the three-week camp sessions."

Robert Fraser, a fourth year student at the Ontario Agricultural College, sprays test corn with "tracer" elements, mixed in distilled water.

Heissler's Farm at Stockdale Being Used for Experiments

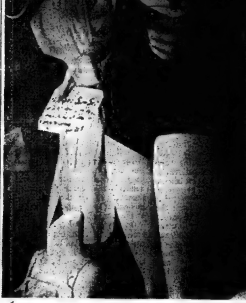
TRENTON — Our grandfathers knew that "manure from the barnyard was good for the crops."

When science began to work hand in hand with agriculture, farmers learned that manure contained nitrogen, phosphorous and potash; but also that contained "lesser," or "secondary" elements.

Scientists went to work and came up with commercial fertilizers, designed to replace the old barnyard manure. The basic elements of nitrogen, phosphorous and potash went into the new manufactured product. But, the secondary elements were missing, for the most part.

This summer, Professor Thomas Lane and his assistant, Robert Fraser, from the Department of Soil Science at the Ontario Agricultural College, are conducting experiments with small test crops on 31 farms across Ontario. Robert Fraser, a fourth year student at the college, sprays the test crops with "minor" elements, or "tracer" elements, as Professor Lane prefers to call them. These are: manganese, magnesium, molybdenum, copper, zinc and boron.

One such experiment is being conducted on the farm of Paul Heissler near Stockdale. Half-an-acre of corn has been planted . . . sprayed when it was 16 inches tall, and again yesterday, when it was three feet tall. This is the last spray and when the corn is ready to harvest, ears and leaves will be sent to O.A.C. for analysis, to find out how much of the tracer elements it has absorbed.



Professor Lane calls the experiments, "research for the future." "We're looking ahead five to ten years," he says.

Vegetables, fruit, hay, etc., grown by use of tracer elements, will be more nutritious, larger and have a better appearance, Professor Lane says.

Paul Heissler's 160 acre farm was chosen because of Paul's intense interest in providing his soil . . . and consequently his crops . . . with the tracer elements . . . necessary to health. Paul has attended "short courses," in soil fertilizing at O.A.C. for three years.

Well-known figures on Trenton market, Paul and Mrs. Heissler came to Canada from Europe 12 years ago and have made their farm near Stockdale a "farmer's dream." Water for irrigation has been drawn from a creek running through the property, and man-made ponds dot the farmlot.

Paul and his wife work hard but they have their reward. The satisfaction of knowing that the products they sell on the market to their friends, are the best they can produce, working in co-operation with Nature.

Trenton citizens, by the hundreds, gravitated to the Aziz Specialty Shop on Trenton's main street yesterday to catch a glimpse of the topless bathing suit, displayed on a shapely mannequin. Store owner, F. J. Aziz, explains on a sign in the mannequin's hand, "We don't approve of this style. We merely display it to satisfy the curious." A clerk said in the afternoon there had been no offers of purchase.

One of Three Fugitives Apprehended

TRENTON—James Fisher of Hamilton, 37, one of three men who escaped from the Dominion Experimental Farm at Smithfield last May, was picked up by Hamilton police this morning.

Still missing are the other two escapees, William Wilson of Toronto and James McCooeye of Fort William.

The trio from Joyceville Prison in Kingston, were due for release in the fall. They were serving two-year terms for offenses ranging from breaking and entering to possession of stolen goods.

Weed Killer Purchased by Parks Board

TRENTON — Mr. Nels Skadlid of National Chemsearch Ltd., came before the Trenton Parks' Board last night to try to interest the members in Chem-Ester, a chemical concentrate made by his company, and guaranteed, when mixed with the recommended quantities of water, to kill all weeds known to the United States and Canada, and small brush, while leaving unharmed grass, flowers and trees. The Board was interested and will order a 30-gallon drum of the substance. It is expected that this quantity, mixed one to two gallons with 100 gallons of water, will be sufficient to spray parts of Hanna Park, the mountain and other, smaller park areas. Cost to the Board will be around $300.

"Chem - Ester, Use, Two, Three," as the substance is known, will have no ill effect on children or animals, even if they "lick" it off. It has "deep penetration" for longer lasting results and may be sprayed, in all kinds of weather, from spring to early fall.

A suggestion by Mr. Skadid that his company would supply a large, costly sprayer free of charge to the Board if two 45-gallon drums were bought, was turned down, because of the overall cost and the possibility of having so much of the chemical on hand.

In other Board business, the finishing up of the new Parks' Board building in the Bayshore Park extension was discussed. Clyde Mason said he wanted to see Board records, now stored in a number of places, filed away in suitable filing cabinets in the building.

It was also decided to erect a "removable" fence in front of playground equipment in Victoria Park, on Division Street

"removable," because there is a possibility that council may widen Ford Street, at one side of the park. The temporary fence will protect children from Division St. traffic.

Present at last night's meeting were the chairman, William Ireland, Mr. Mason, Miss Marion Baker, secretary, Norman Armour and parks' gardener, Bert Boers.

SEIZE CAPSULES

WASHINGTON (AP)—Seizure of a number of "sustained action" and "time disintegration" cold capsules on charges of false claims was announced by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration Tuesday. It said the products sold without prescription, are generally labelled as providing up to 12 hours of continuous relief.

Bowling Notes

The third stage of the district playoffs in lawn bowling was held at the local greens last night when the singles were played. This competition was rained out on Sunday. There were seven entries with Percy Graham of Belleville drawing the bye. In the first or preliminary round, under the direction of the District Chairman, Ralph Tuck, Howard Jagges of Kingston defeated "Jerry" Hyde of Belleville 21-7, William Fuller of Trenton beat Al Boyce, also of Trenton 21-13 and Bill Wright of Belleville won over Ralph Tuck 21-10.

In the first round Percy Graham of Belleville defeated Howard Jagges of Kingston, 21-15, while William Fuller of Trenton beat Bill Wright of Belleville 21-11. In the final round Mr. Fuller won over Mr. Graham by a 21-2 count. The games were well played on exceptionally fast greens. The next playoff will be held in this city on Saturday, July 25th, when the district winners from three districts in rinks, colts, doubles and singles will compete. Norm Peacock and Wally Lavergne will represent the local club in the doubles.

Mrs. Amse Avery with Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon won the one-game high score of a women's tournament held in Brighton on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Lorella Cleoudard with Mrs. Helen Coutts of the Trenton club won the tourney with Mrs. Myra Carr and Mrs. Mary Haker as skip won the two-game high count. There were ten rinks in competition and the bowlers report the greens were in excellent condition, due in part to the much-needed rain that visited the district. Mrs. Hal Mayes with Mrs. Grace Clapp as skip won two games but not enough more to get into the prize money.

A trebles tournament for women was held by the Kingston Bowling Club on Tuesday afternoon and a rink of Mrs. Millie Wright, Mrs. Jessie Hunter with Miss Elsie Humphreys as skip from the local club won the two-game high and received beautiful prize awards. There were 15 rinks in the tournament and unfortunately one rink had to sit out during each game. The greens were exceptionally keen and the competition most keen.

This afternoon five rinks of mixed trebles will journey to Campbellford. This tourney is limited to one draw which is 16 rinks and many rinks throughout the district were forced to forego a day of bowling with the hospitable Campbellford club.

A Head on the Beer

Thirty years ago this week, the Ontario beverage room was born.

A brewery has put out a reproduction of the front page of the Toronto Globe on Wednesday, July 18, 1934, to commemorate the anniversary.

More than drinking habits have changed in the interval. A switch from 4.4 beer to a slug of straight vodka would be no more startling than the change in the habits of legislative bodies.

Besides approving regulations for the sale of beer and wine by the glass, here is what the new-duly-elected Hepburn Government did on July 27, 1934:

Eliminated the colonization branch of the Department of Agriculture.

Closed "Ontario House" in London, England.

Replaced the Milk Control Board.

Named new Deputy Ministers of Education, (at a salary of $7,500 a year), and Game and Fisheries.

Set the dates for two byelections.

Fired a Crown Attorney, accepted the resignation of Toronto's Senior Magistrate, ordered two investigations, one into a job-trafficking case and another into the Niagara Parks Commission.

Established a new system of appointments of technical civil servants.

Facilitated a "hunger march" by unemployed to Queen's Park.

Granted, even at that time, this was considered better than a normal day's work.

What it would be called at Ottawa today, amongst those $18,000-a-year men, is probably unprintable.

Or, if printable, it would take them a month each to express.

Alarming!

We are concerned about a report from North York. The suburbs must be an even greater danger than we had dreamed.

A physical fitness jamboree was staged there, in itself a piece of nonsense of which only suburbanites would be guilty. The results, though, were alarming. Girls in the under 11 group and in the under 20 group turned in better times in the 440-yard run than the boys. Now, we would have expected that in the under 11 age bracket. , A girl of that age has to be able to run faster than the boys. But if boys under 20 are being outpaced by girls in this age bracket, there is something radically wrong. There is, however, one hope. The report mentioned the girls turning in "better times." Perhaps the two groups were tested against the clock. Let them put the boys and girls in the same race. Then, if the boys cannot catch the girls we shall know the worst—the modern girl has lost the knack of slowing down.

Turn About

In Chicago policemen operated a numbers racket for several months, while they learned the identity of the higher-ups in the crime syndicate.

This seems no more than right.

It is a well-known fact that in Chicago and other big cities there have for years been police men who are in the employ of the gangsters. It is only common courtesy for the police, in their turn, to supply the gangsters with needed workers.

What, though, would happen if some day we discovered that all the policemen were in the pay of the crime syndicate, and all the criminals were policemen in disguise?

Some central registry, where a man could list his real identity, appears to be badly needed.

A Matter of Adventure

Communist China's deputy premier, Chen Yi, recently charged in a radio Peking broadcast that "the United States is continuing to and increasingly grave situation by carrying out neutral reconnaissance against the pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces in Laos and by preparing for new military adventures in South Viet Nam."

One can but wonder how Deputy Premier Yi styles the arms and military aid that Communist China has been pouring into Laos and Viet Nam these many long years? Clearly, in the communist dictionary "military adventure" is something which, by definition, only the other side is capable of.

The Crocodile Man

By Robert Heller, Czechoslovakian art teacher, in a report to UNESCO after six years in Africa

Not all crocodiles are bad. You may have heard stories about the sacred crocodiles which became so domesticated that they could no longer feed themselves and opened up their jaws wide so that people might take pictures of them.

But "Yanga-Yanga" (which means bad crocodile in the Fra-Fra language living near the Bolga River in Northern Ghana, was not nearly so friendly. My friend, a hunter took me to Yanga-Yanga and brought along the "crocodile man."

The "crocodile" man is very popular among the village people for he appears whenever there are bad crocodiles and catches them. Everyone believes that his magic powers enable him to turn into a crocodile.

The "crocodile man" at first observes the bank of the river or lake and, after some evenings of walking back and forth to prepare his "magic," he announces that he is ready to dip under the surface and visit the king of the crocodiles.

Before he goes a big celebration is held and at sunset all the local population is accompanies him to the water's edge. He disappears under the surface and after several heaves and, otherwise, the magic would not be effective.

They return at sunrise and the magic man emerges from the water at the place where he disappeared.

He holds ends of four ropes to the strongest man of the village. They pull with all their might and out comes a live crocodile tied up in a real bundle. He is killed, ripped open and then, a brass bracelet or some other trinket is presented to one of his victims is found in the belly.

Every villager believes that the crocodile was captured by the magic powers of the "crocodile man." Even the "crocodile man" himself believes in his magic. I think it should be so. One should believe in one's own allbi.

The truth is as follows: the "crocodile man" dives, swims underwater and hides, protected by a large rock or thicket, until he is alone. Then he goes to a place where he has been setting out lures for the past several nights—a basket of rotten and pieces of meat or even a small ape bound to a stake.

He stretches out on the ground behind the lures, pretends and waits for the ugly monster to creep slowly and heavily out of the water and fall upon his dinner. At the moment the crocodile opens his mouth to swallow the food, the "crocodile man" thrusts a pointed stick between the widespread jaws of the monster.

The more the reptile struggles to close its jaws, the deeper the stick penetrates between the solidly lodged that the hunter, grasping the stick with both hands, can turn the crocodile over on his back. He then throws one leg over him, binding him tightly and saving the final loop for the mouth which he also ties together closely removing the stick. He removes all trace of the struggle, throws the tied animal into the water and hides where the villagers saw him disappear awaiting their arrival.

My friend, the "crocodile man" and I arrived at the edge of the pond where I was to see Yanga-Yanga. Colorful dragonflies hung in the air above the surface of the water. Nearby, on massive lookers, the flamingos were holding a debate and reflected the pink, red and blue-violet hues of the brilliant sunset.

A few village girls with graceful, effortless movements dipped their huge jugs into the water and placed them on their heads. Some boys sang along the edge of the pond waving a frog on a long stick and uttering strange guttural sounds to tempt the crocodile. My friend pointed to a trunk floating in the water and cried out, "There he is!" Suddenly, the "trunk" protruded from the bank. The boys, shouting and waving the frog, tried to tempt him out of the water. I grabbed my sketch book and began to outline the movements of the animal as he crawled up on to the bank and, in a rapid movement, snapped up the frog.

A little dog, from the village narrowly jumped and zapped around me. The excited, growing bolder, came quite close. I could see his wicked eyes as I painted fervently away. I didn't even hear my friend and the "crocodile man" calling to me from the car, ready to leave.

Suddenly, in a few brief movements the animal was at my side. It was a piece of my leg that disappeared in his mouth but my little dog from the village — I realized that Yanga-Yanga was indeed a wicked and malicious animal and I hurried after my friends to escape the fate of the little dog.

Parliament Reflects Nation

Montreal Gazette

Harsh things are being said about Parliament these days. People, they say, are becoming cynical about their members at Ottawa. Parliament, in its day to day proceedings, is presenting a sorry, dismal picture.

This may all be true, with a sad sort of truth. But there is something else. May it not be that this Canadian Parliament is only the reproduction of the not the very failings that appear so discouraging on the parliamentary scene in the same failings that are spread across the country?

A patriotic, far-seeing, tolerant, understanding, wise, just and confident people are most likely to find themselves afflicted with a divided, limping, quarrelsome, narrow and uninspiring Parliament. Should it not be that Parliament is the mirror of the will, casting back its reflection in the face of the confused nation?

In Parliament are the common and continuing weaknesses —those known over many years. But even these are only related to the attitudes of the country.

People say that Parliament ought to have better men as members. But how many men of ability and position are ready to enter politics and seek the hurly-burly of actual standing aside and criticizing?

Or it is said that Parliament is inconsistent in what it does. But may this not be because people are inconsistent in the demands they make upon Parliament, as when they ask Parliament to spend and economize at the same time?

Or members of Parliament are charged with not putting principle above party. But may this not be because too many people are asking to have their particular interests put above principle?

Parliament has had weaknesses of this kind for generations, as has the country. But now it is also being said that members of Parliament seem bewildered: they have no sense of direction; they lack courage and leadership; they seem petty in the midst of great needs.

But at this time how many many Canadians really know what they want? How often the solutions people put forward are simple and easy, and never find national acceptance.

How many people in this country are really ready to rise to the sort of comprehensive adjustments, the discussion and take, the sincere desire to understand (emotionally as well as factually) what the various point of others is? How many Canadians really seek answers to our national difficulties that are something more than the answers to our national divisions that are sectional rather than the answers they would like to impose out of habit or prejudice?

It is true that upon the country's political leaders lies the responsibility of leadership. But a democratic leader cannot dictate to the people. He becomes, rather, the means of expressing their aims and needs and hopes. But are Canadian leaders, looking today over the country, would find it hard to understand just what Canadians really want in terms that the country, as a whole, would be ready to accept.

No doubt Parliament's petty pace from day to day is enough to sicken the heart. But what is really needed is something bigger than scolding and uninspiring Parliament.t To blame Parliament for all that seems to be going wrong is to find scapegoats. The answer is not so simple.

"Rend your hearts and not your garments" was the wise admonition of another day. "Rend your hearts and not your parliaments," would be a timely admonition for today. The embarrassing thing about the present Parliament is that it may be picturing, too clearly for our comfort, the unhappy perplexities of the country's soul.

Taking part in the action were Shipwright Petty Officer A. D. Loucks, son of Mrs. Albert Loucks, Coleman; Jones Christie of Belleville; Cody Ostrander of Picton; Rev. Quincey Ships Writer, who saw the action from a "brigade seat" on the bridge, and John Norton of Brighton.

Public school children of considerable interest in the appeal for the collection of waste paper to assist in the nation's war effort; and during the first three days of the week fetched a total of approximately 18,000 pounds to school, it is announced by officials of the local salvage committee. On the first day of the campaign for the collection of waste paper at the schools, children brought over 9000 pounds, while over two more tons were collected on Tuesday.

Added inducement of return railway or bus fare to the locality where needed, is being offered to girls in the Belleville area to attend four summer holidays in farm work camps in the fruit growing districts of the province. The demand for help in the fruit districts and in the gardening areas has never been more acute than this summer and every inducement is being made through the Ontario Farm Service Force to recruit the needed workers.

At the regular meeting of the Kheyan Temple last night, they were given dealing with their occupations by Fred Deacon, Charles Hann, Russell Wotten and Eddie O'Flynn. An old great country. They will also have a great Parliament when they have come to terms with the inconsistencies, the prejudices, the hates the doubtings, and the teary rigidities that lie within themselves.

Belleville boy, William Orr, was welcomed as a guest. Duke Smith invited the members of the club to take a trip on his boat and the invitation was gladly accepted.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Harman have left on a motor car trip to Ottawa and other places of interest in the east.

Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Pitney are camping near Mississaga Point.

Mr. James Mullen, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Seaforth, Ont., is visiting his mother at her home on Coleman Street.

Mr. W. J. Hollinger of Brooklyn, N.Y., is spending a few days here with friends.

Mrs. John Moore and daughter of Toronto are visiting relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson have left to spend a vacation in the Province of Quebec.

Mr. Arthur McGinnis and Mr. E. Goss Porter, K.C., M.P., left today to spend some time at Mount Clemens, Mich.

Judge Deroche and family left today for their camp at St. Ola.

The Rev. R. C. Blagrave, rector of Christ Church, and his family are spending a vacation camping at St. Ola.

Quebec Turns Socialistic

Windsor Star

It would be a queer twist if Quebec, long the citadel of the moguls and magnates of private enterprise, should become the most socialistic part of Canada. But it could be.

Mr. Gerard Filion, general manager of the Provincial Investment Corporation of Quebec, does not go so far as to preach socialism, but he does predict there will be more government intervention in the economic life of the province. This might take the form of the Quebec government holding equity capital in new enterprises, he suggested.

There is a surge in Quebec, and an understandable one, that the French-speaking people should have a greater control over their own resources and industries. About the only way this can be achieved is for public money to be invested to gain an influence in (and over) private enterprise. There are few French-speaking citizens with enough money to acquire control of a big industry of resources.

Quebec also may take the lead away from Saskatchewan in being a leader in social welfare schemes. That its old age pensions, family allowances formed a pattern for the national average is an example. Here again the motive is the same: to secure for the people better returns from their resources and industries.

Cheques for some $20,000,000 were mailed out as the Canadian government made its first family allowance payments to mothers, 19 years ago today—in 1943. The child welfare measure called for a payment of $252,360,000 annually to be spread towards the maintenance, care, training, education and advancement of children. All families with dependent children up to 16 years of age were eligible to receive the payments.

Some Advice on Children Travel and Car Sickness

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Could you give me some advice for children who get car sick? I seem to me there should be something they could take just before a ride that would not be harmful. — Mrs. R. M.

Let's call it motion sickness, because there isn't any great difference between carsickness, seasickness and airsickness. Or even, for a few people, trainsickness, although this is rare.

It's the same basic disorder — a disturbance in the mechanism of the inner ear which controls the sense of balance. The motion can be one of swaying, bouncing or pitching. For different people, a different motion causes it, just as some good saltwater sailors get sick on different motions of a Great Lakes ship. And vice versa.

An old "grandma's" remedy was to put a newspaper or a brown paper bag against the cheek, under the clothing. Maybe it worked, I'll never know. Maybe it was psychological. Maybe there was some physiological reason too deep for me to detect. Yet I have known it to work.

We've had seasickness pills since I was knee-high to a duck of a ship, and these help many people.

In World War II the control of motion sickness became a matter of military importance. Dramamine and similar drugs were developed. Small doses of them, just before a trip, proved very effective.

These drugs should be used cautiously with children. Talk to your doctor about the proper dose, taking into consideration the age and size of the child. Large or frequent doses may cause disturbing drowsiness. But they are very effective.

Dear Dr. Molner: What can be done about a lifetime (so years) of chronic constipation? — Mrs. M.

Constipation can be conquered in most cases. This usually takes time, and almost always it is imperative that the patient abandon certain notions about what constipation really is. That's the hardest part of it. And that's why I always warn vigorously against bringing a child up to believe that he needs a laxative regularly, or that his bowels have to move according to some arbitrary schedule. The idea we absorb as children are the hardest to change later.

How to break the constipation habit? The best ways I know are contained in my booklet, "The Way to Stay Constipation." Get it. Read it. Understand it. And then follow the instructions.

For a copy of the booklet, send 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Tribune Syndicate, P. O. Box 136, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a new grandmother — the baby is three months old. My daughter and her husband plan to have me and tickle her to make her laugh. I have heard from older friends that this is very dangerous, by setting on the nervous system. Is there some truth to this or is it an old wives' tale. — Mr. C. A.

Gentle, brief tickling doesn't cause stuttering, and I see no reason to object to it.

When it gets to the point of causing a child — and once in a while you hear of this, and the real purpose is to be mean — that's another matter.

Parents who really love their children, as nearly all do, are not going to harm a baby. It's more than natural.

Dear Dr. Molner: Did you ever hear of a person contracting tuberculosis from a fungus of the ear, is this possible? — S. C.

No, it's not possible. It is acquired only from contact with the tuberculosis germ, which is a bacterium, not a fungus.

Strictly Personal

Confused By A Well-Known Everyday Cliche

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

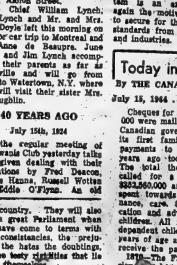
If the class will come to attention, we'll do a little word-work today, based on a letter I have received, which is one of quite a few asking this same question.

A reader writes: "As a teacher, the cliche 'The exception proves the rule' has always plagued me. Has there been, taken out, of context or is it really true? A rule is a rule — how can an exception prove it? If you can answer this perplexing question, it will solve a tremendous problem for me, as my students continually ask me why I use the phrase when I cannot give the answer."

The saying comes from an old Roman phrase; "Exceptio probat regulam — the exception 'tests,' means to make a trial of, to test. In the early days of English, the word probe meant "test," as when St. Paul advised the Thessalonians to 'prove all things and hold fast to that which is good." He meant, of course, to test all things.

The old meaning of "proof" has come down to us in the printer's "proofsheet" — which is not a demonstration of a page's correctness, but a trial of it. We call the proof sheet against the original copy.

The phrase, "The exception tests the rule," then, means that the exception tests the rule, and how does it test it? It does not mean that the exception proves the correctness of any rule in general; it does mean, however, that if we recognize one thing as an exception, then we have to recognize some rule to which it is an exception.



For instance, Sam Johnson knew that the presence of woodcock in the migration of woodcock in summer was as good as could be desired. He also understood that, however, some woodcocks had been found in Essex in summer, to which he replied, "Sir, that strengthens our argument. Exceptio probat regulam. Some hedgehogs have been found, but if all remained, many would be found."

Actually, the exception illustrates the rule, but it does not demonstrate it. It can strengthen a rule, but never prove it; nor was it ever offered as proof. What happened was simply that the word "proof" changed its meaning over the centuries, and so turned the old saying into a nearly meaningless one.

Speaking of St. Paul something even worse has happened to his advice about faith, hope and charity." In King James' day, "charity" came from the Latin "caritas," and meant loving-kindness. Today it means something much narrower, and the whole force of the phrase has lost its traditional meaning.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—Trading in shares of Glenn Uranium, a company primarily interested in the search for base metals in the Timmins area, continued at a torrid pace on the stock market this morning.

In the first hour of trading Glenn had turned over more than 1,500,000 shares and traded in a 45-cent to 52-cent range. The hectic trading of today and Tuesday came on rumors that mineralization had been encountered on the company's Wark Township property.

However, a statement by Glenn president, P. C. A. Giardine, said that drills have not intersected sulphides or mineralized beds of any interest. Following the announcement the stock fell to its low of 41 cents, off 13 cents.

Windfall continued to trade actively in gaining 25 cents to $4, but other speculative issues were easier.

Industrials staged an orderly fractional retreat after closing Tuesday at a record index high. Massey - Ferguson and CPR were each off ⅛ to 31 and 43⅞. Algoma Steel tacked on ⅛ to a new high of 74½.

Base metals were lower with Noco down ⅛ to 88¾.

Glenn highlighted activity on the market Tuesday.

Between 2:15 p.m. and the close at 3:30 p.m., Glenn traded more than 2,000,000 shares of its total volume of 2,674,060, climbed from 27 cents to 85 cents and closed at 54 cents for a 22-cent gain. Rumors on Bay Street were that the company had encountered mineralization in its Wark Township property. Company officials were unavailable for comment.

The activity in Glenn took the spotlight off Windfall for the first time in seven sessions but Windfall was volatile. Trading 909 734 shares, it closed with a 10-cent advance at $3.75 after trading in a $3.25-$4.35 range.

The industrial index moved to a new high of 158.07 with a gain of .39.

Banks led the rise with Nova Scotia up 1½ to a 1964 peak of 74, Toronto-Dominion ½ to 65¾, Montreal ¾ to 65¾ and Royal ½ to 76¾.

Perennial favorite Bell Telephone improved ½ to 57¼ and recently - listed Rick's Pickle moved to a new peak of 13¼ with a gain of ⅞.

Golds were firm with Dome and Giant Yellowknife up 1¢ each to 29¢ and 11¾.

On index, golds gained 1.07 to 133.75, base metals .32 to 85.24, western oils .09 to 100.10 and the exchange index 1.36 to a new high of 149.03. Volume for the session was 5,550,000 shares compared with 7,624,000 shares traded Monday.

BRIAN OLNEY AND THE MONARCHS HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

The regular Friday night teen dances at the new YMCA have been fairly successful in the past several weeks with record hops and a local band.

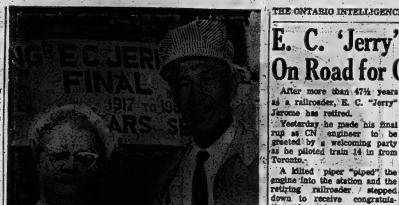
A Teen Dance committee under the direction of Terry Miskelly and Graham Geldert is working hard on this week's big effort at the old "Y" downtown.

The object of the committee is to raise funds to assist the delegate to attend the YMCA and YWCA World Conference of Young Adults in Beirut, Lebanon. Colin Wilcox was selected from many delegates all across Canada. He will be leaving in mid August for the Mediterranean with a number of other Canadian young people.

The Monarch's band from Kingston and Brian Olney the T.V. and radio disc jockey have been booked for Friday, July 17th. A large crowd is expected and this is the reason for holding the dance in the downtown YMCA. Advance tickets are available from the new "Y" but must be picked up by Friday afternoon.

Tenders Will Be Called for Paving Road

Tenders will be called the middle of next week for hot mix paving on the last section of the Madoc - Foxboro road, which is now under construction.



The section for which paving tenders are to be called is from about a mile north of Halloway to Foxboro. Announcement of the tender call was made by Clarke F. Rollins, MLA for Hastings East.

Roe Construction Company is now doing the grading on this final section of the county road being rebuilt as a provincial government development road project.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The United States dollar in terms of Canadian funds was unchanged at $1.08 3-16.

Mr. and Mrs. "Jerry" Jerome

E. C. 'Jerry' Jerome On Road for Over 47 Years

After more than 47½ years as a railroader, E. C. "Jerry" Jerome has retired.

Yesterday he made his final run as CN engineer to be greeted by a welcoming party as he piloted train 14 in from Toronto.

A fitted piper "piped" the engine into the station and the retiring railroader stepped down to receive congratulations from family members, friends and railway officials.

Later "open house" was held at the Jerome's new home at Peche Point, across the bay from Belleville.

"Jerry" started with the railway at Hamilton back in 1917 and has lived at Belleville since 1947.

An ardent fisherman and general handyman, "Jerry" has been putting his carpentry talents to good stead in building his new home in Prince Edward County. They formerly lived at 48 Alexander Street.

They have a daughter, Geraldine Craig of Toronto, a secretary and a son Art Jerome, Hamilton land developer and former Hamilton Tiger footballl and hockey player. There are three grandchildren - Artie Craig and Vicki and Kathy Jerome.

Plan Campaign To Keep Doctor In Practice

PALMERSTON, Ont. (CP)—A four-man citizens' committee met Tuesday to plan a campaign to keep Dr. Robert Kingsley Graham from being barred from medical practice by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Kenneth Leary of Palmerston, spokesman for the committee, said he felt Dr. Graham's involvement in the death of Ina Noer last May influenced the college's disciplinary committee in its announcement July 7 that it had recommended Dr. Graham be suspended.

Dr. Graham, who had operated on Mrs. Noer, was not held negligent by an inquest into the death, but the death was attributed to operating errors he committed, Mr. Leary said.

Mrs. Pearson Kept Busy At Meeting

LONDON (CP) — When Prime Minister Pearson came to London for the Commonwealth conference, Mrs. Pearson had hoped to move around the city by subway and visit old familiar spots, such as the house they once lived in near Hampstead Heath.

"But we've had so many engagements that I am afraid I am not going to do these things this trip," she said Tuesday.

The engagements included a Buckingham Palace garden party, a Buckingham Palace dinner, two other dinners and several receptions and luncheons.

"Then I had several old friends to look up and I also have a cousin and niece whom I visited, so there really hasn't been too much time for just getting around London."

Mrs. Pearson talked about her London activities just before she and the prime minister were to leave their hotel suite for the royal garden party. A few hours earlier she had toured Harrod's department store in a futile search for an English T-shirt for one of her nine grandchildren.

FAMILY GATHERS

She did get gifts for the grandchildren, all of whom will be awaiting their grandparents in Ottawa Thursday. It will be the first time in three years that both the prime minister's son and daughter have been home together with their children.

"So you can see why I am really anxious to get there," said Mrs. Pearson.

The prime minister and Mrs. Pearson arrived here last Tuesday from Calgary, eight time zones away from London. "I was really horribly tired when I arrived," she said, "and I didn't feel much like wandering around the first day or two."

Mr. and Mrs. Pearson didn't have a free evening together until Tuesday when they went to Her Majesty's Theatre to see The Right Honorable Gentlemen, a play about a member of Parliament in the Victorian era.

"Although it's been very busy, I have thoroughly enjoyed the trip," she said. "But there are so many things I wanted to do, such as visiting the Tate Gallery, that will just have to wait."

Eight Apply For Job as Truck Driver

NEW YORK (AP)—Eight shapely young women, not all of them on the frail side, showed up Tuesday to apply for a job as a truck driver.

They were answering a newspaper advertisement placed by Nathan Ketzman, president of an auto rental company. Why a lady truck driver?

"I want to open another avenue for women," he said.

Among the applicants were an aspiring actress, a philosophy and biology major and a teacher. One of them will be chosen to drive a nine-ton truck, one of 1,500, between 14 depots the company maintains in the city.

Immediately the questions came up: why, and what about rough language, traditional in the job?

GIVES UP TEACHING

Mrs. Eugenie S. Harris, 36-year-old divorcee of Newark, N.J., said she taught school last year but turned it down this year.

"I want to write," said Mrs. Harris. "I need experience and time off."

Lucille A. Morelli, 23, of Manhattan, a collage graduate in education, said she learned to drive a truck from her father, a truck driver.

Eva Phifer, 32, of the Bronx, who carries her 175 pounds very well, said: "I love to drive and if I resent men who think women can't drive. As for the language, you can hear it anywhere you go in the city."

Liza Volchansen, 21, of Manhattan, a Bryn Mawr student, said simply that she can't type and needs a job.

FIRE KILLS 10

TOKYO (AP)—Fire and explosions ripped through warehouses in a reclaimed industrial district in southern Tokyo Tuesday night, killing 10 firemen. One fireman was reported missing and 46 others including reporters were injured. The firemen died when they were caught in a second big explosion in a warehouse containing explosives.

The bride was formerly Diane Louise Millar, daughter of Flight Lieutenant and Mrs. G. E. Millar, R. R. 5, Trenton. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Genereaux of R. R. 3, Belleville.

GENEREAUX — MILLAR

Flight Lieutenant D. Blair was the officiating minister at the wedding of Diane Louise Millar, daughter of Flight Lieutenant and Mrs. G. E. Millar, R.R. 5, Trenton, to William James Genereaux, R.R. 3, Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Genereaux, at the Protestant Chapel, RCAF Trenton on Saturday, July 4th.

White satin bows marked the guest pews, and blue and white delphiniums decorated the chapel. Wedding music was provided by the organist Mr. R. C. Cornish, who also accompanied the soloist Miss Sylvia Miedema.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father wore a wedding gown of nylon organza over silk taffeta with scoop neckline and long sleeves, enhanced at the waist with rosebud lace embroidery from which a long bellshaped skirt flowed with a separate chapel train trimmed with rosebud lace and attached at the waist with a large bow. Her headdress was forget-me-not flowers with seeded pearl centres and shoulder-length tulle veil with bouffant effect in scalloped design. She carried a white Bible with pink roses.

Maid of honor was Miss Margaret Reed of Birdsall and the bridesmaids were Gail Millar and Bonnie Millar, sisters of the bride, R.R. 5, Trenton; and Patricia Genereaux, sister of the bridegroom, R.R. 3, Belleville. All wore street-length dresses of blue taffeta with short sleeves and scooped neckline, completed with an embroidered white nylon organza overskirt. They wore matching blue coronet headpieces and carried blue and white bouquets of carnations.

Mr. Reginald Loader, R.R. 3, Belleville was groomsman, and the ushers were Brian Johnson R.R. 3, Belleville; Gary Gungras, R.R. 2, Trenton; and John Hunt, R.R. 3, Belleville.

A reception was held at the Officers' Mess, RCAF Station, Trenton where a buffet luncheon was served at a table decorated with pink carnations and candelabra.

The bride's mother received wearing a pink silk sheath of silk chiffon over silk taffeta with bodice of Guipere lace, with matching pink hat, white accessories and corsage of white roses.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a beige sheath with lace jacket and matching flowered beige hat. Her accessories were beige and brown, and she wore a corsage of pink roses.

For a wedding trip to the New York World Fair the bride chose a white linen sleeveless sheath with jacket of yellow and white Chantilly lace over silk taffeta. Her accessories and hat were white and she wore a corsage of yellow roses.

Out of town guests were present from Peterborough, Belleville, The Ridge, Cochrane, Cornwall, Tweed and Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Genereaux will reside at R.R. 3, Belleville.

A miscellaneous shower honoring the bride was held at the home of Mrs. Helen Hardy in Peterborough, with co-hostess Miss Margaret Read. It was attended by the bride's co-workers at Highland Heights Public School in Peterborough and friends at Teachers' College.

STROUDS CONTEST

STROUD, England (CP) — Towns named Stroud in Ontario, Oklahoma and New South Wales, Australia, will challenge their Gloucestershire counterpart in the annual July Britk and Rolling-Pin throwing contest. The men hurl bricks, the women rolling - pins for the honor of being the best thrower.

Local Branch Red Cross Hears Reports

At the regular monthly meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Ontario Red Cross Society reports of various committees were received.

In her report for the month, Mrs. J. Buchanan, supervisor for the Homemakers' Division stated that 125 cases had been assisted and that 18 homemakers had cared for 295 children; 33 Senior Citizens had also received aid. The homemakers had worked for a total of 1127 days.

Mrs. R. Wright, chairman of the water safety program reported that swimming courses had been set up at the pool at the Tops Motel to run for 15 days. There are 130 children from Melrose, Shannonville and Marysville receiving instruction with three instructors and two assistants in charge; while a group from Plainfield are receiving instruction at the pool at the Kinsmen's Centre.

An appeal was made for a list of canvassers to take part in the United Appeal drive. The Red Cross Society is a member of United Appeal.

The treasurer's report was read by Mr. Thompson and all accounts were authorized for payment.

The meeting adjourned for the summer months.

Women Train In New Club To Be Leaders

HAMILTON (CP) — Twice a month 18 women meet here to teach themselves how to speak in public.

They are members of the Hamilton branch of International Toastmistress Clubs.

The aim is to give members self-confidence and the ability to express themselves, to train women to be leaders.

"Few women can step into a government post and follow proceedings," says Mrs. Kenneth Mackenzie of nearby Ancaster, the president. "The club trains them to do so."

Part of each meeting is devoted to impromptu speaking. Each member has one minute to prepare an assigned topic, one minute to speak on it.

"Sometimes the minute seems an hour long," Mrs. Mackenzie says.

Another half hour is spent on increasing vocabulary, evaluating speeches and criticism.

At each meeting three or four members give speeches which the other members criticize. They consider gestures, voice projection, content, eye contact and poise.

Each spring a contest is held with outside judges. Speakers get three topics 48 hours before the contest and must choose one. The winner represents the club at a regional contest in Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse L. Saltz, 271 Lillian Street, Sarnia, wish to announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Patricia Anne, to Ian George Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Cooper, Fonthorn, Ontario. The wedding will take place on Saturday, July 25th, 1964, at 3 p.m. in Devine Street United Church, Sarnia, Ontario.

Flag Resolutions Ruled Out of Order at Meeting

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Controversial resolutions supporting adoption of the red Canadian ensign as Canada's official flag today went before the National Convention of the Federation of Business and Professional Womens Clubs.

The resolutions, submitted by clubs in Calgary and Nanaimo, B.C., have been ruled out of order by the resolutions committee of the 7,000-member federation.

But National President Elsie Gregory MacGill said they would be on the agenda anyway and delegates would have a chance to defeat them, pass them, or table them for further study.

It is conceivable another resolution favoring the federal government's proposed maple leaf will be introduced from the convention floor.

Delegates appear to be evenly divided on the flag, but many feel the flag issue should not come on the convention.

"Our job is to look after the economic rights of working women," said one delegate. "This isn't within our sphere at all."

WANT TO TAKE STAND

Other members feel strongly that the federation should join the growing group of organizations taking a stand on the flag issue.

The federation was also to elect a new national president to succeed Miss MacGill, who has held the post since 1962.

Tuesday, delegates voted to intensify their fight to have the principle of equal pay for equal work accepted across Canada.

Raspberry Torte Is Dreamy Dessert

by Mary Moore

An aggressive bid for a reputation to challenge a French chef's is this dreamy Raspberry Torte. You can make it. You can make your guest's eyes pop and their mouths water with this beauty of a dessert. It took me over a hour to make.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Grilled Calves' Liver with Piquante Sauce; Fluffy Rice; Creamed New Peas; Sliced Tomatoes; Lattice Raspberry Pie; Coffee.

SUPERB RASPBERRY TORTE
(serves 10 to 12):

1 ring (7½) orange chiffon cake (or angel food) grated rind, 1 large orange, 1 2-3 cups milk, 2-3 cup sugar, 1-3 cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 pkt. box fresh raspberries (or 1 package fresh frozen raspberries), ¾ cup fine sugar (omit sugar if fresh frozen raspberries are used), ¾ cup orange juice, 1½ cups 32% (whipping) cream (divided), 2 teaspoons plain gelatine, 2 tablespoons cold water.

In top of double boiler scald together milk and orange rind. Wash and drain raspberries and pour over them the ¾ cup sugar and orange juice (from orange from which rind has been grated). (Note: If fresh frozen raspberries are used thaw them and drain. To drain-juice add orange juice but no sugar.)

Mix together dry the 2-3 cup sugar, flour and salt. Gradually stir scalded milk into this dry mixture and return to double boiler. (Do not strain.) Cook stirring until thick. Cover and cook 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Beat egg. Stir in a little of the hot mixture and return all to double boiler, stirring for 2 minutes. Remove from heat, add vanilla and chill, stirring occasionally.

Soak the gelatine in the cold water for 5 minutes, then dissolve it by stirring over hot water. Drain the orange juice-sugar liquid from the raspberries (or use the juice drained from frozen raspberries with orange juice added) and stir the dissolved gelatine into it. (This is for a glaze finish.) Do not permit this to set yet.

Whip ½ cup of the cream until stiff and fold it into the chilled custard mixture.

Cut ring from centre of tube cake to leave 1¼" wide shell all around and on bottom. A curved grapefruit knife will help you to undercut and lift out the inner ring of cake. Fill bottom hole carefully with some of the leftover cake.

Carefully transfer cake to serving cake plate. Fill with custard mixture to within ½ to ¾" of top. Arrange drained raspberries evenly on top. Now slowly pour red glaze over them, being sure it flows between berries. You may persuade it to pile up a little. Chill several hours. When serving time arrives whip remaining 1¼ cups heavy cream until stiff and frost sides and bare top edge. If you have an icing tube decorate top edge with whipped cream rosettes or flute the whipped cream around edge with your icing tube. Host must serve this with care.

An elegant dessert to serve on a hot afternoon with iced or hot tea.

NOTE:

You may have some leftover custard filling. If so, use it for dessert for lunch by pouring it over the leftover cake in stemmed glasses.

Ann Landers

After Dating 13 Months She Finally 'Woke Up'

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Be an angel and pull me out of the Valley of Indecision. Should I marry the guy or not?

Leroy is 30. I am 28. We have gone together 13 months. He was married five years ago but never talks about it. My parents try to conceal their dislike for him, but it shows.

ANN LANDERS

Leroy is a salesman, and a good one, but he is always short of money. He has lost his wallet three times since I've known him and I've had to lend him money to make the payments on his car.

Jealousy is his worst fault. He has a habit of telephoning me after every date—he claims it's to say "Goodnight" but actually he's checking to see if I'm late-dating.

One night I was in the shower and didn't hear the phone. He came over and sat on the porch all night. I found him asleep on the swing when I went to work the next morning at 7:30. I had a tough time convincing him I had been in the house the whole time.

Now, on the positive side: He is very good-looking and appeals to me physically. Well, that does it. I have been sitting here for 10 minutes and I can't think of one other thing to say.

Don't bother to answer this letter. You have helped me more than you know. Thank you. — EYES OPENED.

DEAR EYES — I'm not answering your letter — just printing it. It may open a few other eyes.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The young woman next door is a disorganized, addlebrained wisp of a thing who manages to have a baby every year with about as much effort as most people use to whip up a batch of cookies.

I'm not criticizing large families, Ann, but for the last three years I am the one who has been struck with the children when she has gone to the hospital. Her labor pains always come as a big surprise — as if she didn't even know she was pregnant. Last night her husband appeared at the door with their four youngsters and gasped, "Ellie has to go the hospital right away. Please help us out."

"Help us out" means five days of caring for their four and my three.

I have known since February that Ellie would be needing help about this time. She had five months to make arrangements. What should I do next year? — JUST PLAIN MAD.

DEAR JUST — The minute you notice Ellie is pregnant help her line up someone who can come at a moment's notice. Check periodically to make sure the woman can be depended on. If the tribe appears at your door next year tell them you'll go to their house and sit with the kids till the hired woman arrives.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — What does a wink mean? A certain flirt in our crowd has always made a big fuss over my husband. Although he pretends he hasn't noticed, I'm sure he must be very much aware of it.

Last night at a party I watched this woman across the room and when something amusing was said by one of the guests she gave my husband a very seductive wink. I said nothing to him but it irritated me.

And now I would like you to tell me — what does a wink actually mean? — SLIGHTLY JEALOUS.

DEAR JEALOUS — Some winks are harmless little gestures — used to punctuate sentences. These winks are about as sexy as a jab in the ribs with a sharp elbow.

And then there is the wink that telegraphs a feeling of intimacy — to let the receiver know he has been singled out to share a delicious secret moment. But why be concerned? Your husband was the receiver, not the sender.

* * *

Do you lack self-confidence — have trouble making friends? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

PROTEST ORDER

TORONTO (CP)—The United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America (CLC) have protested against an order placed by the Toronto Transit Commission with the Amalgamated Electric Company of nearby Markham. The union has not had a contract with the company since last August when its blank, now being picketed, was shifted from Toronto to Markham.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DOR GILBERT, BOOMER ED'S

Sudden rebellion at the ranks? Even the best-behaved baby will refuse the meal or the rebel from time to time. And why not? A baby is a human being entitled to a few human quirks (besides, this show of spirit means he's growing up). So when your baby ocassionally refuses to go along with his regular mealtime or nursing schedule, try to relax and let him relax before you feed or bed him down. If you don't force the issue, it will be easier to get baby back on schedule the next time around.

* *

Baby will relish regular mealtimes, if they're kept "exciting-but-weird-to" times. The second ingredient? A simple atmosphere. A goodly variety of Gerber Strained Foods. There are more than enough to keep baby's mealtimes peaceful.

* *

Variety saviour with a delicious point of view. Gerber Strained Foods offer plenty of range for sweet change, 15 luscious fruits, 9 garden-grown vegetables, 3 savoury meats, 8 extra flavour-ful dinners, 4 wonderful desserts, 5 finish-licious juices. Each one designed with a specific nutritional purpose in mind.

Successful Living

Freeloading Uncle Must Be Given His Notice Now

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — My mother has an unmarried brother in his early 50's who is frequently unemployed. Last year he moved, beg and baggage, into our house. Since that time he has stayed on, without once offering us board money. In time my brother will take over the family business. If their family (who live with us) should increase, it would be an impossible situation.

Surely my uncle should realize that two families living on our small town business is quite enough, and that it cannot stand the added pressure of keeping a 40-year-old adult who should be able to stand on his own two feet. My sister-in-law tells me that she and my brother feel trapped by the situation.

My brother and I are at the point where we are seriously contemplating giving him his walking papers. Do you feel this is be slightly inhuman? Still, how much can any home or marriage take? — UP THE WALL.

DEAR UP THE WALL — No human being should be aided and abetted in becoming a derelict. Everybody needs the challenge of supporting himself, and your uncle is no exception. Nor does anyone have the right to make life miserable for a whole family.

Get actual figures about what the business earns and where the money goes. This will show in black and white just what each person costs and how much your parasite does, in fact, sap from the business.

Then hold a family conference and select someone to bell the cat.

Women's Institutes

EDNERSVILLE W.I.

ALBURY — The June meeting of the Ednersville W.I. was held at Centre Church with the 4-H girls and their mothers as guests.

After the opening procedures the president, Mrs. Clarence Vanclief welcomed visitors to the meeting. During business it was noted that receipts for the recent bake sale amounted to $90.80. Mrs. George Roblin gave a report of the recent bus trip to Toronto which everyone enjoyed.

The topic for the meeting was based on home economics with Mrs. W. Pulver and Mrs. J. Doxtator as conveners. During the program Judy Weatherall sang a solo; a demonstration "a vegetable relish plate" was given by the Amelisburg Town and Country Club with Margaret Montgomery and Pat Townsend in charge; a piano solo by Lisa Pulver; another demonstration on a "salad plate" by the Albury Juniorettes with Judy Weatherall, Bonnie Murray and Marion Yorke in charge; a piano solo by Beverley Pulver; a vocal solo by Miss Vetha Conner; a piano solo by Barbara Storely and the girls put on a skit.

The Institute presented 29 girls with spoons for completing one or two projects. The leaders of the girls, Mrs. Trounce, Mrs. Doxtator, Mrs. Pulver, Mrs. LaDoucier and Margaret Montgomery were presented with gifts for their efforts in leading the girls. The senior leaders Mrs. Elmer Young and Mrs. Robert Cairns were also presented with gifts.

The hostesses Mrs. Winston Pulver and Mrs. Alfred Cairns were thanked for the hospitality and to all those who helped with the program.

A variety of desserts was enjoyed.

Speaking Personally

SUMMER IS ICUMEN IN

Now it is full summer, and Kittie, the Scottish terrier has had his fur coat removed. At first he feels humiliated and naked, like some one caught outdoors in his underwear. He hides in the shade of a bush, and scurries around in embarrassment. But soon he is delighting in the new coolness and rolls in the grass with little yelps of joy.

He is happy to see all the summer people back in their cottages and makes the rounds renewing old friendships and investigating new ones. Perhaps they are not glad to see him, but he feels he has the care of that part of the bay more on his shoulders. He is getting pretty old for so much responsibility though, and is allowing younger dogs to share the task of keeping lions, tigers, herds of elephants and such away.

The air is fragrant with the smell of sweet clover. the farmers have baled the hay and it stands ready to be drawn into the barns. Cows are out at pasture, and all the fertile fields are ripening with an abundant productivity.

Already the swallows are gathering on the telephone wires each morning and evening, lined up like children in school, all facing the same way. They are preparing their young for the flight south.

But there is a sad note here, so many of these birds lie dead on the highway every morning. It is sad because one thinks of their brave voyaging to get here. How many times did they fight off enemies? How many dangers did they overcome with terror striking their beating hearts? And finally when their seeking eyes or instinct told them this was the right stopping place where they had built their nests for years, did their death in the path of a moving car leave baby birds uncared for?

FRONT PAGE WEDDING

A letter came to this desk recently from Mrs. John Hallman, Jacksonville, Florida. She has a copy of the "Daily Ontario" dated June 10, 1914, with an account on the front page of her wedding (Rita Irene Hampton) to John Laurence Hallman. The proprietors of the paper, she says, were Messrs. Morton and Herity.

But the front page? It would have to be royalty to rate that kind of a wedding story now, or at least a Burton-Taylor.

Mrs. Hallman goes on to say, "On June 10, 1954 we celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary. We now reside in Jacksonville, Florida, where we have lived since 1925. At our anniversary reception were friends and relatives from Belleville. I was born and raised in Belleville, attended public and high school, and the former Belleville Business College. I am a descendant of Capt. John Meyer. He was a U. E. Loyalist and settled in what is now Belleville in 1779. I thought this might be of interest to your paper."

It is, Mrs. Hallman, and we send our congratulations and best wishes to you and Mr. Hallman.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

BRUSH UP ON TOT'S TABLE MANNERS THIS SUMMER

Summer vacation gives Mother more time to help her children brush up on their table manners.

During the school year, meals usually be the children can be bathed and trundled into bed as soon as homework is finished.

It is no wonder they get into some bad table habits during the course of the term. Instead of just trying to get them to brush their teeth after each meal, mother now has a little more time to get them to eat more slowly and neatly.

This doesn't mean mother has to become a martinet. But during the summer it's easier to sit down with the children for three meals a day and give them a little more supervision. Some mothers are shocked when they see some of the bad habits the youngsters have adopted while she wasn't looking.

Junior, for instance, may have developed a shovelling method of eating that Mother was too busy to notice before. Or he may have forgotten he's supposed to eat that the bread be passed, and reaches clear across the table instead.

A youngster may put his spoon into the sugar bowl to dip more onto his cereal after he's already had the spoon in his mouth. Or he may coat his bread with two inches of butter and then down the whole thing. Of course, mother may have mentioned before that bread and rolls should be eaten in bite-size pieces, but junior may have the notion that whatever he can nip off a full-size piece of bread is meant by bite-size. And so it's obvious that table manners need some tightening up in spots.

CORRECTIVE MEASURE

Having mother at the table is the first corrective measure. Most children automatically behave better when an adult is present. When a child makes mistakes, she can gently point out the error of his ways and poise his fork, spoon or glass in the right direction.

Taking the youngsters to a restaurant occasionally is another way of instilling good manners during the summer. Here they get a chance to put their learning to the test, and most are apt to sit without squirming, to use the right tool correctly, to ask for things politely and to keep elbows off the table to show their pleasure at the outing.

Britain's Sporting Blood In Beginning to Trickle Into the Political Domain

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—As befits the "betting" nation in the world, Britain's sporting blood is beginning to trickle into the political domain.

With the general election set for the fall—a likely date is Oct. 15—the urge to put a political flutter is being sublimated in all sorts of subtle ways.

Apart from simple bets on the two big parties, Conservatives and Labor, it is possible to place your money on either party at varying odds, depending on the size of majority you think they may obtain.

Thus, a recent list from one of Britain's biggest book makers, issued to its tens of thousands of clients, offered 10 to 1 against Labor winning by a majority of one to 10 in the 630-seat Commons.

It offers even shorter odds against the chances of Labor majorities ranging from 11 to 70 seats. You can get 10 to 1 against a Labor majority of 71 to 80; 25 to 1 against an 81-90 edge; 50 to 1 against 91-100, and the same price for more than 100.

When it comes to a Conservative victory, the odds are 7 to 1 against a Tory majority of 1-10 or 11-20, rising to 8 to 1 for 21-30 and 14 to 1 in the 31-40 class. The prices get really juicy for a majority of 71-80, reaching the 100-to-1 mark; and you can get 500 to 1 if the Conservatives win by anything over 91 seats.

LIBERALS ARE LONGSHOTS

Of course, the real longshot bettors—or punters as they call them here—don't need to worry about majorities. In the event of a victory by Jo Grimond's Liberal party, you would win 50,000 to 1, even if they just scraped home.

The simple odds against a Labor triumph are 2 to 7 and against the Conservatives 8 to 5.

Organized betting on British politics is a comparatively recent development. In a country credited with an annual turnover of more than £1,000,000,000 on horseracing betting alone, the emphasis is still on horses and dogs.

But there was lively betting last fall when the Conservative party ranged in some heavy soul-searching as a prelude to choosing a successor to Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. Several bookmaking firms carried daily lists of odds on the contenders, including Quintin Hogg, R. A. Butler and Reginald Maudling.

The winner, of course, turned out to be Sir Alec Douglas-Home, then the Earl of Home. He was a "dark horse," quoted in some lists at 20 to 1.

fused to sell, there goes your project just like that."

Some of the owners were less interested in price than in whether a competitor would be given sites in the building if they moved. Others had problems.

The only slip-up came when the principals released the story of the project in the press after the agents had come to an agreement with one owner, but before they had his signature. The owner walked away $250,000 richer.

Occasionally an owner backed with the Toronto-Dominion Bank bringing about the bizarre turn of events in which a bank manager would tell him to hold out for more money.

The big cat in the hole was that the agents were working for corporations that could afford to pay cash for the purchases.

"An option is a dead give-away that an assembly is taking place," Mr. Magee said. "We paid cash, not only because we had it, but because we knew that the property we were buying could be resold at the same price or better if the over-all project fell through."

Prices paid varied from as little as $10 a square foot to as high as $300.

Once the purchase had been made the agents had to persuade as many as 100 tenants to give up their leases in a building.

"There were endless numbers of people in little $30-a-month offices on Wellington Street," Mr Gray recalled. "Any one of them could have held up the entire project. They could have cashed cash and retired for life. None of them did. Our secret stayed secret."

scales not embodied in a contract but agreed upon in earlier negotiations with the International Typographical Union (CLC).

Only issues remaining at that time were jurisdiction over multi-use computers. The ITU had demanded jurisdiction when the computers are used for any composing room work.

The publishers offered a lifetime guarantee to present workers against unemployment "resulting from automation in a Monday night package." But was rejected by the union.

PUBLISHERS LIST DEMANDS

In return, the publishers had asked for: Elimination of certain make-work features from the agreement; removal of foremen and assistant foremen from ITU jurisdiction; and extension of the agreement for an additional two years to Dec. 31, 1966.

Any contract signed now would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1963, and would expire at the end of this year on the basis of normal two-year agreements.

The papers now are using supervisory and non-union staff to operate the composing and mailing rooms, only departments affected by the strike. Members of all other craft unions are continuing normal duties.

Local 5 of the Toronto Mailers Union, an ITU affiliate, is the only one refusing to cross ITU picket lines.

The Mailers Union announced Tuesday night it had filed a writ seeking an injunction against the morning Globe and Mail to prevent the hiring of non-ITU or mailers union members to staff the mailroom.

The union says The Globe and Mail violated the contract Tuesday by hiring 20 salesmen, who usually sell papers Saturday, to assist supervisory staff in the mailroom.

The Mailers Union says its contract allows members to refuse to cross ITU picket lines established by a "legal strike or any lockout."

The other papers involved in the dispute are The Star and The Telegram, evening newspapers.

required aptitudes. The government bill was one very small step.

DEFENDS VALIDITY

John Turner (L—Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George) argued that the measure is valid under the constitution. The federal government would guarantee loans to students, not to universities.

Jean Chretien (L—St. Maurice - Lafleche) said Quebec should take part in the federal scheme to encourage student exchanges between French Canada and English Canada. There was no intrusion of provincial powers since the federal government has jurisdiction over credit.

Finance Minister Gordon said the provinces will be asked to screen students who apply for loans, issuing certificate of eligibility to those with good marks and in need of help.

Loans totalling $40,000,000 would be guaranteed in the first year and the lending ceiling would increase by at least $40,000,000 each subsequent year. Cost to the federal treasury could amount to about $2,000,000 the first year and rise gradually with interest payments.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, July 14, 1964

Finance Minister Gordon said no province has yet agreed to participate in the proposed federal student loan plan.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said the loan plan is a stop-gap measure failing far short of what is needed.

NDP Leader Douglas said the plan is merely window-dressing and many students may have trouble getting bank loans.

Social Credit Leader Thompson also criticized the plan, but like the other leaders agreed to support the legislation.

Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste—Lapointe) argued again that the student loan bill infringes on provincial education rights.

George Nowlan (PC—Digby-Annapolis-Kings) said it is useless to stimulate enrolment if universities haven't facilities to cope with it.

WEDNESDAY, July 15

The Commons meets at 2 p.m. to continue debating the student loan bill. The Senate meets at 3 p.m.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — One of the last avenues of escape from Cuba — fishing boats — may be sealed off by a new regulation requiring guards to accompany fishermen, a newly arrived exile said Wednesday. The refugee, Gilberto Hernandez, 23, said he and seven companions fled in a fishing boat shortly before the decree became effective.

of Miss Morgan, 32. She died last Nov. 4 at Toronto East General Hospital from the effects of a surgical clamp left in her abdomen during an operation Oct. 18, an inquest jury found last February.

CANCER BLAMED

The death certificate, completed by Dr. Brown following an autopsy Nov. 5, gave cause of death as acute intestinal obstruction and also mentioned cancer of the stomach.

The charges against Dr. Brown, among 20 placed against five doctors, and an administrator of East General Hospital, are the first such lodged in Ontario.

Dr. Burns Plewes, chief of surgery at East General, was acquitted on a technicality last month of aiding the Coroner's Act. Dr. Alan Noble, one of three pathologists who conducted the Morgan autopsy, was convicted and fined $100.

Chief Pathologist S. F. Penny, assistant A. J. Kennedy and hospital administrator Eric Willcocks are scheduled to be tried under the coroner's Act starting today.

Civilization Has Invaded The Last Great Wilderness

Civilization has invaded the last great wilderness of Western Europe—Lapland.

An estimated 30,000 Lappe. once nomads with their reindeer herds, now are showing a preference for nylons, cosmetics, baths and centrally - heated houses.

Although many still live the hard, nomadic life which sends them in search of good grazing grounds in mountains near the Norwegian-Swedish border, an increasing number are settling down to regular jobs.

Most of the 1,200 Lappe in Kiruna, for instance, work in iron-ore mines, on railways, or as fishing and tourist guides.

But they still wear their picturesque national dress which sets them apart from their Swedish neighbors. Men and women wear colorful knee - length padded coats of bright blue, red and yellow, caught round the waist by broad leather belts.

Dressed much the same, the women sport frilled bonnets which cover their hair and ears during the bitter arctic winter.

But girls long since have ceased wearing clinkings, and reindeer-skin boots, with their upturned toes, for nylons and Swedish-made rubber boots.

Some girls use lipstick now and attend the movies. Many favor "westerns" with plenty of action. But they seldom go dancing.

Rain Needed for Tomato, Corn Crops in County

PICTON — Starting on Sunday morning this latest rain has deposited another one-half inch of water in Prince Edward County. Needless to say, this rainfall was needed on all crops particularly the tomato crop and the corn crop.

Apple orchards were getting very dry as there was no moisture reserve in the soil and not enough rainfall this season. These last two rains will certainly go a long way in assuring that the fruit size will be adequate on most apple varieties.

EARLY TOMATOES

While some growers lost plants due to frost and cold, windy weather, the tomato crop continues to look exceptionally good for this time of year. A week ago a visit to the farm of Norman Leavitt, at R. R. 1, Bloomfield, was encouraging. Fireball plants that were field planted on May 6th, had over 25 fruit set per plant, which indicates a heavy early crop of tomatoes. A check of Mr. Leavitt's cropping program shows that over one-half a ton of fertiliser applied per acre with up to 200 pounds of Ammonium Nitrate side-dressed on this tomato crop. Mr. Leavitt has been one of the top tomato growers in Prince Edward County during the past few years and has consistently high yields year after year. When we talks with Mr. Leavitt and his sons and finds out what their cropping program has been, it is easy to see why they are top tomato growers. It also proves another point that tomatoes can be grown in Prince Edward County with yields being obtained that rival any yields from Kent and Essex Counties.

BANKERS' SCHOOL HELD

On Thursday, July 9, approximately 30 bank managers and other bank officials from as far away as Toronto and Ottawa, attended a Bankers' School, at the farm of David Smith, Bloomfield. The purpose of the school was to give the managers of chartered banks in the area, an opportunity to take a first-hand look at a family farm operation, of the type operated by Mr. Smith and his family. The Smith farm is classified as a dairy general farm with cash crops and small fruits as sideline.

While on the farm, those in attendance asked many questions about the farm business. Those who participated in discussion were David Smith, owner of the farm; George Arnold, Farm Management Specialist, Brighton; B. E. Beeler, Fruit and Vegetable Extension Specialist of Picton; Prof. A. C. Robertson, Dept. of Economics, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph; Rex Ward, Farm Economics Branch, Ont. Dept. of Agriculture and Ivan Bell, Agricultural Representative. The Warden of Prince Edward County, Kenneth Hicks, brought greetings from the county and welcomed the delegates and Del Huff, reeve of Hallowell township, spoke briefly on behalf of township council. Following a tour of the farm the group met on the lawn for a dinner served by George Channell of Maple Inn, Bloomfield.

TRACK AND FIELD MEET

The Prince Edward County Junior Farmers will be travelling to Peterborough on Saturday, July 18th. There they will attend the Quinte District Field Day, to be held at Morrow Park. They will be competing in softball, track and field events and square dancing.

A bus will be leaving the Agricultural office, Picton, at 8 a.m. Those members wishing a ride on the bus should contact Margaret Montgomery, R.R. 1, Carrying Place, or phone WO 2-1715.

TWILIGHT MEETING

Approximately 200 Prince Edward County Holstein Breeders, their wives and families along with the Prince Edward 4-H Calf Club members, met at the farm of the president, Hubert Townsend, R.R. 1, Carrying Place, for the annual Holstein Twilight meeting on the evening of Wednesday, July 8th. The special speaker for the program was Mr. A. G. Bennett, Associate Director of Extension, Ontario Dept. of Agriculture, who gave an illustrated talk on his trip to England, Ireland and Scotland, as leader of the Ontario Junior Farmer Overseas Delegation in 1963. Mr. Bennett was introduced by H. Ivan Bell, Agricultural Representative and thanked by Tom May who presented him with a Prince Edward County cheese. Tom also thanked Mr. and Mrs. Townsend for acting as hosts for the Twilight meeting. The chairman for the evening was Hubert Townsend, president of the Prince Edward Holstein Club.

Mr. G. R. Nelson, Holstein Associate Fieldman, spoke briefly on judging Holstein cattle and conducted a judging competition with men, women and juniors taking part. Prizes were won in the various classes.

County Council Approves Road To Sandbanks

PICTON (Staff) — On Monday evening County Council gave official approval to a plan joining the proposed access road to the Sandbanks with the county road to Lakeshore Lodge at its intersection with road No. 12.

The plan was presented to council by Hart Smith, functions planning engineer for the Department of Highways. This plan requires one mile of road to be built into the flats at the south end of the Sandbanks as the first stage in the development of this area.

Norris Whitney, MPP for Prince Edward, was present at the meeting. He stated that plans for the new road are progressing favorably and he hopes that plans for the bridge at the Wellington end of the Sandbanks will be confirmed. "There has been some mention to the Department of Lands and Forests for a foot bridge at that end," said the member. Mr. Whitney further commented that he has told department officials that a foot bridge would not satisfactorily serve the public and would not do anything to relieve traffic on the West Lake road.

Reeve Wellington reeve Robert Boyce and Hallowell's deputy reeve John Fox, denounced the footbridge idea. Mr. Boyce pledged support for Mr. Whitney in any of his representations on the project.

OUTBOARD RACES

Outboard races held at Quinte Cabins were delayed until 3.20 Sunday afternoon due to rain and rough water.

Winners in the 36-cubic-inch class were: Leland Lyons, first in both heats; George Pulver, second and third, and Bert Lyons, third and second.

Jack Lyons won two firsts in the D-utility class, while Laverne Moore took two seconds.

In the 18 Horsepower class Ralph Forester came first, Tommy Boutter second and Rick Fralick third.

In C-hydro John Sibthorpe won two firsts and Laverne Moore two seconds.

In D-hydro Jack Boulter had two firsts. He was the only starter of four to finish one of the heats.

Winner of the free-for-all was Jack Lyons with Jack Boulter second and Bert Lyons third.

On July 19th and 19th several members of the Picton Outboard Club will participate in races at Valleyfield, Quebec.

tion, they are estimates and not precise totals.

Compared with a year earlier, employment was up 225,000 and unemployment was down 22,000. The labor force was 203,000 higher than in June, 1963, a jump of three per cent.

The increase in employment between May and June was almost entirely confined to non-farm industries.

However, the increase in construction employment between May and June was below average for the time of year.

Almost two-thirds of the May-to-June increase in employment was among workers under 25 years—a somewhat larger proportion than in most previous years. But the gain in employment of workers over 25 years was below average.

The year-to-year gain in employment of 225,000 was 3.4 per cent higher than in June, 1963, while non-farm employment increased by 4.1 per cent.

Employment was noticeably higher than a year ago in the Atlantic region, British Columbia and Ontario. Smaller percentage gains took place in the other two regions, Quebec and the Prairies.

JOBLESS JUMP

The student influx on the labor market was reflected in a jump of 43,000 in the number of jobless workers in the 14-19 age group. Among those 20 years and older, unemployment declined by 54,000, which was about normal for this time of year.

Of the 362,000 unemployed in June, 201,000 had been jobless for three months or less. The remaining 81,000, or 39 per cent of the total, had been seeking work for four months or more. This group accounted for a much smaller proportion of the total than a year earlier.

Regionally, unemployment showed a drop in all areas except Ontario, where the number of jobless rose to 38,000 from 70,000 in May.

Gas Ignited In Parked Car, Little Damage

PICTON (Staff.) — Fire in a parked car on Tuesday fortunately led to no serious results. The car, owned by photographer Lloyd Thompson, was parked on King St. when his son, Peter, 17, entered the vehicle, turned the ignition and was startled by an explosion followed by flames.

Guests employed David Taylor witnessing the incident grabbed a fire extinguisher and rushed to the scene. Moments later the fire department arrived. Damage to the car is considerable. The driver was uninjured. Cause of the fire is presumed due to a spark, which ignited the gasoline.

WILL HOLD PARADE

Plans are being made by Picton Retail Merchants Association for a "Loyalist Days" promotion from August 10th to 15th.

An old-time parade, plus a variety of entertainment is scheduled. Prizes will be awarded to clerks wearing the most colorful old-time costume, to pedestrians similarly dressed, to the oldest couple and to the longest-wed couple.

There are tentative plans for a street dance, bingo, games and an exhibit of olden day articles.

It is expected that Loyalist Days will be a special attraction for tourists. Merchants will lend their participation by offering special values to shoppers.

Accounts Committee Will Dig Into Sales of Surplus Military Equipment by Govt.

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP)—Five MPs, armed with the power to summon witnesses and demand documents, are to be named soon to investigate the public sale of surplus military equipment at multi-million-dollar losses.

They will act as a special subcommittee of the public accounts committee of the House of Commons—a sleuthing team to follow up last week's disclosure by Auditor-General A. M. Henderson that some $20,000,000 worth of surplus military supplies and equipment were sold for less than $500,000.

The public accounts committee decided Tuesday to set up the smaller group unanimously and without debate.

It was expected that each of the five parties would nominate one member—with the chairman likely coming from the Conservative opposition benches.

Unlike other Commons committees, the public accounts committee is headed by an opposition member. This practice is expected to be extended to the subcommittee as well.

Indications are the subcommittee will work behind closed doors, summoning witnesses and questioning them without keeping a written record of the proceedings or permitting public disclosure of the evidence through the press.

JOB OUTLINED

The subcommittee's job will be two-fold:

1. To investigate purchases by the department of national defence that are later declared to be surplus.

2. To investigate the sales operations of the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation, a government agency that sells surplus supplies, equipment, buildings and land to private bidders.

Decision to establish the special subcommittee—a rare action in itself—was made after Mr. Henderson gave details of the 1962-63 sales of surplus military equipment.

His report showed that less than three cents were recovered on a dollar's worth of equipment—some of it brand new.

The defence department said much of the equipment dated back to the Second World War and was no longer needed.

Conventional

tell NATO in 1968 that it wants to get out of the nuclear bombing role in Europe, even though the RCAF CF-104 low-level bomber could still be used for another five years.

—Conventional armament now being considered for the CF-104 includes a 20-millimetre cannon, with which Spitfires, Mosquitos and other RCAF planes were armed during the Second World War.

—Selection of conventional army weapons and equipment has been given No. 1 priority by the new combined defence staff.

—Expenditures on RCAF Air Defence Command, designed to cope with Soviet nuclear bombers, have been reduced to $138,000,000 this year from $171,000,000 in 1960.

—Officials said the nuclear-tipped Bomarc anti-aircraft missile is being retained mainly because it has been paid for.

—The only new defence program so far announced by the government has been a $33,000,000 purchase of piston-engined transport planes to provide army airlift to such theatres as Cyprus.

—After 15 months in office, the Liberals have provided nuclear warheads for the Bomarc and CF-104 but not for the Voodoo jet interceptor or Honest John artillery rocket as yet.

Growth of Performing Arts Centres Will Be Costly Opinion of Canada Council

OTTAWA (CP)—New centres across Canada for the performing arts are a good idea, says the Canada Council, but it warns they'll cost money to run and will need trained talent as performers.

The council's comment was made in its seventh annual report, tabled in the Commons Tuesday by State Secretary Lamontagne.

It mentioned that many Canadian communities plan arts centres to mark Canada's centennial. But these will be shells containing a vacuum unless the arts follow natural laws and fill them.

New touring entertainment groups would be needed. Those now touring would have to expand their activities. Circuits might have to be organized, exchanges arranged and a central booking agency set up to replace the present sporadic system.

This would strain Canada's resources in money and talent.

WAVE SHORTAGE

A shortage of good actors in Canada was in prospect. Already there was a serious shortage of theatre technicians, production and business managers, stage managers and designers. Good professional directors were in great demand and good playwrights were scarce.

In its fiscal year ended last March 31, the council authorized grants totalling $1,585,000 to individuals and organizations. It approved grants totalling $15,625,000 from its university capital grants fund for university construction in the arts, humanities and social sciences.

The report called for wider provincial support for the National Theatre School of Montreal and Stratford as one of the new institutions where young Canadians, French and English, could meet on equal terms and learn to respect what the other contributes to Canada's cultural life.

The school had support from the council, Quebec, Ontario and Saskatchewan but not from other provinces.

Pearson Raises Emphasis on Racial Equality

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's call for a Commonwealth declaration of racial equality appears to carry to an other stage a consistent Canadian attitude in Commonwealth affairs which goes back several years.

His suggestion at this week's conference of Commonwealth prime ministers had a familiar ring. It echoed the explanation given by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker of the Conservative leader's part as Canadian prime minister in the 1961 conference which set the seal of South Africa's departure from the Commonwealth.

The difference appears to be that in 1961 the Commonwealth prime ministers felt actions spoke louder than words while Mr. Pearson now feels words must be added to actions.

Mr. Pearson urged the prime ministers to have a declaration of racial equality on the following ideas:

"It should be the objective of policy to build in each country a structure of society which offers equal opportunity and nondiscrimination for all its people, irrespective of race, color or creed.

MUST LEAD

"The Commonwealth should be able to exercise constructive leadership in the application of democratic principles in a manner which will enable all people of the many racial and cultural groups in our various countries to exist and develop as free and equal citizens."

At the 1961 prime ministers' conference, it was made plain to South Africa that an application to remain in the Commonwealth after becoming a republic would not be acceptable to other Commonwealth countries.

Canada was among the leaders in telling South Africa that racial discrimination as practised in the South African government's policy of apartheid was the chief reason.

Water Levels At Record Low In Some Lakes

OTTAWA (CP)—Water levels dipped to record lows in June for the sixth straight month this year in Lake Huron and the fifth consecutive month in Montreal harbor.

The monthly water level bulletin issued Tuesday by the Canadian hydrographic service showed that levels increased fractionally from May in Lakes Superior, Huron and Ontario but that the levels in Lake Erie and Montreal harbor were below those of the previous month.

Except for Lake Superior, levels in June were lower in the lakes and the harbor compared with June, 1963, and the average for the month for the last 10 years.

The average June level for Lake Huron, measured at Goderich, Ont., was 575.91' feet, down from previous June's 576.89, the 10-year average of 577 80 and the former all-time low for the month of 576.13 in 1934. In May this year the average level was 576.85 feet.

In Lake Erie the average level for each month this year has been below the previous record low measured since figures were first compiled in 1860.

LEVEL UP

Lake Ontario, on the basis of measurements at Kingston, had an average June level of 244.45 feet. This was up from 244.03 feet in May, but down from last year's monthly 245.72 and the 10-year 245.67 feet average.

The all-time June low was 242.97 feet in 1935.

The average June level for Lake Erie, measured at Port Colborne, was 569.65 feet, down from 569.70 in May, the average 570.59 feet level during last year's June and the 10-year monthly average of 570.77 feet. The all-time average June low was 568.56 feet in 1934.

The June average measurement at Port Arthur for Lake Superior was 600.57 feet, up from May's 600.20, last year's June average of 600.34 and the 600.46 feet 10-year average for the month. Lake Superior's record low for June was 598.79 feet in 1926.

NAMED UMPIRE

OTTAWA (CP) — H. Carl Goldenberg, one of Canada's most experienced conciliators and arbitrators, has been named as a permanent impartial umpire of jurisdictional disputes for the Canadian Labor Congress. CLC President Claude Jodoin announced the 55-year-old Montreal lawyer's appointment Tuesday following approval by the CLC executive council now meeting in Ottawa.

Secondary School Students Don Queen's Khaki to Take Military Course at Armouries

Forty-three city secondary schools students donned the Queen's khaki this summer and are liking it.

They form first-year course personnel of the tenth national Students' Militia Training Program.

Ranging from 16 to 19 years of age they come from Moira, Quinte, Nicholson College and Belleville Collegiate Institute.

"They are sincere clean-cut boys who are very enthusiastic in their training" chief instructor CSM WO II W. H. Bennett says.

Training of the first-year course is taking place in the Bridge street armories under the aegis of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment officer and NCO instructional personnel.

Lieut. F. R. Allan is in charge of the course with CSM Bennett chief drill instructor. Others associated with the training are Sergt. J. W. Raper; Lance Sergt. G. F. Gray; Corporal B. Slegner; Corporal Peter Cliffe-Phillips and Privates Gary Coe and L. Swelgard.

The complete Students Militia Training Program consists of three courses.

The first year training embodies general militia instruction, first aid, hunter safety and national survival.

The second year sees selected students from the first course instructed in junior NCO duties.

Selected second year graduates are used as instructors for the upcoming first-year course.

The first year students receive regular army pay plus a subsistence allowance. Second year youths receive basic pay at a militia camp.

Students take to military life well. They are keen, sincere and do not enroll in the program because of mercenary minds, CSM Bennett says.

FEW FAILURES

"This is evident in the fact," he said, "that almost one hundred percent of the classes graduate from their years. The largest number of failure we have had is two."

And the experience leaves a number of students with a yen for further life in the army.

The records show that many students' program graduates have joined the permanent forces, some have taken officer training and yet more are senior non's and junior officers of the Hasty Pees.

A similar course is being held in Picton under "C" Company of the regiment. Ten regimental high school cadets from Port Hope High School are taking the course at Cobourg.

On Sunday, the regiment is sending 18 elected graduates of the 1963 first-year course to the Niagara Militia Camp for five-weeks' junior non instruction.

Tomorrow the first-year course goes to Actinolite for a three-day bivouac. Here they will be taught hunter safety, fire prevention, and infantry tactics which will include night patrols.

On July 24th the Belleville and Picton courses will be taken to Kingston where they will undergo qualifying tests on the FN-7.62 rifle at the Barriefield ranges.

The students' proudest moment will come on an August Thursday when they march in graduation parade. Two days of oral, written and practical examinations tests will be a memory.

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

In this article we will deal with the term, 'Equivalent to Married Status.' There has always been confusion among taxpayers as to whom are entitled to a claim of this nature. The claim is for $1,000 applies to taxpayers who are single, divorced, legally separated or a widow, or widower, and are supporting a dependant in their home. The home must be maintained by the taxpayer, but is not mandatory that the taxpayer reside there.

In case of a taxpayer supporting a parent in the parents' home, he may claim an equivalent to married on the parent, if he pays all expenses on the home such as light, heat, taxes etc. while he resides elsewhere.

A parent who is separated, divorced or widow or widower does not have to maintain a home to get an equivalent to married on a child. The governing factor here, is support. The child may be anywhere, either in or out of the country but if the child is not in proof must be submitted before the claim would be allowed.

Another common error is often made by a husband when he can, his wife are both employed. The husband is the opinion that because he is taxed as single due to his wife's income, he is allowed to claim $1,000 as another dependant. The equivalent to married status can never apply to a married man residing with his wife, regardless of the fact he may not be supporting her. If a husband lives with his wife he is deemed to have supported her.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin for each question you wish answered.

QUESTION: My wife and I live together. We both work and have 2 girls 10 and 12. Why can't we each claim a $1,000 exemption on the children.

ANSWER: The $1,000 exemption applies to unmarried people only, who support a dependant in their home. In your case the maximum exemption is $300 for each of the children.

QUESTION: I am a widower and support my aunt in my own home. where she is my housekeeper. Can I claim exemption for her. She is 65 years old and has no other means of support.

ANSWER: Yes. You may claim $1,000 exemption for her.

PLAN COMPENSATION

FRANKFURT (Reuters)—The West German firms of Krupp, Siemens and Ag have decided to pay compensation to wartime Jewish slave laborers who worked in their plant. The decision, announced Monday, follows a recent court order which directed the I. G. Farben chemical industries to compensate former workers drawn from concentration camps.

The Creeping Spread of Rural Slums

Less than half of each dollar spent on food in Canada goes to the farmer, and the money he gets for his crops isn't keeping pace with the rising cost of things he must buy. This is one of the problems facing agriculture in Canada. There are others. This story tells about them.

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian farmers of the future may convert sunshine into food energy without bothering to use plants or animals. Petroleum some day may provide the proteins now obtained from fish, poultry and livestock.

But until that day arrives they must continue to plant, cultivate, harvest as efficiently as possible while costs rise and fresh competitive problems reduce their ranks every year. And they must contend with the spread of rural slums.

Canada's 1961 census showed that 25 per cent of the country's 451,000 farmers earned less than $1,200 annually from agriculture. This compares with the average wage of $4,000 for Canadians generally.

Perhaps more important, this segment of distressed Canadians lies beyond the help of normal farm aid and presents a social, economic, educational problem that requires special approaches.

Worries of most farmers today box the compass.

Increasingly today's farmer is a specialist — beef, grain, dairy, poultry, tobacco, vegetable, fruit. The rise of farm-to-factory ownership, reducing the farm to a tenant, has been a complicating factor.

MORE FOR MIDDLE MAN

New productive capacity has given rise to new needs for marketing, and there has been growth in the last 30 years of special producer-directed facilities for marketing, and even selling, commodities.

The federal government at Ottawa is pledged to provide the necessary legislation to enable formation of national marketing boards as and when producer groups seek such national organizations.

But the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, as the main voice of organized agriculture, has shifted ground recently to urge a second look at such national groupings pending eradication of quirks and bugs from existing machinery.

Canadians spent about $6,000,000,000 a year on food, but 56 cents of each dollar goes to the non-farmer. That leaves 44 cents to pay for farm labor and land and provide a profit, aside from the rising tide of essentials today's farmer has to get outside his own acres.

Food-handling costs went up 86 per cent from 1949 to 1962 and are still rising. Food prices rose although at a much slower rate.

New instant, frozen or otherwise processed foods increase preparation and packing costs and this means a still smaller share for the farmer.

CAUGHT IN SQUEEZE

Then there is the celebrated cost-price squeeze — the farmer's contention that the cost of everything he buys keeps rising although he isn't getting much more, if any more, for his crops.

The cost-price argument is set out in a compilation by the National Farmers' Union for the federal cabinet, using figures from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

It is based on two DBS indexes, one expressing costs of the things the farmer has to buy, the other the price level of what he sells. Each is based on the period 1935-39 equalling 100.

In 1951 the index for the farm-purchase column was 280 against 296.8 for produce prices. Two years later the farm-cost index had moved in front and has stayed there ever since, 290.8 in 1962. In contrast, the index of farm-produce prices is down to 264 although that is higher than it was during the mid-1950s.

Machinery, a major item today, becomes increasingly more expensive per unit. And farmers complain that while machines raise productivity per man, the extra revenue is not commensurate with costs.

A partial answer to this might lie in planned federal legislation to help lower costs by making the same piece of equipment available to more farmers.

AIDED BY RESEARCH

Keeping abreast of new farm developments is essential.

Research by the federal agriculture department alone involves more than 2,000 projects on better strains of plant and animal crops, more disease resistance and new forms of consumer food.

Use of chemical pesticides expands despite fears in some quarters of a mounting threat to other forms of life. There is increasing emphasis on chemical fertilizers to make land more productive.

The successful Canadian farmer of 1964 will be better educated than the 1964 farmer, younger, a better businessman and probably the operator of a larger farm unit.

He will need all this to survive.

He will also need to be even more attentive to change at home and abroad. He may also be under pressure to produce more, rather than being counselled, as today's dairy farmers are, to produce less.

The late President Kennedy put it this way in addressing the world food congress in Washington last June:

"We have the means and we have the capacity to eliminate hunger from the face of the earth. We need only the will. The key to a permanent solution to world hunger is the transfer of technology to food-deficit nations."

BOOM FOR SOME

Canadian farm machinery and equipment were valued at $685,180,000 in 1921 and $2,563,-631,000 in 1961. Tractors increased from 47,453 in 1921 to 540,800 in 1961 and horses declined to 313,000 from 3,451,700.

Electrical power was available to 26,800 farms in 1921. It reached 409,900 farms 40 years later.

But there are more than 100,000 full-time or part-time farmers in Canada described by former Conservative agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton as existing under conditions constituting a national disgrace.

"These conditions exist all across Canada but most important . . . in eastern Ontario, the (Northern Ontario) clay belt and in Quebec and the Maritimes," he said.

"Try to visualize a farmer making $600 or $700 a year cash off the farm. He has from five to 10 youngsters ranging in ages from five or six years up to 40. They are on the farm and if they leave and go to the cities they will be unemployed.

"So they do not dare leave the farm because when they are home they at least eat. The common joke in parts of New Brunswick when I was down there was that 'N.B. stands for "No Breakfast"' . . .

"I have seen these farms and been on them. . . . You cannot help them by the ordinary price support legislation, by farm credit or crop insurance or by selling things abroad because they have very little to sell.

"Their fundamental problem is twofold. . . . They lack an educational base . . . a knowledge of agriculture. . . . I can give examples of the most abysmal ignorance of these farmers concerning the assistance available to them now."

FEAR CREDIT

Aside from this educational problem, Mr. Hamilton said, was a sociological problem. These depressed farmers feared farm credit — public or private — although it was necessary to improve their lot.

Figures from the 1961 census and other sources tell the story of Canada's rural slum. Realized net farm income — the amount the farmer has left after paying his costs plus depreciation on buildings and equipment — averaged $1,599 in 1954 against $2,945 in 1962.

But this increase came from the Prairies. Ontario and British Columbia. The Maritimes had average net income of only $929 in 1954 and Quebec $1,071. Nine years later, the Maritime average was up a shade and Quebec's by about $200 to $1,880 — still well behind the average of $3,870 for Ontario, $2,900 for the Prairies or $3,400 for B.C.

Other statistics also show that, contrary to past trends and some assumptions, Ontario rather than the Prairies has the highest per-farm capital investment at $23,979 in 1961 against $27,430 in the predominantly grain economy of the Prairies.

But the Maritimer is only $14,233 and Quebec also trails at $18,606.

INVESTMENT UP

The Maritimes' plight is shown by the fact that although farm investment more than doubled there in a period of eight years, aggregate income continued to drop.

Sociologically, survey information for Eastern Canada showed a strong link between low education and low farm income.

Using selected farm families, a 1962 study indicated an average of 5.9 years of education for Quebec, seven years for New Brunswick, eight for Ontario, nine for Nova Scotia and 8.2 for Prince Edward Island. Poorer school attendance was the rule for lower-income segments of the farm population.

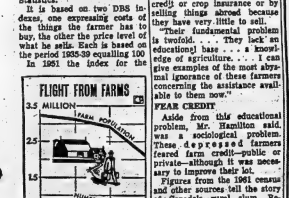
Even with off-farm income — from both jobs or other secondary employment — 43 per cent of eastern Canadian farmers had annual income of less than $2,500.

These are the facts behind such government legislation as the Rural Rehabilitation and Development Act passed in late 1961 with all-party approval and now being handed over to a separate cabinet minister also responsible for forestry.

OFFER RETRAINING

This act, perhaps the most powerful one ever devised for rural Canada, contains provisions, with provincial co-operation, to harness rivers, create a forest, promote blueberry patches or — most important — invest whole communities with the ability to shed depression by retraining, new sources of income or alternate use of marginal lands for recreation or other purposes.

But in the end the decision lies with the community itself.



Another modern approach is the Agricultural Economics Research Council of Canada, which has just outlined its first four major projects. It will work hand in hand with the Economic Council of Canada which seeks to chart a course for the economy as a whole.

The agricultural council, formed with co-operation of the federal and provincial governments, will act as a sort of continuing royal commission and its first tasks include the availability of farm credit, the place of farming in today's economy and the relationship between the latter problem and existing farm policy.

Tomorrow: Government is active partner in farming.

RESEARCH FOR PRODUCTIVITY — Workers at the Horticultural Experiment Station, Vineland Station, Ont., plant a tomato crop using a liquid fertilizer. There is a continuing emphasis on chemical fertilizers to make land more productive. Research by the federal agriculture department alone involves more than 2,000 projects involving plant and animal crops, disease and new forms of consumer food. (CP Photo)

FARM POPULATION DWINDLES — Canada's farm population has dwindled steadily since 1921, census figures show. Graph traces the decline from 3,238,000 in 1931 to 2,125,900 in 1961. Also shown is the decline in the number of farms in the country in a trend toward larger, more efficient units. (CP Newsmap)

How to Cook OVEN ROASTS (BEEF)

Place roast fat side up on a rack in an uncovered roasting pan. Grate top of extra lean roast with pieces of fat or drippings. Use moderately slow oven (325°F.). Do not sear roast before roasting. Do not add water. Place roast in centre of oven. If available, insert meat thermometer in centre of largest muscle part. Baste occasionally during roasting, and season to taste. Half an hour before pre-cooked vegetables around roast if desired. Roast to desired degree of doneness — rare (rare-red), medium (light pink), well done. Remember, Let roast stand for at least 10 minutes to make carving easier.

Still Think Our History Colorless?

Now Meet Mr. and Mrs. Cobham

By ED WALTERS

ST. GEORGE'S, Nfld. (CP)—Sandy Point, a thin finger of sand that protects this community and adjacent Flat Bay from the roaring season of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, is peaceful today.

The few families who live on the point probably are unaware that their sandspit once was headquarters for a pair of inhuman monsters who outdid in depravity any other pirates who visited North America.

Eric Cobham and his wife Maria covered their tracks well but when they retired far away from this rugged coast they were punished by remorse and sometimes to the extent they welcomed the relief death brought.

The decade that began in 1740 saw many ships on voyages to North America from Europe fail to return. Ship owners put unexplained losses down to storms.

It was not until the early 1900 that they learned the grim truth.

A horrified French priest brought to publishers in Paris a manuscript written by one of his most distinguished parishioners, an English gentleman named Cobham who had settled near Le Havre, France, and who had been appointed magistrate of the district by an influential peer.

TOLD ALL

Cobham as his last wish before dying in bed had made the priest promise that the manuscript would be published.

It was his life story and confession of piracy and became an immediate best-seller among ship owners who recognized the names of their long-lost vessels.

Cobham was born in Poole, a port in the West of England which sent fishing ships each year to Newfoundland. He celebrated his 21st birthday by smuggling from France in his own vessel 10,000 gallons of brandy.

The following summer his contraband business was interrupted by the untimely arrival of a British revenue cutter. Cobham and his crew spent the next two years in Newgate prison.

After his release he spent some time working as a clerk at an inn at Oxford and struck it rich when he filled a small fortune in gold from a tipsy guest.

Cobham regarded as an omen that his luck was changing for the better the fact that the innkeeper was hanged for the theft.

TAUGHT WIFE PIRACY

With the loot, he purchased a Bridport in Devon, a cutter, mounting 14 guns and recruited a crew from the alehouses. His first foray netted him £40,000 in gold sovereigns from a lumbering merchant ship bound for India.

Cobham didn't say in his book what attracted Maria Lindsay to him when she saw him strolling about Plymouth a few days later in his ill-gotten finery.

Whether she already was mentally unhinged or simply adventurous is not recorded but she agreed to marry him and go to sea.

Cobham spent some time teaching his bride the finer arts of piracy. He knew she was learning when one day they took a craft that had a naval officer aboard.

Maria took a fancy to the uniform, had the man stripped and then ran him through. From then on she wore the uniform and when it was worn out had others made.

Cobham, fearing his luck couldn't last, sailed close to England, sailed for North America.

PERFECT HIDEAWAY

His first landfall was Nantucket Island where legend says he buried 18,000 golden guineas.

Then Cobham sailed north and discovered the perfect hideaway—Sandy Point. From there he sallied forth among the shipping bound to Newfoundland, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Isle St. Jean—present-day Prince Edward Island.

One ship that fell into his hands was the brig Lion of Liverpool. Maria personally ran the captain through.

Later, when other ship's officers displeased her by their defiance, she ordered them bound to the capstan. Standing at the other end of the deck she riddled them with pistol bullets.

One of her favorite methods of disposing of prisoners was to have them sewn into sacks alive and thrown overboard. Others were trussed to the forward end used for target practice.

The crew of a trading brig from The West Indies that came to Newfoundland to buy fish was taken prisoner and the vessel sacked and scuttled.

POISON IN STEW

When Maria asked if they were hungry and offered them stew she had cooked herself the West Indian crew believed they would be spared. The stew was laced with laudanum, Maria's favorite poison.

After 20 years at sea, most of which was spent in the gulf and around Newfoundland, the Cobhams sailed to France, where they posed as prosperous traders and bought an estate near Le Havre.

Cobham successfully hoodwinked the French. He was appointed magistrate and held the post for 12 years. Maria meanwhile continued to wear her uniform. She fumed at her husband constantly and had periods of deep depression.

One day she went for a walk along cliffs overlooking the sea. She had taken with her a bottle of laudanum and two days later her body was found at the bottom of the cliffs.

Cobham spent the last years of his life in remorse and depression, abandoning even the mistresses he had taken when Maria had become unmanageable.

In a last conference with the priest he got everything off his chest and death saved him from the gallows.

ATTEND CHRISTENING

LONDON (Reuters) — The Queen and other members of Britain's Royal Family attended the Christening of the baby daughter of Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon in the private chapel at Buckingham Palace Monday. The dean of Westminster, Dr. Eric Abbott, christened the child Sarah Frances Elizabeth. She will be known as Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

They gave the Rhubble little guy a retirement party—and I don't know of a more deserving bloke than this Andy Capp of Memorial Arena.

I've known Jack Smith (Smitty) for upwards of two decades or since he was knee-high to a humming bird—and he hasn't added an inch since.

The Arena Commission, his immediate associates and a host of friends are going to miss this half-pint of personality, good-nature, and friendliness.

JACK SMITH

I don't know if he wore the famous tweed cap to bed, but after twenty years of close acquaintanceship, I doubt if I'd know the little gaffer if I met him without that trademark cover.

On second thought I think I would because none of his friends can ever forget the warm smile that lights up his features, the friendly greeting and his half-fellow-well-met attitude.

He is "around" seventy, and I don't know anyone twice his poundage who packs more good nature, good-will toward men, respect for his fellows than Smitty.

Time was when his 123-pound, five-foot-two (and he has eyes of blue) frame was packed with boundless energy. He liked to work at ground-level such as in arenas and been bowling greens, because, as he says, "I was closer to it."

Smitty has the remarkable trait of being able to "do anything and several things"—and doing it well. There is no job he wouldn't tackle, without the possible exception of pinch-hitting for a vacationing minister.

And he might do that if they would let him preach on hockey, horse-racing and lawn bowling and other assorted sports.

He was a liberal "Jack" of all trades, and has done practically everything from dry-nursing a fractious racehorse to barbering bowling greens.

He has shovelled coal, and for a number of years was associated with Charles Green in the butcher business.

Like his brother, the late William "Billy" Smith, he became attracted to harness horses and racing when a youngster. He trained horses for William Orr of this city and for many years, wherever there was a stable or a track meet, Smitty was as part of the scene as a sulky.

And he has been part of his native city for his whole threescore and ten years. He was born here, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, and married the former Edna Wanamaker.

He was associated with the staff of Memorial Arena for many years, where his skill as a artisan made him an invaluable employee. He was extremely popular with hockey players, skating patrons and especially with the children.

His decries the old cliche of "Laugh and grow fat." Smitty's consistent good nature has kept him to the magnificent proportions of 123 pounds, his greatest weight.

He was equally popular with the lawn-bowling fraternity here. For some eight years he was the groundskeeper at the Bellevile Lawn Bowling Club where he made an enviable reputation.

His health hasn't been too good in recent weeks, but he readily consented to do an odd chore at arena manager Bob Burrows' cottage at the Carrying Place Saturday.

"Smitty" was not aware of what was going on and the element of surprise was complete when he reached the cottage and found upwards of 30 of his friends there.

It took him some time to "recover" and when he did there was the glint of a tear in his eyes. He was—as he put it—"struck speechless. I couldn't say a word either then or Thursday."

It was a fine party with the guest of honor being presented with a purse heavily lined with the tokens of the realm.

Before the inevitable farewells, best wishes, and handshakes the party enjoyed a delectable smorgasbord.

Sportsmen in general and a far-flung circle of other friends wish "Smitty" a long and enjoyable retirement.

Robert was rushed to hospital Saturday when he collapsed at the 50th mile of the Duvernay course. He was unconscious on arrival at and never regained consciousness.

REJECTS OFFER

LONDON (AP)—Brian Curtis, British and Commonwealth welterweight boxing champion, has rejected an offer of a non-title fight here with world champion Emile Griffith of New York. Said Curtis: "When I fight Griffith it will be over 15 rounds for the world title or not at all." Curtis is rated as the No. 1 title contender by the World Boxing Association."

Yanks Cut Birds' Lead To Half-Game

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The trouble with Baltimore Orioles is they can't win those one-run ball games.

They dropped a 4-3 decision to New York Tuesday night in the opener of a vital three-game set and saw their American League lead dwindle to half game over the onrushing Yankees.

The Orioles suddenly have lost their touch in pressure games after reeling off 21 victories in their first 25 one-run contests.

They were beaten twice by Detroit Tigers, each time by a 4-3 score in 10 innings, before Mickey Mantle, Tom Tresh and Al Downing collaborated for Tuesday night's Yankee victory before a New York crowd of 38,126.

Stu Miller, the wily junkman of the Baltimore bullpen, was the victim of eighth inning hits by Mantle and Tresh that broke a 3-3 tie and gave the Yankees their fifth straight triumph. Downing weathered a ninth inning storm and won his fourth in a row with a six-hitter.

Elsewhere in the AL, Juan Pizarro became the league's first 13-game winner as Chicago White Sox topped Boston Red Sox 6-2; Washington Senators nipped Minnesota Twins 4-3; Detroit Tigers beat Los Angeles Angels on the same score and Cleveland Indians outlasted Kansas City Athletics 9-7.

Mantle lined a single off Miller, making his 38th appearance in relief, with one out in the eighth. Mickey moved to second on a ground out and tallied the deciding run on Tresh's bloop hit to right.

JOHNSON SETS MARK

Baltimore had tied the score in the seventh on two walks and Bob Johnson's record-breaking pinch hit single. The hit was Johnson's sixth straight as pinch swinger, topping the A.L. mark previously shared by Johnny Mize, Vic Wertz and Bob Hale.

Baltimore loaded the bases with two out in the ninth on two passes and Luis Aparicio's infield hit but Downing got Norm Siebern on a fly to Mantle for the final out.

Pizarro held the Red Sox to five hits, including Dick Stuart's 18th homer, for eight innings and ran his record to 13-4 with last - inning help from knuckle-baller Hoyt Wilhelm.

Run-scoring hits by Ron Hansen and Gerry McMurtry gave the White Sox a 3-0 bulge in the second inning and they added a pair of unearned runs in the third.

The Senators snapped a 3-3 tie in the fifth on Ed Brinkman's single, a two-base throwing error by Minnesota pitcher Jim Kaat and an infield out. Camilo Osteen survived Harmon Killebrew's 32nd homer, a two-run shot, and picked up his seventh victory.

Detroit won its 12th game in 15 July starts, scoring the deciding run in the eighth on Gates Brown's double and Don Demeter's single. Demeter also homered and Bill Freehan collected four hits off Tiger hits.

Home runs by Jim Wagner, Tito Francona and Woodie Held pushed Cleveland to a 7-3 lead over Kansas City but the A's fought back to tie in the eighth when Dick Green and Bucky Colavito homered and Ken Harrelson hit his second circuit of the game. Held's run-scoring single and Dick Howser's squeeze bunt won it for the Indians in the ninth.

Drop 2-1 Thriller To Trudeaus

Tweed Out Of Flag Race

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Billy McGuire may not be a Willie Mays with the bat but opposing B. and D. Softball League clubs are learning how dangerous he can be when turned loose on the base paths.

The fleet-footed Trudeau second baseman scored the winning run with alert running last night in "Shiker" Baker's squad nipped Tweed Lombanks 2-1 in a thriller at the CNRA Park.

Tweed's loss knocked them out of contention for the loop pennant, and the win kept Trudeau's hopes alive of climbing out of the basement alive.

Ellis Munro and, Trenton Commercial Printe... deadlocked in first, clash in an all-important battle at Bay Shore Park tonight. Game time is 8.15.

Each club scored once in the opening heat of last night's well-played encounter, then pitchers Bobby Green and Blaine Healey took over the spotlight.

They duelled over the remainder with McGuire's run in the fifth marring the twin row of zeros.

McGuire led off the fifth with a base on balls and promptly made a clean steal of second on a return throw to the pitcher. Duggan hoisted a foul liner to right and McGuire raced to third after the catch. The throw in got loose from Sherrer at second for a just a moment—and that was all McGuire needed, sliding home with the deciding run inches ahead of the throw.

Lombanks led 1-0 in the top of the first on a walk and Gorr's triple to right centre. Trudeaus used Faulkner's bass hit and Plane's triple to even it in the bottom of the inning. A slippery outfield appeared to slow the outfielders on both three-baggers.

Green turned in his best performance in well over a month, scattering eight hits and blowing strikes past 10. He walked two, bearing down in tough spots to strand 11 Tweed runners, two of them in the ninth.

Healey lost another rough one, giving up only four hits, two of them of the scratch type. He struck out 13 and passed a pair. Only one error was charged against his club, that which allowed the winning run.

Bert Faulkner had a pair of Trudeau Motor singles while Ralph Plane tripled and Al Wright got a bad-bounce single. Gerry Gorr tripled and singled and Terry LeSage hit a double and single for "Tweed." Bert, Sherry, Healey, Paul Mercaw and Lorne Carleton split the others.

Tonight marks the signing of deadline for players and several of the clubs are expected to come up with a couple of new faces. Trudeaus expect to have at least one and two pitching additions as well as a veteran catcher on the line today.

Monday's Trenton at Tweed postponed game will be played next Monday.

Tweed—Carleton lf; T. LeSage, 1b; L. LeSage ss; Gorr c; Mercer 3b; R. LeSage cf; Cotton rf; Sherry 2b; Healey p; White ph; Morton 2b.

Trudeaus—Locke rf; Wright 3b; Faulkner cf; Plane ss; Zakrzewski rf; Murray c; McGuire 2b; Duggan lb; Green p.

Umpires—"Shud" Ethier (P); and Herb Pointer. Time 1.13.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP) — Armbro Adanac romped to a two-length victory in the mud Tuesday night in winning the featured mile pace at Greenwood Raceway.

The 4-to-5 choice had little difficulty with the slippery footing, leading Carolwyn Grattan across the finish line in the $1,000 event.

Victory was the third in 14 starts this season for Armbro Adanac, a seven-year-old gelding that carries the mark of a superior mudder on the Armstrong Brothers of Brampton, Ont.

Diller A Dollar, the three-year-old colt from Earle Thomson's Niagara Farm of St. Catharines, won the opening race, his fourth win in six outings.

Co-owner Pat Crowe of Bimvale, Ont., was in the silky behind second race winner Vesta Direct and set up a daily double payoff of $13.40.

Als' Quarter Stands Out

Stamps Clobber Alouettes 35-7

MONTREAL (CP) — Calgary Stampeders came to town to win and, the good boots, Montreal Alouettes made it easy for them.

Actually, it wasn't quite that cut-and-dried. The Stamps are tough to beat on any given night.

However, the 18,698 hometown fans didn't enjoy watching their Alouettes being clobbered 35-7.

The game Tuesday night in humid McGill Stadium was the first of several pre-season exhibition games between Canadian Football League teams.

Calgary coach Bobby Dobbs got two touchdowns from a dexterous halfback candidate named Mike Davis. "He sure was a pleasant surprise," Dobbs said. "That was his best performance yet."

BORE SHOWS WELL

Coach Jim Trimble of the Alouettes learned that he has quite a find in rookie quarterback George Bork, who connected on 15 of 30 passes for 195 yards. And he discovered that his sophomore quarterback, Warren Robb, still "can't cut-and-dried. Robb failed to move the team when he was in the slot, as did backup quarter Jerry Fields, who also played on defence.

Fleet-sting quarterback Kelly Dye guided the Stamps to their romp, completing 11 of 18 passes for 187 yards. Day also scored two touchdowns. Larry Robinson converted four times and added 4 singles on a low field goal attempt. Calgary's other touchdown came from Jim Dillard.

Bork's 28-yard touchdown pass to Marv Luster in the second quarter was his first as an Alouette. Glen Berreta converted.

PGA Tournament

Lema, Venturi Favorites

By JIM BECKER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—"Oh, I know you, said Tony Lema. "You're the fellow who won that American Open.

"That's me, said Ken Venturi. "And you're the guy with the champagne factory.

"What have you been up to lately?"

And that's how the winner of the U.S. Open greeted the winner of the British Open when they met at the PGA tournament Tuesday.

A few months ago, Lema, 30, was just another golfer with an interesting gimmick. Venturi, 33, was the young fellow who never quite made it.

Now they are the two hottest properties in golf, and among the favorites in the tournament which starts here Thursday.

"Look at this mail," said Venturi, opening his locker and discovering a stack of it. "And to think that I went three years without a letter."

"I thought you had forgotten how to read," Lema said.

GETS CHEQUE

A cheque fluttered out of one envelope. Venturi picked it up, read the figures and said: "I can read those. It used to take me a month to make that much."

"In good months," added Lema, who strolled over to the window and noticed that wind and rain were starting to kick up.

"Ah, St. Andrews weather," said Lema, who won the British Open in a raging gale.

"Now, if the wind will get up another 30 or 40 miles an hour it will be just about right for my game."

"Hey, Venturi said. "My locker number here is 46. I know that was the same number I had at the Open.

"No, your number at the Open was 378, said Lema, referring to the score that won for Venturi.

"That was one better than yours, said Venturi to Lema, who won the British Open with 278. You couldn't quite make it, could you?

Aussie Aces Face Canuck 'Lefties'

Davis Cup Tie

By TED BLACKMAN

MONTREAL (CP) Australians Ray Emerson and John Newcombe will face a pair of tennis southpaws Friday in the opening singles matches of the Davis Cup tie with Canada.

Lefthanded net competitors aren't that rare, but no one connected with the first round of the British American zone elimination can remember the last time that four of the eight players held their rackets in the "wrong" hand.

Not even Aussie captain Harry Hopman, who has as much seniority as the trophy itself.

Both Francois Godbout and Keith Carpenter, expected to get the starting assignments against Australia's Roy Emerson and John Newcombe, are lefties. And the two Aussie reserves, Owen Davidson and Tony Roche, are also southpaw.

"It's not a problem for the Aussies," Canadian captain Ellis Tarshis said Tuesday, "but it is rare. Sometimes it affects a righthander's shot placement, but it doesn't bother players of the calibre of the Aussies."

DRILLS NEWCOMBE

Despite this, Hopman has been drilling Newcombe as he serves aimed at lefties. He spent the afternoon serving to Emerson's right forehand — in effect, the same as service to a lefty's backhand.

This was the first time that Newcombe had been given the nod over Roche for Friday's opening singles, although Hopman wouldn't spoil his image of a foxy tactician by admitting it.

"I will say this, however," he conceded. "I'm giving Newcombe exercises and today I'll start to ease off and work him less so as not to tire him. Then I hope he is fighting fit for Friday."

Thursday's draw will send Emerson, Wimbledon champion and top-ranked Aussie, against Godbout or Carpenter. Sophomore Newcombe will play the other Canadian.

Emerson arrived Tuesday after a smart over plane schedules kept him in Europe an extra day. Despite a weary flight via New York, he impressed spectators at the Mount Royal Tennis Club with his service and volleys.

WHIPS ROCHE

He whipped Roche 6-3 in a singles set and then downed Newcombe in doubles matches, but no score was kept. Then he teamed with Roche for two doubles sets against Newcombe and Davidson, winning both in unscored contests.

"He's tired," said Hopman. "Yes, but he's still top fast," quipped Roche.

Hopman is hopeful that Newcombe will pick up Emerson's habit of darting about the court. The "King of the Kids," as Hopman calls him, hasn't been showing the fervor of 20-year-old.

"He's never been fit," says Hopman. "With young people you've got to organize them or else they'll sit in the sun all day. He's had a workout these last few weeks though. I'm hopeful he'll be fit Friday."

The Canadian team, which also includes reserves Val Haris and Peter Coats, also works out twice a day, but their attention strays to the court where the Australians are playing.

They know winning is almost impossible, but they do recognize some brilliance.

"We'll learn a lot this week," says Tarshis.

Pinch-Hit Single Won It

Cards Nip Dodgers; Phils, Giants Beaten

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ron Perranoski, dizzy-singer of the year in 1963, apparently has run out of fingers.

The defending world champion Los Angeles Dodgers were beaten Tuesday night on a two-run pinch-hit single by Bob Skinner that capped a four-run ninth inning uprising and gave St. Louis Cardinals an 8-7 victory.

Perranoski, 27, who last year at this time was en route to a 16-3 record, put down one up-rising in the eight, but failed and was removed in the decisive ninth.

Walks to Curt Flood and Dick Groat and a single by Ken Boyer gave the Cardinals a run and when Perranoski run the count on Bill White to 3-0, out he came. Bob Miller completed the walk, Mike Shannon bounced out as a run scored and then Skinner slapped his game-winning hit.

The loss was charged to Perranoski, who has made 36 appearances this season and been in 24 losing games while compiling a 4-5 record with a medicre 3.55 earned run average.

The Cardinals climbed to within 7½ games of front-running San Francisco Giants.

RETAIN THEIR LEAD

The Giants went down to an 8-7 defeat at Milwaukee as the Braves rode home runs by rookie Rico Carty and veteran Eddie Mathews to their 12th victory in the last 17 games. The Giants, however, retained their one game lead over Philadelphia Phillies, 4-3 losers to Pittsburgh Pirates.

Third-place Cincinnati Reds closed to within 5½ of the top by sweeping Houston Colts 5-3 in 11 innings and 10-3, and Chicago Cubs defeated New York Mets 4-2.

Sandy Koufax, seeking his 10th straight victory and 14th of the season, started for the Dodgers and battery mate John Roseboro helped build a 5-0 lead by driving in three runs with three singles.

But home runs by Shannon and Mike Shannon and a two-run double by Cardinals struck for two runs in the eighth and chased Koufax as manager Walt Alston waived in Perranoski to plug the dike.

Carty and Mathews slugged their homers in the sixth inning as the Braves bombarded 12-game winner Jim Marichal for five runs.

Mathews' homer, his 12th this season, was No. 434 of his career and broke a tie with the Giants' Willie Mays for eighth place on the all-time list.

Cal McLish, who had been on the disabled list, made his first start for the Phillies and failed to survive the first inning as Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh Clemente doubled and Jerry Lynch singled.

Lefthander Bob Friend of the Pirates won it in the fifth, by pushing across two more runs on an infield hit by Mota with the bases loaded and a grounder by Roberto Clemente that drove in winner Bob Veale.

The Reds scored three runs in the opener on wild pitches, two by reliever Jim Brosnan, and Larry Yellen and the third in the 11th when Hal Woodeshick uncorked a wild pitch with the bases loaded that let in the deciding run.

The second game proved much easier against the Colts as the Reds slugged 16 hits, including a home run each by Frank Robinson and Mel Queen.

Dick Ellsworth won his 11th for the Cubs, despite a five-error third inning that enabled the Mets to score their only runs.

Chicago pulled it out in the seventh with a three-run uprising on doubles by Dick Bertell and Andre Rodgers, Billy Cowan's triple and a single by Joey Amalfitano. Ernie Banks' homer accounted for the first Cub run.

Turn Back Belvedere, Cheesemen

Barriages, Daubers Win

Barriage Landscapers used a six-run explosion in the third to top Black Diamond Cheesemen 9-6 while Ter-Haar Daubers nipped Belvedere Hotel 8-6 in a pair of Commercial Softball league games last night.

The victory tightened Barriages' grip on first place.

Joe Harvey pitched the Landscaper win, allowing 11 hits while fanning four and walking none. Sony Holoway, in his initial start of the season, lost it while also striking up his. He whiffed two and walked three.

The Belvedere enlivened the game and resulted with the ejection of the winners' Rod Turner and Black Diamond's Terry Kelly.

Tom Cooley had four singles in a nine inning tripe for Barriages while Jim Sopha contributed a double and two singles. Runners were Turner, Don Wood and Turner also hit safely.

Al Douglas got three Cheesemen singles and Bill Hanna hit a double and single. C. Clegg, Bob Cruickshank, Doug Archer, Kelly, Jack Gilby and B. Jones accounted for other safeties.

Don Holoway pitched the Ter-Haar triumph, giving up seven hits while Earl Boyd five and walking eight. Junior Day allowed five hits for Belvedere, fanning six and passing seven.

Latchford paced the Dauber attack with a triple and single. H. Pointer, Bob Duggan and Jeffery added the other safeties.

Perry got a triple and single and Day a three-run triple for Belvedere. Hughes doubled and singles went to J. Lucas, Bryant, McLeod and Ryan.

No linescore was turned in for the Ter-Haar - Belvedere game.

The Yankees registered their first victory of the season in the S.M.B.A.'s Tyke division last night, edging DeMille Construction 8-7 at the Alemite.

In twelve play at Parkdale, the Bad Boys turned back Sine's Shell by a 13-2 count.

Yankees got fine performances from two players, Ray O'Neill and Dean Lang, to grab their initial win. They looked after the pitching, catching and hitting for their club.

They combined for a three-hitter, one catching when the other was pitching and struck out eight. Lang was credited with the victory.

Lang fashioned a triple and O'Neill a double, the only hits allowed by Robin Guest of DeMille's. Forester was his catcher.

J. Venuti crashed a triple and double and M. Bell had a two-bagger for the losers.

Wayne Farrell hurled six-hit ball in the Peewee Red Sox' victory. He struck out nine and walked eight. Art Wellesley and Paul Wolfe gave up seven hits for Black Diamond, fanning 11 but walking ten.

Catcher Ron Jury spearheaded the Red Sox attack with a double and two singles. Peter Middleton also got two singles, Jim Blatchford and Moe Thompson one apiece.

Catcher Brian Coughlin led Sine's with a brace of singles. Wolfe, Garry McGilvary, Terry Meagher and Jeff Mason shared the others.

Should Be Top Game Of Season

Ajax Merchants, one of the tougher teams in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association's senior grouping, will supply the opposition for Belleville Joyce Realty here tonight.

The regular scheduled game is set for the Fairgrounds at 8.30 p.m.

Joyces have tangled with the Merchants on two other occasions this summer, dropping a 12-7 decision to Ajax and later nipping the visitors 5-4 here in Belleville. Both clubs, so far on the way should be fighting for top rung on the loop ladder, will be out to grab the edge in games tonight.

Ace right-hander Bill Latchford is expected to get the starting assignment on the Realty pitching rubber. Joyces have a busy schedule during the next 12 days. They follow up tonight's game with a Saturday afternoon tilt in Brockville, against the Beavers, then return to the Fairgrounds next Monday to host Oshawa Chevy Merchants. They go back to Oshawa on July 26 and to Ajax on July 28.

Oshawa Merchants will also be in town tomorrow night, meeting Cannilton in a postponed game, at the Fairgrounds at 8.30 p.m.

PROPER TURN CURES MANY FAULTS

Many errors in golf occur because a player finds himself in a bad position at the top of his backswing. The best way to eliminate these errors is to learn to coil on the backswing.

Developing a proper coiling on the backswing, with the hands, arms, shoulders, hips and body working together, is not always easy. There is, however, one exercise that will help you get the proper feel of coilings

To get this feeling, merely practice swinging without altering the position of your body, or lowering your head. Many people may find this impossible. They should merely swing as far back as possible.

This exercise will enable you to feel the stretching of muscles that occurs on a backswing that is properly coiled. Duplicate this feeling in your own swing and you will eliminate many swing errors and add distance and consistency to your shots.

Canadian Cadets Win At Bisley

BISLEY, England (Reuters) Australian Eric Thompson on Tuesday tied with two Britons for the Monday Aggregate Trophy in the Bisley service rifle competitions here.

The 24-year-old Thompson will have to de-shoot Thursday in order to win against J. F. Jackman and D. F. Candlay.

They all scored 185 out of a possible 200 at the 200, 300, 500, 600 and 900 yard lines.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Army Cadets cleared the board in the young fliemen's aggregate competition, which is for under 23-year-olds, shooting in the Monday aggregate at 200, 300, 500 and 600 yards.

In a field of 85 entries they won the first three prizes and two subsidiary prizes.

WINS CUP

The Young Riflemens Challenge Cup went to Cadet-Major Terence Spencer, 17, of Dorval, Que., who scored 182 out of a possible 200, a score which got him a prize in the main competition, 17th among 600 entries, as well as the junior trophy.

Second prize was Cadet-Lieut. Robert Fry, 17, of Halifax, N.S., with 180, followed in third place by Cadet-Sgt. Charles Hunter, 17, of Willowdale, Ont., scoring 179 and Cadet-Lt.-Col. John McDonald, 17, of Winnipeg, who was fourth with 189.

The other Canadian prizewinner was Cadet-Warrant Officer Brian Watt, 18, of Victoria, B.C., with 187.

Cadet Fraser will be firing a tie-shoot Thursday for the Wimbledon Cup.

Cadet Fry, Pageant's first victory of the season but he made it a convincing one, defeating Cadet-Major Sturgeon as Windy Ship, Musing and Windkin, stakes winners during their careers.

With Jerry Harrison aboard, Gay Pageant went to the lead with just over a quarter of a mile to go and outfooled Windy Ship and Tres Serve.

Despite his fine winning efforts, most of the 6,128 fans recommended Gay Pageant's outstanding sprinting record and the son of Europeo returned $7.00, $4.10 and $2.10.

Ontario Ladies Open
NZ Champ Leads Semi-Finals

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Una Wickham, the 1959 New Zealand champion, displaying fine trul around the greens, led the field into the quarter-finals of the Ontario Ladies Open championship here Tuesday with a three and two win over Kay Hellieur in the first match-play round.

There were no major upsets in Tuesday's rounds, being played at Sunningdale golf course here.

Wednesday Miss Wickham, from Woodbridge, near Toronto, meets two-time Open winner Sue Hill...n of London Hunt who got by Alice Wilson of Sunningdale five and four.

Miss Wickham was three under par when her match with Miss Hellieur ended on the sixteenth green after she had conceded her opponents putt.

The veteran player, formerly of Auckland, made it a three-up lead after nine holes and turned on the pressure in the back nine with an eagle on the 10th and a birdie on the 12th.

Miss Hilton played steady golf in eliminating Mrs. Wilson but had to scramble on two holes to defeat Mrs. Cruikshank.

Sandra Post, of Trafalgar, who led the qualifiers Monday, had little trouble disposing Yolande Whitelaw, of Toronto Mississaugua.

Nancy Smith, of Beachgrove, Windsor, had to get to the 18th before she ousted Linda Deeton of Westdale Craftsman in the days closest match.

Championship flight — first round:

Sandra Post, Trafalgar, defeated Yolande Whitelaw, Mississaugua, 3 and 2;

Nancy Smith, Beachgrove, defeated Linda Deeton, Craigowan, 1 up;

Nancy Stoddart, New Updates, defeated Mary deGruchy, Sarnia, 2 and 1;

Gail Harvey, Scarborough, defeated Isabel Armstrong, Weston, 5 and 4;

Sue Hilton, London Hunt, defeated Alice Wilson, Sunningdale, 5 and 4;

Una Wickham, Woodbridge, defeated Kay Hellieur, Bracebridge, 3 and 2;

Betty Cole, Woodbridge, defeated Carol McGee, St. Marys, 5 and 4;

Margaret Masters, Ottawa Hunt, defeated Jane Kirkpatrick, Lambton, 6 and 4.

Match Play Tourney Under Way

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Fox Jr., a 26-year-old London, Ont., professional, shot a two under par 70 Tuesday to head a field of 34 pros taking part in-a preview to the Canadian match play championship.

A total of 219 players, including the 34 professionals, took part in events at The Pine Valley course — sight of the match play tournament which starts Thursday.

Three other pros, Al Balding of Toronto, Icthander Gus Mans of Belleville and host pro George Clifton, finished in a tie for second place, one stroke behind Fox.

Only other pros to match par were Ron Morris of King, Ont., with Homemade of Winnipeg and Moe Norman of Toronto.

Nick Weslock, Jack Grace and Al Heakes, all of Toronto, shot 74s to lead the amateurs.

The field of 154 of Canada's top professionals will enter today's qualifying round for the match play title. This number will be cut to 64 for the tournament itself which opens Thursday and ends Saturday.

New Sasky Quarter Makes Bid

REGINA (CP)—Bob Light, a 23-year-old import quarterback from Pacific University in Seattle, made a strong bid for the starting job this year with Western Football Conference Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Riders' annual intra-squad game Tuesday night.

One of the largest crowds ever to watch an intra-squad game at Taylor Field—11,200—saw the veteran-headed White team whip the Greens 30-14.

Light piloted the Greens for the first quarter and the White for the final 45 minutes of the game.

He was picked up early last season but played only two 1963 games as a flanker and a defensive halfback.

Light threw a touchdown pass to veteran end Hugh Campbell in the third quarter. His passing was accurate and he ran well on roll-outs.

Vees Shade Crackers, Leafs Idle

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bill Stoltenberg, who has fashioned an impressive record on the mound this season, proved he was no slouch at the plate Tuesday night when he drove in the winning run as Richmond Virginians gained a 10th inning 5-4 victory over Atlanta Crackers in the International League.

Stoltenberg, who has won eight of his last nine games, scattered nine hits to record his 10th victory against three defeats and also drove in another run with a double in the sixth to give Richmond a 3-2 lead.

Tom Metcalf, Frank Carpin and Jack Cullen took over from Stoltlemyre after 9 1-3 innings following a two-run ninth inning Atlanta rally.

In other action, league-leading Jacksonville Suns edged Columbus Jets 2-1 and Syracuse Chiefs defeated Buffalo Bisons 6-4. A fourth game between Rochester Red Wings and the Maple Leafs at Toronto was rained out.

In 22 Foot Cabin Cruiser
Norway Return-Or Bust

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Two Toronto men set off next this week to try to conquer the Atlantic Ocean in a 22-foot cabin cruiser, crossing to Norway and back.

Starting from Lake Chemong, six miles west of here, they expect a royal welcome on the other side.

Hilton Swardrup, 46, an automotive schools director, and Canada from Norway in 1940, said King Olav had offered an escort when they near Norway.

Swardrup, accompanied by Otto Pedersen, 50, hopes to make the 2,300-mile trip in Oslo in 10 days. His 27-foot craft, the Viking, is powered by a 180 h.p. eight-cylinder engine.

Specially reinforced, the boat has seven gasoline tanks holding 340 gallons. Refuelling stops are planned at Greenland and Iceland.

Swardrup said he has no fears about crossing the Atlantic.

"I would take our craft over a larger ship any day. It'll just be like riding a giant roller coaster."

USED ROWBOAT

He said that when he first from the North during the Second World War, he crossed the rowboat from Norway to England.

"Nothing could be worse than that," he said. "I drifted for three days."

Swardrup at first couldn't get anyone to go with him on the Atlantic crossing.

"Everyone thought I was crazy."

He managed to recruit three volunteers, but all were seasick when he took them out on Lake Simcoe, near Toronto.

His plans were saved by Pedersen, a father of four children, and no stranger to sailing. He crossed the Atlantic in a schooner as far back as 1921.

The men are taking enough food for 14 days.

"If it takes us any longer," said Pedersen," we'll starve for our food. But even at that, we won't mind losing 10 pounds."

Swardrup said he has no fears about crossing the Atlantic.

"I would take our craft over a larger ship any day. It'll just be like riding a giant roller coaster."

GRANTS TO OTHERS

Seek Bodnar As Coach Of Marlies

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs officials were negotiating Tuesday with Gus Bodnar, former National Hockey League star, offering him the position as coach of Toronto Marlboros, Leafs' Junior A farm club.

Bodnar, former centre with Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks, last season coached a junior B team at Lindsay, Ont. to the provincial final. He recently was named president of the Lindsay club.

Marlboros won the Memorial Cup, emblematic of Canadian junior hockey supremacy, last season under coach Jim Gregory. Gregory has been named manager of the club, succeeding Buck Houle, who is moving to Victoria as general manager of Leafs new farm club in the professional Western League.

Houle, in Lindsay Tuesday, said no announcement has been made regarding the Marlboro coaching job.

He said Leafs need coaches for junior farm clubs at Chatham, Pet., and Kenoyville, Tenn., as well as for Marlboros.

Houle said any decision would have to await the return of Leafs general manager-coach, Punch Imlach, on vacation in Hawaii.

Bodnar was not available for comment.

Says Member Made Moose Statement

TORONTO (CP)—Ted Yates, secretary-manager of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, said Tuesday the federation is investigating a recommendation by a member that the moose season be closed north of Highway 17, from the Quebec border to Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

He said the federation reported Monday through a misunderstanding that William Owens, Oshawa, federation president, announced the federation itself was recommending immediate closure of the moose season in the area north.

Mr. Yates said the federation is also investigating a recommendation that no further moose hunting should be allowed by either residents or non-residents south of Highway 17, including the Parry Sound district and areas south.

The announcement followed a federation directors' meeting at Orillia during the weekend. The directors were considering recommendations made by Dan Dalhaul of Copper Cliff, Ont., big game chairman of the federation, during the annual meeting at Hamilton in March.

Sports in Brief

IS FASTEST

CERVERIA, Italy (AP) — Bruno Alberti of Italy had the fastest time Tuesday on the second day of a six-day competition to determine the fastest man on this this year. He covered the 100-metre course at a rate of 164.35 miles per hour. The mark of 164.06 turned in Monday by another Italian, Leido de Rossi, remained the fastest so far.

DROP THREE

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Lions have dropped three players from their roster, a spokesman for the Western Football Conference club said Tuesday. Given their walking tickets were Canadians Jim Randle, a defensive halfback, and guard Morley Rolbiser, and American end Donnie Davis.

MAKE TRADE

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference announced a four-player trade Tuesday with the Western Conference Winnipeg Blue Bombers. No cash was involved. The Alouettes gave up Iowa guard Marv Lee and defensive half Barrie Hansen for Doug Dalgnault, an import halfback, and Vernon Cole, a quarterback and defensive half from New Texas State.

NEEDS SURGERY

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pitcher Jack Sanford, San Francisco Giants star of the 1959 World Series, must undergo surgery on his sliing right arm and will be lost to the club at least six weeks. The Giants announced Tuesday that examination has disclosed a six-inch obstruction in his upper pitching arm impairing blood circulation. He will be operated on later in the week.

BUY DRIVERS

SEATTLE (AP)—Seattle Totems of the Western Hockey League Tuesday announced the purchase of rightwinger Bill Dineen, 21, from Montreal Canadiens of the National League. Dineen was with Detroit Red Wings of the NHL for five seasons from 1955-59.

WINS RACE

PARIS (AP)—Jacques Anquetil of France Tuesday won his fifth marathon Tour de France bicycle race, a grinding, three-week race over 2,712 miles of rugged French country-side.

Jennifer Wins Dublin 80 Metres

DUBLIN (CP - Reuters) — Jennifer Wingerson, 21-year-old Canadian Olympic hopeful, won the 80-metre hurdles race at an international athletics meet here Tuesday night in the best time of her career—10.9 seconds.

With a tremendous finish, the blonde secretary from Toronto defeated Pam Kilborn of Australia, the British Empire Games champion at the distance. Miss Kilborn also was clocked in 10.9 seconds, a time which gave her the first prize at Perth, Australia in 1962.

The Canadian girl's victory, in competition at Dublin's Santry Stadium, surprised local track experts. Miss Wingerson's previous best in the event was 11 seconds, which she equalled last Saturday in a track meet in suburban London.

Earlier Tuesday night, Miss Wingerson finished a close second to Lorna McGarvey in the 100-yard dash. Miss McGarvey set an Irish native record with a 10.8-second clocking and Miss Wingerson was caught in 10.9, one second off her time last Saturday in London.

Abigail Hoffman, 17, of Toronto was beaten in the 440 by Irish track star Maeve Kyle. Mrs. Kyle ran a well-judged race to finish in 56.5 seconds, an Irish all-comers record. The Toronto athlete was second in 56.8, a full second faster than her time last Saturday in winning the event in the suburban London meet at Twickenham.

The 56.8 clocking was more than two seconds off Miss Hoff man's previous best.

New Talent Plentiful Says Clair

OTTAWA (CP)—Three weeks ago, when Ottawa Rough Riders began training for another Eastern Football Conference season, head coach Frank Clair hinted he'd have pretty much of a stand-pat club.

Now he's starting to change his tune.

"We've got so much good-looking new talent, some of the sophomores could be chased right out of the picture," Clair said.

Clair and his assistant, Bill Smyth, have been particularly pleased with the showing of Mike Mosolf, a candidate for the position of back-up quarterback behind Canadian Russ Jackson, chosen the best player in Canadian football last year.

Mosolf, a former University of Idaho player, who directed Indianapolis of the United Football League last season, is given a good shot at making the club both because of talent as a quarterback and kicking ability.

Other newcomers who have received favorable mention from the Rider brass include Joe Taylor, who came to Ottawa late last year after playing with New York Giants of the NFL. Ron McCauley, a speedy halfback from Los Angeles State College, Stacy Mathis, a 225-pound linebacker from Baylor University, and Kent Lehman, an end and linebacker from Bill Smyth's old school, Xavier University, Cincinnati.

Albury

ALBURY—Mrs. Don Dawson and family are spending holidays with her parents in New Brunswick.

Miss Linda Peck entertained 30 girls for a pantry shower for Miss Joan Onderdonk on Thursday evening. The girl made a bride's book and had contests. Linda read an amusing address to Joan and she was presented with many useful gifts. A delicious lunch was served from a table decorated with streamers.

Mrs. Earl Onderdonk entertained at a tea for her daughter Joan, who was married July 11th.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Peck and David of Toronto spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Peck.

The Albury Ladies Aid held their monthly meeting at Albury Church on Tuesday evening with 14 in attendance.

A number attended Quinte Chapter No. 39 at Amelianburg on Thursday evening entertaining the Grand Officers.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Weese visited Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brickman, Belleville, while they entertained several Grand Officers of the O.E.S. for luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Onderdonk entertained several relatives over the weekend.

ACCEPT LOSS

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Insurance companies have agreed to accept the cost and pay claims on two ferries sinking in 150 feet of water in Lake Huron about 55 miles northwest of Sarnia, it was announced of highways officials said Tuesday. The department of highways ferries, James W. Curren and J. B. MacPhail, were lost during a freak storm last spring while being towed to a new berth near Kingston.

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD
Four-Time Winner of the Masters

SHORT PITCH SHOTS RISKY

Whenever you are just a few yards from the edge of a green, and the terrain between your ball and the hole is fairly normal, there is no reason why you should take a chance on trying to pitch the next shot with a highly lofted club.

In #1, I am showing what too often happens when you employ a wedge or a 9-iron on such short shots. The ball flies high through the air with a lot of backspin. Then it hits the green and settles quickly to a stop, far short of the hole.

On such short shots you can much better off chipping with a middle iron, such as a 5 or 6. A chip with one of these clubs will not die on you. It will bounce and roll to the hole, even if it isn't struck perfectly square. Just pick a spot on the green from which your ball will bounce and roll to the hole. Then merely land your chip shot near that spot as I have done in #2.

Republican Convention Keeps Viewers Near Seats

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —How much political convention can a television viewer watch?

Tuesday night's session of the Republican national convention put the viewer to the test. By the time Chairman Thruston Morton pounded the meeting to a close, it was 2:30 a.m. on the Eastern Seaboard.

Eight hours of oratory had poured through the loudspeakers at the Cow Palace at San Francisco, and there's a long sit ABC, CBS and NBC continued broadcasting through the entire program.

The networks are to be commended for their persistance and especially for their enterprise in underlining the significance of the session.

The commentators made it clear that the fight to amend the platform was not merely another party squabble, but a fight for power between conservatives and liberals.

"This has been a critical night for this party, not only for this convention, but perhaps for this generation," remarked CBS' Eric Sevareid.

"This party has clearly reached a critical point in its history. We will be writing and reading about this night for years to come."

The television coverage helped make the marathon endurable by not concentrating all its time on the dreary speeches. Interspersed were interviews by ubiquitous Ingemar, who looked like Frogmen in mufti with their burden of electronic gear.

The interviews afforded home viewers understanding of the events that spectators in the Cow Palace could not enjoy.

The most dramatic point came when Governor Nelson Rockefeller attempted to outline his views on the civil rights plank. ABC's Howard K. Smith stated Rockefeller was interrupted 22 times in his brief speech, mostly with boos.

The speech did not end on to the inevitable conclusion— complete victory for the supporters of Senator Barry Goldwater.

Today: A long session of nominating and voting for presidential candidates.

Youth Column

Lynda Lane at 14 Veteran Stage, Radio, TV Performer

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Hazel McKirdy, alias Lynda Layne, is a 14-year-old recording artist whose pretty blonde head is far enough below the clouds to know that singing successful means hard work and self discipline.

Lynda—she prefers to be known by her show-business name—hit the top-10 popularity charts across Canada last winter with her first record, Stay Away from My Baby.

Since then she has cut Mark My Word, which was among the top tunes, and a new release, Jimmy, Johnny or Joe.

Although still a high-school junior, Lynda is a veteran stage, radio and television performer.

She has sung with Hank Snow's band on Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, Tenn., and Jimmy Dean's TV show and CBC television. She toured for 10 days with Doc Williams' Border Riders.

Despite this large measure of achievement so young, it was no overnight success, by Lynda's reckoning.

"I'm aiming at rhythm and blues or more ballad music."

COLLISION KILLS NINE

WAYNESVILLE, Mo. (AP)— Nine persons died Saturday night when four cars crashed near Waynesville in south-central Missouri. Six were soldiers from Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo. Three teen-age civilians, all of Crocker, Mo., near the fort, also were killed.

"I have to keep my hair nice for evening performances, too. I can't have that much fun," she says.

It's been the same for most of her life—she won her first talent contest at the age of three—with hours of practice and grooming to be ready for the breaks when they come.

BORN IN ENGLAND

Lynda was born in England and came to Canada when she was seven with her parents and an older sister. She went into show business naturally—her mother was a professional dancer and acrobat and her father is a musician who taught Lynda to play the guitar.

At 11, she was one of four youngsters chosen to represent Canada at a Children's International Summer Village in Norway. When she returned she was able to sing a medley of songs in four languages.

Lynda can't see a future without singing, although not necessarily in the current style, which tends towards rock 'n' roll.

She likes to dance. "If I go in, I'm busy singing. So I'm not really free to go with a boy."

On weekend engagements at Lake Huron resorts like Grand Bend and Sauble Beach, Lynda is unable to relax completely as most 14-year-olds do swimming and sunning themselves.

"I have to keep my hair nice for evening performances, too. I can't have that much fun," she says.

Never Asked To Intervene Says Minister

QUEBEC (CP)—Labor Minister Carrier Portin said Tuesday he has not intervened in the typographers' strike at Montreal La Presse because neither side has asked for government intervention.

Speaking in the legislature, he denied suggestions by opposition members that the government was staying out of the issue for political reasons.

Yves Gabias (UN—Trois-Rivieres) said there were rumors that high Liberal party figures and La Presse management have a mutual desire to see the strike settled at the expense of the employees.

"Is this the reason, he asked, why Mr. Portin seemed less anxious to settle the La Presse strike affecting the three Toronto dailies?

"The Ontario labor minister runs his affairs as he sees fit," Mr. Portin replied, "and I will run my department as I see fit."

CLAIMS SAID FALSE

Th inaintenance about interference on the part of the Liberal party are absolutely false. I have not been subject to any pressure, and no one has made any representations to me in this matter."

Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson then suggested it was the ministers duty to intervene in a strike involving 1,200 persons, most of whom had no strike fund to rely on.

Mr. Portin recalled that during preliminary study of the provincial labor code, both labor and management had asked to be left free to negotiate collective agreements.

If either party wanted the help of the labor department, it had only to ask for it.

La Presse has been off the street for 34 days, following a strike June 9 by about 300 members of the International Typographical Union (CLC).

Employes a represented by other unions have refused to cross ITU picket lines.

CBC in Red Four Million; Asks New Deal

OTTAWA (CP)—The publicly-owned CBC continues to spend more than it gets from the taxpayer and in advertising dollars.

The corporation's annual report, tabled Tuesday in the Commons, showed that total expenses exceeded total income by $4,071,853 in the fiscal year ended March 31.

President J Alphonse Ouimet also outlined a proposal for a reorganization of the broadcasting industry patterned on the British system. This would make both public and private broadcasters directly responsible to Parliament.

"Major policy inquiries might very well establish the whole broadcasting system on a 'charter' basis for a period of perhaps 10 years, giving both the public and private sectors of the system a firm basis on which to operate during this known period," he said.

"This would do much to dissipate dissensions which have plagued Canadian broadcasting for over forty years and which have arisen largely from anxieties caused by uncertainty."

(The BBC and the broadcasting Corporation is a publicly-owned organization which is linked by royal charter. It is responsible to Parliament and its operations are examined every 10 years by a special committee, set up by Parliament prior to renewal of its charter.)

GRANT WOULD HELP

The CBC said it would cost $16,200,000 over a 10-year period to bring national radio service to an additional 125 communities with a population of more than 500 and the CBC's TV service to about 60 with populations of more than 2,000. However, the time period, could be shortened if Parliament provided a special grant.

Mr. Quimet said the corporation is hoping its eyes eligsy on the color TV situation. Sales of color TV sets in the United States suggested that color TV is coming closer to a required public acceptance.

The financial picture reveals that in 1963-64 the CBC's income was $111,387,000 compared with $107,397,000 the previous year. Expenses rose to $115,458,000 from $106,306,000.

Advertising revenue increased to $32,392,000 from $30,846,627, while the taxpayer's contribution in the form of a parliamentary grant was $78,439,000.

The parliamentary grant set for the CBC's operations in 1964-65 is $85,900,000.

Army Worms Invading on 8-Mile Front

STONEY POINT, Ont. (CP) An invasion of army worms is advancing on an eight-mile front into northeastern Essex County and farmers said Tuesday they are working around the clock to halt almost complete crop destruction.

Growers with mainly cash crops fear damages may run into thousands of dollars unless spraying operations can halt the advance. Veteran farmers say the outbreak is the worst in 25 years.

The most severe damage is being reported in oat and barley crops in the Tilbury north area where farmers are using all available spraying equipment. All rental equipment is in use and tractor sprayers are being pressed into service.

Farm supply stores and cooperatives report a heavy demand for insecticide spray used to kill the worms.

The area where the worms are making headway in Essex County is bordered by Highway 98 to the south, Duck Lake to the north and Comber Road to the East. Highway pavement was slippery in many places where worms have been crushed by cars.

ARE MOVING

Farmers say the worms are making fast progress in destroying the oat crop and now are moving into other fields such as corn and tomatoes. He estimated the worms would destroy a field within four days.

Alex Burrell, agricultural representative for Essex, said the army worm feeds mostly on cereal crops and he advised farmers that sprayed operations should be carried out immediately. The extent of the infestation should be known in about 10 days.

Archie Garant, 36, of Tilbury North, said he has numbered army worms destroying everything in their path when he was 12 years old and he hasn't heard of the worms again until now.

The worms measure from a quarter of an inch to an inch and one-half in length. During the daytime they crawl along the ground, but at night they climb grain stalks and eat the kernels.

The army worm belongs to the noctuidae family (moths) and is a vaguely striped caterpillar. It is usually earth-brown in color and has a habit of cutworms, feeding on grass and migrating across the country.

Then the worms have exhausted the food in their breeding place, they mass together and march (therefore the name army worm) in search of new field. The pest is found almost world-wide but is most injurious to the United States and Canada.

K's New Heir Apparent Reserved, Friendly, Sharp

MOSCOW (AP)—On the recommendation of Premier Khrushchev, Leonid I. Brezhnev was relieved today of his post as Soviet president and Anastas I. Mikoyan was elected to succeed him.

Khrushchev explained to a meeting of the Supreme Soviet (parliament) that Brezhnev is needed for full-time work in the Communist party.

The party is the seat of real power in the Soviet Union and Brezhnev is regarded as Khrushchev's heir-apparent.

Khrushchev said he wanted "to express my cordial, grateful thanks to Leonid Ilyich Brezhnev for his fruitful work" as president. Brezhnev held the figurehead position for four years.

Mikoyan, who was relieved of his post as a first deputy premier, was wished success by Khrushchev.

Leonid Ilyich Brezhnev is a metallurgists whose main profession has been Communist party work. The change should help him consolidate his reputed position as Khrushchev' heir apparent.

The squarish, heavy-browed Brezhnev has been at the side of Khrushchev since 1936.

HAS SHARP MIND

The 70 - year - old premier is obsilient, hound shod and well informed on many subjects. Brezhnev, 57, is more reserved, deliberate and friendly in a luncheon club manner. He also is well informed. Western diplomats who have talked at length with him were impressed by a sharp mind.

Brezhnev joined the party in 1931 at the age of 26. He worked only a short time as a steel engineer before concentrating on party work in his native Ukraine region, the scene of Khrushchev's own rise.

Brezhnev reached the upper rank as a party secretary and a candidate membership on the central committee's presidium in party work. The change should

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For July 16

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): You have been seeking practical answers. Some available now — but not all will be to your liking. Invest time, energies. Project is worthwhile. But don't succumb to "attack" of impatience!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Slow pace. Avoid signing agreements which has complicated issues. Seek expert advice. One who wants you to rush . . . is not fully informed. React accordingly. Important to finish current project.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Fine for change, variety, dining out with stimulating individual. Good to make new contacts — welcome challenge. Don't be afraid of emotions. In a way — let yourself go! Heed inner voice.
